Tewkesbury Abbey, Gloucestershire.

MONASTICON ANGLICANUM.

Evesham Abbey,

IN

WORCESTERSHIRE.

EVESHAM, or Evesham, Abbey was built and endowed by St. Egwin, the third bishop of Worcester, about the year 701: Ethelred and Kenred, kings of Mercia, assisting his foundation. It was dedicated to the honour of the Virgin Mary, with whom, after the Conquest, the founder was frequently joined in the dedication style of the monastery.^a

Eoves, a herdsman of the bishop, is said to have seen, or to have imagined that he saw, a vision of the Virgin Mary; which being reported to Egwin, he repaired to the place, and to him the same vision presented itself. The Virgin commanding Egwin to build, on that spot, a monastery for monks of the order of St. Benedict. The minute particulars are given in the founder's Charter.^b

Kenred, king of Mercia, and Offa, who is styled king of the East Angles, in a joint Charter dated in 709, gave, according to the terms of the Instrument, sixty-seven, but, according to the actual enumeration, sixty-five manses on both sides of the river Avon, to Egwin's foundation. Three of these manses were in Homme, one in Lenchwic, seven in Norton, one in Offeham, thirteen in Litleton, one in Aldinton, five and a half in Baddeseie, twelve in Bretforton, two and a half in Huniburn, seven in Willerseie, three in Wicwon, and nine in Benigwrthie and Hamton. The different boundaries follow in the Charter. Kenred also confirmed five casates of land at Morton, which had been given to Egwin in the year 703.^c

In the same year with the Charter of Kenred and Offa the Confirmation of Pope Constantine the First is dated, denouncing anathemas against those who should obstruct the new foundation.^d

EGWIN, in his Charter of Endowment, dated in 714, mentions the monastery of Flendaburch as given to him by King Ethelred, which he afterwards exchanged for the monastery of Streatford; together with twenty manses in Troiford which he had purchased of Oswald the brother of Ethelred. He speaks of the manses on the banks of the Avon given by Kenred as eighty-four in number; and enumerates a hundred and twenty as forming the total quantity possessed by the monastery. The following are the names of the villis mentioned in his

^a See Tann. Notit. Mon. The ancient names of Evesham appear to have been Haum, or Homme, Hatholm, Hethelhomme, and Ethomme. "Dr. Nash thinks Chronuchomme to have been one of its ancient names; but it seems evident from the old Charters that this was the former name of Cracome, or, at least, of a place at some distance from Evesham." Tindal, Hist. and Antiq. of Evesham, p. 1.

^b See Num. IV. The following is the history of the foundation given in the Life of St. Egwin in the Acta Sanctorum, tom. i. p. 708.

"Illis diebus locus erat in territorio Wigornensi, dumisset vepribus condensis incultus, qui à modernis Eoveshammum appellatur; hunc B. Egwinus a rege Merciorum Ethelredo expetiit et obtinuit. Super illam quoque silvam quatuor pastores gregum ad victualia servorum Dei nutrienda constituit. Ex quibus unus, Eoves nomine, quadam die ad interiora silvæ progressus est; et ecce adstabat in loco quodam virgo quædam cum aliis duabus virginibus præclarissima, omnem mundanam pulchritudinem, et ipsius solis fulgorem sui splendore et gloriâ devincens, librum in manibus tenens et cum sacris virginibus cœlestia Cantica psallens. Expavit vir ille tam coruscâ visione hebetatus, nec ferens cœlestia conspiciere, tacitus ac tremens domum rediit: quæ viderat sancto episcopo intimare curavit. Vir autem Dei tacitè rem considerans, post jejunia et preces quadam die cum tribus sociis, et cum psalmis et orationibus devotis, nudus pedes ad locum designatum pergit, eminusque relictis sociis ipse interius processit, diutiusque terræ accubans, cum gemitu et lacrymis implorabat respectum misericordiæ redemptoris. Surgente illo ab oratione, tres virgines non minoris splendoris et gloriæ, quàm priùs apparuere. Quarum quæ media erat præcelsior, et omni nitore splendidior præfulgebat, liliis candidior, rosis vernantior, odore inæstimabili fragrantior, librum quoque manibus præferens, et crucem auream luce radiantem. Cumque cogitaret hanc Domini genitricem esse; virgo præcellentissima quasi favens tam piæ æstimationi, adorantem prætensâ, quam tenebat, cruce benedixit, et cum tali valefactione disparuit. Gavisus itaque vir sanctus, et Deo gratias agens, intellexit esse divinæ voluntatis, ut locus ille Dei cultoribus consecraretur, et beatæ Dei genetrici dedicaretur. Voverat enim inter varias tentationum angustias, si Dominus prosperum faceret desiderium suum, ædificaturum Domino templum. Locum ergo protinus mundavit, opus inchoavit, et ad finem perduxit."

^c See the Charter, Num. III.

^d Num. II. It may be proper to state that the Charter of Kenred and Offa, the Confirmation or Epistle of Pope Constantine, and even Egwin's Charter, have been doubted as to their authenticity. In the ΠΡΟΠΥΛΑΙΟΝ Johannis Marshami, p. xvi. we read, "In bulla Constantini P. et diplomate regum Kenredi et Offæ, de Evishamensis cœnobii fundatione, dicitur regula B. Benedicti instaurari, quæ minus in illis partibus adhuc habetur. Et Egwini carta habet regulam S. Benedicti. . . . Illa regum carta doctissimo Spelmanno (Conc. Brit. 210. Spelm. p. 212.) suspecta est, quod Offa se Orientalium Anglorum gubernatorem denunciaret, cum esset Orientalis Saxo: neque satis est decorum monachos, jam mundo emortuos, se regum titulis adornare. Egwini carta displicet, quod subscriptionis tempore testes partim Romæ fuerunt, partim in Anglia. Nonnullis minus arridet æra Christiana, quæ vix tandem a Caroli magni temporibus in usum venit. Mihi quidem præcox illa Benedictinæ regulæ mentio recentiore ætate olere videtur." Bishop Stillingfleet also, in his Antiquities of the British Churches, chap. i. p. 26, has attacked the Confirmation of Pope Constantine upon another ground; in which he is combated by Dr. Nash, Hist. and Antiq. of Worcestershire, vol. i. p. 397.

The monkish historians inform us that Egwin was a Wiccian, and of royal blood. He succeeded Oftsor in the see of Worcester in 692.^b In the Charter of Pope Constantine, Egwin is mentioned as having been twice at Rome. His Legend informs us that, setting out upon his first journey, he put iron fetters on his legs, throwing the key which locked them into the Severn: another account says the Avon. He afterwards found the key in the belly of a fish, according to one account at Rome, according to the other in his passage from France to England. These stories are considered as fictions invented by the monks of his monastery.^c Egwin's second journey to Rome was in the company of Kenred and Offa, in the year 708, when those monarchs resigned their crowns for a monastic life. In that year also Egwin resigned the bishoprick of Worcester; becoming, on his return to England, the first Abbat of his monastery.

Bishop Tanner informs us that Egwin wrote the following pieces: 1. "De suis Apparitionibus." 2. "De primordiis sui Cœnobii." 3. "De Vita S. Aldhelmi." 4. "De Vitis variorum Sanctorum."^d He died December the 30th, A. D. 717,^e and was buried at Evesham.

A manuscript formerly in the collection of Sir Simondes Dewes, copied by Dugdale,^f preserves the names of eighteen abbats who were the immediate successors of Egwin:

ATHELWOLD, ALDBORE, ALDBATH, ALDFERT, TYLDBRITH, CUTULF,
CREDANUS, TINTFERTH,^h
ALDBALD, ETBRITH, ELFERD, WLFARD,ⁱ KYNELM, KYNACH, EBBA,
EDWINUS.

They are stated to have kept the possessions of the monastery entire as they were left by Egwin.^k

After the death of Edwinus, a prince of the Wiccii of the name of Athelm, or Alchelmus, procured a grant of this monastery from Edmund the son of Edward the elder, drove away the monks, and substituted secular canons in their room. One Wlric, or Ulfric, and Bishop

Osulf, were likewise encroachers on the territories of the abbey: till, in the year 960, St. Ethelwold coming hither by the command of King Edgar, restored the monks, and appointed

OSWARD to be abbot.^l In his time the original church erected by Egwin fell down: the shrine of St. Egwin only being preserved unhurt, with his relics. The church was rebuilt either by Oswald or some of his immediate successors.^m

After the death of Edgar, and probably after Oswald's death, the monks were again expelled by Alferus, or Elfere, prince of Mercia;ⁿ a few secular canons being appointed to replace them, while the larger portion of the abbey possessions were appropriated by Alfere as his own demesne. Falling sick, however, and hopeless of life, he sent for a monk of the name of FREODEGARUS, on whom he bestowed not only the monastery, but the lands also which he had reserved as his own possessions. Freodegarus remained but a short time as abbat. He was unable to remove the canons, and desisted from the rule of the monastery altogether.

After this a powerful person of the name of Godwin came to King Ethelred the Second, and offered him three hundred mancusses of gold to have the abbey and its territory confirmed by grant to him and his successors for ever. The grant was made, and the canons were reduced by Godwin to obedience. But, a short time after, Ethelred made a second grant of this monastery to Bishop

AGELSIUS, whom Dr. Nash enumerates as one of the abbats. Agelsius, or Agelsi, falling under the king's displeasure, fled the country: when the abbey was bestowed upon Bishop Athelstan; and, after his death,^o upon Aldulf, then bishop of Worcester, by whom it was subjected to the jurisdiction of his see. Aldulf, or Adulf, appointed

ALFRIC, or AFRICIANUS, abbat of Evesham. He was succeeded by

ALGAR, or ALFGARUS, in whose time no less than forty hides of land belonging to the abbey were seized by Godwin.^p These, however, were restored to BRITHNARUS, the successor of Algar.

AGELWINUS, or ETHELWYN, was the next abbat; who was also bishop of Wells. Upon his death, Godwin once more invaded the territories of the Abbey: but King Ethelred having appointed

AYLFWARD, or ALWARD, a monk of Ramsey, to be abbat, A.D. 1014, Godwin was driven from his encroachments. In 1034, Aylfward was made bishop of London; still continuing to hold the rule of the monastery. He was the first abbat who asserted the liberty of the monastery against the jurisdiction claimed by Aldulf bishop of Worcester: and so far obtained it, that Avikin, or Amkin, prior of the monastery, was made dean of the Vale of Evesham. Having presided over the abbey thirty years, he died on the 6th of the kalends of August, 1044, and was buried in his former monastery of Ramsey.^q

^a Num. IV. In the old edition of Dugdale this Charter is followed by an enumeration of the inhabitants of the monastery in the time of abbat Robert of Jumieges, which is omitted in its regular place, the same being given in continuity of other matter by Stevens, in the "Analecta ex Registro de Evesham de actis Abbatum." The 11th of January, which is marked as the day of Egwin's celebration in the English Martyrologies, is supposed by Butler, in his Lives of the Saints, to have been the day on which his body was translated, in 1183. See Butler's Lives of the Fathers, Martyrs, and other principal Saints, edit. 8vo. Dubl. 1779, vol. i. p. 123. Brithwald archbishop of Canterbury wrote a Life of St. Egwin, a fine and very old manuscript of which is preserved in the Cottonian volume, Nero E. 1. This Life was abridged and altered by Capgrave.

MANNIUS, or MANNUS, was the next abbat; chosen by King Edward the Confessor. Simeon of Durham calls him Wlmarus.^a Tindal calls him Mauricius. He resigned, on account of ill health, in 1058; when EGILWIN, a monk of the monastery, called in the Domesday Survey Eluui and Aluvinus,^b was appointed by the king, at Mannius's request, to succeed him. Mannius himself died on the very same night and at the hour on which King Edward the Confessor died, on the feast of the Epiphany, A. D. 1065. Egilwin was consecrated by Aldred archbishop of York. On King Edward's death he became a favourite with Harold, and was afterwards much esteemed by the Conqueror, by whom he was entrusted with the care of the counties of Worcester, Gloucester, Oxford, Warwick, Hereford, Stafford, and Salop. He is said to have increased the number of the monks from twelve to thirty-six, and to have left behind him five chests of money ("v. archas plenas argento") for the building of a new church. He died on the 14th of the kalends of March, A.D. 1077.^c

WALTER, a monk of Cerasia, was made abbat by King William I. within three months after Egilwin's death.^d His controversy with Wolstan bishop of Worcester, for the services of fifteen hides in Heamtone and four in Beninewyrthe, has been already detailed at considerable length.^e He began the building of the new church which his predecessor had intended: but finding money still wanting, he is said to have sent his monks with the shrine of St. Egwin through England to collect donations, amassing thereby a considerable sum.^f During his abbacy, the Domesday Inquisition of the possessions of the monastery was taken; whence it appears, that in Gloucestershire the abbey held eight hides at Malgesberia, seven in Tedestrop, ten in Bortune, ten in Bradewelle, four burgesses in Gloucester and one in Winchecomb, three hides of land in Svvelle, eight in

Willersei, three in Westune, two in Stoch, three in Hedecote, and fifty-six in the Ferding or quarter of Winchcombe. The possessions at Bradewelle and Winchcombe are not valued: but from the rest it appears that forty-four hides, which in the reign of Edward the Confessor were valued at thirty-seven pounds, at the time of the formation of the Survey produced fifty-one pounds. In Worcestershire, three hides at Evesham, one in Lenchwic, seven in Nortune, twelve acres in Oleberge with a leuuede of wood, one hide in Offenham, six at Liteltune, six at Bratfortune, one hide at Aldintone, three at Wigvene, six hides again at Bratfortune, six hides and a half at Badesei, seven at Liteltune, two hides and a half in Huniburne, fifteen at Ambreslege,^g five hides at Hantun, four at Beningeorde, five in Mortune, four and a half at Achelenz, one at Bvinton, four at Circelenz, with twenty-eight masures or manses in Worcester. Eighty-eight hides and a half and twelve acres, which produced seventy pounds fifteen shillings in the time of King Edward the Confessor, produced sixty-eight pounds ten shillings only in the time of the Conqueror.^h In Northamptonshire, the abbey held four hides at Liceberge, valued at forty shillings, both in the time of King Edward and King William. In Warwickshire, five hides at Witelavesford, three at Sandburne, two at Salford, three at Chenevertone, and three at Wilelei. Thirteen hides (the value of the three at Wilelei being omitted), which produced seven pounds in the time of Edward the Confessor, producing eight in the time of the Conqueror. The gross number of hides held by the monastery in the different counties amounting to two hundred and eighteen and a half, and twelve acres: producing a revenue, as far as is recorded in Domesday, at the time of the Survey, of one hundred and twenty-nine pounds ten shillings.ⁱ

The particulars are thus noticed in short in the Chronicle of Mailros, A. D. 1074. "Tres monachi de Evesham venerunt, id est Aldwinus, Elfwinus, Reinfridus; ab his tribus instaurata sunt tria monasteria, Dunelmum, Eboracum, Witeby." Chron. Mailros. Gale, Script. tom. i. p. 160.

Compare MS. Harl. 3763, fol. 169 b.

^g Thus far comprising the sixty-five hides stated to be held by the monastery in the hundred of Fisseberge, at the beginning of this part of the inquisition.

^h At Evesham itself an intermediate increase in value, between the time of Edward the Confessor and the Conqueror, is noticed, as well as at Beningeorde; but under Achelenz and Bvinton we have instances of progressive decrease. Rents paid in kind to the monastery occur twice in these entries; once, apparently, from a mill stream at Lenchewic, of two thousand eels; and of the same number from a fishery at Ambreslege. In the first entry concerning Bratfortune, we have something like a notice that the buildings of the abbey were going on; as the oxen belonging to one of the ploughs are noticed as occasionally drawing stone to the church. A Salt-pan occurs at Ambreslege: and at Hantun the monks had a Vineyard newly planted.

ⁱ Compare Num. VI. Beside the lands entered in the Survey of Worcestershire as actually belonging to the abbey at the time of the returns, there are one or two entries of land which had belonged to Evesham in the time of Edward the Confessor, but of which the abbey had been deprived. Six hides at Actune, held by the bishop of Baieux, are stated to have been obtained of the abbey by Urso the sheriff in exchange: but four hides at Lenche are acknowledged to have been seized by the bishop. "De his iij. hidis fuit ipsa æcclesia saisita multis annis, donec episcopus Baiocensis de ecclesia abstulit et Ursoni dedit." Domesd. tom. i. fol. 176, col. i. Two of these hides had been given to the church by Gilbert Fitz Turol for the support of a monk: the two others had been purchased of King William by abbat Eluni, or Egilwin, for a mark of gold. Urso de Abetot (who appears to have been an accomplice of the bishop) held three hides in Uptune which had been held by Egilwinus as abbat, and which were returned by the county as of right belonging to the monastery. "Aluvinus abbas de Evesham tenuit, et in abbacia recte deberet esse TESTE COMITATU." Urso also held Witune, consisting of half a hide which had been given by one Vluiet to the church at the time his son became a monk. "Hanc terram donavit quidam Vluiet eidem ecclesiæ de Evesham et posuit donum super altare quando filius ejus Aluiet factus est ibi monachus. Hoc factum est quinto anno regni regis Edwardi. Postea vero præstitit abbas Aluvinus hanc terram suo avunculo quamdiu ipse homo viveret; qui postea mortuus fuit in bello Herald contra Norrenses, et ecclesia recepit terram suam antequam rex Willielmus in Anglia venisset, et tenuit isdem abbas quamdiu vixit, et etiam successor ejus Walterius abbas similiter tenuit amplius quam septem annis." Hantune, the last manor belonging to Evesham held by Urso, consisted of four hides: the abbey title to which, upon the testimony of the county, was as good as that to Uptune. "Hoc manerium emit abbas ejusdem ecclesiæ a quodam Taino, qui terram suam recte poterat vendere cui vellet, tempore regis Edwardi, et emptum donavit Ecclesiæ per unum textum positum super altare, teste comitatu." Compare Domesd. tom. i. fol. 177 b, col. ii.

The following record of Odo's usurpations from the monastery, not only in Worcestershire but in other counties, is preserved in the Harl. Register, num. 3763, fol. 58 b.

"Hic prænotantur terræ quas Odo Baiocensis episcopus per violentiam abstulit de ecclesia sanctæ Dei genitricis Mariæ Eveshamii tempore Walteri abbatis.

Defuncto quoque abbate Eilwino, et episcopo Odone omnes terras has auferente, ipse Osbernus recepit præfatam terram, scilicet Grefton, et simul utrumque habet nunc, terram videlicet et aurum ecclesiæ. Ad Budiford i. hid. Bivin-

Baieux, the Conqueror's half-brother, Walter was deprived, as has been already shown in the Notes, of considerable possessions which had been acquired by Egwin, yet he increased the number of his monks.

The monks, however, have carefully chronicled his grants of the abbey lands to his relations and friends, contrary to the interest of the monastery, immediately after the usurpations of Odo; together with those of abbats Maurice and Robert. His grant of fourteen hides and a virgate in different places to his brother Randulfus is expressly said to have been made "contradicente capitulo."

Mr. Talbot's manuscript places the death of Abbat Walter in 1093; but the Evesham Register in the Cotton library, as well as other authorities, say on the 13th of the kalends of February, 1086.^a

ROBERT, a monk of Jumieges, in Normandy, was the next abbat: in whose time we have a particular account of the internal condition of the monastery. There were then sixty-seven monks, five nuns, three persons who are termed "pauperes ad mandatum," three clerks who enjoyed the same privileges as the monks, and sixty-five servants. Of the monks, twelve were dispatched to Denmark by King William Rufus. The following was the disposition of the servants: five served in the church, two in the infirmary, two in the chancery, five in the kitchen, seven in the bake-house, four brewed, four attended the bath, two were shoemakers, two were in the pantry, three were gardeners, one attended at the gate of the close, two at the great gate, and five in the vineyard; four attended upon the monks when they went abroad, four were fishermen, four waited in the abbat's chamber, three waited in the hall, and two were watchmen.^b

The mission of the twelve monks to Denmark was for the purpose of establishing a subordinate priory or cell at Othenesie, the dependance of which upon Evesham, as the parent monastery, was ratified by a Charter of Waldemar king of Denmark in 1174.^c

Abbat Robert died in 1096. He was succeeded by

MAURICE, a monk of Evesham, who ruled the monastery till his death in 1122. He is said to have built what was called the old chapter house, the dormitory, a parlour, and the chapel of St. Mary Magdalen; and to have purchased many ornaments for the church.^d

REGINALD, a monk of Gloucester, nephew of Milo Earl of Hereford, was the next abbat: who is stated to have procured considerable privileges for his monastery. He went to Rome in the pontificate of Innocent the Second, on foot, to maintain a cause against Bishop

Simon: and Tindal, probably misled by Willis, says he obtained for himself and successors the use of the mitre and other pontifical ornaments: but this latter information is erroneous; the use of the gloves, ring, mitre, dalmatica, tunick, and sandals being granted by Pope Clement the Third, in the fourth year of his pontificate, to abbat Roger.^e He died, according to Stevens's 'Analecta,' on the 8th of the kalends of September, 1136: but in the Harleian Register of Evesham Pope Innocent's Bull addressed to him is dated in 1138.^f Willis says he died on the eighth of the kalends of September, 1149.^g The good deeds of this abbat are given in the words of the Harleian Register in the Note.^h

WILLIAM DE ANDEVILLE, a monk of Christ Church Canterbury, called by Gervase of Canterbury William de LONGA-VILLA,ⁱ succeeded Reginald. He was first prior of Dover. While abbat of Evesham he excommunicated William de Beauchamp and his accomplices for destroying the walls of the cemetery and robbing the church. He also recovered the castle of Bengeworth, which stood at the foot of the bridge, in the suburbs of Evesham, from the same William; and, demolishing it, caused the ground to be consecrated as a cemetery.^k He died on the 2d of the nones of January, 1159.^l

ROGER, a monk of St. Augustine Canterbury, was the next abbat, who has been already noticed as having obtained from Pope Clement the Third the use of the gloves, sandals, mitre, &c. He died, after a short administration, on the 2d of the nones of January, 1160.^m His successor was

ADAM, a monk of Cluny de Caritate, and who had been prior of Bermondsey. He was elected in 1161. He finished the shrine of St. Egwin; made an aqueduct, and the lavatory; he also ordered the two bells, 'Jesus,' and that called 'Gloriosa,' to be cast;ⁿ and supplied the church with numerous vestments, ornaments, &c. In his time, also, the bake-house, the granary, the old infirmary, (where was afterwards the abbat's chamber), and a private dormitory were built. He likewise completed the cloister which had been begun by the abbats Mauricius and Reginald, and also the nave of the church: in which latter labour he was much assisted by the dean of Wells and other well disposed persons. He also glazed many of the windows of the church; and directed the gold cup to be made which was afterwards given in ransom for King Richard the First by his successor abbat Roger.^o This abbat acquired to his office the privilege of wearing all the episcopal ornaments excepting the ring; together with a decree from Pope

It is singular that Simeon of Durham places abbat Walter's death as late as the year 1104. "Anno m.ciiij. venerandi abbates Walterus Eveshamensis xij. kal. Febr. et Serlo Glocestrensis iij. non. Alexander the Third establishing an independent jurisdiction in the abbey.^a He died on the 2d of the ides of November, 1191;^b or, according to the Analecta in Stevens's Appendix^c and Bishop Kennett's Diptycha, in 1211.

ROGER NORREIS, a monk of Canterbury, who had been imprisoned in, and afterwards fled from, his own monastery, was the next abbat of Evesham; appointed by the royal authority against the wishes of the convent. Numerous particulars of his life will be found in Stevens's Analecta. Gervase of Canterbury, who is also minute upon his history, gives us the following character of him: "Erat ab adolescentia monachus sui superbus, elatus, pomposus in verbis, dolosus in factis, cupidus praelationis, aspernator religionis, ad superiores adulator, ad inferiores contemptor, gloriosus in veste, negligens in ordinis observatione, amicus foeminarum, amator equorum, iracundus ad correptiones, paratus ad detractationes; in omnibus incorrigibilis."^d According to Gervase he became abbat of Evesham in 1191.^e

Having become notorious for his waste of the abbey revenues, and for the dissoluteness of his life, he was deposed by Nicholas bishop of Tusculum, the pope's legate, A.D. 1213: retiring to Penwortham, in Lancashire, one of the Cells of Evesham, as prior; where, after residing three years, he died.

RANDULFUS, or RALPH, prior of Worcester, a native of Evesham, succeeded abbat Norreis. From the Annales Ecclesiae Wigorniensis it appears that in the same year he had been chosen bishop of Worcester, but at the suggestion of the bishop of Tusculum declined the election.^f In the second year after his installation at Evesham he went to Rome, to attend a general council, and there obtained some privileges. An exemplification of the Customs of the abbey in his time, copied from the Cotton manuscript Aug. II. will be found in the Appendix of Instruments.^g He died on the 16th of the kalends of January, 1229.

THOMAS DE MARLEBERG, prior of the monastery, was the next abbat elected. He received benediction from the bishop of Coventry the year after his election.^h

Tindal, from a passage at the beginning of the Cotton Register Vesp. B. xxiv., is diffuse upon the good works of abbat Marleberg. While a monk only of the monastery, it appears, his skill in the canon and civil laws, being called in aid by the convent, had led to the repulsion of the bishop of Worcester when on his way to hold a visitation at Evesham: and he had contributed much while procurator at the court of Rome toward obtaining the bull which gave an exempt jurisdiction to the monastery. While a monk, also, he had been engaged in the restoration and reparation of the church, after the falling of the tower; he likewise rebuilt the walls of the presbytery, and repaired the rest of the building; defraying no inconsiderable portion of the expense himself. He had taken a leading share, at considerable personal hazard, in the accusations against abbat Roger Norreis; being, at that time, dean of the valley of Evesham. In the second year of Randulf's abbacy, Thomas de Marleberg accompanied him to Rome, where his prudence and advice were eminently serviceable to the affairs of the monastery. Two years after this he was elected Sacrist. While in this office he made a Reading-Desk behind the choir, which the Evesham church had not before,ⁱ and appointed stated readings to be held near the tomb of St. Wilsius. He made also a lavatory in the cloister, just out of the church gate, and built an apartment in the church;

repairing likewise the lower part of the clock. He restored the shrines and glass windows which had been broken by the fall of the tower; rebuilt St. Wlstan's shrine; and repaired the tablets of the high altar. He replaced the five arches of the presbytery which had been likewise materially injured; and increased the rents and profits of the sacristy. All this was done within the space of a year. He was next elected Prior. In this office, it is said, he buried his predecessor, prior John, in a new mausoleum, and also John surnamed Dionysius. Thomas de Marleberg, at his entrance into the convent, had brought with him many books in both laws, 'per quos rexit scholas ante monachatum apud Exoniam et Oxoniam.' He brought one work of Democritus, 'et librum Antiparalenionis,' the Gradual of Constantine, Ysidorus de Officiis, and the Quadrimus of Ysidorus; Tully de Amicitia, another book of Tully, and his Treatises de Senectute, et Paradoxis; Lucan; Juvenal; and many other authors; with many sermons, notes, and questions in theology: and also notes on the art of grammar, with the rules of that art, and the book concerning accents. After his priorship was ended, he made a large breviary, the best then extant in the monastery; and bound up Hamo on the Apocalypse, and the lives of the patrons of the Evesham church, 'cum gestis omnium bonorum et malorum ecclesiae Eveshamensis,' in one volume. He also bound up the same lives and acts, separately, in another volume. He made likewise a large psalter, the best in the monastery, excepting those with glosses. He collected also all that was requisite for forming four Antiphonars with their notes, except that the brethren of the monastery helped to transcribe them. He finished many books which William de Lith had begun; the Martyrologium, the Exceptio Missae, some excellent notes on the psalter, 'et duo communia sanctorum in veteribus Antiphonariis.' He bought, also, the Four Evangelists glossed, the Prophecies of Isaiah and Ezekiel glossed, the Postills upon St. Matthew, some Allegories upon the Old Testament, the Lamentations of Jeremiah glossed, the Exposition of the Mass according to Pope Innocent, and the book of Alexander Necham called 'Corrogationes Promethei de Partibus Veteris Testamenti et Novi.' He built the towers of the presbytery, repaired that part of the church above the altar of St. John the Baptist, and erected two towers over that part of the church. He made the window in the presbytery representing the history of St. Egwin, and repaired the older painted windows in the west front of the church. He restored the throne and shrine of St. Egwin, ornamented with flower work and precious stones, which had likewise suffered by the fall of the tower. He erected the four first stalls in the prior's choir, and likewise the forms in the same. This same Thomas bought ten acres of land in Littlethorpe of Randolph dispensator, in augmentation of the priorship. This land he afterwards exchanged for some other land in Bengeworth. He also bought some land in Merstowe of Hugh de Warwic, and another piece of land 'de filia Serganti' for the support of his anniversary; as well as a wood of Peter de Lent for the same purpose. He painted the greater part of the chapter-house; contributed toward finishing the great bell-tower begun by Adam Sortes: repaired the walls of the monks' cemetery at a great expense; and supported the private dormitory, almost in ruins, by three arches, in which he expended more than four marks. He supplied the beams, lead, and payment of the work-on the four sides in mezzo-relievo. On the principal front was represented St. Egwin bishop of Worcester, the founder of the abbey, with his crozier in his left hand, in the act of bestowing his benediction on the people. There was no doubt of this figure being intended for the founder, from the circumstance of the crozier being placed in the left hand, which invariably distinguishes the figure of a bishop, and St. Egwin was the only abbat of Evesham who enjoyed that dignity. On the back front were two heads of cherubims; and the carved ornaments on the other two sides were nearly alike. On three sides of the upper surface was a ledge to confine the cushion upon which the book was placed; with two holes in the upper corners through which the cushion was tied. To bring the ornamented sides of the desk at right angles to the eye of the spectator, it must have been elevated upon a pillar (probably of the same material), about six or seven feet high, with a few steps for the ascent of the reader at the back. ⁱ The presumed remains of this very desk were found near the site of the abbey church a few years ago: drawings and a description of which were communicated to the Society of Antiquaries by Edward Rudge, Esq., the present owner of the estate. The desk was composed of a solid block of white marble of considerable weight, richly carved men for covering one of the angles of the great tower; and furnished all the vestments for the chapel of the upper infirmary, and likewise its glass gate: 'cum hostio speculæ ejusdem.' He bought certain land of Adam Peterel, half of which he gave to the eleemosinary, and the other half to supply the lamps of St. Mary in Cryptis. Other services to the monastery, of a minor nature, he also performed. He moreover caused to be written, a book concerning the office of the abbat from the Purification of the Virgin Mary to Easter, the prælections concerning Easter and Pentecost, concerning the benediction of baptismal fonts, and on the profession of monks, in one volume, in a barge letter; and in another volume, in a smaller letter, all such things ordained in the monastery as had not been committed to writing, before. He made, also, the tablet for the locutory in the chapel of St. Anne, toward the west: and after the altar of St. Mary in Cryptis had been despoiled by thieves of its books and vestments, to the value of ten pounds, he contributed to their restoration: and, for that purpose, bought an alb, with ornaments of gold interwoven. He also gave half a mark for the Charter of confirmation of the estate at Radford, destined for the uses of the same altar.

After a very active abbacy of about seven years, he died on the 12th of September, 1236, and was buried under the south wall of the church, against which, during his life time, he had erected a monument, with a marble image in pontificals, sculptured for himself.^a

RICHARD LE GRAS, OR LE GRAI, who had been prior of Hurley in Berkshire, succeeded Marleberg.^b Nash calls him RICHARD LE GROS, OR CRASSUS. In his time, Nash says, the church of Evesham was consecrated by John bishop of Worcester. But there was no bishop there of that name at the time. Dugdale, in his extracts from a manuscript formerly in Sir Simonds d'Ewes's possession, only says, "cujus tempore venerabilis pater Johannes episcopus dedicavit ecclesiam de Evesham, videlicet anno Domini MCCXXXIX."^c Richard le Gras was much employed in the service of King Henry the Third, both at home and abroad. He held the office of lord chancellor of England, and was nominated to the bishoprick of Litchfield and Coventry, but died before his consecration, at Riolo in Gascony, December the 8th, 1242.^d

THOMAS DE GLOVERNIA, OR GLOUCESTER, a monk of Evesham, was the next abbat.^e He had been prior of the subordinate cell of Penwortham.^f He was confirmed, in 1243, by Pope Innocent the Fourth, but could not obtain the temporalities of his abbacy from the king till a special mandate for that purpose had been sent by the Pope. He governed the monastery about fourteen years; dying December 15th, 1255. Nash, by some strange mistake, has printed a memorandum, in his Appendix to the Account of Evesham, from the Cotton manuscript Vespasian B. xxiv. concerning this Abbat, intitled "De bonis Operibus Prioris Thomæ:"^g but it really belongs to abbat Thomas de Marleberg, and the substance has been already given in page 5. Abbat Thomas de Gloverniam was buried in the middle of the church.

After the battle, the bodies of Simon de Montfort earl of Leicester, his son Henry, and Hugh le Dispenser, justiciar of England, were buried in the abbey-church, before the high altar: the king himself assisting at the earl's funeral. The monks esteemed the earl a martyr; and Tyrrel saw a manuscript in the public library at Cambridge, in which prayers were addressed to him. Compare Willis, Mit. Ab. vol. i. p. 91. Tyrrel, Hist. Engl. vol. ii. p. 1052. Nash, Hist. Worc. vol. i. p. 413. Tindal conjectures that Peter de Montfort, William de Mandeville, Ralph

HENRY, OR HENRY OF WORCESTER,^h prior of Evesham, succeeded Thomas de Gloverniam. He was installed abbat on St. Egwin's day, 1256; and was confirmed by Pope Alexander the Fourth. He is stated to have discharged a debt of fifteen hundred marks contracted by his predecessors; and to have been otherwise a benefactor to the monastery. He died in the month of November, 1263. In 1261, during his abbacy, the upper part of the clock tower of the church was struck by lightning.ⁱ After the death of abbat Henry, the abbacy was vacant till 1266. In the interval, the battle of Evesham was fought.^k In the month of September, 1266, Ottobon, the pope's legate, appointed

WILLIAM DE WHITECHURCH abbat of Evesham,^l originally a monk of Pershore, and afterwards abbat of Alnecestre, or Alceter, in Warwickshire, a cell to Evesham. He purchased the manor of Bengeworth of William de Beauchamp, earl of Warwick; and likewise acquired a considerable estate, together with the advowson of the church, at Dereford. He died on the 3d of the nones of August, 1282.^m

JOHN DE BROKEHAMPTON, a monk of the monastery, was the next abbat, confirmed by Pope Martin the Fourth, at Rome. He built the cloister opposite to the chapter-house, vaulted it over, and made a library, or studies, for the monks, above it.ⁿ It was during his abbacy that Henry Latham, one of the monks, built the refectory, the great hall, the abbat's hall, kitchen, and a new chapter-house: the last of which, for size and beauty, is stated to have excelled all the other chapter-houses in the kingdom. He died August 18th, 1316; or, according to others, in 1317. He was succeeded, the year of his death, by WILLIAM DE CHYRYTON, OR SHIRITON, another monk of the monastery, who was elected abbat August the 30th; being confirmed by Pope John the Twenty-second on Sexagesima Sunday. In his time, William Stow, sacrist of the monastery, anno 1319, built the new steeple, or belfry.^o Among the acquisitions obtained by William de Chyryton for the monastery, were the manors of Tatlynton and Witheleye, with the advowsons of the churches of Leylond, Ombresleye, and Baddeby. He granted, for the use of the hostilarius, an old apartment near the abbat's hall, to be fitted up for the accommodation of guests of any religious order. He also built the stately Gate of the Abbey, with its chapels and apartments.^p Having governed the monastery twenty-eight years, he died on the ides of December, 1344.

WILLIAM DE BOYS, OR BOYCE, was elected abbat on the kalends of January following: being confirmed by Pope Clement the Sixth at Avignon. He was much esteemed by the monks for kindness and good humour: enriching the monastery not only by his gifts but by the improvement of its lands. He obtained leave from Pope Urban the Fifth that his successors might be consecrated by whatever English bishop they should choose.^q He died June 13th, 1367; and was buried by Lewis bishop of Hereford, in Evesham church, near the altar of St. Egwin. He ordered the two great bells of the church, Maria and Egwin, to be made.

Basset, Sir John St. John, and other persons slain in the battle, were likewise interred in the abbey-church. Hist. Evesh. p. 137.

JOHN DE OMBRESLEYE, or OMBERSLEY, was the next abbat. He was elected by the convent July 4th, 1367; and, by virtue of the privilege obtained by his predecessor, consecrated by the bishop of Lincoln, at Banbury in Oxfordshire, on the 15th of the kalends of August. He died, after having presided twelve years, October 30th, 1379, and was buried in the abbey church.^a

ROGER ZATTON, sacrist of the monastery, was elected abbat on the 12th of the kalends of December, 1379; being consecrated by the bishop of Lincoln, at his palace in the metropolis.^b In the time of this abbat,

^a The following is the account of this abbat and his good deeds, given in the Harleian Register, 3763, foll. 186 b, 187. "Isti [Willielmo de Boys] successit frater Johannes de Ombresleye, monachus et celerarius domus ejusdem, canonice a conventu electus iiij^{to}. non. Julii proximo tunc sequente [A. D. 1367]. nastery, was elected Zatton's successor on the 8th of the ides of December following: receiving consecration from the Bishop of Bangor, then chancellor of the university of Oxford. He ordained that, at Pentecost, every monk of the monastery, whether present or absent, should be allowed twenty pence, a goose or capon, and a quart of wine; and the prior a double share, viz. three shillings and four pence in money, two capons, and two quarts of wine.^a He died May 10th, 1435;^b and was buried in Mary's chapel, near the steps ascending to the altar.

JOHN WYKEWANE, prior of Evesham, was elected abbat on the 12th of the kalends of January, 1436; being consecrated on St. Thomas's day by the bishop of Bath at Dangerswold. He died in 1460; and was buried in the chapel of St. Mary, before the image of St. Catharine.^c

RICHARD PEMBROKE, S.T.D., was elected abbat March 3d, 1460. He was consecrated by the bishop of Hereford: and the temporalities of the convent were restored to him May 8th following.^d He died March 7th, 1467.^e

RICHARD HAUKYSBURY was elected abbat in 1467, having previously been prior of the monastery. He was consecrated by the bishop of Lincoln; and received the temporalities of the monastery on the 22d of June. Willis states that this abbat stood godfather, anno 1476, to Richard, son of George Duke of Clarence, who was born within the monastery of Tewksbury.^f Stevens, however, thinks this a mistake.^g In his time the monastery incurred a considerable debt. He died April 6th, 1477.

^a Compare Num. XXXVI. Dr. Nash has given us, from the Cotton MS. Titus, C. ix. fol. 24, the following Bill exhibited by this abbat to the Council at Westminster in Trinity term, 10 Hen. V., the king being at that time in Normandy, together with the process, concerning certain violences perpetrated by one Henry Lench of Doredale. "Memorandum quod termino Trinitatis anno regni Henrici quinti decimo, dicto rege tunc in Normannia existente, Ricardus Bremesgrouve tunc abbas de Evesham coram Concilio dicti domini regis per billam suam in propria persona sua apud Westm. graviter conquærendo versus Henricum Lench de Doredale, monstravit de eo, quod idem Henricus Lench, manu forti, modo guerrino arraiatus, arbores dicti abbatis apud Ombresley ad valentiam centum solidorum succidit, et asportavit, et liberam warennam suam ibidem intravit; et lepores, cuniculos, perdidit, phasianos, infra warennam prædictam cepit et asportavit; et in Johannem Brewer molendinarius dicti abbatis, ac in homines et tenentes suos ibidem, tales ac tantas imposuit minas et gravamina, sic quod dictus molendinarius homines ac tenetes ejusdem abbatis circa sua negotia ibidem palam ob metum mortis accedere non audebant; et molendinum dicti abbatis ibidem fregit, et rotam aquaticam ejusdem molendini cum quadam secure succidit et devastavit, ac januas flumineas ejusdem molendini evellit, et in parvis pecibus succidit, et in aquam ejecit, prout in dicta billa plenius continetur, cujus tenor sequitur in hæc verba, &c. Et super hoc per consensum dicti Concilii concessum fuit eidem abbati quoddam breve vicecomiti Wigorn. directum ad attach. prædictum Henricum per corpus suum sub pœna centum librarum; ita quod cum haberet coram dicto Concilio in xv. sancti Johannis Baptistæ eodem termino. Ad quam diem dictus vicecomes retornavit quod constabat eidem Henrico breve prædictum versus eum emanasse, et se ad partes ignotas extra ballivam suam retraxit. Et super hoc per consensum dicti Concilii concessum fuit eidem abbati quoddam aliud breve eidem vicecomiti directum ad capiendum prædictum Henricum si inventus fuisset in balliva sua; et ulterius ad proclamare faciendum in publicis locis infra ballivam suam, ubi sibi melius videbitur expedire, quod prædictus Henricus sit coram dicto Concilio in octavis sancti Michaelis sub pœna ducentarum librarum; tenor cujus brevis sequitur in hæc verba: 'Rex vicecomiti Wigorn. salutem,' &c. Et postea ante prædictas octavas sancti Michaelis, ad instantiam Philippi Morgan tunc episcopi Wigorn. et Joannæ Beauchamp dominæ de Bergevenny, et aliorum fide dignorum, concordati sunt in modo et forma quæ sequitur: viz. quod prædictus Henricus rotam aquaticam prædictam, nec non januas flumineas prædictas, sumptibus suis propriis et expensis, cum omni festinatione in adeo bono statu seu meliori sicut prius extiterunt de novo faciet et reparabit. Et quoad residuum transgressionis prædictæ consensus fuit per præfatos episcopum et dominum quod prædictus Henricus humilissimo modo quopoterit genuflectendo peteret perdonationem, et sic genuflectendo maneret quousque prædictus abbas eum a terra sursum accipere placuerit. Et sic benigne et mansuete fecit; et præfatus abbas pietate et misericordia motus ei perdonavit. Et ulterius prædictus Henricus per consensum dictorum episcopi et dominæ super

WILLIAM UPTON, a monk of Evesham, and prior of the cell of Alceter, was elected abbat April 18th following. He is stated to have paid the debt contracted by his predecessor to the amount of a thousand marks. He died Aug. 12th, 1483; and was buried in the abbey church, between the baptistery and the altar.^h

JOHN NORTON, who is called "prior claustralis," was elected abbat Sept. 4th, and received the temporalities Sept. 27th, 1483. He ordered that, on the day of his anniversary, every brother of the monastery should have twenty pence: and, among them, one deer from the park of Offenham. The park he is said to have enlarged on this account. He died July 2d, 1491.ⁱ He was buried in the nave of the church, before the altar of Jesus.^k

THOMAS NEWBOLD, cellarer of the convent, was elected abbat July 18th, and received the temporalities Aug. 23d, 1491. He was consecrated by the bishop of Hereford, and installed the 10th of September following. After presiding two-and-twenty years, he died suddenly Dec. 6th, 1513; and was buried in the body of the church, at the head of his predecessor.^l

CLEMENT LITCHFELD,^m alias WYCH, who had been previously prior of the monastery, was elected abbat December 28th, 1513: receiving consecration from the bishop of Ascalon at his own manor-house of Offenham. The temporalities of the monastery were restored to him on the 4th of February, 1514.ⁿ He paid several sums of money to King Henry the Eighth, and his minister Wolsey. One hundred and sixty pounds to the king, according to custom, for a free election: one hundred pounds to Wolsey, who demanded it without any sufficient reason: five hundred marks, lent to the king at first, but afterwards given to him: five hundred marks to the king for fifths: five hundred marks for a pre-munire: fifty pounds to Wolsey for his visitation: fifty pounds to a cardinal who came from Rome: twenty pounds at another time to Wolsey for his protection: besides several fees to the servants of the king and the cardinal: and, one year, he was forced to maintain twenty-four of the king's servants daily at his table, and to provide for their horses.^a Notwithstanding these heavy charges, he was a munificent patron of his convent. He adorned the choir of the church with considerable elegance; built a handsome tower in the cemetery, which still remains entire; and added two chapels of considerable beauty, one to St. Laurence's church at Evesham, the other to the church of All Saints. Just before the Dissolution, not choosing to surrender his abbey to the king, he was persuaded by Cromwell to resign his pastoral staff. He died at, or near Evesham; and was buried in the chapel of All Saints church, adjoining to the abbey, (which he had himself built,) Oct. 9th, 1540.^b In a window of the abbey church was this inscription, put up in his lifetime: "Orate pro anima domini Clementis Lychfeld sacerdotis, cujus tempore turris Eveshamiæ ædificata est."

PHILIP HAWFORD, alias BALLARD, a young monk of this house, was created abbat in 1539, on Lichfield's resignation: and, on November the 17th in the same year, surrendered his monastery to the king, much to the discontent of his predecessor. For this acceptable service Hawford obtained a pension of two hundred and forty pounds per annum; and was afterwards made dean of Worcester, as Stevens supposes, in lieu of the pension. Wood says he died in 1557; Willis adds, "but 'mortuus' written against his name in the pension-book of 1553 seems to show he died sooner."^c

The original of the following letter, announcing the surrender of the monastery to Lord Cromwell, is preserved in the Cotton manuscript Cleop. E. iv. fol. 255.

"My duete most humbly remembryd, it may please your lordyship to bee advertised that according to yowr commawndment I have byn att Evesham and ther receyvyd the resignation of th'abbott, whiche he was contentyd to make immediatly uppon the sight of your lordyshipps letters, saving thatt he desiryd me very instantly thatt I wold nott open the same during the tyme of my being here, bicause (as he sayd) it wold bee notyd thatt he was compellyd to resigne for fear of deprivation; as touching his pension and the assurance thereof, he hath made certayn requests, submitting himself to bee ordred in all things as to your lordeshipp shall be thought mete.

The revenues of the abbey were valued at the Dissolution, according to Dugdale, at 1183*l*. 12*s*. 9*d*. per annum. According to Speed, at 1268*l*. 9*s*. 9*d*.^d

The site and demesnes of the monastery, together with Honyam meadow, were granted in the 34th Hen. VIII. to Philip Hobbye, Esq. in consideration of the sum of 891*l*. 10*s*.^e

The present proprietor of the manor and monastery of Evesham is Edward Rudge, Esq.

Tindal has enumerated the churches in and near Evesham of which the abbats of that place were once the proprietors. These were All Saints and Saint Laurence in Evesham; Bingworth; Hampton Magna and Parva; Bradforton; Church Honeyborn; Offenham; South, Middle, and North Littleton; Norton; Badsey; Wicemford, or Wickamford; Ombersley; Oldborough; and Stoney or Abbots Morton.

Nash likewise, in his History of Worcestershire, notices the respective manors and advowsons in the county belonging to the monastery. While the monastery flourished, two bailiffs governed the town of Evesham under the abbat in civil causes.^f

Sir Robert Atkyns, in his History of Gloucestershire, mentions the manor and advowson of the chapel of Adlestrop; the manor and advowson of the rectory of Aston Somervil; the manors of Bledington and Bourton on the water; the manor and advowson of the rectory of Broadwell; a manor in Studlecot and Bartram; a manor in Pebworth, with the impropriate rectory and advowson of the vicarage; the manor and advowson of Sainbury; a meadow in Upper Slaughter;

^e See Numm. XLII. XLIII. Four years after this grant, Philip Hobbye had licence to alienate the manor of Salford in Warwickshire, which had come with it to Anthony Lyttelton. See Num. XLIV. Stevens says, "By another Licence, of King Edward the Sixth, to alienate severall lands and possessions then in the hands of John Earl of Warwick and Viscount Lisle, knight of the Garter and great chamberlain and high admiral of England, it appears that the manor of Stowe in the county of Gloucester, and of Nethercote in the same county, mentioned among other particulars in the said licence, did, before the Suppression, belong to the same abbey of Evesham." The original was in the possession of William Stanford, Esq. of Abbot-Salford.

^f Nash, Hist. of Worc. vol. i. p. 411, from the Habington MSS. In the 20th of Hen. III. the liberties of Evesham were seized on account of the use of false measures; but they were restored on the submission of the abbat and monks. Nash, ibid.

MS. Cole, Brit. Mus. vol. xxvii. p. 199. A view of abbat Litchfield's chapel is given in Tindal's Hist. of Evesham, p. 238.

^c What is here meant by the word "mortuus" written against abbat Hawford's name is not clear. In the Counter-part of the Pension Roll, formerly belonging to Mr. Sharpe of Coventry, and now preserved in the British Museum, signed by the queen, the pension appears to have been still paid, in 1553, with numerous others.

Bridges, in the History of Northamptonshire, notices the manor, impropriate rectory, and advowson of the vicarage of Badby; the manor of Newnham; four hides of land in Lichborow; and a house in Northampton; as their property in that county.

Dugdale, in his Warwickshire, notices their right in the advowson of the church of Barford; in a pension from the church of Ilmington; in possessions in Binton, Grafton, and Coughton; the village of Sambourn; the priory of Alcester; possessions at Kinewarton, Wethele, Ragle, Kingle, and Oversley; lands in, and the hundred of Whitlaxford; in a pension from the canons of Kenilworth; in lands, and a pension from the church, at Saltford Priors; and in lands at Salford or Saltford Abbots.

Newcourt, in his Repertorium Ecclesiasticum, notices the advowson of St. Michael's Cornhill, and the impropriation of the church of Hillingdon, as belonging to them in Middlesex.

The advowsons of Corwelle in Oxfordshire, of Leyland in the diocese of Coventry, of Muckleton in the diocese of Worcester, and of Meryton in that of Lincoln, are also stated to have belonged to Evesham abbey. The monks had likewise possessions at Pikesley in Herefordshire.^a

Nash says, the Abbat of Evesham had liberty to buy provision or other necessities in any market in England without paying toll.^b

Of the customs and internal regulations of the monastery, sufficient will be found among the Instruments in the Appendix.^c Translations from them are given both in Nash and Tindal's Histories.^d

Leland found the following works in the convent library:

- 'Calchidius super Timæum Platonis:'
- 'Liber peri Ermeneias Apuleii:'
- 'Adæ, Eveshamensis Abbatis, ad Virgines de Godstowe:'
- 'Idem, de Miraculo Eucharistiæ ad Raynaldum:'
- 'Ejusdem aliquot Epistolæ:'
- 'Historia Pauli de Casina: ' and
- 'Fortunatus.'^e

Of the REGISTERS of this monastery, Bishop Tanner notices one which was formerly in the library of Lord Chief Justice Coke: and another as purchased by the Earl of Kent 'in auctione Ceciliana.'

That which he speaks of as being in the possession of Richard Fleetwood, Esq. of Penwortham in Lancashire, in 1628, was unquestionably the manuscript which is now preserved among the Harleian manuscripts in the British Museum, num. 3763.^f ^f Much of this manuscript is occupied by juridical disquisitions and formularies of instruments. On the first leaf is the following entry, in the hand-writing of Wanley, Lord Oxford's librarian.

"Memorandum. When Henry Fleetwood of Penwortham Esq. disposed of this book to my noble Lord Harley, he reserved to himself and his family a Right of borrowing the same out of the library, whensoever (upon occasion of contests with the bishops of Chester) it shall be necessary to produce it at trials in public. And accordingly, my lord was pleased to lend it to Mr. Fleetwood for that purpose the last summer. In token of this covenant, which was made with my privity; and for the certain Information of Posterity; I do hereto put my name, this second day of March 1721.

Note.^a Bishop Tanner refers to a Record of the Abbey-possession in the time of Queen Elizabeth, preserved in the office of the king's remembrancer in the Exchequer.

Willis says, "What sort of a fabrick the abby church was I can no ways understand, only that it had a high tower in the middle;^b for the said church, with the cloisters, offices, &c., became so entirely demolished after the Dissolution, that nothing that belong'd to it remains at present but a large tower, which stands by itself in the cemetery, no other building being contiguous to it. This tower was built in the time of Henry VIII. by abbat Lichfield. 'Tis a well wrought structure, being at least a hundred feet in height, and is adorn'd at top with neat battlements and pinnacles. In it hang eight bells, tho' not very great ones, which, at the restoration of King Charles II, were taken out of the two parish churches above mentioned, by the town's people. The parish churches are still standing, and are very near this tower. One of them is dedicated to All-Saints, and the other to St. Laurence. Neither of them has any bells, but the bells in the abby tower serve for the use of both. One of them, viz. St. Laurence, is officiated in the morning, and All-Saints in the afternoon all the summer season; but in winter-time there is very rarely divine service perform'd in St. Laurence's church, that of All-Saints being only frequented. Both these churches have small spire steeples, and isles and bodies which are leaded; and with Bengworth on the other side of the water, (being likewise a spire,) and the abby tower, afford a pleasant prospect from the adjacent hills of Blockley. At the upper end of the south isle of All-Saints church, is a small chapel, built by abbat Lichfield; 'tis arch'd at top with stone, and carv'd, and under an arch are the initial letters of his name C. L. for Clement Lichfield. At the entrance into it is a grey marble, on which, as tradition says, was the said abbat's portraiture, and a monumental inscription for him under it in brass, which are torn off. In the church of St. Laurence, at the upper end of each isle, parallel with the body of the church, are two chapels, which seem to have been built about the same time as that of All-Saints, viz. not long before the Dissolution.

"Leland has inform'd us, that in the aforesaid tower was a great bell, and a goodly clock; but I have not been able to learn what is become of the clock-bell, though, I suppose, it continued till the restoration of King Charles II; when the youth of the town joining together, and taking the bells out of the parish steeples, melted them, and cast the present ring of eight bells now hanging together in the tower, as I have before observ'd.

"On or near the site of the monastery is erected a handsome dwelling-house, in building of which 'tis supposed the abby stone was employ'd. They have no tradition here of the abby church, cloisters, or chapter-house; but in the cemetery near St. Laurence's church is an old arch yet standing in ruins, which perhaps might have been some part of those buildings. There are no memorable monuments in either of the parish churches."^c

The abbey of Evesham, when in prosperity, was one of the largest and most stately in the kingdom: situated upon the bank of the Avon. The abbey-church was a sumptuous building of more than ordinary length; with a cloister on the south side. Habingdon's manuscripts say, the abbey church and cloisters were of elegant workmanship, and had within them a hundred and sixty-four pillars which were gilt. And fragments of gilt capitals, with other embellished ornaments, have frequently been found of late years. This church had fifteen altars, besides the High Altar of Jesus: viz. those of the Virgin Mary, of the twelve Apostles, Pope Constantine, and St. Egwin: all in their chapels.

Abbat Lichfield's tower still possesses the character of great magnificence; and is well preserved. Nash says, it is raised on a base of about twenty-two feet square, to the height of a hundred and seventeen feet from the ground to the summit of the vanes.

Beside it, the gateway which was formerly the principal entrance to the abbey is the only remain: forming an elliptical arch seventeen feet high from the ground to the key-stone. Three sets of mouldings divide it into two ranges of niches; and in each range are eight figures, now considerably mutilated. In the centre of the outer range is a defaced figure of an angel praying.^d

^d It is engraved in Tindal's History of Evesham, p. 133.

The following description of the Seal of the abbey of Evesham is communicated by Edward Rudge, Esq. F.R.S. & A.S. the proprietor of the manor, site, and demesne lands of the monastery, and is taken from an impression in wax now in his possession affixed to a lease of the manor house and demesne lands of Middle Littleton, granted by the last abbat, Phillip Hawford, to John Aldington, Dec. 16, 30th Hen. VIII.

The principal side of the Seal gives a representation of the legend which relates to the building of the abbey-church and to the endowment of the abbey by King Ethelred.^a Round the extremity of the principal side of this Seal are the words, SIGILLVM . SANCTE . MARIE . ET . SANCTI ECGWINI . EPI . EOESHAMENSIS . MONASTERII . "The Seal of St. Mary and of St. Egwin bishop of the monastery of Evesham." Beneath the representation of the abbey church, at the upper part of the Seal, are the words, ECCE . LOC . QUE . ELEGI . i. e. Ecce locum quem elegi: "Behold the place which I have chosen."

The lower inscription, round Eoves attending his swine, has been carefully compared with two other impressions of the abbey Seal taken from a different matrix, also in Mr. Rudge's possession; and the following explanation of it will be found to correspond with the subject represented within it.

EOVES HER . WENEDE . MIT . WAS . SWIN ECGWIN . CLEPET . VIS EOESHOM.

Ecgwin named [it] Vic Eovishom."

Which old English rhimes, for such they are intended to be, may be thus explained:

1. EOES, the name of the Swineherd.
2. HER, Saxon for here.
3. WENEDE, the old English or Saxon word wended, i. e. went.
4. MIT, a corruption of WIT, the Saxon with; the w turned upside down.
5. WAS, probably a corruption of HIS; which, as well as the preceding word, may have been incorrectly copied from an impression of an earlier Seal, which was perhaps lost.
6. SWIN, swine.

The next line is much less difficult of explanation, when duly considered and compared with the legendary story.

7. ECGWIN. The first letter appears to want the middle stroke; the second letter is a c, and not an o.

8. CLEPET, named.

9. VIS EOESHOM. On the original Seal the third letter was most likely a c instead of s, which will explain this word to be the Eoveshom of the Wiccians, or people of Worcestershire, who were originally called Vicci, or Wicci. The spot, as the legend suggests, had originally been simply called Hom, i. e. holm. Egwin, therefore, when he built the abbey at the instance of Eoves's vision, gave a new name to the place. The vic was afterwards omitted when the county got another name, and Vic Eoveshom became Evesham. Or the vis may be intended for the Saxon vic, a village, or place surrounded by a winding river, which is the precise situation of the town of Evesham, encompassed as it is by the Avon forming a horse-shoe around it.

On the reverse of this Seal, on the left and near the top, the Virgin is seated, with the child on her lap, within a Gothic niche. On the right side, near the top, is St. Egwin kneeling, and holding up with both hands a representation of the abbey-church, which appears to be another side of the same church given in the impression on the obverse. Beneath St. Egwin, is a bishop, receiving from a king a charter, on which is inscribed DAMUS REGIE LIBERTATI. Under the charter, on an oval shield, are the royal arms, the three leopards of England. Behind the bishop is a monk, bare-headed, holding up his right hand; in his left is a book. Behind the king is the figure of a queen seated, and beyond her an attendant also seated, holding a falcon on his arm. All these figures are under canopies of the early Gothic form. The inscription round, is in a similar character to that on the other side, and entirely in the Latin language: a few of the letters at the bottom are broken off, on which account the inscription cannot be completely made out: DICTIS . ECGWINI . DAN FRATRI RI . OMNIBUS . UNDE . PIE . NITET . AULA SACRAE . MARIE.

PENWORTHAM and ALCETER, cells to Evesham, will be spoken of in their respective places.

[W. Malmesb. fol. 162 a, n. 10.]

HABET etiam Wigornensis provincia abbatiam Eveshamensem, et Perscorensem. Eveshamum fundavit beatus Egwinus episcopus, de quo quid miraculi sit, quod Beda tacuerit, nondum per me potui advertere, vel per alios addiscere, praesertim quod cum Kenredo rege Merciorum et Offa rege Orientalium Anglorum Romam iverit, quorum profectionem historicus non siluit. Verumtamen quaecunque res hanc taciturnitatem imperaverit, constat eum tertium Wigorniensium praesulem fuisse, locum illum quo nunc coenobium visitur, peculiariter amasse, incultum antea et spinetis horridum, sed ecclesiolam ab antiquo habentem, ex opere forsitan Brittannorum. Eo loci vir sanctissimus, dum solitudine invitante frequentaret excubias, Dei genitricis visione et alloquutione mulceri meruit, planè et absque scrupulo praecipientis, ut ibidem sibi fundaret coenobium futurum sibi gratiosum, illi negotiosum. Institit ille jussis et complens opus, apostolicis et regis privilegiis corroboravit. Quid illud? credendumne putatur, quod tradit antiquitas? peccatorum juvenilium quondam conscium, pedes compedibus irretuisse, clavibus compedum in anem jactatis, palàm dixisse, tunc se demùm de peccatis securum futurum, cum compedes vel divinitus, vel ipsis reserarentur clavibus; ita Romam profectum prosperèque reversum. KENREDUS rex, relicto regno Merciorum unà cum Offa filio regis Est-Saxonum, strenuo juvene, Romam venit, anno Dominicæ incarnationis dccix. ubi et monachus attonsus obiit, cum quibus Egwinus Wicciorum episcopus Romam veniens, privilegium monasterii sui de Evesham secum detulit.

ANNO DCCXVIII. Circa hunc annum obiit sanctus Egwinus Wicciorum episcopus, hoc est Wigorn. Hic in territorio Wigorn. extitit oriundus ex regali prosapia, ac tandem adultus, in Wigorn. episcopum electus, et tantò humilior effectus quantò altiori sublimatus erat officio, pater orphanorum, sustentator viduarum, et consolator erat desolatorum, pravis sermo ejus quasi stimulus, id est, quasi clavis in alium defixus, mansuetis verò quasi oleum, fortibus durus, humilibus mitis, et mansuetus. Populus tandè videns se illicitam non licere, et assueta vitia relinquere, contra sanctum Dei in iram, odium, et scandalum exarsit, et eum tandè de episcopatu expulit. De eo nempè non solum apud regem accusatio, set etià apud Romanum antistitem ab inimicis prolata fuerat delatio.

Beatus igitur Egwinus, quamvis coràm hominibus se immunem ab illatis sciret, pro peccatis populi sui, ac suis in juventute commissis, pedes suos vinculis ferreis astrinxit, quæ clave poterant ligari atque reserari, ipsamque clavem in fluvium Avene projecit, palàmque dixit: tunc demùm se de peccatis securum fore quandò compedes sui, aut divina virtute, aut illa clavi essent reserati. Sic vinculatus Romam profectus est: campanæ urbis, ut fertur, in ejus adventu per se sonuerunt. In ecclesia sancti Petri ad orationem prosternitur, qua completa ad sacra missarum misteria celebranda sollempnitè præparatur. Interim namque famuli pro cibis emendis ad fluvium pergunt, piscem emunt, exenterant, clavem in ejus ventre reperiunt, et episcopo deferunt, ferrumque quod Anglica Avena absorbuerat Romana Tiberis exalat. Vir igitur Dei coram cunctis clavem accepit, et vincula sua reseravit, &c.

✠ In nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, Amen. Quoniam transeuntis quidem mundi vicissitudo cotidie per incrementa temporum crescit, et crescendo decrescit, et ampliando minuitur, crescentibus repentinis variorum incursum ruinis, finis esse cunctis in proximo cernitur; ideo vanis ac transilibus rebus, mansura celestis patriæ præmia mercanda sunt. Quapropter ego Kenredus, Dei dono, rex Merciorum; et ego Offa, diuina permissione Orientalium Anglorum gubernator, pro redemptione animarum nostrarum ac prædecessorum nostrorum, et subsequentium salute, donamus, concedimus in loco in quo beata Virgo Maria se venerabili viro Egwino manifestavit, in Homme, et presenti libello confirmamus, ad honorem et reverentiam ejusdem Dei genitricis, lxxvij. mansas ex duabus partibus fluminis quod vocatur Avena. Tres uidelicet quæ sunt in Homme. In Lenchwic j. In Nortona vij. In Offeham j. In Carta Eguini Wigorniensis Episcopi.

Ego Egwinus, Wicciorum humilis episcopus, volo
manifestare omnibus fidelibus Christi, qualiter per Sancti Spiritus inspirationem, et per labores multarum et mag-narum visionum ostensum est mihi, quod ego primum unum locum edificare deberem ad laudem et gloriam omnipotentis Dei et sanctæ Mariæ, omnium electorum Christi, et etiam mihi ad eternam retributionem. Cum igitur maximè florerem in diebus Ethelredi regis, expetii ab eo locum qui Haum nuncupatur, in quo loco sancta et perpetua virgo Maria primum cuidam pastori gregum, Eoves nuncupato, dehinc etiam mihi cum duabus vir-ginibus librum in manibus tenens apparuit. Mundavi itaque locum, opusque inceptum, Dei optimi laudetur gratia, ad finem perduxit. Volo igitur ostendere omni sequenti generationi quas possessiones supradicto loco acquisivi, et ipsas terras ab omni exactione potestatum omnium adquietavi, ipsamque adquietationem apostoli-cis auctoritatibus et privilegiis, necnon et regalibus edictis confirmari feci, ut fratres secundum regulam sancti Benedicti inibi Deo servientes sine perturbatione vitam agerent. Nomina etiam villarum volo manifes-tare, quas omnes liberas et juste acquisitas Deo et sanctæ Mariæ obtuli. Itaque ab Athelredo rege quoddam cœnobium, quod Flendaburch nominatur obtinui, quod postea pro alio cœnobio quod Streatforda nominatur mutavi, post parvum verò tempus à prædicti regis fratre Oswardo viginti mansas in loco qui Troiford ap-pellatur adquisivi.

Postea verò succedente in regnum Kenredo, concessit et ipse mihi octoginta quatuor mansas super utrasque partes illius fluminis, quod Avona vocitatur.
Quidam autem adolescens, Athericus nomine, octo mansas mihi concessit, et Walterus venerandus sacerdos alias octo mihi mansas donavit. Sicque Deo propitio brevis tempore centum et viginti mansas prædictæ Christi ecclesiæ acquisivi, sicut scriptum est et confirmatum in chartis ecclesiæ, et in libro manifestatur terra et termini ejus, quem scripsit Brichtwaldus episcopus, et dictavit præcepto Romani pontificis, cum consensu principum totius Angliæ. Hæc verò sunt nomina villarum quas, ut supradictum est, acquisivi: Eovesham, Benyagurth, Hautun, Baddesey, Wicque, Haburne, Bradfortun, Wil-lersley, Withley, Samburn, Kinwartun, Saltford Major et Minor, Ambresley, Ulbeory, Mortun, Buchtun, Meleygaresberrie, Tittlestrompe, Snella Major, Mayeldes-beordy, Sildswick quoque. Has omnes terras, ut præ-fatus sum, liberas ab omni calumnia adquisivi et sanctæ Dei ecclesiæ obtuli. Qui ergo locum quem apostolica dignitas et regia potestas regia libertate donavit, et nos auctoritate Dei et sanctorum apostolorum donamus, depravare aut minuere vel contaminare præsumperit, judicetur ante tribunal Christi, et nunquam in Christi veniat memoriam, nisi in hac vita penitens emendet.
Qui verò servaverit et adauxerit, benedictionibus repleatur, Fiat. Amen. Scripta est hæc charta anno Dominicæ incarnationis dccxiv. ✠ Ego Eguinus per signum sanctæ crucis. ✠ Ego Keneredus rex subscripsi. ✠ Ego Offa per signum crucis confirmavi. ✠ Ego Brichtwaldus archiepiscopus subscripsi. ✠ Ego Oswardus frater ejus confirmavi.

Carta Regis Willielmi, Terras ad Eveshamensem Abbatiam, in Warwicensi Comitatu jacentes, confirmans.

[Ex Regist. de Evesham in Bibl. Cotton. Vesp. B. xxiv. fol. 25 b.]

W. REX. Anglorum, W. episcopo et R. vicecomiti salutem. Mando vobis et præcipio, quatinus Adelwinum abbatem terras ecclesiæ de Evesham; Saltfordiam scilicet et Edricestun, et Milecotan, et Ragele, et Arwam, et Ecclesham, et Bildeburgwrd, et Grafton, et Withlakesford, et Dorsiton, et alias terras, quas in vicecomitatu de Warewic habet, cum magno honore et quietè tenere faciatis, ut eas habeat et teneat ad usus servorum Dei, cum meâ bonâ pace et protectione. Et tibi præcipio R. vicecomes, ut non consentias, quod aliquis ei injusticiam de aliquâ re faciat, quia consentire nolo; sed cum sacâ et soc, et omnibus consuetudinibus plenaliter suas res teneat: et si ei aliquis injusticiam facere præsumpserit, clamet ad me abbas, et ego ei plenam rectitudinem, de quibus clamaverit, faciam.

[Ibid. fol. 26 a.]

Ego Leofricus comes manifesto in brevi isto, quod terram quæ vocatur Heamtune, ad monasterium de Evesham dedi; et misi in illam ecclesiam, quam ego et conjux mea Godgyve ibidem in honore sanctæ et individuæ Trinitatis, pro animabus nostris devotè ædificavimus; et hoc cum victu et hominibus, et omnibus rebus et consuetudinibus ad eandem pertinentibus, ita sicuti ego ipse unquam melius illam in manu meâ tenui et possedi: et ego, quamdiu vixero, illius terræ procurator et defensor esse volo; et consentire nolo, ut aliquis injusticiam in eâ faciat plus nunc, quàm tunc, quando in manu meâ ipsum habui, et in eâ sedi. Istam terram ex dono regio accepi; et ad eam, sicut Cnut rex mihi concessit, veni; quia suæ erat potestatis eam possidendam cui vellet tradi; nam frater meus Normannus illam ante me habuit, sicut rex Ethelredus, ad relinquendum, post se, cui hæredi voluisset, libenter ei, pro suo grato servitio eam concessit; quia ex prævaricatione in jus ejus, recto nobilium suorum judicio, accepit; et ipse frater meus tam diu sine clamore et calumpniâ omnis hominis in eâ sedebat et possidebat, quamdiu vivebat; et ego post eum quantum michi placuit; et qui modo habent, sicuti ego habui, volo ut ipsi habeant. Iste brevis scriptus habetur, ut sit in testimonium, et meæ elemosinæ stabile firmamentum, quam ecclesiæ concessi servis Dei, ad eorum victum. Modo est Birtegus episcopus testis hujus meæ donationis, et totus comitatus Wigorniensis civitatis. Deus totius mundi creator et rector, qui cuncta creavit et fecit, et cunctorum corda scrutatur et renes, cunctos qui huic meæ donationi adjuvaverit, ut firma sit, suâ benedictione multiplicet, et custodiat: et accrescere qui voluerint, cunctis bonis crescant et repleantur.

Carta Willielmi II. Regis de Libertatibus.

[Ibid. fol. 25 b.]

W. REX Anglorum Vr. vicecomiti et cæteris vicecomitibus et ministris sub quibus ecclesia de Evesham habet terras salutem. Sciatis quod ego volo et præcipio ut illa ecclesia habeat et teneat totum honorem qui pertinet ad eam cum tali honore, et pace, et libertate, cum terris, et legibus, et consuetudinibus, cum clericis et laicis, sicuti unquam melius habuit tempore regis Eadwardi, et patris mei, et meo, et sicuti abbas dirationavit coram me contra episcopum S. et defend. ut nec episcopus nec aliquis potens homo super ecclesiam et super abbatem de hiis rebus aliquid invadat aut injustitiam faciat. Quod si autem episcopus aut aliquis alius de hiis rebus quæ ad ecclesiam pertinent, et quæ pater meus ei concessit, et ego concedo: quod si super abbatem reclamaverit, abbas non respondeat ei neque placitum teneat nisi in curia mea. Neque episcopus ordinationes aut synodos ibi per se teneat, aut ordines faciat, nisi ab abbate loci rogatus fuit ut faciat. Scripta hæc carta anno Dominicæ incarnationis m^o.c^o. præcipiente rege W. Carta de Ecclesia de Kinewarton.

[Ibid. fol. 89.]

RANDULFUS de Kinewarton omnibus Christi fidelibus eternam in Domino salutem. Ad publicam omnium volo referri notitiam me pro amore Dei et salute animæ meæ, et animæ Christianæ uxoris meæ, et pro animabus omnium parentum et prædecessorum meorum, dedisse et concessisse Deo, et beatæ Mariæ, et beato Egwino, et Rogerio abbati de Evesham et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus, ecclesiam de Kinewarton, cum capella de Alna et cum capella de Witheleia, et cum omnibus ejusdem ecclesiæ pertinentiis et libertatibus, et liberis consuetudinibus, in puram et perpetuam elemosinam, Alexandro filio meo et hærede volente et consentiente. Ut igitur hæc mea donatio et concessio futuris temporibus firmum et stabile robur obtineat illam præsentis scripti annotatione, et sigilli mei appositione roboravi, et cartam meam super magnum altare de Evesham obtuli in memoria prædictæ meæ donationis perpetuo duraturam. Hiis testibus: Alexandro filio meo et hærede, Ric. de Eccleshale, Aluredo de Burchulle decano Eveshamiæ, magistro Absalon. Carta Philippi seneschalli.

SCIANT præsentēs et futuri quod ego Philippus seneschallus pro salute animæ meæ et prædecessorum

meorum et hæredum meorum in pleno capitulo Evesham, in presentia domini Adæ abbatis et Maur. prioris, et totius conventus, multis etiam præsentibus tam clericis quam laicis, abjuravi, et in perpetuum remisi amphoram cervisiæ quam percipiebam in bracino abbatis et monachorum. Hanc eandem remisit et abjuravit filius meus et hæres Willielmus primogenitus, et alii filii mei similiter, videlicet Philippus, Simon, Gaufridus. Dominus vero abbas et conventus concesserunt mihi et hæredibus meis molendinum de Salford cum pertinentiis suis, videlicet Mulcroft, et acra prati juxta vadum de Cliva, et stagno, in perpetuum tenendum pro duabus marcis annuatim solvendis pro omni servitio, ad festum sancti Michaelis dimidiam marcem, ad festum sancti Andreæ dimidiam marcem, in annunciatione beatæ Mariæ dimidiam marcem, ad festum sancti Johannis Baptistæ dimidiam marcem. Et ne ex hiis in posterum detur alicui occasio malignandi præsentī paginæ tam ecclesiæ sigillum quam meum proprium, comuni assensu appositum est. Hiis testibus: Ric. Decano de Welles, magistro Radulpho, Girardo camerario abbatis, et multis aliis, scil. Walchelino, Henrico fratre ejus, Henrico fil. Walchelini, Reg. fil. Carta Benedicti fil. Steph. London.

[Ibid. fol. 89 b.]

Ad diuturnitatem custodia fidelis est scripta quæ emergentibus opponit obstaculum calumpniis, et rerum seriem incommutabili loquitur veritate. Hujus perspectu rationis ego Benedictus olim filius Stephani London præsentī decrevi mandare cyrographo quod cum jampridem prædecessores mei tanquam jure hæreditario possederint ecclesiam sancti Michaelis de Cornhulle in Lond. necnon et ego ipse possederim. Tandem ego animadvertens quod sanctuarium Dei hæreditaria successionē non debeat possideri, præsertim cum ecclesiastica possessio omnino aliena esse debet a laico, quicquid juris habui in præscripta ecclesia in pleno capitulo apud Evesham in præsentia domini Adæ abbatis et conventus ad quos prænominata ecclesia cum pertinentiis suis a multo retro temporibus dinoscitur pertinere, renuntiavi pro salute animæ meæ et animarum prædecessorum meorum. Ita ut de cætero non possim nec aliquis meorum jure successionis possit in præfata ecclesia aliquid juris vindicare.

[MS. Cotton. Vesp. B. xxiv. fol. 75.]

CLEMENS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Rogero abbati et fratribus sancti Egwini Eveshamensis monasterii salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Largitione nostri muneris et gratiæ eos duximus decorandos quos fidei meritum ac devotionis constantia nobis reddunt acceptos, et qui nullo mediante ad jurisdictionem beati Petri et nostram specialiter pertinere noscuntur. Hac itaque ratione inducta, et devotionis et fidei vestræ intuitu provocati, tibi fili abbas, sicut ex gratia et liberalitate sedis apostolicæ, tu et successores tui usum cirothecarum et anuli habetis; ita quoque usum mitræ, dalmaticæ, tunicæ, et sandaliorum, necnon et vestimenta sacerdotalia benedicendi de consueta clementia et de benignitate sedis apostolicæ duximus concedendum. Indulgentes ut his omnibus in solemnibus diebus infra monasterium tuum, et obedientias ejus, in processionibus quoque ipsius monasterii, in conciliis Romani pontificis et legati ejus, atque in synodis episcoporum incunctanter utamini. Dat. Later. viº. idus Julii pontificatus nostri anno ijº.

Conventio facta inter Abbatem Malmesburiensis Ecclesiæ Robertum secundum, et Abbatem Eveshamensis Ecclesiæ Rogerum secundum, et utriusque loci Conventum, de communicandis omnibus inter ipsos beneficijs tam carnalibus quam spiritualibus.

[MS. Cotton. Vitellius E. xvii. fol. 226.]

HÆC est conventio facta inter abbatem Malmesburiensis ecclesiæ Robertum secundum et abbatem Eveshamensis ecclesiæ Rogerum secundum, et utriusque loci conventum. Quod quotienscumque abbas sive aliquis fratrum hinc inde adventaverit copiam intrandi capitulum habeat, et generaliter communicabit omnibus beneficijs tam carnalibus quam spiritualibus, ac si esset ejusdem loci monachus. Si vero contigerit aliquem fratrum alterutrius ecclesiæ ob aliquem excessum ad alteram directum fuisse, nulla nisi generali debet custodia coartari. Et si forte aliquis instinctu diabolico et propriæ voluntatis arbitrio absque licentia domum propriam egressus fuerit, in altera refugium habeat; et si ibi condigna satisfactione poenituerit, per abbatem illius ecclesiæ domui suæ reconciliari, et loco proprio debet restitui, nisi talis fuerit culpa, pro qua debeat utraque privari. Pro defunctis fiet hoc modo. Pro abbate defuncto unum tricennale fiet in conventu, et tres missæ a quolibet celebrabuntur sacerdote, et a cæteris inferioris ordinis unum psalterium dicetur, et in refectorio præbendam habeat annualem. Pro defuncto autem professo sic fiet. Accepto obitu ejus, si hora competenti breve venerit, statim legetur et facta absolutione, Verba mea, cum Dirige in instanti compleatur; et proxima feria vacante, missa pro eo in conventu solemniter celebrabitur, et a singulis sacerdotibus ei tres missæ persolventur, et ab alijs inferioris ordinis psalterium unum dicetur; et præbenda qualis pro vivo impenditur, per triginta dies pro anima ejus erogabitur. Et nomina tam abbatum quam fratrum defunctorum in martyrologio hinc inde scribentur. Ut autem hæc conventio firma permaneat et rata, utriusque capituli sigillo est corroborata.

Consimilis conventio est inter monasterium Eveshamiæ et monasterium de Witeby; et etiam monasterium Eboracense et prioratum Daciæ civitatis Odene-seye.

Compositio facta inter Abbatem de Evesham et Priorem Wigornensem, inter quos Controversia vertebatur super Communia Pasturarum de Harferton, de Norton, et de Salford, et de Sench, et de Honingham.

[Penes Gul. Stanford de Abbot Salford in com. Warwicensi, armig.]

SCIANT omnes, præsentēs et futuri, quod cum controversia verteretur inter dominum Thomam abbatem Evesham et ejusdem loci conventum ex parte una, et dominum Richardum priorem Wigornensem et ejusdem loci conventum ex altera, super communia pasturarum de Harferton, de Norton, et de Salford, et de Sench, et de Honingham, dicta controversia sub hac forma conquivit, viz. quod dicti abbas et conventus pro se et pro omnibus hominibus suis tam liberis quam nativis (excepto Willielmo dicto senescallo de Evesham) concesserunt dictis priori et conventui in perpetuum quod non communicabunt aliquo tempore in pastura de Harferton a Natali Domini usque ad festum sancti Michaelis, ita tamen quod liceat eis et hominibus suis singulis annis communicare in dicta pastura de Harferton a festo sancti Michaelis usque ad Natalem Domini sicut ibidem eo tempore consueverunt communicare. Dicti vero prior et conventus pro se et pro omnibus hominibus suis de Harferton tam liberis quam nativis concesserunt dictis abbati et conventui in perpetuum quod non communicabunt aliquo tempore in pasturis de Norton, de Salford, de Sench, et de Honingham, a Natali Domini usque ad festum sancti Michaelis; sic tamen quod liceat eis et hominibus suis singulis annis communicare in pasturis de Norton, de Salford, de Sench, et de Honingham, a festis sancti Michaelis usque ad Natalem Domini sicut ibidem eo tempore communicare consueverunt. Acta in crastino sancti Egwini apud Evesham, anno gratiæ millesimo ducentesimo quadragesimo septimo, coram venerabili viro magistro Simone de Wanton justiciario domini regis itinerante. In cujus rei testimonium parti hujus chirographi penes dictos abbatem et conventum remanenti dicti prior et conventus sigilla sua apposuerunt; alteram vero partem penes dictum priorem et conventum remanentem dicti abbas et conventus sigillis suis roboraverunt. Hijs testibus magistro Simone de Evesham, magistro Willielmo de Powicke, David rectore ecclesiæ de Lindredge, Thoma de Stoke, Thoma de Littlinton, Adam de Boteler, et multis alijs.

HÆC est amicabile compositio et ordinatio facta inter ecclesiam de Hildeduna de voluntate et consensu abbatis et conventus de Evesham, patronorum ejusdem ecclesiæ, volente et consentiente magistro Waltero de Langeton ejusdem ecclesiæ tunc rectore, ex una parte, et dominum Rogerum et Philippum hæredem suum de Coulay ex altera, super decimis molendinorum prædicti Rogeri in manerio de Colaham et Wixebrugg, habitorum vel habendorum, de quibus tamen ecclesia de Hilded prius decimas non habuerit. Videlicet quod prædictus Rogerus in recompensationem prædictarum decimarum, et pro eisdem decimis molendinorum contulit ecclesiæ de Hilded. tres culturas de dominico suo ante portam personæ de Hilded. jacentes, scilicet culturam illam quæ protenditur in longum versus la Pulle juxta viam quæ ducitur versus Wivelay, et aliam culturam quæ protenditur in longum ab eadem via versus Coveley. Scilicet totum illud quod dictus Rogerus in eadem cultura habuit. Et tertiam culturam quæ adjacet illi culturæ contigua versus Coveley, et extenditur in longum ab austro versus aquilonem. Dictas videlicet culturas imperpetuum habendas pro prædictis decimis molendinorum, et possidendas. Prædictus vero magister Walterus de Langeton tunc rector dictæ ecclesiæ, de voluntate et consensu abbatis et conventus de Evesham prædicto Rogero concessit ut oratorium, cum campana intra oratorium pendente, erigat in curia sua de Couelay et imperpetuum habeat, tam ipse quam hæredes et successores sui, propriis sumptibus, et proprio capellano suo officiant. Ita tamen quod tam ipse Rogerus et quilibet hæredum suorum qui pro tempore fuerit, quam capellanus qui pro tempore fuerit in prædicto oratorio officians, fidelitatem ecclesiæ de Hilded. et personæ qui pro tempore fuerit faciet, de jure ecclesiæ de Hilded. observando, et de omnibus ad illam pertinentibus, et potissime de obventionibus in eodem oratorio provenientibus quæ pleno jure pertinent ad ecclesiam de Hilded. tam de prædicto Rogero parochiano de Hilded. de tota terra sua quam habet in manerio de Colaham, et de familia sua, quam de hospitibus suis, et ex quacunque alia causa provenientibus. Ita quod prædicta persona pixidem habebit serratam in prædicto oratorio ad obventiones observandas et personæ fideliter in omnibus restituendas. Prædictus vero Rogerus et hæredes sui, cum uxoribus suis, cum in partibus illis fuerint, venient ad ecclesiam de Hilded. in quatuor festivitatibus anni, ut pleno jure parochiani ejusdem ecclesiæ, scilicet in Natali Domini, in Pascha, in festivitate sancti Johannis Baptistæ, et in festo Omnium Sanctorum. Convenit etiam quod si forte aliquis successorum prædicti magistri Walteri in eadem ecclesia de Hilded. prædictum Rogerum sive aliquem hæredum vel successorum suorum aliquo tempore super prædictis decimis molendinorum coram quocunque iudice inquietaverit, vel molestaverit, vel aliquam moverit controversiam, vel aliquo modo hanc compositionem in decimis, vel concessionem in oratorio, in toto vel in parte, infirmare temptaverit perpetua ei obstet exceptio. Et nihilominus tota præ-dicta terra cum fructibus, medio tempore, a quocunque perceptis, ante litis ingressum et antequam eidem respondere teneantur libere et licite absque omni consuetudine, et sine cujuslibet contradictione, redeat in jus et proprietatem, et dominium, et possessionem prædicti Rogeri vel hæredum et successorum suorum qui pro tempore fuerint. Ita quod ex tali habita possessione et tali habita recompensatione nullum in proseguenda causa sua sentiat persona sibi subsidium profuturum: sed in ipsa causa, utpote de novo omnino inter partes suscitanda, salvæ sint eidem Rogero et hæredibus et successoribus suis omnes defensiones et exceptiones tam ex ista compositione et ordinatione quam aliunde competentes. Et sive prædicta compositio inter partes observata fuerit sive non, ipsum oratorium perpetua permaneat et consistat prædicto modo deservendum. Et ut hæc compositio rata et firma in posterum permaneat abbas et conventus de Evesham, magister Walterus de Langet. tunc persona de Hilded. et dictus Rogerus de Coveley huic scripto, in modum chirographi composito, signa sua apposuerunt. Teste capitulo de Middelsex.

[MS. Cotton Nero D. III. fol. 247.]

OMNIBUS Christi fidelibus ad quos Litteræ præ- sentes pervenerint, Johannes permissione divina abbas monasterij Eveshamiae, et ejusdem loci conventus, sa- lutem in Domino sempiternam. Noveritis nos unanimi consensu dedisse, concessisse, et præsentis scripto nostro assignasse et confirmasse, pro salute animæ nostræ et Thomæ Evesham monachi et prioris nostri unum tenementum cum curtilagio adjacente, suis sumptibus adquisitum, officio subprioris monasterij nostri antedicti, quod situatum est in alto vico Eveshamiæ ex parte occidentali ex opposito portæ per quam intrant carragia in cimiterium, inter tenementum Sacristæ monasterij prædicti in quo Willelmus Fremon monachus manet ex parte una, et tenementum pitanciarij in quo Ricardus Weler manet ex parte altera, una cum prima camera illa in infirmaria nostra situata, quæ quondam fuit Johannis Warewyk ex parte sinistra introitus Infirmariæ dum vacaverit; habendum et tenendum totum prædictum tenementum cum suis pertinentijs et cum camera prædicta Henrico Bengeworth subpriori, et suis successoribus in perpetuum. Ita tamen quod subprior qui pro tempore fuerit inveniat duas lucernas, unam ad hostium locutorij ante Karulos, et aliam ante hostium coquinarij, cum candelis in eis jugiter omni nocte ardentibus usque post completorium, ob reverentiam crucifixi et ad processiones eo devotius atque frequentius ante collationem ab omnibus faciendas, necnon et ut fratres Deum contemplantes in claustro pro nostris et suis excessibus devotius exorare valeant, videlicet a festo translationis sancti Egwini episcopi et confessoris usque ad festum purificationis beatæ Mariæ quotienscumque et quandocumque necesse fuerit. Hoc tamen proviso, quod tam dictus subprior quam etiam tertius prior cum adjuvamine prioris omnem diligentiam adhibeant, ut hostia claustrij versus curiam claudantur quotienscumque conventus in claustro resideat, nec non et missas de Spiritu Sancto et pro defunctis nullomodo procrastinari permittant. Quod et si contingat per negligentias dictorum gardianorum prænominata hostia non claudi, vel prædictas missas procrastinari, prædicti gardiani digna ammonitione prioris subjaceant, seu per defectum ejusdem subprioris dictas lucernas et candelas ad eas pertinentes minime sustentari, seu negligenter accendi in omnibus noctibus supradictis, vel in aliqua earundem, volumus per priorem qui pro tempore fuerit et conventum de communi ejusdem subprioris idem defectus suppleatur. Volumus tamen et concedimus quod idem frater Thomas prior monasterij nostri dum vixerit dictum tenementum cum curtilagio adjacente sine alicujus contradictione possideat. Si quis vero huic ordinationi nostræ ausu temerario contraire sive contradicere præsumpserit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei, beatæ Mariæ Virginis, ac apostolorum Petri et Pauli, necnon et sancti Egwini omniumque sanctorum ipso facto incurrat. Dat. in domo nostra capitulari, anno Domini m^o.cccc^o. quinquagesimo in festo decollationis sancti Johannis Baptistæ.

NUM. XXVII.

[Ex autographo sub sigillis in curia Augmentationum.]

Cum I. Dei gratiâ Mariæ in via lata diaconus cardinalis, apostolicæ sedis legatus, officio legationis sibi injunctæ in Anglia fungeretur, et orta esset controversia inter me abbatem et nos conventum Evesham super statu domus nostræ coram eo; tandem amicabilem hoc modo sopita est: videlicet, quod abbas infra septa monasterii existens, inter fratres secundum antiquam domus illius consuetudinem conversando regulariter vivet, et exteriora pro viribus suis ad utilitatem ecclesiæ, providè et fideliter dispensabit. Prior verò, subprior, tertius prior, et alii custodes ordinis, prior de Penuertham, præcentor, sacrista, camerarius, celerarius exterior, coquinarius, pitanciarus, infirmarius, elemosinarius, custos vineæ, gardinarius, magister fabricæ ecclesiæ, magister hospitum, de concilio et consensu conventus vel majoris et sanioris partis in capitulo ab abbate creentur. Qui si minus honestè quod absit, vel minus prudenter in officiis suis se habuerint, vel malè administraverint, à fratribus prius correpti regulentur, si non emendaverint, in capitulo amoveantur, et alii sub forma prædicta in loco eorum in capitulo in conventu subrogentur, ne aliquo casu in manum regis deveniant ipsa officia, abbate fortè decedente, vel per moram fiat deterioratio obedientiarum, aut aliquis defectus propter moram emergat. Prior verò, et prædicti magistri ordinis simul cum abbate, ut ordo monasticus cum rigore disciplinæ secundum regulam beati Benedicti observetur, summam diligentiam adhibeant. Maximè autem opera præstent, ne monachi aliquid proprium habeant, et ne aliàs quàm in refectorio sine licentia comedant, et ut elemosina sua per manus elemosinarii erogetur; et ne a claustro sine licentia exeant, et ut silentium locis et horis statutis observetur, et ut fratres frequenter delicta confiteantur, nec tamen aliis quam hiis qui ad hoc deputantur. Alii vero supradicti officiales omnes qui redditus percipiunt, quater in anno coram abbate, vel eo quem loco suo statuerit, priore, et sex claustralibus, tribus ab abbate, et tribus a conventu vocatis, de administratione sua computum reddant, coquinarius verò qualibet ebdomada.

Isti vero officiales, quotiens domi fuerint, in congregatione jugiter permaneant, et conventum in ecclesia, in capitulo, in claustro, in refectorio sequantur, ut si, quod absit, in officiis suis aliquis defectus emergerit, illi statim suppleant. Nulli duo officia assignentur, sed cuilibet adjungatur socius testis diligentiae suæ.

Si vero in aliquo officio propter temporis malitiam aliquid ultra redditus officio illi assignatos expensum fuerit, si in aliquo officio aliquid fuerit residuum; per illud defectus alterius officii suppleatur. Si autem ullum officium defectum alterius officii supplere potuerit, abbas per manum celerarii exterioris suppleat. Præterea si quodlibet officium sibi suffecerit, et aliquid residuum fuerit; abbas de concilio capituli, vel majoris et sanioris partis in id quod in capitulo judicaverit utilius ecclesiæ expendat. Si verò aliquid de redditibus monachorum officiis assignatis, vel in perpetuum, quod absit, vel ad tempus detineri contigerit, vel aliquo modo evacuari, vel diminui, abbas tandem de concilio capituli ubi commode fieri poterit alibi in eodem officio assignet. Liceat præterea monachis possessiones et redditus officiis suis assignatos, veluti novalia faciendo, et redditus augmentando, et novos adquirendo ampliare, seu quibuscunque aliis justis modis meliorare. Celerarius siquidem exterior talis de proprio conventu et in capitulo ab abbate creetur, qui exceptis redditibus monachorum officiis assignatis, ad præceptum abbatis totius abbathiæ curam gerens, sciat et possit conventui necessaria ministrare, scilicet panem, cervisiam, duo pulmenta, ignem et salem, et quædam alia in consuetudinibus expressa. Hospitibus autem juxta facultatem domus providebit celerarius. Viris tamen religiosis, qui de officio suo sunt, videlicet personis eorum sicut et fratribus administrabit, exceptis abbatibus et capellanis eorum, quibus non inveniet aliquid nisi in diebus jejunii, sicut nec ipsi abbati, nec illis qui cum eo comedent, vel capellanis ejus, hoc dicimus nisi in refectorio comedant. Servientibus etiam obedientiarum abbathiæ, celerarius procuracionem debitam et stipendia juxta consuetudinem domus administrabit. Iste quidem celerarius de administratione sua, non solum. quater superioribus, sed quotiens ipse abbas voluerit computum reddat, qui nisi benè administraverit, sicut de aliis obedientiariis dictum est, ad justam conquestionem conventus, et rationabilem voluntatem abbatis amoveatur, et alius statim loco ejus subrogetur, et in capitulo numerum fratrum abbas integrum conservet, nullum monachum recipiat, aut ejiciat, vel ad tempus vel in perpetuum, nisi de concilio conventus vel majoris et sanioris partis, et in capitulo. Ecclesias autem, vel alios redditus, vel aliquas terras, non nisi de concilio universitatis vel majoris et sanioris partis, et in capitulo alicui conferat, nec rusticos sine consensu eorundem manumittat. De terris siquidem revocandis, si quæ tempore suo vel prædecessoris sui alienatæ sunt, pro viribus suis, concilio conventus sui utatur. Similiter in causis ecclesiasticis, vel forensibus agendis, vel terminandis, capituli sui utatur concilio. Servientes autem qui monachis ministrare tenentur, scilicet, de infirmaria, sartrina, lavandaria, refectorio, sacristaria, locutorio, de concilio capituli secundum priorem formam constituentur et deponantur. Hæc omnia intelligantur salvis in omnibus regularibus institutis.

NUM. XXVIII.

Hij sunt redditus Officiis Monachorum Eoveshamensis Cœnobii assignati.

Ad prioratum pertinent decimæ de Beningwrthe, tam majores quam minores, de terris monachorum, ad pergamenum et exhibitionem scriptorum pro libris scribendis.

Præcentor.

Ad officium præcentoris pertinet quædam terra de Hamptona, de qua precipit præcentor annuatim quinque solidos: et decimæ de Stokes, et de quadam terra de Alnecestre decem et octo denarios. Ex his debet invenire præcentor incaustum omnibus scriptoribus monasterii, et pergamenum ad brevia, et colores ad illuminandum, et necessaria ad ligandum libros, et necessaria ad organa.

Sacrista.

Ad sacristariam autem pertinent sex capellæ in valle, videlicet duæ in Evesham, ex quibus percipit sacrista annuatim decem marcas et candelas quæ offeruntur in illis. Duæ etiam capellæ de Lenchwic, et de Nortona, de quibus percipit decem solidos annuatim, et una in Mortona, de qua percipit tres solidos annuatim, et una in Uffeham, de qua percipit decem et octo denarios. Item de ecclesia de Baddebi percipit duas marcas. De capella de Wihtlakeford decem solidos. De ecclesia de Westona dimidiam marcam. De ecclesia de Stowa quinque solidos vel duas petras ceræ. De ecclesia sancti Albani in Wigornia quinque libras ceræ. De burgagio in villa Eovesham viginti solidos. De burgagio in Wigornia quinquaginta solidos. De terra in Hamptona quinque solidos. In Lench pertinent ad sacristariam tres hidæ et dimidia. Debet etiam idem celerarius ea quæ inferiùs annotata sunt de officio suo fratribus per manus subcelerarii administrare. A cellario igitur singulis diebus de-bent venire in refectarium septuaginta et duo panes monachiles, quorum quilibet erit ponderis sexaginta quinque solidorum. Ex quibus singuli monachi singulos percipient. Prior et per duplum nisi cum abbate comederit. Nichilominus qui ad superiorem mensam ut custos ordinis sederit duplum: qui missam majorem celebraverit duos: lector verò et servitores unum ad mixtum: elemosinarius autem sex de decima, et tres ad mandatum et duos ad triennales currentes: percipiet etiam quilibet fratrum cotidie duas justas de cervisia, et certæ mensuræ. Inveniet etiam celerarius salem et ligna ad ignem, et singulis diebus duo pulmenta: ad unum, de fabis siccis unum prebendarium rasum, vel de novis cumulatam de granario: ad aliud verò pulmentum decem panes monachiles de celerario singulis diebus, præterquam in Quadragesima in qua percipient duodecim summas fabar. de Huniburn, ad unum pulmentum invenendum per totam Quadragesimam, et de avena duodecim summas de eadem villa ad gruellum faciendum, scilicet quarta et sexta feria per totam Quadragesimam, et farinam ad olera singulis diebus in Quadragesima. Insuper debent habere monachi ad octo festivitates principales octo summas frumenti, ad quamlibet scilicet festivitatem unam summam ad frixuras de granario, et in eisdem festivitibus singulos fiffuls de frumento ad wastellos de granario, et in translatione sancti Ecgini duos, ad prandium scilicet et ad cœnam. Præterea percipiet coquinarius ad Pascha tria prebendaria frumenti de granario ad flathones inveniendo. Similiter et in Rogationibus, ad festum sancti Odulfi unum prebendarium ad frixuras. Similiter in Septuagesima, et uno die parasceve ad pulmentum. Ad formictas verò in Adventu Domini debent habere quatuordecim summas contra Natale Domini, contra Quadragesimam tantundem, contra Pascha totidem, contra Pentecosten totidem, contra Translationem sancti Ecgini totidem, omnes scilicet percipiendas de horreis. Debent etiam habere de celerario singulis diebus sabbati caritatem ad collationem pro mandato. Et ad omnes collationes festivitatum tam in capis quàm in albis, in vigilia, et in die, exceptis collationibus septem principalium festivitatum, tam in vigilia quam in die, tunc enim pitanciarius invenire debet. Debent etiam habere caritatem de cellario ad prandium singulis diebus octabarum principalium festivitatum quæ octabas habent, exceptis diebus quibus sunt in capis, tunc enim pitanciarius inveniet. Et ad collationem singulis earundem octabarum, et à Natali Domini usque ad Epiphaniam, simili modo habebunt de cellario, et quandocunque est potus post nonam, percipiet refectorarius duas justas de cellario, et ad mixtum unam. Item singulis diebus dominicis in Quadragesima dimidium prebendarium frumenti de granario ad oblatas ad cœnam, et dimidium similiter in cœna Domini ad idem. In minutionibus verò et misericordiis regularibus duo et duo, unam justam de cellario tam ad prandium quàm ad cœnam. In . . . verò unam. Serviens verò fratres sanguinaverit panem et justam recipiet de cellario, si plures fuerint sanguinati. Quotiens etiam mappæ de refectorio abluuntur, servientes de lavendaria panem monachilem de cellario habere debent, et tribus septimanis in Adventu Domini, et tribus ante Pascha, singulis scilicet diebus quando fratres balneant. Balneatores percipere debent de cellario panem et justam. Item duo capellani, sancti videlicet Laurentii et Omnium Sanctorum debent habere quotidie de cellario panem et cervisiam sicut et monachi. Debet etiam camerarius habere cotidie de cellario ad unum servientem procuracionem, et præbendam ad unum equum de granario, et forragium de grangia: similiter et sacrista. Item in anniversariis abbatum, Reginaldi scilicet, et Adæ, habere debent monachi singulos fiffuls de granario ad wastellos, et viginti solidos de ecclesia de Buldewellei ad pitanciam et caritatem. In die Animarum recipere debet elemosinarius unam summam frumenti de granario pauperibus erogandam. Similiter fiet in obitu cujuslibet monachi Evesham. Abbas et monachi ejusdem loci per totum annum post obitum suum totum conredium sicut in vita sua perceperint habere debent; quod alicui indigenti pro anima sua erogabitur. Servienses etiam qui vigilant circa fratrem proximum morti, panem et cervisiam habere debent de cellario. Si verò obitus abbatis vel monachi alterius domus, si fuerint de capitulo Evesham, venerint; ad annalé pro abbate et tritennale pro monacho de cellario panis et cervisia, sicut et monacho alicui pauperi, erogabuntur. Ut autem hæc in posterum observentur, præfatus legatus ea sub hac forma confirmavit.

“Johannes Dei gratia sanctæ Mariæ in via lata diaconus cardinalis, apostolicæ sedis legatus, dilectis fratribus abbati et conventui de Evesham in vero salutari salutem. Ea quæ pro statu religiosorum locorum et observantia regulari providè statuuntur, firmiter et inviolabiliter volumus observari. Eapropter vestris postulationibus annuentes, constitutiones quasdam pro statu monasterii et religionis observantia inter vos communi factas assensu, et redactas in scripto, prout rationabiliter et regulariter factæ sunt, et ab utraque parte spontè receptæ, legationis auctoritate quâ fungimur confirmamus, et præsentis scripti patrociniò communimus. Hujus autem confirmationis auctenticum sub communi custodia cum sigillo ecclesiæ nostræ servandum posuimus: et hæc omnia sigillorum nostrorum appositione roboravimus. Et ut hæc omnia imperpetuum immutilata firmiter observentur, magister Rodbertus de Wlveia, et magister Thomas de Warewic, et Willielmus senescallus de Evesham, ad petitionem et instantiam domini R. abbatis, eo præsentem, in animam ipsius abbatis, ipsum abbatem præmissa omnia pro posse suo observaturum, et nos paterna dilectione tractaturum, et concilio conventus sui se usurum, tactis sacrosanctis evangeliis juravit, et nos conventus singuli et universi hoc idem nos observaturos sub eadem cautela promissimus, et domino abbati, ut patri et domino reverendo, obedientiam et reverentiam exhibituros, quamdiu nos paterna tractaverit affectione. Et prædicti Rodbertus, Thomas et Willielmus jurati in testimonium præmissorum simul nobiscum sigilla sua apposuerunt.”

NUM. XXIX.

[Ex Registro de Evesham in Bibliotheca Cottoniana, Vespas. B. xxiv. fol. 16 a.]

WALDEMARUS Dei gratia rex Danorum, universis sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis salutem. Quod antiqua prædecessorum majestas firmavit, nullatenus volumus infirmare, verum prout debemus, et possumus, roborare, et ampliare. Notum satis est, et verum est, quod cum avus meus, piæ memoriæ Ericus, apud Othenesei monachos habere disponderet, suggerente et constituyente Hubaldo tunc ibidem episcopo, ædificatores primos de ecclesia Eveshamensi, et monasticæ religionis institutores accepit. Dignum itaque judicamus, ut confederationem ecclesiæ de Othenesie quam habet ad matrem suam ecclesiam de Evesham, et dignitatem quam habet ecclesia Eveshamensis in filiam ecclesiam de Otheneseia, à præfato avo meo Erico confirmatam, auctoritate nostra firmemus: ut scilicet ecclesia de Othenesei matrem suam de Evesham veneretur, concilium, et auxilium in desolatione ab ea quærat. Ecclesia de Evesham filiam suam, ecclesiam de Othenesei, et filios inibi habitantes, diligat, et foveat. Prior loci de Othenesei, apud Evesham, vel Otheneseiam electus, auctoritate matricis ecclesiæ de Evesham firmetur. Si quis frater cum licentia ad utroque venerit, sicut monachus ecclesiæ suscipiatur, nec in aliquo, quod ad fratres ecclesiæ pertineat, fiat alienus. Sic usque ad tempora nostra fuisse, et sic esse debere, et hæc Otheniensis, et illa Eveshamensis testatur ecclesia, quod et nos in omnibus imperpetuum observari volumus, et auctoritate nostra præcipimus, et ne ducatur id in irritum, ut inconcussum et ratum maneat, sigilli nostri testimonio confirmamus. Hæc conservantes conservet dominus, renitentes et obloquentes impugnet altissimus. Amen. Data est carta anno Dominicæ incarnationis mclxxiiij. per manum fratris Willielmi à corpore ecclesiæ de Evesham tunc in priorem electi, et ad regimen prioratus, Otheneseiam transmissi, et per propriam manum nostram ibidem introducti, presidente tunc eidem loco venerabili episcopo S. et præsentem Fretherico He-thebiensi episcopo.

NUM. XXX.

[Ibid. fol. 19 a.]

R. DEI gratia episcopus Othenesi, et B. prior, totusque conventus, karissimis dominis et amicis, domino R. abbati Eveshamensi, totique conventui, cunctis quoque fidelibus salutem, et debitam dilectionem. Notum sit omnibus Dei cultoribus, tam præsentibus quam futuris, sanctam Otheniensem ecclesiam, ab Eveshamensi ecclesia, à Dei genitrice electa, monachica institutione regulariter insignitam, temporibus Willielmi junioris regis Anglorum, et Erii sapientissimi regis Danorum. Quamobrem inter matrem et filiam hujusmodi statutum est privilegium, ut quamvis eas corporaliter dividat terrarum spatium, sint tamen omnimodis spiritualiter idem et unum. Si quis fratrum Eveshamii, cum licentia abbatis sui, et litteris commendatitiis ad Othenesiam venerit, sit ibi quanto tempore cupit, et permiserit licentia, omnino subditus, et obediens priori ejusdem loci, in capitulo et omnibus aliis locis habens necessaria de illo loco, quamdiu ibi fuerit, sicut unus ex fratribus loci. Si quis verò aliter venerit, propter vitandam securitatem exeundi de claustro, atque occasionem peccandi, omnino a tali consortio repudiabitur: similiter apud Evesham fiat. Pro fratribus verò defunctis hoc utrinque servabitur: anniversarium in martirilogio scribetur, cibus triginta diebus pro fratribus dabitur. Pro pastoribus autem locorum integro anno triginta officia plenaria in conventu cantabuntur, singuli fratrum triginta missas, vel decem psalteria persolvent. Mox ut breve defuncti venerit tabula pulsabitur, vigilia cantabitur, sonabunt classicum. Defuncto priore Othenisiam, et alio in ejus loco, astipulantibus rege, et episcopo, electione totius capituli constituto, sive de Othenisia, sive de Evesham, si opus et voluntas congregationis Othenisiam fuerit, res ad conventum Evesham, et patrem loci deferetur, vel ab ipso priore electo, vel ab ejus nuntio, illorumque concilio, prece, et adjutorio, pro posse roborabitur. Hæc servans servetur; destruens à Deo destruatur. Fiat, Fiat, Amen. Ego Riculfus episcopus subscribo. Ego Riqui episcopus subscribo. Ego Illuch episcopus subscribo.

NUM. XXXI.

De Abbatibus Eveshamiæ, &c.

[Ex antiquo codice MS. in Bibl. Deuvesiana, hodie MS. Harl. Brit. Mus. num. 229, fol. 17.]

ANNO gratiæ dcccij. tempore regis Æthelredi filii Pendæ regis Merciorum, et Brithwaldi archiepiscopi, sanctus Egwinus Deo dilectus, Wigornensis ecclesiæ præsulatum suscepit, cui gloriosissima Virgo Maria decimo anno sui episcopatus, in loco qui dicitur Hethome, nunc vero Evesham nominatur, manifestâ visione apparuit. Quem quidem locum, consentiente rege Æthelredo atque donante, statim ædificare inchoavit in honore ejusdem gloriosæ Virginis Mariæ. Sexto siquidem anno post hæc episcopatum prædictum ex toto reliquit, et apud Evesham primus abbas pastor et patronus effectus est, ubi sanctissimè ac religiosissimè novem annis vivens cum fratribus, devotissimè perrexit ad Dominum, videlicet iij. kal. Januarii anno gratiæ dcccxvij. Post cujus mortem, decem et octo abbates huic loco successivè præfuerunt, quorum hæc sunt nomina: Athelwoldus, Aldbore, Aldbath, Aldfert, Tyldbrith, Cutulf, Aldmund, Credanus, Tintferth, Aldbald, Etbrith, Elferd, Wlfard, Kynelm, Kyuath, Ebba, Kynath, Edwinus. Qui omnes possessiones à beato Egwyno adquisitas integerrimè sine diminutione, veluti ipse dereliquit, annis quamplurimis tenuerunt: sed defuncto Edwino præfato abbate, facta est dispersio monachorum Eveshamensis cœnobii per Athelmum et Wlricum laicos et Osulfum episcopum, et substituti sunt canonici seculares, anno videlicet Domini dcccxlj. usque ad tempus regis Edgari et beati Dunstani, anno gratiæ dcccclx. Item post mortem pii regis Edgari, expulsi sunt monachi Eveshamenses, et instituti sunt canonici per Alferum principem Merciorum, anno gratiæ dcccclxxvij. Deinde rex Ethelredus, frater beati Edwardi martyris, dedit hunc locum cuidam potenti, Godwino nomine, deinde episcopo Agelsio, et post episcopo Athelstano. Quo defuncto, Aldulfus episcopus Wygornia à rege hanc abbatiam obtinuit, et primus libertate sua fraudavit, et suæ jurisdictioni subjecit, et ita de una potestate in aliam potestatem contrariam res hujus monasterii miserrimè distrahebantur. A tempore tamen secundæ dispersionis monachorum, quidam abbates huic loco per vices præfuerunt, non continuè, sed interpolatim, videlicet Oswaldus, Freodegarus, Alfricus, Alfgarus, Brithmarus, Agelwinus. Qui quidem abbates antiquas possessiones integrè minimè potuerunt habere: sed tandem, videlicet anno gratiæ mxiiij. rex Ethelredus quendam monachum Ramesiensem, Ailwardum nomine, inibi abbatem constituit, et post, episcopum Londoniensem, non tamen hujus loci gubernationem deseruit. Qui vir venerabilis illuc adveniens, pervasorem Godewinum, qui semper quadraginta habuit hidas, illuc expulsi, terras et possessiones omnes viriliter adquisivit. Transiit autem iste gloriosus Ailwardus, Londoniensis ecclesiæ, ut prædiximus, antistes, et hujus ecclesiæ pastor piissimus, xxx. anno sui adventus, videlicet anno ab incarnatione Domini mxliij. et apud Ramesiensem ecclesiam, ubi prius fuerat monachus, sepultus requiescit.

Huic successit Mannius, hujus ecclesiæ monachus, à rege Edwardo electus, qui vir venerabilis et sacris liberisque plurimis artibus fuerat imbutus; videlicet, cantor, scriptor, pictor, aurique fratribus operis scientia pollens, super omnes alios ferè hujus patriæ magister optimus habebatur. Hic post aliquantum tempus gravi infirmitate detentus, quendam monachum de suis, consentiente rege Edwardo, ad officium pastorale elegit, Egelwium nomine, cui rex abbatiam istam ex toto tradidit et abbatem pro eo fecit. Vixit autem Mannius postmodum vij. annis; et eadem nocte et hora, ut fertur, qua rex gloriosus Edwardus, ex hoc sæculo transiit, videlicet viij. idus Januarii, in festo Epiphaniæ anno Domini mlxv.

NUM. XXXII.

De Abbatibus Eveshamiæ post Conquestum.

[Ibid. fol. 17 b.]

EGELWIUS, ut dictum est, successit Mannio. Hic vir venerabilis moribus erat valde probatus, et tam generis nobilitate quàm divina lege ac sæculari prudentia plurimum insignitus, quem rex Edwardus ab Aldredo archiepiscopo fecit honorabiliter consecrari. Defuncto rege Edwardo, et Haraldo rege à Willielmo conquestore devicto, iste abbas Egelwius ad eum accessit, Deoque gratiam donante, inter omnes barones hujus Anglicæ gentis maximam amicitiam apud eum optinuit. Tandem, multis laboribus et ægritudine fatigatus, plenus dierum laudabilem vitam finivit xiiij. kal. Martii anno Domini mlxxvij.

Post quem, misit rex huc quendam monachum de monasterio quod vocatur Cerasia, Walterum nomine, literis tam liberalibus quam grammaticis undecumque eruditissimum. Iste abbas per iniquam potentiam Odonis, fratris regis, Baiocensis episcopi, viginti octo villas amisit. Et cum ferè octo annis isti ecclesiæ præfuisset, diem suum clausit extremum xij. kal. Februarii anno gratiæ mlxxxvj.

Huic substitutus est Robertus, monachus de Gimeges, cujus tempore forum de Stowe fuit adquisitum. Et cum decem annis ecclesiam rexisset, migravit ad Dominum anno Domini mxcvj.

Cui successit Mauricius, hujus ecclesiæ monachus: vixit autem xxxij. annis et obiit anno Domini mcxxij.

Isti substitutus est Reginaldus, monachus Gloucestriæ, nepos comitis Milonis Herefordiæ, cujus adjutorio et aliorum consanguineorum amovit domos militum de Kynewarton et de Cocton et aliorum a loco ubi modò est ortus monachorum et crofta sancti Kenelmi, quibus quasi obsessa fuit abbatia. Obiit autem viij. kal. Septembris anno gratiæ mclxix.

Post quem successit Willielmus de Andevilla, monachus ecclesiæ Christi Cantuariæ. Iste audacter Willielmum de Bello Campo, et complices suos, qui muros cimiterii destruxerant, et bona ecclesiæ tempore guerræ rapiebant, extricavit. Transiit autem ii. nonas Januarii anno Domini mclix.

Huic substitutus est Rogerus, monachus sancti Augustini Cantuariæ, qui parvo tempore viriliter tamen sicut abbas prior vixit, et obiit ij. nonas Januarii anno Domini mclx.

Isti successit Adam, monachus Cluniacensis de Caritate. Iste felicia habuit tempora, et multa bona hîc ejus tempore facta sunt. Et quamvis prædecessores ejus fuerint viri religiosi et valde ordinati, iste dicitur præ cæteris ordinem reformasse. Et cum fermè xxx. annis ecclesiam suam rexisset in pace, vitam finivit pridie idus Novembris anno Domini mcxcj.

Cui successit Rogerus Norreys, quondam ecclesiæ Christi Cantuariæ monachus, qui à nullo collegio requisitus vel assumptus, per regiam potestatem, ut intrusor, in Eveshamensem promovetur abbatem. Iste abbas monachos crudeliter oppressit, victum et vestitum ab eis pro magna parte subtraxit, redditus eorum et omnes obedientias ferè sibi appropriavit. Unde propter suam tyrannidem et exordinationes, à domino Nicolao, Tusculanensi episcopo, tunc domini papæ in Anglia legato, depositus est, et exabbas factus anno Domini mcccij.

Deposito Rogero, substitutus est vir venerabilis vitæ dominus Rondulphus, prior Wygornia, natione Eveshamensis, qui secundo anno suæ installationis ivit Romanam ad Concilium generale, ubi confirmationem dispositionis reddituum et consuetudinum domus, et alia multa necessaria impetravit. Et cum xv. annis suam ecclesiam gubernasset, in Domino feliciter obdormivit xvj. kal. Januarii anno Domini mcccix.

Post quem Thomas de Marleberg, prior ejusdem loci eligitur, sed minimè potuit admitti nisi per curiam Romanam, unde derogatur jurisdictioni Cantuariensis archiepiscopi; et anno sequenti benedicitur in abbatem ab episcopo Coventrensi. Iste abbas primò sculpsit super duas tumbas prædecessorum suorum ad honorem et ostensionem dignitatis ecclesiæ ymagines episcopales, et sibi ipsi cum eisdem fecit mausoleum, et incidit in lapide marmoreo superposito ymaginem episcopalem had honorem ecclesiæ. Obiit autem idus Septembris anno Domini mcccxxvj.

Isti successit Ricardus le Gras, prior de Hurleye, cujus tempore venerabilis pater Johannes episcopus dedicavit ecclesiam de Evesham, videlicet anno Domini mcccxxxix. Hic autem abbas multùm fuerat occupatus in servicio domini Henrici regis Angliæ citra mare et ultra, ac tandem in partibus Guasconia viam universæ carnis ingressus est quinto idus Decembris anno gratiæ mccccli.

Post quem Thomas de Gloveria, monachus ejusdem domus, in abbatem eligitur, qui anno sequenti à domino Innocentio iiij. confirmatur, et ab episcopo Eliensi de mandato ejusdem papæ, recepto priùs juramento, benedicitur. Transactis utique ferè quatuordecim annis ex hoc sæculo migravit ad Dominum xvij. kal. Januarii, anno videlicet Domini mccciv.

Cui successit Henricus, ejusdem ecclesiæ prior, qui à papa Alexandro iiij. postmodum confirmatur. Iste abbas peroptimus multa beneficia conventui contulit, ac obedientias tenues benignissimè ampliavit, et cum vij. annis hanc ecclesiam prudenter ac strenuè gubernasset, feliciter in Christo quievit idus Novembris, anno videlicet gratiæ mcccxiij.

Defuncto abbate Henrico, vacavit ecclesia per multum tempus; tandem circa festum sanctæ crucis in autumpno, anno videlicet Domini mcccxvj. venit legatus Ottobonus apud Evesham, et constituit monachis ibidem in abbatem dominum Willielmum de Wytechurche, quondam monachum de Persore, postea abbatem de Alyncestre. Iste abbas comparavit de domino Willielmo de Bello Campo, comite Warewyci, manerium de Bengeworth, cum terris et tenementis et omnibus ad idem manerium pertinentibus. Obiit autem iiij. nonas Augusti, anno videlicet gratiæ mcccxxxij.

Huic successit Johannes de Brokehampton, monachus ejusdem domus, qui à papa Martino iiij. Romæ confirmatur. Iste abbas multis possessionibus monasterium tempore suo ditavit, nobilia ædificia sumptibus magnis erexit, portionem conventus benignè adauxit, vacationem abbathia à domino rege, ut prior et conventus habeat custodiam, pro certa summa pecuniæ adquisivit. Tandem senectute bona feliciter in Christo dormivit xv. kal. Septembris, anno videlicet Domini mcccxvj.

Post quem electus est in abbatem iiij. kal. Septembris, Willielmus de Chyryton, monachus ejusdem domus, qui à domino papa Johanne xxij. Dominica Sexagesima confirmatur. Ipse etiam abbas, sicut prædecessor suus, multas terras et tenementa cum aliis bonis suo tempore adquisivit, tres ecclesias appropriavit, plura ædificia de novo ædificavit, portionem conventus de suis perquisitis diversimodè remuneravit, multaque alia bona fecit. Et cum xxvij. annis suam gubernasset ecclesiam, idus Decembris in pace vitam finivit, anno Domini mcccxliij.

Post ejus decessum electus est concorditer in abbatem Willielmus de Boys, monachus ejusdem domus, kal. Januarii, et à papa Clemente vj. Dominica in Ramis Palmarum proximò sequente Avinioni confirmatur. Iste vir honorabilis erat atque affabilis, jocundus, dapsilis atque facetus: ditavit ecclesiam pontificalibus ornamentis, campanis, vestimentis, et aliis necessariis, terris et redditibus monasterium augmentavit, nobile privilegium papale pro benedictione novi abbatis adquisivit, conventum in multis gratiosè respexit. Tandem ægritudine fatigatus, diem suum clausit extremum, videlicet viij. idus Junii anno Domini mcccclxvj.

Successit frater Johannes de Ombresleye, monachus domus ejusdem iiij^{to}. nonas Julii, à conventu electus. Qui statim à venerabili patre Lincolnensi episcopo xv. kal. Augusti, virtute cujusdam privilegii à papa Urbano v^{to}. indulti, munus benedictionis apud Bannebury suscepit. Deinde kal. Augusti proximè tunc sequentis apud Evesham est honorificè installatus, rexit autem suam ecclesiam xij. annis, et obiit tertio kal. Novembris anno Domini mcccclxxix.

Post ejus exequias vir venerabilis, religiosus frater Rogerus Zatton, monachus et sacrista domus ejusdem, in festo sancti Edmundi regis et martyris, videlicet xij. kal. Decembris unanimiter ibidem in abbatem eligitur. Deinde acceptus et receptus à rege, secundum quod eorum volunt privilegia, à domino Lincolnensi episcopo apud Londonias in hospitio dicti episcopi solempniter benedicatur. Ac tunc consequenter in vigilia Natalis Domini in suo monasterio Eveshamia intronizatur.

NUM. XXXIII.

Consuetudines Abbatia Eveshamensis perscriptæ a Randulpho Abbate.

[Bibl. Cotton. Augustus II. num. 11.]

OMNIBUS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit, Randulfus Dei gratia abbas Eveshamia, et totus ejusdem loci conventus salutem in Domino. Quandoquidem a domino Innocentio papa tertio dispositionis reddituum officiorum nostrorum confirmationem optinere meruimus, redditus non tantum illos quos tempore confirmationis habuimus, sed et quos postea adquisivimus cum ipsa eorum dispositione ad posterorum notitiam profuturum scripto commendare dignum duximus. Nam tam ab Innocentio papa secundo quam ab Alexandro tertio, non solum redditus quos tempore eorum habuimus, sed et illi quos postea quibuscumque justis modis nobis acquirere possemus nobis conceduntur et confirmantur, quod et ipsum nobis facere licere in hijs nostris constitutionibus et consuetudinibus continetur. Sunt igitur consuetudines monasterij hujus, videlicet, quod abbas infra septa monasterij existens inter fratres secundum antiquam domus illius consuetudinem conversando regulariter vivet, et exteriora pro viribus suis ad utilitatem ecclesiæ provide et fideliter dispensabit. Prior vero, subprior, tertius prior et alij custodes ordinis, prior de Penwitham, præcentor, decanus, sacrista, camerarius, coquinarius, celerarius interior, infirmarius, elemosinarius, custos vineæ et gardini, magister fabricæ ecclesiæ, pitanciaris, magister hospitum, de consilio et consensu conventus, vel majoris et sanioris partis in capitulo ab abbate de proprio conventu cre-entur. Qui si minus, quod absit, honeste vel minus prudenter in officijs suis se habuerint, vel male fratribus administraverint, prius correpti regulariter, si non emendaverint, amoveantur in capitulo, et alij sub forma prædicta in loco eorum in capitulo et incontinenti subrogentur, ne aliquo casu in manus regis deveniant ipsa officia abbate forte decedente, vel per moram fiat deterioratio obedientiarum, aut aliquis defectus propter moram emergat.

Prior vero et prædicti magistri ordinis, simul cum abbate, ut ordo monasticus cum rigore disciplinæ secundum regulam beati Benedicti observetur, summam diligentiam adhibeant; maxime autem operam præstent ne monachi aliquid sine licentia habeant, et ne alias quam in refectorio comedant sine licentia, et ut elemosina eorum per manus elemosinarij erogetur, et ne a claustro sine licentia exeant, et ut silentium locis statutis observetur, et ut fratres frequenter delicta confiteantur, non tamen alijs quam hijs qui ad hoc deputantur. Alij vero officiales omnes qui redditus percipiunt, quater in anno coram abbate, vel eo quem loco suo statuerit, priore et sex claustralibus, tribus ab abbate et tribus a conventu vocatis, de administratione sua compotum reddant. Coquinarius vero qualibet ebdomada. Isti officiales quotiens domi fuerint in congregatione jugiter permaneant, et conventum in ecclesia, in capitulo, in claustro, in refectorio sequantur, ut si, quod absit, in officijs suis aliquis defectus emergerit, illi statim suppleant. Nulli duo officia assignentur, sed cuilibet adjungatur socius, si opus fuerit solatium et testis diligentiae suæ. Si vero in aliquo officio suo, propter malitiam temporis, aliquid ultra redditus officio illi assignatos expensum fuerit, si in aliquo alio officio aliquid fuerit residuum per illud defectus alterius suppleatur. Si autem nullum officium defectum alterius officij supplere potuit, abbas per manum celerarij exterioris suppleat. Præterea si quodlibet officium sibi suffecerit et aliquid residuum fuerit, abbas de consilio capituli, vel majoris et sanioris partis, in eo officio in quo in capitulo judicaverit utilius ecclesiæ expendet. Si vero aliquid de redditibus monachorum officijs suis assignatis, vel imperpetuum, quod absit, vel ad tempus detrimentum contigerit, vel aliquo modo evacuari, vel diminui, abbas tantundem de consilio capituli ubi commode fieri poterit alibi eidem officio assignet. Liceat præterea monachis possessiones et redditus officijs suis assignatos veluti novalia faciendo et redditus augmentando et novos acquirendo ampliare, seu quibuscumque alijs justis modis meliorare, et alios pro alijs tantum valentibus et utilibus cum viderint expedire vel ad tempus vel imperpetuum commutare. Celerarius siquidem exterior talis de proprio conventu, et in capitulo ab abbate creetur, qui exceptis redditibus monachorum officijs assignatis ad præceptum abbatis totius abbatiæ curam gerens sciat, et possit libere conventui necessaria administrare, scilicet, panem, cervisiam, duo pulmenta, ignem et salem, et quædam alia in consuetudinibus expressa. Hospitibus etiam juxta facultatem domus providebit celerarius. Viris tamen religiosi coquinarius quæ de officio suo sunt personis eorum sicut et fratribus administrabit, exceptis abbatibus et capellanis eorum quibus non inveniet aliquid nisi in diebus jejunijs, sicut nec ipsi abbati nec illis qui cum illo comedunt vel capellanis ejus hoc dicimus, nisi in refectorio comedant vel in profestis diebus. Servientibus etiam obedientiarum abbatiæ celerarius procurationem debitam et stipendia juxta consuetudinem domus administrabit. Iste quidem celerarius de administratione sua non solum quater superioribus, sed quotiens ipse abbas voluerit compotum reddat, qui nisi bene administraverit sicut de alijs obedientiaris dictum est, ad justam questionem conventus et rationabilem voluntatem abbatis amoveatur, et alius statim loco ipsius subrogetur ei in capitulo.

Numerum fratrum abbas integrum conservet, nullum monachum recipiat, aut ejiciat vel ad tempus vel imperpetuum nisi de consilio conventus, vel majoris et sanioris partis, et in capitulo. Ecclesias autem vel alios redditus vel aliquas terras non nisi de consilio universitatis vel majoris et sanioris partis, et in capitulo alicui conferat, nec rusticos sine consensu eorundem manumit-

tat. De terris siquidem revocandis pro viribus suis, si quo tempore suo vel prædecessorum suorum alienatæ sunt consilio conventus sui utatur. Similiter in causis ecclesiasticis vel forensibus agendis vel terminandis capituli sui utatur consilio. Servientes autem, qui monachis ministrare tenentur, scilicet de infirmaria, sartherina, lavenderina, refectorio, sacristaria, locutorio, de consilio capituli secundum priorem formam constituentur et deponantur. Hæc omnia intelligantur salvis in omnibus regularibus institutis.

Ad prioratum pertinent obventiones de communi sigillo et omnes decimæ de Benigwithe tam majores quam minores de omnibus terris et hominibus abbatis et monachorum ad emendum parchamenum pro libris scribendis. Pertinet etiam ad priorem curia de Benigwithe cum croftis ad eandem curiam pertinentibus, et cum gardino, vinario, et prato quæ sunt infra ipsam curiam, et cum omnibus mesuagijs de croftis quæ sunt circa ipsam curiam, videlicet, a domo Thomæ Algar usque ad domum Walteri Bellard. Nam prior Thomas quandam terram de Lutlinton, quam emit a Radulfo dispensatore, de qua tempore commutationis plus redditus solvebatur quam de ista Benigwithe pro eadem a domino abbate de consensu communi commutavit. Quare constitutum est quod semper prior pro tempore in anniversario prioris Thomæ pascat xxx. pauperes in locutorio pro animabus priorum et omnium fratrum, et inveniet cereum in die S^{ti}. Wlstani et alium in die S^{ti}. Credani ardentes coram feretris eorum die ac nocte.

Ad decanatum pertinet corredium unius servientis de cellario, et collecta denariorum beati Petri ubicunque episcopus non colligit, de quibus solvit annuatim domino papæ xx^{ti}. solidos. Et visitatio ecclesiarum Vallis et obventiones causarum omnium pertinentium ad decanatum, de quibus debet invenire conventui caritatem dominica qua cantatur ‘Misericordia Domini.’

Ad officium præcentoris pertinent decimæ de Stokes et quædam terra in Hamtona de qua percipit annuatim quinque solidos, et alia in Alencestria de qua tantundem percipit. De his debet invenire præcentor parchamenum ad breviam et ad cartas signandas sigillo communi, et ad breviam mortuorum fratrum et incoustram omnibus scriptoribus monasterij et colores ad illuminandum et necessaria ad ligandum libros et necessaria ad organa.

Ad sacristariam pertinent sex capellæ in Valle, scilicet de Nortona, de Lenchewike, de Mortona, et Uffeham, et duæ in Evesham, quarum duarum capellarum sacerdotes, scilicet S^{ti}. Laurentii et Omnium Sanctorum debent habere cotidie de cellario panem et cervisiam sicut monachi. Debet etiam sacrista habere cotidie ad unum servientem procurationem, sicut servientes abbatis habent, et præbendam ad unum equum de granario, et foragium de grangia. Percipit etiam sacrista de ecclesia de Baddebi annuatim duas marcas; de capella de Withlakesford, et prato de Salford decem solidos; de ecclesia de Westona dimidiam marcam; de ecclesia de Stowa quinque solidos et duas petras ceræ; de ecclesia S^{ti}. Albani in Wigornia quinque libras ceræ; de terris in eadem villa tres marcas. Pertinent etiam ad sacristariam in Evesham solda juxta portam monasterij; de fabrica Willielmi Fabri quatuor denarij; de terra Nicholai Coci duæ libræ ceræ; de terra Matildis in Merstowe quinque denarij; de terra Nicholai sacristæ in eodem vico sex denarij; de terra senescalli quæ fuit Giraldi sex denarij; de terra Bulet sex denarij; de terra Ferre xxx^{ta}. denarij; de terra le Hosiere in Bruggestrete duo denarij; de terra Willielmi de Tiwe in magno vico duo solidi et quatuor denarij; de terra Willielmi de Tiwe proxima terræ le Hosiere in Bruggestrete sex denarij; de terra Dispensatoris proxima terræ Willielmi Tiwe xl. denarij; de terra quæ dicitur Gordani in Colestrete sexdecim denarij; de terra Reginaldi Fabri duo solidi; de terra Walteri proxima eidem octo denarij; de terra Patæ eidem proxima octo denarij; de terra Nicholai fullonis super aquam sexdecim denarij; de terra Henrici Fabri xx^{ti}. denarij; de terra proxima Willielmi Tiwe quatuor denarij; de terra Simonis Fabri quatuordecim denarij; de terra Andreæ Coci octo denarij; de terra in Hamtona quinque solidi. In Lenck pertinent ad sacristariam tres hidæ et dimidia. In Bratfortona in uno campo quinquaginta quinque acrae. In altero septuaginta sex in dominico. In vilinagio quinque virgatae terrae et dimidia et decimae de eadem terra, tam majores quam minores. Et de quatuor hidis in eadem villa, duabus scilicet Hugonis et duabus militis de Coctona, et decimae de novem virgatis terrae Pagani in Lutletona, tam majores quam minores, et decimae de quinque virgatis terrae senescalli in Badeseya, et decimae cujusdam liberi hominis de dominico in Pikeleia in Herefordsyre, et omnes oblationes et omnia legata altaris Eoveshamae.

Ad altare S^{tae} Mariae in criptis pertinent de sacristaria septem cerei cotidie ardentes dum missa gloriosae virginis dominæ nostræ ibidem celebratur, quorum duos ab antiquis temporibus invenerunt sacristae, et unus cereus die ac nocte jugiter ardens; ad ejus sustentationem cum quinque superioribus assignavit magister Adam Sortes sacrista dimidiam virgatae terrae quam redemit de Petro de Lewz, et minutas decimas de novem virgatis terrae in Lutletona, quas idem sacrista evicit de rectore ecclesiae de Lutletona, et etiam decimas de assartis de Lewz, quorum licentiam assartandi idem sacrista a participibus communis pasturae multa pecunia redemit. Et unus crassetus tantum de nocte ardens, quem sacristae ab antiquo invenerunt. Et una lampas jugiter ardens de decimis de dominico de Lewz, quas Prior Thomas primus sacristarum percepit, et ad hoc assignavit. Et ne sacrista praedictis gravetur, provisum est quod custos altaris ejusdem inveniet vestimenta et alia necessaria eidem altari, quæ sacristae prius consueverunt invenire. Idem etiam custos altaris ejusdem debet invenire xxx^{ta}. lampades ardentes dum missa ibidem celebratur et septem cereos, ad quod faciendum assignata tota sinapis de omnibus grangijs sacristariae; et omnes obventiones altaris ejusdem; et duo solidi in Eovesham de terra Walteri Per juxta pontem, et decem et novem denarij; de terra Willielmi Carpentarij super Runhulle xii. denarij; de terra Willielmi Ourri in nova terra quæ est inter terram Albanidæ Capis et terram Johannis Gaveston; et de terra uxoris Johannis Caperim quæ est inter terram Philippi sacristae et terram ejusdem Johannis, et domus fundatae super spatia duarum soldarum et dimidia versus portam cimiterij ecclesiae, et domus fundatae super arcas trium soldarum et dimidia in magno vico juxta murum cimiterij versus portam abbatiæ; et duæ soldae quas Adam Sortes emit; et duæ quas Prior Thorne emerat juxta eas de Ricardo de Warwic; et terra quam M. relicta Credani dedit; et omnes terrae in Eovesham quæ fuerunt Ricardi de Kent; et quædam terra de Stretford; et duo solidi de terra de Radeford; et de terra de Strengesham duo solidi; et de terra de Marcleia duo solidi.

Ad elemosinariam pertinent duo furni in Eovesham et tertius in Benigwithe, et omnes furni Vallis in quibus consuetudinarij consuescunt coquere panem, et decimae fœni Willielmi de Tiwe, et Rogeri Alardi, et Ernaldi Cumbrangi. De terra Johannis de Kent in Eovesham dimidia marca; de soldis Adæ Credani in magno vico juxta soldas S^{tae} Mariae quatuor solidi; de alijs soldis suis juxta aliam S^{tae} Mariae dimidia marca; de terra Cramfot cum solda ferri xii. denarij; de terra Godefridi Bagart sex denarij; de terra Rogel juxta alium furnum xx^{ti}. denarij; et terra quæ dicitur hospitalis versus pontem, salvis octo denarijs pitanciariorum; de terra Kondulfi Textoris de Feudo Streche xx. denarij; de terra quam Isabella filia Henrici King dedit xl^{ta}. solidi; de terra Ricardi de Piplintona duo solidi; de terra le Burunno duo solidi; de terra Ricardi Eadmundi xvi. denarij; de terra Bonpain xii. denarij; de terra Stephani presbiteri xl^{ta}. denarij; de terra Lilie sex denarij; de terra Ricardi Juvenis xii. denarii; et terra Muriellæ de Strigul; de R. Ywain et hæredibus suis annuatim sex denarij pro licentia colendi Chiteham. In Gloucestria pertinent ad elemosinariam de terra Johannis Croume quam contulit secum Adam monachus quatuor solidi; de terra Botild, quæ data fuit cum Roberto monacho octo solidi; de terra Rogeri Sewi quam Adam Botild dedit duodecim denarij; de terra quæ fuit Esegar xl^{ta}. solidi. Ad eam etiam pertinent duæ marcae de pensione sexaginta solidorum, de ecclesia de Ombresleia, scilicet xx^{ti}. solidi ad opus pauperum in cœna Domini, dimidia marca in anniversario Randulfi, nam idem abbas contulit has duas marcas elemosinariae ratione scripta in capitulo de bonis operibus abbatis Randulfi. Cum etiam idem abbas fecisset sex molendina in manerijs abbatiæ, contulit elemosinariae loco decimarum de eisdem molendinis molendinum de Aldington, quod ipse emerat, de quo cum croftis et domibus ad idem molendinum pertinentibus recepit elemosinarius tempore donationis annuatim sexdecim solidos. De eadem etiam villa percepit elemosinarius nonaginta ova; de toto etiam pane infra portam abbatiæ, expenso, vel liberato ibi cocto vel empto debet elemosinarius habere decimam, et curam orti monachorum, ut inde habeat pulmentum ad refectionem pauperum in collecta cervisiae ad secundum cibum vel potum. Debet etiam elemosinarius percipere in die Animarum unam summam frumenti de granario; similiter fiet in obitu cujuslibet monachi Eoveshamiae. De terra filiae Willielmi de ponte in Alincestria novem denarij.

Ad refectorium pertinent minutæ decimae de Wikewane, Baddescie, et Aldetone ad reparationem coclearium, cyphorum, justarum, fenestrarum vitrearum, et vasorum salis et aliorum utensilium, cum duodecim lampadibus et oleo earum, de quibus respondet priori qui eum de consilio fratrum praeficit. Pertinet etiam ad eum collecta cervisiae post primum cibum, et cotidie sex justae de cellario, de quibus dat caritatem conventui post collationem dominicis diebus, et omni septimana semel quando cantatur de S^{ta}. Maria, et inveniet potum ante collationem, quando non est potus post collationem, et multa alia onera et statuta circa minutos et infirmos, et alios fratres de hijs sustinet et supplet. Et quotiens potus fuerit post nonam, habebit refectorarius duas justas de cellario.

Ad infirmariam pertinet Buuntone cum bosco et dimidia marca de assarto de Sanford et cum omnibus alijs pertinentijs suis. Debet etiam infirmarius habere unam suam cum nutrimento unius anni, vel duos porcos ad plancherum et unum truncum de celerario contra Natale, qualem fert una Biga curiae; et molendinum fullonum de Burtona cum una virgata terrae et ferragio unius equi, et ferragio certae quantitatis ad calefaciendum aquam ad pannos, et cum alijs pertinentijs suis, de quo percepit infirmarius annuatim tres marcas, sed propter praedictas consuetudines tediosas et onerosas de curia assignet ei abbas alibi illas tres marcas ubi noverit. Pertinent etiam ad idem officium duo molendina de Stowa de quibus percepit sexdecim solidos, et duo solidi de terra Towi in eadem villa, et duo solidi de terra vicina eidem, et viginti denarij de terra Andreae in eadem villa. In Eovesham vero de terra Ricardi Sparwe xxii. denarij; de terra Galfridi molendinarij decem et octo denarij; de terra Johannis de Kent xl^{ta}. denarij. Apud Penwrtham de terra Stephani de More duo solidi; de terra Roberti Antigonie apud Hoton decem et octo denarij; de terra Roberti Sureis duodecim denarij; de quadam terra in Farintona sex denarij; de Roberto Bussel de piscaria xii. denarij; de Sullestona vero dimidia marca; et una marca ad minutiones quas abbas Randulfus dedit de ecclesia de Huniburne.

Ad pitanciarium pertinent de nova terra in Eovesham decem marcae. De Ambresleia duodecim sextaria mellis; de Ulleberewe viginti quinque solidi; de ecclesia de Hildendune una marca; de redditibus de Penwitham una marca; de molendino senescalli de Sanford dimidia marca; de terra inter terram Henrici King et Alexandri Fossard xlii. denarij; de terra Johannis Portarij xii. denarij.

Ad refectionem fratrum in infirmaria pertinent de Wrotesleia et de Linintone duæ marcae; de coquinario vero decem solidi quos partitur coquinae per misericordiam; de sacrista autem quinque marcae, quas sacrista dat annuatim pro hospitio quod abbates consueverunt extorquere injuste ab eo; sed abbas Randulfus secundum privilegia ecclesiae et statuta capituli generalis sacristariam, sicut et alias obedientias, decernens liberam esse debere, illi hospitio et omnibus alijs exactionibus pro se et successoribus suis imperpetuum renuntiavit, ut in fratrum utilitatibus et refectionibus quos abbates solent invenire redditus sacristariae sicut et aliarum obedientiarum liberæ expenderentur. Ne autem pitanciarus mendicet pasturam ad oves, boves, et porcos, dedit Prior Thomas ad pitanciarium in auxilium anniversarii sui boscum in Echelewz quem emit de Petro de Lewz, per quem boscum habebit pitanciarus percursum tempore glandis ad porcos usque ad portam de Bordesleye et communem pasturam omnium vicinorum ad omnia genera animalium adeo libere sicut sacrista pro Lewz, et infirmarius pro Buuntona habuit. Assignavit etiam idem prior Thomas ad anniversarium suum terram Merstowe, quam emit de Hugone de Warwick, et terram juxta eam, quam emit de filia Randulfi Sergeant. Ad festum etiam sancti Johannis ante portam latinam faciendum assignavit abbas Randulfus xx^{ti}. solidos de pensione sexaginta solidorum de ecclesia de Ambresleia, quamque abbates dederant clericis, legatus dedit eam Humfredo clerico suo, qua revocata pro alia, assignavit etiam abbas unam marcam de eadem pensione ad anniversarium suum. Abbas vero Adam assignavit decem solidos de redditu ecclesie de Bradewelle ad anniversarium Reginaldi abbatis, et alios decem solidos de eadem pensione ad proprium anniversarium.

Ad coquinam pertinet tertium vivarium post fontem sancti Ecguini, et vetus villa et forum de Evesham, de quibus percipit coquinarius qualibet die sabbati quinque solidos et tres obolos, et annuatim in capite jejuniij quatuor millia aletium, et molendinum juxta pontem, et molendinum in Hamtona cum pertinentijs suis, de quibus molendinis percipit qualibet die sabbati tres solidos et sexaginta stikas anguillarum annuatim, et decimæ molendinorum et fœni pratorum ad eadem molendina pertinentium, scilicet de Evesham, et de Hamtone, et de Huffleham, et de Fokemulne, et de Twiford, et de Chadelburi, et de Baddeseie, et de Wikewane. Exe omnes decimæ deputantur ad allec monachorum in quadragesima. Et villa de Stowa et forum de quibus percipit qualibet die dominica quatuor solidos; de Mortona sexaginta solidi; de Sanford sexaginta solidi; de Withlakesfor quatuor libræ; de molendino de eadem villa xxiii. solidi et xii. stikæ anguillarum annuatim; de molendinis senescalli in Sanford xx. solidi; de molendinis de Chedelbury cum pertinentijs suis xxv. solidi et xl. sticæ anguillarum; de molendinis de Twiford et Aldintone cum pertinentijs suis xxviii. solidi et xl. sticæ anguillarum; de molendinis de Offeham cum pertinentijs suis decem solidi; de Fokemulne dimidia marca et molendinum de Wikeman, de quo non percipit modo nisi octo solidos; de Wodese pertinent sexaginta solidi ad coquinam; de piscatione in Ambresleia xxiii. solidi. In Gloucestria de terra Roberti Botild tres solidi et ob; de terra quadam in Winchelcumba et quodam furno duo solidi et una libra piperis. In Evesham de quadam terra in Brutstrete una libra piperis. De terra Reginaldi filij Willielmi dimidia marca annuatim; de Penwrtham quatuor marcæ et una summa salmonis et duo millia allecium; de qualibet carucata terræ in valle Eveshamiæ de dominico, excepta Aldintona, trescenta ova annuatim, et de quolibet manerio tres denarij ad discos et duodecim ollæ. De Bradewella nonginta ova et tres denarij et xii. ollæ. Item singulis diebus debet habere coquinarius foragium ad unum equum et præbendam vel duo præbendaria de furfure de granario, et duos porcos habere debet ad Plangetum, et quotiens emerit in villa de Evesham piscem ad totum conventum debet habere de cellario panem et justam ad opus vendentium. Ad omnes etiam cibos qui condimento cervisiæ indigent debet habere cervisiam de cellario et caseum semel in die, ad quod emendum si non detur de cellario, assignavit abbas Randulfus capellam de Bredfordtone; habebit etiam coquinarius ad septem festivitates principales septem summas frumenti de granario ad frixinas, et in festo sancti Johannis ante portam latinam unum præbendarium, et aliud in festo sancti Adulfi et tertium in Septuagesima, et quartum in die Parasceve ad pulmentum, et tria ad Pascha ad faciendum falcones et totidem in Rotationibus ad idem.

Ad cameram pertinent Malgaresburia et Swele sicut antiquis fuerunt, et loco Burntone quæ fuit ad cameram assignata est Tatelestroppe, et abbas habet Burntonam; ita videlicet quod abbas ex hac camera nec vestimenta nec hospitium nec aliquid aliud percipiet si-

cut. consuevit ex priore camera exigere. Hæc autem maneria inperpetuum cum omni integritate sua ad vestimenta monachorum fuerunt assignata. Debet etiam camerarius habere cotidie ad unum servientem procurationem, et præbendam ad unum equum de granario et foragium de grangia, sicut servientes et equi abbatis habent.

Ad fabricam ecclesiæ et dormorum claustro adjacentium pertinent quindecim marcæ de ecclesia de Ambresleia, quæ si aliquo casu solutæ non fuerint abbas ecclesiam et domos cooperire debet. Pertinent etiam ad idem faciendum decimæ Willielmi Beorin in Offeham et fabri ejusdem villæ, et prædicationes abbatiæ et legata fidelium, et si quæ sunt aliæ gratuitæ obventiones.

Hæ etiam sunt consuetudines Eveshamensis cœnobij ab antiquis temporibus statutæ et a celerario generali complendæ. A celerario igitur singulis diebus debent venire in refectorium septuaginta duo panes monachiles, quorum quilibet erit ponderis quinque solidorum, ex quibus singuli monachi singulos percipiant. Prior semper duos nisi cum abbate comederit, et unum ad cœnam et justam nisi cum abbate vel in refectorio cœnaverit, nichilominus qui ad superiorem mensam ut custos ordinis sederit duos habebit, scilicet unum de pasta abbatis et unum cyphum vini de abbate. Qui missam vero majorem celebraverit, duos. Lector etiam, coquinarius et servitores unum admixtum et justam in hyeme. Eleemosinarius autem septem pro decima et tres ad mandatum et duos ad tricennales currentes percipiet. Percipiet etiam quilibet fratrum cotidie duas justas cervisiæ, quarum quælibet continebit duas caritates, quarum caritatum sex faciunt sextarium regis. Nichilominus prior unam ad novum tractum, et qui sederit ad discum unum cyphum ad cibum et alium ad vesperam. Inveniet etiam celerarius salem et ligna ad ignem et summagium ad cibum et potum monachorum et duo pulmenta, ad unum scilicet de fabis siccis unum præbendarium rasum vel de novis cumlatum de granario; ad aliud vero pulmentum x. panes monachiles, vel unum præbendarium rasum de frumento singulis diebus præterquam in Quadragesima, in qua percipiunt monachi xii. summas fabæ de Huniburne ad unum pulmentum per totam quadragesimam, et de avena xii. summas de eadem villa ad gruelum faciendum, scilicet quarta et sexta feria per totam Quadragesimam et farinam ad olera singulis diebus in Quadragesima. Insuper habere debent monachi ad septem principales festivitates septem cyffolles de frumento ad wastellos de granario, et in translatione sancti Ecguini octavum ad cœnam sicut ad prandium, et in festo sancti Johannis ante portam latinam unum scifoll ad wastellos, et in festo sancti Odulfi unum, et in die Omnium Animarum unum, et in anniversario beati Wlfini unum, et in anniversario regum Ethelredi, Kenredi, et Offæ unum, et in anniversario abbatis Reginaldi unum, et in anniversario abbatis Adæ unum, et in anniversario abbatis Randulfi unum. Ad formittas vero in Adventu Domini debent habere monachi xiiii. summas, et contra Natale totidem, et contra Quadragesimam totidem, et contra Pascha totidem, et contra Pentecosten totidem, et contra Assumptionem beatæ Mariæ totidem, contra Translationem sancti Ecguini totidem, omnes scilicet percipiendas de horreis. Debent etiam habere monachi de cellario singulis diebus sabbati caritatem ad collationem pro mandato, et ad omnes collationes festivitatum tam in copis quam in albis in vigilia et in die, exceptis collationibus septem festivitatum principalium tam in vigilia quam in die; tunc enim pitanciarus invenire debet. Debent etiam habere caritatem de cellario ad prandium singulis diebus octabarum principalium festivitatum quæ octabas habent, exceptis diebus quibus sunt in copis, tunc enim pitanciarus inveniet; sed ad collationem singulis diebus earundem octabarum habebunt de cellario, et a Natali Domini usque ad Epiphaniam simili modo habebunt de cellario. Qualibet etiam die in misericordijs regularibus habebunt duo fratres unam justam de cellario; in minutionibus vero unam ad prandium et alteram ad cœnam.

Qui vero ventosatus fuerit, tantum ea die habebit unam justam de cellario. Serviens vero qui fratres sanguina-verit, habebit panem et justam de cellario, si plures fuerint sanguinati. Quotiens etiam mappæ abluuntur, de refectorio ablutores habebunt panem monachilem de cellario. Balneatores etiam, quando fratres balneant, habebunt de cellario panem et justam singulis diebus per tres ebdomadas ante Nativitatem Domini, et per tres ante Dominicam in Ramis Palmarum. Abbates etiam et monachi Eveshamiæ debent habere corredium suum, sicut habuerunt in vita sua, per totum annum post obitum suum, quod alicui indigenti pro animabus eorum erogabitur. Servientes etiam qui vigilant circa fratrem proximum morti debent habere panem et cervisiam de cellario. Quando vero obitus abbatis vel monachi evenierit alterius domus, si fuerint de capitulo Eveshamiæ, ad annale pro abbate et tricennale pro monacho panis et cervisia de cellario sicut uni monacho alicui pauperi erogentur. Debet etiam celerarius dare singulis pauperibus qui fuerint in capitulo in cœna Domini singulos panes et tria allecia, et de cervisia quantum opus fuerit. Si quis vero hæc conservaverit vel adauxerit, adaugeat Dominus dies ejus, et conservet eum in vitam eternam; si quis vero destruxerit vel diminuerit, diminueat Dominus dies ejus, et destruat vitam ejus desuper terram. Amen. Amen.

NUM. XXXIV.

Quædam spectantia ad Monasterium de Evesham.

[MS. Cotton. Nero D. III. fol. 242.]

MEMORANDUM quod cum dominus Willelmus de Cheriton abbas monasterij Eveshamiæ et filius Johannis Herwarde de parochia villæ de Tetteburye, cujus frater fuit abbas de Cirseter et soror abbatissa de Lackoc, dudum concesserit et assignaverit, pro se et successoribus suis in perpetuum ecclesias de Ombresleye et de Baddeby cum suis juribus et pertinentijs universis, et cum omnibus eisdem incumbentibus priori et conventui suo, prout melius videtur eisdem inter ipsas disponendas et expendendas, sicut per suas literas inde confectas plene liquet; quas quidem ecclesias — dictus abbas inter alia per se adquisita monasterio suo prædicto in usus proprios perpetue possidendas canonice adquisivit. Frater Petrus de Wyke prior Eveshamiæ volens præfatas ecclesias inter se et conventum suum, secundum voluntatem abbatis disponi et expendi, in domo capitulari Eveshamiæ in pleno capitulo die Jovis proxima post festum Natalis Domini, viz. in festo sancti Egwini episcopi, anno Domini MCCCXLIV. unanimi consensu et assensu totius sui conventus disposuit et ordinavit, quod singulis annis in perpetuum in festo Ascensionis Domini viginti quatuor libræ argenti — de ecclesijs antedictis pro speciebus et alijs necessarijs providendis inter priorem et singulos monachos de ipso conventu per dicti conventus bursarium equali portione distribuuntur; et aliæ viginti quatuor libræ, simili modo in festo sancti Petri ad vincula. Ac ultra hæc quod sex libræ, xviii^s. argenti de ecclesijs antedictis inter sanguine minutos singulis annis in perpetuum per eundem bursarium pro eorum expensis in suis sanguine minutionibus faciendis portionaliter dividantur. Et ut dicti prior et conventus præfati abbatis perpetuam memoriam in suis missis et orationibus ferventius ac libentius habeant ut tenentur, dictus prior cum totius conventus unanimi consensu et assensu sanguine minutis in singulis sanguine minutionibus suis ad eorundem recreationem et solatium augmentandum ultra modum consuetum adauxit duos dies, scilicet Mercurij et Jovis; ita videlicet quod ipsi sanguine minuti in singulis sanguine minutionibus suis die dominica post evangelium majoris missæ petant licentiam a priore, vel ab alio in choro more solito, qua optenta nulla alia licentia petenda maneant ipsi sanguine minuti extra chorum et capitulum ab illo tempore usque ad introitum missæ capitularis diei Veneris proximi tunc sequentis, etiamsi domum fuerint vel alibi ubicunque, exceptis festis solemnibus in capis. Et quod residuum fuerit de ecclesijs antedictis LIV^{li}. xviii^s. præmissis modo supra dicto plenarie solutis in thesauro maneat ipsius conventus pro dictarum ecclesiarum oneribus supportandis, et alibi prædictos priorem et conventum in utilitatem ecclesiæ suæ Eveshamiæ prout eis melius videbitur expedire disponere.

Præterea cum idem abbas adquisierit et assignaverit certos redditus annuos ix. marcarum elemosinario suo Eveshamiæ ad inveniendum duos capellanos celebraturos in magna ecclesia de Evesham pro anima dompni Walteri de Gloucestria ratione manerij de Batlintona solvendarum eisdem per elemosinarium suum ibidem ad quatuor terminos usuales per æquales portiones; fuitque voluntatis dictorum abbatis et Walteri in vita eorum quod tales capellani providerentur qui possent et scirent juvare per cantum ad honorem beatæ Mariæ Virginis in capella ejusdem, ubi corpus ipsius Walteri jacet nunc humatum.

Prædictus prior considerans hujusmodi capellanos melius per custodem dictæ capellæ quam per elemosinarium provideri, de consensu unanimi totius sui conventus, loco, die, et anno supradictis, disposuit et ordinavit quod elemosinarius qui pro tempore erit solvet singulis annis in futurum ad terminos superius notatos custodi capellæ beatæ Mariæ prædictas ix. marcas, et ipse custos sibi providebit de hujusmodi capellanis in cantu sufficientibus et bene morigeratis. Et si prædictus custos hæc negligenter omiserit dictarum ix. marcarum solutio ad modum suum pristinum revertatur, videlicet quod utrique dictorum capellanorum annuatim mii^{or}. marcæ per manus elemosinarij pro omnibus sint solutæ.

Item elemosinario pro terra Walteri Duplet in Merstowe de terra ante magnam portam abbatihæ quam de Cristina de Mutton comparavit tres solidi et quatuor denarij, quos elemosinarius qui pro tempore fuerit adjiciet ad complendos decem solidos, et illos decem solidos quolibet die anniversario sui pauperibus erogabit.

Item ad anniversarium domini Willelmi abbatis faciendum deputantur conventui xx^{ti}. solidi quos emit in manerio de Ambresleye de Alano de Elmech de terra quæ fuit Philippi Haket; et elemosinario quadraginta solidi, prout particulariter continetur in quadam carta proprio sigillo suo et communi consignata; una cum incremento concessio eidem, cum advocacione ecclesiæ de Bereford, prout continetur in alia carta, quæ valet communibus annis decem solidos.

Item dominus Ricardus abbas assignavit conventui in anniversario dedicationis ecclesiæ novem solidos de incremento redditus Roberti le Bel, et dimidiam marcæ de terra Galfridi de Bradewelle.

Item dominus prior Johannes contulit elemosinario redditus octodecim solidorum et octo denariorum, prout particulariter continentur in martilogio; ita videlicet ut elemosinarius qui pro tempore fuerit participationem faciat pauperibus singulis annis ad valenciam septem solidorum die anniversario sui; et tribuat conventui xi. solidos et viii^d. ad unam pitanciam faciendam.

Item dominus Willelmus prior assignavit ad anniversarium suum faciendum, videlicet pauperibus erogandum de terra Willelmi Dreu de Ofham decem solidos quos comparavit de Ada le Botiler; et decem solidos in Ambresleye de terra Johannis Slatere quos comparavit de Willelmo domino de Bellocampo comite Warwyck. Et conventui quatuordecim solidos de terra Walteri Thurstan de Stok quos comparavit de Willelmo senescallo Evesham. Et quatuor solidos quos comparavit de Helia capellano de Wycheo in Bruggestret juxta terram Randulphi le Blistare.

Item Randulphus abbas Evesham assignavit conventui de capella de Bretforton ad festum sancti Vincentij faciendum dimidiam marcæ. Item idem assignavit de eadem capella ad festum sancti Odulphi faciendum unam marcæ. Item idem abbas assignavit de eadem capella ad festum reliquiarum faciendum viginti solidos.

Qualiter et de quibus debeat fieri anniversarium Walteri de Walecote prioris patet per cartas subsequentes.

Dictarum chartarum tenor talis est,

Philippus filius et hæres Walteri Coci Eveshamiæ dedit eidem conventui redditum decem solidorum et quatuor denariorum de tenemento in Bruggestret ad cornerium versus pontem.

Walterus Morice de Evesham filius et hæres Mauritiij de Baddeseye dedit eidem conventui annum redditum xii. denariorum de tenemento quod Alexander de Sclattre de eo tenuit ad cornerium de Rivenhulle.

^a Quædam spectantia ad cereos et alia luminaria in ecclesia de Evesham, per sacristam, &c. providenda hic omittuntur, quia de his satis superius dictum est; et sic etiam de quibusdam ad eleemosinarium spectantibus.

^b Hic notantur abbates et priores qui habent anniversarium, et quid et quantum et unde singulorum anniversarium fieri debeat.

Johannes de Bampton dedit annum redditum unius denarij de quadam terra in Evesham.

Walterus Credan filius et hæres Johannis Credan de Wygornia dedit quandam terram cum pertinentijs in vico qui vocatur Brutayne, et etiam annum redditum decem solidorum et quatuor denariorum de tenemento in Evesham, et alio tenemento in vico qui dicitur Caperonestret.^a

Simon de Hocwyk quietum clamavit eidem conventui totam partem terræ suæ quam habuit in quibusdam placijs villæ de Honwyke, quæ vocatur le Comerse, per divisas in carta sua assignatas.

Simon filius prædicti Simonis de Howyk confirmavit illam donationem patris sui. Dedit etiam et quiete clamavit totum jus et clamium quod habuit in una sagitta barbata annui redditus quam Warinus de Hocwyk solebat dicto Simoni patri suo annuatim reddere pro crofto quod prædictus Warinus dedit eisdem monachis. Concessit etiam totum jus quod habuit in terra de Hocwyk quam Adam filius Rogeri de Hocwyk eisdem dedit, una cum toto jure suo in piscatione aquæ de Kybbel.

[Ibid. fol. 233.]

OMNIBUS Christi fidelibus præsens scriptum visuris vel auditoris Johannes permissione divina abbas Evesham salutem in Domino sempiternam. Noverit universitas vestra nos assensu et consensu totius conventus nostri pro nobis et successoribus nostris in perpetuum concessisse et assignasse elemosinariæ nostræ de Evesham omnes redditus, terras, possessiones, cum pertinentijs suis tam in Evesham quam apud Penewortham quas W. de Walecote functus officio prioris de licentia nostra comparavit, et ecclesiæ nostræ adquisivit, sicut patet per instrumenta inde confecta in martilogio nostro particulariter reducta; quos tamen redditus memorato Waltero quoad vixerit ad usus sibi necessarios ex permissione et ordinatione nostra concessimus. Et post decessum prædicti W. elemosinarius noster qui pro tempore fuerit omnia prædicta cum pertinentijs suis et eschaetis integre recipiet, et in die anniversario dicti W. inveniatur conventui ad anniversarium ipsius annuatim faciendum optimam pitanciam salmonis vel alterius piscis melioris qui tunc poterit inveniri, una cum caritate vini optimi, et totum residuum permaneat in perpetuum secundum discretionem elemosinarij pauperibus fideliter erogandum; omnes illos excommunicantes qui supradictæ ordinationi scienter contravenire præsumpserint. In cujus rei testimonium tam nos quam dictus conventus huic scripto signa nostra apponi fecimus.

iiii. N. April. Ad anniversarium domini Petri de Lench militis assignantur conventui viginti solidi, de quibus sacrista qui pro tempore fuerit respondebit.

xii. kal. Octob. Ad anniversarium domini Nicholai de Baddeseye sacerdotis assignantur conventui ii. marcas et dimidia, pro quibus bursarius conventus respondebit.

iiii. N. Marcij. Ad anniversarium Roberti de Swelle faciendum assignantur conventui decem solidi de tementis emptis de Johanna de Tywe ad dandam bonam pitanciam conventui, de quibus x. solidis pitanciarius respondebit.

De Anniversario Willielmi Wythechirche Abbatis Eveshamiæ.

MEMORANDUM quod Willelmus de Wythechirche abbas Eveshamiæ diversos redditus comparavit ad anniversarium suum perficiendum, et ad participandum pro anima sua annuatim die obitus sui semper per manus elemosinarij Eveshamiæ qui pro tempore fuerit, videlicet, xx. solidos annui redditus quos emit de Ada le Botiler in villa Eveshamiæ et Benigworthe, scilicet, de terra Nicholai David in Evesham annuatim decem solidos; et de terra Johannis Peterel ad cornerium duos solidos; et de terra Johannis Crosun in novo vico quinque solidos; et de terra Heliæ fabri in Benigworthe iii. solidos; et de abbate de Cokersand pro decima de Benigwortham de supplemento iiii. solidos; et quatuor solidos in manerio de Baddebi quos emit de Thoma de Capes de terra Willelmi del Hok; et duodecim solidos quos emit in villa de Benigworthe de undecim coterijs in eadem villa de domino Willelmo de Bellocampo, scilicet, de terra Johannis Mise xii. denarios; et de terra Rogeri Carectarij xii. denarios; et de terra Matildis Osmund xii. den. et de terra Rogeri Molendinarij xii. den. et de terra Adæ Grauntpe xviii. den. et de terra Petri le Barcar ii. solidos; et de terra Julianæ Pacti xii. den. et de terra Roberti Spelesbur xii. den. et de terra Henrici juxta aquam xii. den. et de terra Galfridi Fullonis xii. den. et de terra Walteri Kempe vi. den. et de quadam cultura in Bereford cum prato et quadam crofta quas Willelmus de Nafford dedit eidem abbati cum advocacione ecclesiæ de Bereford x. solidos. Et omnia prædicta contulit dictus abbas ad distributionem pauperum die anniversarij sui per manus elemosinarij faciendam; ita scilicet quod quilibet pauper recipiat eodem die unum panem de quadrante. Item idem abbas Willelmus concessit at assignavit in perpetuum singulis annis die anniversarij sui ad opus conventus Eveshamiæ annum redditum viginti solidorum quos emit in manerio de Ambresleye de Alano de Elemete de terra quæ fuit Philippi Haket, ad refectionem dicti conventus per manus dicti elemosinarij distribuendam. Excommunicando omnes illos qui supradictæ ordinationi in aliquo contravenire præsumpserint. In cujus rei testimonium tam dictus abbas quam conventus scripto originali super hoc confecto signa sua apposuerunt.

Johannes abbas Eveshamiæ dedit conventui suo singulis annis die anniversarij sui xii. marcas annui redditus de viginti virgatis terræ in manerio de Seynesburg, viz. decem marcas ad incrementum vestitus, et duas marcas ad refectionem dicti conventus, per manus elemosinarij colligendas et distribuendas. Assignavit etiam quinquaginta solidos annui redditus in Benigeworth, Evesham, Norton, Lutleton, et Hampton, ad refectionem pauperum in die anniversarij sui, ita quod unusquisque pauperum habeat de pane frumenti ad valorem unius quadrantis.

Willelmus abbas Eveshamiæ assignavit elemosinario centum solidos annui redditus in Merstowe et Benyngworthe, viz. xxx^s. ad pitanciam dicti conventus die anniversarij sui per manus elemosinarij solvandos, et lxx^s. ad distributionem pauperum eodem die, ita quod unusquisque pauper habeat valorem unius quadrantis si ad hoc sufficere poterit. Item assignavit eidem xl. solidos annui redditus in Evesham pro duodecim pauperibus, ita quod quilibet eorum habeat die sanctæ Katerinæ unum warmamentum pretio trium solidorum, et unum par socularium. Assignavit etiam xiii^s. viii^d. annui redditus in Evesham pro reparatione domorum. Assignavit etiam vi^{li}. xv^d. de manerio de Kenewarton et redditu de Evesham pro duobus capellanis imperpetuum celebraturis pro animabus domini Walteri et dominæ Hawysie de Gloucestria. Item sexaginta decem solidos et octo denarios pro uno capellano imperpetuum celebraturo pro anima sua et animabus conventus sui. Data est carta hæc anno Domini mcccxxxii.

Item dedit camerario totam terram de Baddeseye quæ quondam fuit domini Willelmi senescalli cum tota decima garbarum, ita quod dictus camerarius reddat conventui x^{li}. pro melioratione vestium suorum singulis annis.

* Post has cartas deest folium integrum in codice Cottoniano, et sunt aliquæ cartæ mutilæ.

*Carta supradicti Willielmi Abbatis Eveshamiæ de dictis

[Ibid. fol. 236.]

OMNIBUS Christi fidelibus præsens scriptum visuris vel audituris Willelmus permissione divina abbas monasterii Eveshamiæ salutem in Domino sempiternam. Dilectorum filiorum et fratrum nostrorum prioris et conventus nostri indigentiam advertentes, ad ipsorum indigentiae relevamen; concedimus pro nobis et successoribus nostris et assignamus imperpetuum priori et conventui nostro unum mesuagium cum gardino et clauso in villa de Baddeseye, et duas carucatas terræ arabilis cum omnimodis decimis inde provenientibus, et cum pratis et pascuis in campo ejusdem villæ ad eandem terram pertinentibus, quæ de domino Johanne de Wellesleye milite adquisivimus sibi in usus suos necessarios convertenda. Et omnia supradicta obedientiæ camerarij nostri monasterij antedicti qui pro tempore fuerit in perpetuum assignamus. Et volumus ac ordinamus quod idem camerarius de prædictis et cæteris ad ipsius obedientiam deputatis singulis annis ad festum Purificationis beatæ Mariæ satisfaciatur priori et conventui nostro de decem libris sterlyngorum ultra id quod eis satisfacere consuevit. Et quod decem libræ annuæ quas dicti prior et conventus ad festum sancti Andreæ apostoli ab obedientia dicti camerarij pro cursu coopertorum percipere consueverunt de cætero percipiant annis singulis ad festum Purificationis beatæ Mariæ. Et utramque summam pecuniæ antedictæ dicti prior et conventus in ipsorum usus necessarios pro vestura sua convertant, pannis pro pastura decem fratribus, singulis annis ad festum Paschæ liberandis, a senioribus seriatim procedendo. Volumus etiam et ordinamus quod in aliquo loco competente in dicto gardino fiant edificia de communi bursa pro recreatione et solatio minorum, et quod in eodem gardino deambulationem habeant pro solatio eorundem, et quod tam ipsi quam commonachi monasterij nostri a priore monasterij nostri vel ab ejus vices gerente optenta licentia cum ibidem comedere voluerint percipiant de celario et de utraque coquina corrodium suum sicut perciperent si in nostro monasterio morarentur. Et dicti prior et conventus nobis concesserunt de eorum libera voluntate quod postquam migraverimus ex hac vita singulis annis die anniversarij nostri singuli monachi in sacerdotio constituti de monasterio antedicto singulas missas cum alijs orationum suffragijs in vera caritate pro anima nostra teneantur celebrare. Et quia arcius inprimitur recordanti memoria majori beneficio commendata, ad nostri memoriam diligentius recolendam, die anniversarij nostri occurrente, quatuor libras et decem solidos annui redditus per nos in Merstowe adquisiti, videlicet sexaginta solidos pro distributione pauperum et triginta solidos pro refectione conventus in perpetuum assignamus per præsentem; dicti redditus custodiam, et sustentationem, perceptionem, et ministrationem modo prædicto elemosinario qui pro tempore fuerit commendantes. In cujus rei testimonium sigillum nostrum cum sigillo capituli nostri præsentibus est appensum. Dat. in octavis apostolorum Petri et Pauli in capitulo nostro, anno Domini m^o. ccc^o. vicesimo octavo.

[Ibid. fol. 240.]

MEMORANDUM quod conventus Eveshamiæ habebit de prioratu de Penewortham quolibet anno contra festum sancti Egwini sexaginta salmone, scilicet, solanos, vel viginti quatuor majores qui faciunt summam; et præter hijs visitabit dictus prior abbatem de duobus majoribus salmonibus et priorem de uno. Prior tamen nichilominus habebit unum de summa.

Memorandum quod dominus Radulphus de Wylecote, quondam prior de Penewortham, assignavit conventui pro minutione sexaginta solidos per annum de novo incremento suo; et dompnus Willelmus de Chiri-ton abbas ipsam assignationem affirmavit, anno Domini m^o. ccc^o. xx^o.

Idem prior tempore suo mandavit singulis monachis salmonem integrum.

NUM. XXXVI.

[MS. Cotton. Vespasianus B. xv. fol. 17.]

QUASDAM possessiones benefactores contulerant ecclesiæ beatæ Mariæ et sancti Egwini de Evesham ante decessum ejusdem Egwini, quasdam post decessum ejusdem scilicet ccc^l^{tas}. mictas salis, et assartam de Blake-share; omnes ergo possessiones acquisitas integerrime sine diminutione et cum summa libertate veluti Egwynus dereliquit decem et octo abbates post ejus depositionem annis quamplurimis tenuerunt. Sed postea tamen per varias temporum incommoditates et bellorum incursus, tum per malignorum hominum inpugnationes et invasiones, tum per prælatorum et subditorum hujus ecclesiæ insufficientiam, malitiam, et negligentiam a pluribus malevolis Dei et ecclesiæ hujus inimicis diversis temporibus hæc bona multimodis direpta et subtracta dinoscuntur. Nam defuncto abbate Edwyno, qui octavus decimus post sanctum Egwinum extitit, quidam nefandus princeps hujus patriæ Alchelmus nomine, a rege Edmundo filio Edwardi senioris hanc abbatiam obtinuit, servos Dei monachos inde fugavit, et quosdam canonicos in loco monachorum constituit. Post ejus mortem diversi homines sub diversis regibus laicali potentia locum istum possederunt, veluti erat quidam sanctæ ecclesiæ raptor, nomine Ulfricus, et episcopus quidam nomine Osulfus, et ita de una potestate in aliam potestatem contrariam, rex hujus monasterij miserrime distrahebantur, quoad usque sanctus Ethelwoldus jussu regis Edgari et sancti Dunstani huc adveniens, Oswardum abbatem hic constituit, anno gratiæ dccc^l^x. commendans ei terras et possessiones quas Alchelmus Christi adversarius post mortem Edwini abbatis abstulit. Tempore istius abbatus Oswardi occulta animadversione dominica ecclesia Evesham ruit quam sanctus Egwinus construxerat, ac secum universa subruit atque comminuit præter feretrum sancti Egwini cum ejusdem reliquijs quod divina gratia conservatum est illæsum. Postmodum defuncto rege pio Edgardo, et filio ejus Edwardo dominante, dux quidam sceleratissimus Alferus nomine, hujus patriæ potentissimus dominator, monachos iterum hinc expellens, canonicos paucos constituit, eis que quicquid sibi placuit de terris ecclesiæ concessit, reliquas terras et possessiones in dominio sibi assumpsit. Tandem in ægritudine constitutus de vita sua desperatus est. Quapropter quemdam monachum ad se vocavit, Freodegarum nomine, qui cum eo conversabatur, et dedit ei hanc abbatiam cum alijs terris quas ipse habebat. Sed ipse abbas Freodegarus, ad istum locum perveniens, paucis tempore hic obtinuit commorari, quia clericos fortiores se inveniens nullo modo voluit hinc expellere. Postmodum quidam potens homo Godwinus ad regem Ethelredum, fratrem beati Edwardi martyris, accessit, donans sibi ccc^{tas}. mancusas auri, eo tenore ut sibi abbatiam hæreditario jure perpetuo donaret, rex ergo cupiens habere illud aurum, stulte concessit illi hunc locum. Protinus ille huc pergens presbyteros sibi subjecit cum omni abbatia, injuste res et possessiones ejus diripiens cœpit dominari sicut volebat. Denique post aliquantum tempus rex prædictus dedit hanc abbatiam cuidam episcopo Agelsio; sed is iterum post non multum tempus iram regis incurrens ab episcopatu dejectus mare transijt nunquam reversurus, et deinde rex dedit eam cuidam alio episcopo Athelstano; quo defuncto Aldulphus episcopus Wigornia a rege eam obtinuit, et primus libertate sua fraudavit et suæ jurisdictioni subjecit. Ille autem constituit hic abbatem Alfricum, post cujus etiam mortem Algarus abbas præfuit. Inter hos omnes semper Godwinus prædictus xl. habuit hidas, ita ut nec episcopi nec abbates plus possent habere quam solummodo ecclesiam et reliquas terras quas presbiteri tenuerunt. Defuncto autem isto Algaro,

Brithinarus quidam abbas fuit huic loco; qui vir venerabilis super Godwinum coram multis principibus hujus patriæ frequenter planctavit, eo quod injustus terras ecclesiæ possideret. Qua de re judicatum est ei ut tantum auri quantum regi dederat sibi redderet, et ipse terras ecclesiæ vice reciperet; quod etiam ipse libenter fecit, et xl. hidas restituit ecclesiæ. Huic quidem abbati quidam nomine

Agelwinus abbas successit, et suo tempore abbatiam istam ut decessor ejus reliquerat integram conservavit; quo etiam ex hac luce migrante sæpeditus Godwinus per potentiam suam abbatiam istam iterum invasit, terras et possessiones diripuit; sed tandem rex Ethelredus quemdam monachum Ramesiensem

Aylwardum in hoc loco abbatem constituit anno Domini mxiv. Qui vir venerabiliter huc adveniens fretus Dei auxilio regis persuasorem Godwinum hinc expulit, et terras abbatiae hujus sic in melius servavit antiquitus, Dei gratia annuente omnes viriliter acquisivit. Postmodum vero sub consanguineo suo rege Cnutone Londinensis ecclesiæ episcopus effectus est, non tamen hujus loci gubernationem deseruit. Iste abbas postquam Adulphus episcopus Wigorniensis hanc abbatiam sibi et successoribus suis subjecerat, primus abbatum in libertatem proclamavit, et in tantum obtinuit quod venerabilem virum Auikin hujus ecclesiæ priorem decanum Christianitatis totius vallis constituit, quam nunquam libertatem postea ecclesia ista amisit. Transijt autem Aylwardus Londinensis ecclesiæ (ut prædiximus) antistes, et hujus ecclesiæ pastor pijssimus, vi. kal. Augusti, anno ab incarnatione Domini mxliv. et apud Ramesiensem ecclesiam ubi prius fuerat monachus sepultus est. Huic successit

Mannius hujus ecclesiæ monachus a rege Edwardo electus, et post aliquantum tempus gravi infirmitate detentus, quendam monachum de suis ad officium pastorale elegit nomine

Egilwinum. Misit quoque eum cum quibusdam fratribus et honorabilibus sæcularibus personis ad regem Edwardum, gravibus morbis se eo oppressum demonstrans, orans ut huic viro abbatiam istam ex toto traderet et abbatem pro eo faceret. Petitioni rex annuens fecit eum ab Aldredo archiepiscopo honorabiliter consecrari. Reversus igitur domum constituit duos de melioribus personis a quibusdam servientibus qui abbati suo Mannio humiliter deservirent. Vixit autem Mannius postmodum septem annis, et eadem nocte et hora ut fertur qua rex gloriosus Edwardus ex hoc sæculo transijt, videlicet, viii. idus Januarij in festo Epiphaniæ, anno Domini mlxv. Defuncto itaque rege Edwardo et Haraldo regnum accipiente, quicquid volebat ab eo facile impetravit. Deinde rege Willelmo tota Anglia secundum velle suum ex toto dominante, iste abbas Agelwinus maximam amicitiam super omnes fere gentis barones apud eum obtinuit. Et quia rex sapiens cognoverat eum virum prudentem præ omnibus hujus gentis, commisit ei custodiam istarum partium terræ, videlicet, Wyrecestrescire, Gloucestrescire, Oxenefordescire, Warewykescire, Herefordescire, Stafordescire, et Scrobescire. Cum vero plures abbatiae aliæque ecclesiæ terras et possessiones illo tempore Normannis invadentibus perdiderunt, ipse non solum nullas perdidit, sed infra tempus sui regiminis tam a rege Edwardo quam postmodum ab alijs hominibus xxxvi. villas in diversis comitatibus maxima pecunia redimendo huic comparavit. Quando ipse abbas primitus effectus non erant hic nisi xii. fratres; quando obiit xxxvi. dimisit, et v. archas plenas argento ad novam ecclesiam construendam quam ipse deposuerat reliquit. Tandem vitam dimisit xiv. kal. Martij anno domini mlxxvii. Tertio quoque mense post misit rex huc monachum de monasterio Cerasia

Walterum. Hic vero abbas effectus omnem abbatiam hanc, sicut antecessor ejus habebat, suscipit; sed quia noluit homagium a pluribus bonis hominibus quos prædecessor suus habuerat suscipere in iram et odium contra eum conversi ad Odonem fratrem regis Baiocensis ecclesiæ episcopum miserunt, falsa accusatione dicentes, abbatem Agelwinum per fortitudinem non recto jure tantas terras acquisisse. Qua de re præsul præfatus regem fratrem suum adiit, et terras monasterij hujus sibi dari obtinuit. Protinus consilia in aliquantum jubet congregari, scilicet, xiii. sciras, plus per suam iniquam potentiam quam recto jure ex xxxvi. terris quas abbas Agelwinus ecclesiæ acquisivit, xxviii. villas fecit eidem abjurari, et suo iniquo dominio usurpari. Iste abbas, licet tot terris privatus, numerum tamen fratrum auxit, et cum octo fere annis huic ecclesiæ præfuisset diem suum clausit extremum, xiii. kal. Februarij, anno mlxxxvi. Huic substitutus est

Robertus monachus de Gineges, cujus tempore multas terras dicitur distribuisse consanguineis suis, sicut et prædecessor ejus. Tempore istius abbatis fuerunt in Evesham lxvii. monachi, et ex hijs fuerunt xii. in Denemarchia, quos rex Willielmus juvenis illuc transmisit, et v. moniales, iii. pauperes ad mandatum, iii. clerici qui omnes habent tantum quantum monachi. Item lxv. servientes fuerunt in monasterio, scilicet, v. in ecclesia; ii. in domo infirmorum; ii. in cancellario; v. in coquina; vii. in pistrino; iii. qui faciunt cervisiam; iii^{or}. servitores in balneario; ii. sutores; ii. in pannerio; iii. ortulani; i. ad ostium claustrum; ii. ad magnam portam; v. ad vineam; iii. qui serviunt monachis qui pergunt foras; iii. piscatores; iii. in camera abbatis; iii. in aula; ii. vigilantes. Obijt anno Domini mxcvi. Post quem successit

Reginaldus Gloucestræ, nepos comitis Milonis Herefordiæ. Iste tempore papæ Innocentij secundi pro libertate ecclesiæ tuenda contra episcopum Simonem peditentim cum eo Romam ivit, et in libertatem viriliter conclamavit, et in parte obtinuit, et super eo privilegium prædicti papæ acquisivit, postremo obiit vii. kal. Septembris, anno Domini mcxxxvi. Post quem electus est

Willielmus de Andevilla monachus Christi ecclesiæ Cantuariæ. Iste audacter Willelmum de Bello Campo et complices suos, qui muros cœmiterij destruxerant, et bona ecclesiæ tempore guerræ rapiebant in facie, internis contra armatos, excommunicavit. Transijt autem ii^{do}. nonas Januarij, anno Domini mclix. Huic substitutus

Rogerus monachus sancti Augustini Cantuariæ, et obiit ii^{do}. nonas Januarij, anno Domini mclx. Huic successit

Adam monachus Cluniacensis de Caritate, qui calicem aureum fieri fecit, quem Rogerus abbas postea destruxit pro redemptione regis Ricardi, et cum fere xxx. annis ecclesiam suam rexisset in pace, vitam finivit ii^{do}. idus Novembris, anno Domini mccxi. Huic successit

Rogerus dictus Noriers quondam ecclesiæ Christi Cantuariæ monachus, sed propter sua facinora ibi in carcerem est detrusus, a quo tandem liberatus per cloacas aufugit, postea per regiam potestatem in Eveshamensem promovetur abbatem, conventu reclamante. Iste abbas magnanimum se exhibebat et multis literis abundare videbatur. Facundus enim erat et eloquentia pollebat. Curialis etiam nimium extitit et dapsilis et gloriosus, in mensa, cibis, et potibus abundantius affluens; et quibus et quum volebat copiose et honorifice hæc largiebatur, non ut Christi militem ut sanctus Sebastianus, sed ut exordinationes suas sub absconso chlamide tegat. Erat enim vinolentus et luxuriosus, multisque alijs criminibus irretitus; et post paucos annos postquam huc venerat in tantum est elatus ex multa eruditione et dapsilitate sua ut videretur insanire, et observantiam ordinis cum cura animarum fere penitus abjecit. Monachos etiam crudeliter oppressit, victum et vestitum ab eis pro magna parte subtraxit; ita quod per multos dies in solo pane duro et aqua, multos in pane duro et cervisia parum differente ab aqua sine pitancia fuerunt. Multi etiam ob defectum froccorum, cucullarum, et femoralium, nec chorum nec capitulum intrare poterant, nec divina celebrare. Tandem inedia urgente conquesti sunt monachi super hijs domino Huberto Cantuariæ archiepiscopo tunc temporis totius Angliæ Legato. Ipse vero inter eos pacem reformans assignavit pro bono pacis certos redditus ad pitanciariam, quia prius vina et medones de celario et carnes de lardario abbatis statutis temporibus ad hoc accipere consueverunt, unde magnum murmur et magnus defectus sæpius contingebat. Legatione autem finita post annum, abbas iterum monachos suppeditavit, et tam redditus pitanciarie quam redditus operis et omnes redditus eorum fere sibi iterum appropriavit. Quapropter miseria et inedia compulsi hæc ferre non volentes, domino Cantuariensi, ut suo speciali legato scripserunt monachi suas afflictiones et abbatis tyrannidem; qui valde commotus venit Eveshamiæ et ibi de ijs quæ audierat diligenter inquit; sed abbas ad callida argumenta confugiens, muneribus promissis et datis et quibusdam fratribus corruptis, obedientijs conventus ad tempus restituit, pacem sibi comparavit; sed parvo tempore duravit. Nam paulo post pejus quam unquam prius monachos flagellavit; nam sacristariam, thalamum et omnes obedientias illorum amplius et durius quam prius sibi appropriavit, et illos fame, frigore, et inedia durius quam prædictum est affecit. Nec hoc ei ad cumulum dominationis suæ suffecit, sed quasi sciens quæ super eum ventura erant, antequam deponeretur, ut ipse sæpe dicebat, quod talem redderet abbatiam, ut nunquam aliquis post eum ea gauderet. Cœpit possessiones ecclesiæ dilapidare, consanguineos suos ditare. ^aInterim missus est in Anglia dominus. Tandem cum per septennium multa immobilia dilapidasset et ecclesiam ære alieno ad mille marcas onerasset, et in tantum conventum depressisset, quod multi unde se cooperirent honeste, vel inundante pluvia ubi caput suum reclinarent non haberent, et multi fame et inedia afficerentur, missus est a domino papa dominus Nicholaus Tusculanensis episcopus legatus Romanæ sedis pro quibusdam negotijs ecclesiæ Anglicanæ; qui cum Eveshamiæ causa visitationis venisset, ex præcepto ejusdem legati surrexit Thomas de Marleberge monachus dictæ domus et statum domus ejus retulit, et abbatem coram eo accusavit, et super vii. vel viii. criminibus eum convicit; et ita depositus est abbas, et factus est prior de Penwortham, anno Domini mcccxi. Deposito Rogero substitutus est vir vitæ venerabilis

Thomas de Marleberes vel Marborowe prior ejusdem loci eligitur in abbatem. Obijt anno Domini mcccxxvi. ii^{do}. idus Septembris. Isti successit

Ricardus le Gras prior de Hurleye. Tempore istius abbatis venerabilis pater Johannes episcopus dedicavit ecclesiam de Evesham, videlicet anno Domini mcccxxix. et in dicta dedicatione concessit omnibus pœnitentibus et hanc ecclesiam venerantibus de pœnitentia sibi injecta c. dies relaxationis, et in anniversario ejusdem dedicationis per singulos annos c. dies, et in omnibus festivitatibus sanctæ crucis et sanctæ Mariæ et sancti Egwini c. dies. Hic autem abbas multum fuerat occupatus in servitio domini Henrici iii. regis Angliæ citra mare et ultra, et fuit cancellarius totius Angliæ et tandem in partibus Vasconiae viam universæ carnis ingressus est quinto idus Decembris anno gratiæ mcccxlii. Post quem

Thomas de Gloucestria monachus ejusdem domus in abbatem eligitur, qui anno sequente a domino papa Innocentio iv^{to}. confirmatur, nec tamen potuit a rege temporalia recipere donec idem rex a papa postmodum super hoc mandatum speciale receperit. Tempore istius abbatis, anno gratiæ mcccxi. pater Jocelinus episcopus in ecclesia Eveshamensi in quadragesima ordinationes celebravit. Transactis itaque fere xiv. annis, iste Thomas ex hoc sæculo migravit ad Dominum, xviii. kalendas Januarij, anno Domini mcccxi. Cui successit

Henricus ejusdem ecclesiæ prior, qui a papa Alexandro iv^{to}. postmodum confirmatur. Iste abbas quamvis ære alieno usque ad md. marcas fuerat oneratus in brevi tamen postea omnibus debitis satisfecit. Cum autem vii. annis hanc ecclesiam gubernasset prudenter, migravit ad Dominum, idus Novembris, anno gratiæ mcccxi. Defuncto abbate Henrico vacavit ecclesia per multum tempus. Tandem circa festum sanctæ crucis in autumnno, anno videlicet mcccxi. venit legatus Octobonus apud Evesham, et constituit monachis ibidem in abbatem

Willielmum de Whitechurch quondam monachum de Persore, postea abbatem de Alyncestre. Iste etiam abbas comparavit de domino Willielmo de Bellocampo comite Warwyck manerium de Bengeworth. Obijt iii^o. nonas Augusti, anno gratiæ mcccxxii. Huic successit

Johannes de Brokehampton, monachus istius loci, qui a Martino papa iii^{to}. Romæ confirmatur. Hic inter multos redditus et possessiones atque maneria quæ acquisivit huic monasterio, comparavit de domino rege, quod prior et conventus habeant custodiam abbatiae Eveshamiæ, in singulis vacationibus, faciendo domino regi unam certam summam pecuniæ scilicet clx^{li}. pro qua concessione dedit domino regi ccl^{li}. et in tempore suo dedit domino regi Henrico iii^o. pro guerris suis m. marcas. Item dedit domino regi ccl. marcas pro medietate bonorum suorum in uno anno. Item dedit regi c. marcas pro transgressionibus factis in foresta de Feckenham per homines suos. Tandem dormivit xv^{to}. kalendas Septembris mcccxi. Post quem electus est in abbatem iii^o. kalendas Septembris

Willielmus de Cheriton monachus ejusdem domus, qui a domino papa Johanne xxii^{do}. confirmatur; qui acquisivit de Waltero de Bellocampo milite in Kyneworth unum toftum quod valet marcam. Cum autem xxviii. annis suam rexisset ecclesiam, idus Decembris vitam finivit, anno gratiæ mcccxliv. Tertia hebdomada post ejus discessum, xiii. kalendas Januarij electus est in abbatem

Willielmus de Boys monachus ejusdem domus et a papa Clemente Avinioni confirmatur et diem clausit extremum, viii. idus Junij, anno Domini mcccxlvi. Hic acquisivit de Urbano papa v^{to}. ut abbas de novo electus posset consecrari in Anglia a quocunque liceat episcopo, quod cum acciderit valet cccc^{li}. Acquisivit terras ad valorem cl^{li}. monasterio suo. Huic successit

Frater Johannes de Ombresley monachus ejusdem domus a conventu electus iii^{to}. nonas Julij proximo tunc sequente, qui statim a Lincolnensi episcopo, virtute privilegij a papa Urbano v^{to}. indulti, munus benedictionis accipit, et xii. annis in abbatia residens obijt anno Domini mcccxxxix. Hic etiam multas terras ecclesiæ suæ acquisivit; post ejus obitum

Rogerus Zatts sacrista hujus monasterij xii. kalendas Decembris a conventu in abbatem eligitur, deinde a rege receptus, secundum eorum privilegia a Lincolnensi episcopo Londoniæ munus benedictionis accepit. Iste abbas expulit gloriose et viriliter et magnis expensis Willielmum Courteney archiepiscopum Cantuariensem, qui, ut dicebatur, voluit visitare nos contra privilegia. Tum constituit ut festum sanctæ Trinitatis de cætero quasi unum de principalibus festis celebretur; in quo die ordinavit cuilibet monacho unum caponem, unam quartam vini, priori duos capones cum dimidia lagena vini, abbati iii. capones cum una lagena vini distribuendum. Item fecit pacem et concordiam inter Thomam comitem de Warwyck et nos, ad magnum profectum ecclesiæ nostræ, quæ perturbata fuit antea per longum tempus inter dictum comitem et Johannem Ombresley prædecessorem suum cum magnis sumptibus et expensis. Postea multas expensas sustinuit pro placitis habitis contra Thomam Bredet, militem et Nicholaum filium suum, videlicet, mittendo ultra mare ad regem qui tunc agebat in partibus Normanniæ, et ad alios duces et dominos Angliæ pro auxilio impetrando, qui tandem Deo dante, atque alijs amicis mediantibus victoriam obtinuit de adversarijs unde inpignoravit se versus mundum, et conventum suum cccc^{li}. Hic relinquens post ad servendum Deo xxxviii. monachos, cum xxxix. annis gubernasset ecclesiam, migravit vi. kalendas Decembris mcccxxviii. et Henrici regis v^{ti}. sexto. Secunda post hæc hebdomada, scilicet viii. idus Decembris, electus est

ab episcopo Bangoriensi tunc cancellario Oxoniæ munus benedictionis accepit. Hic ordinavit ut^a unoquoque monacho in die Pentecostes quilibet fratrum tam præsens quam absens, sacerdos et non sacerdotio functus, percipiant xx^d. et insuper unam aucam vel caponem cum una quarta vini, et prior duplum solutionis, videlicet iii^s. iii^d. et duos capones vel aucas cum ii. quartis vini. Præfuit iste abbas annis xvii. obiit x. Maij, anno Domini mccccxxxv. Post ejus mortem electus erat

Joannes Wykewan prior ejusdem monasterij xii. kalendas Januarij, et in die Thomæ apostoli ab episcopo Bathoniensi tunc cancellario Angliæ benedictionem accepit; et obiit transactis prælationis xxvi. annis, anno Domini mccccxlx. Acquisivit de novis terris et tementis ix^{li}. xi^s. anniversarij redditus, et fecit festum Epiphaniæ solempniari sicut in septem festis cum octavis. Huic successit

Ricardus Penbrok doctor magister in theologia electus voce totius conventus, anno Domini mccccxlx. iii^o. die Martij, qui ab Herefordensi episcopo benedictus fuit. Præfuit monasterio annis septem, et obiit vii^o. die Martij, anno Domini mccccxlvii. et regis Edwardi iii^{ti}. vii^{mo}. Huic successit

Ricardus Hauskysbery prior, electus anno Domini mccccxlvii. benedictione ab episcopo Lincolniensi suscepta vi. Augusti, qui tunc erat dies Martis, est installatus. Hujus tempore magnates convolarunt adeo frequenter ad monasterium ut non sufficeret redditus; itaque monasterium ære alieno obligatum reliquit ad summam mille marcarum quam successores solvere cogentur. Præfuit annis decem, obiit vi. kalendas Aprilis, anno Domini mccccxlvii. anno Edwardi iv^{ti}. xvii^{mo}. Huic successit

Willielmus Upton monachus hujus domus et prior de Alcestria, xviii^o. die Aprilis, anno Domini mccccxlvii. qui recipiens monasterium gravatum ære alieno ad summam m^{li}. solvebat totum. Hic quinque tantum annis præfuit mortuus anno Domini mccccxlviii. xi^o. die Augusti, anno Edwardi iv^{ti}. xxii^{do}. Huic successit

Joannes Norton prior claustralis iiii. Septembris, anno Domini mccccxlviii. Ricardi iiiⁱ. i^{mo}. Hic providebat ut in die anniversarij sui unusquisque fratrum xx^d. et ut fratres haberent unam damam ex dammario de Offenham, et ideo ampliavit parcum de Offenham, cum vino de cellario abbatis. Præfuit annis octo, obiit anno Domini mccccxci. ii^{do}. die Julij, anno Henrici vii^{mi}. vii^{mo}. Huic successit

Thomas Neubold celerarius monasterij, anno Henrici septimi vii^{mo}. xviii. Julij, mccccxci. ab episcopo Herefordensi consecratus. Præfuit annis xxii. et ultra; et anno Domini mdxiv. mortuus est vi^{to}. die Decembris, quo mortuo elegerunt fratres

Clementem Tichefeld priorem monasterij, xxviii. die Decembris, anno Domini mdxiv. Solvebat suo tempore multas summas, primo regi Henrico vii^{vo}. pro libera electione consuetam summam, videlicet, clx^{li}. et Thomæ Wolsey tunc regis elemosynario c^{li}. pro voluntate sua, non justa causa. Præterea dedit eidem regi mutuo d. marcas una vice, quas postea dedit sicut cæteri fecerunt. Deinde solvebat eidem regi pro quinta parte possessionem d. marcas. Item postea pro redemptione (ut rex voluit) præmuniri d. marcas. Item dedit Wolsio cardinali pro visitatione sua l^{li}. Item solvebat Laurentio cardinali venienti in Angliam l^{li}. Item alio tempore ad habendum Wolsij benevolentiam erga religionem pro sua parte xx^{li}. Et oneratus est singulis annis servis regis advenientibus, quibus dedit semper aliquid, nunc xl^d. nunc vi^s. viii^d. nunc x^s. nunc xiii^s. iv^d. et quibusdam xx^s. et ultra, et similiter servis cardinalis et principis; et habuit equos regis uno anno cum servis viginti quatuor quotidie ad mensam.

Verus et annuus valor Monasterij de Evesham taxatur per commissarios domini regis Henrici vii^{vi}. xxvii^o. tam in Temporalibus quam Spiritualibus per annum ultra omnes deductiones mclxxiii^{li}. xii^s. x^d.

De Officio Præcentoris.

Ad officium præcentoris pertinet committere juvenibus custodiam armariorum, et eadem reparare; et quando conventus sederit in claustro circueat audito signo claustrum, libros reponat, si forte per alicujus incuriam obliti fuerint. De universis hujus monasterij libris curam gerat et eos in custodia sua habeat; si ejus studij et scientiæ sit ut eorum cura ei debeat commendari. Nullus librum capiat nisi scribatur in rotulo ejus; nec alicui liber aliquis mutuo tradatur absque competentis et sufficientis memoriali, et hoc ponatur in rotulo ipsius. Ipsius est etiam omni hora sollicite providere ne eveniat necligentia in quocunque obsequio quod fit in monasterio. Si quis obliviosus non incipiet cum incipere debet, vel aliud hujusmodi, sive in eodem jam bene incepto aliquo modo deviaverit, ipse debet esse provisus atque paratus, ut sine mora incipiat quod incipiendum erat, vel eum qui fallendo deviaverit in viam reducat. Ac ipsius est notificare abbati omnes cantus quos ipse cantat aut incipit. Quicumque lecturus aut cantaturus est in monasterio si nichil habet ab eo priusquam incipiat debet auscultare. Cura brevium quæ foras mitti solent ad eum pertinet, et cætera quam plurima in consuetudinibus expressa. Item pertinet ad officium præcentoris illa camera in curia quæ est juxta stabulum prioris, videlicet bona camera supra et alia subtus cum stabulo et opposito, et duæ caretatæ fœni, et una caretata fabarum et pisorum annuatim, a domino abbate recipiendæ et præsentandæ. Ex officio debet equitare cum juvenibus fratribus, quotiens et quandocumque equitaverint pro ordinibus suscipiendis, eorum sumptibus in omnibus et expensis tam in conductione equorum quam in omnibus alijs. Item præcentor debet providere et ordinare . . . scriptura tabulæ in septem festis, videlicet, Natalis Domini, Depositionis beati Egwini, Paschæ, Pentecostes, Assumptionis beatæ Mariæ, Translationis sancti Egwini, et festivitatis Omnium Sanctorum. Pro hijs autem et pro ejus magno labore per illa festa percipiet ad unumquodque istorum unum pryphot, et quatuor panes monachiles minoris ponderis. Item præcentor habet ex officio in omnibus septem festis secundum consuetudines proferre legendam abbati, ut provideat lectionem erga matutinas, . . . notæ fuerit, quam lectionem præcentor debet audire secundum librum. Et notandum quod quandocumque fuerit processio in villa præcentor habet assignare canti^b latamas tres vel plures inter hos aut illos secundum discretionem et habilitatem vocum.

Item ad opus etiam conventus assignavit undecim solidos et octo denarios hijs qui sunt de cursu opertiorum singulis annis recipiendos. Ubi singuli non consueverunt recipere nisi quatuordecim solidos et decem denarios, recipient modo singuli integre sexdecim solidos.

Ricardus etiam de Clodeshale camerarius, in tempore suo, acquisivit eis qui sunt de cursu coopertiorum quatuor solidos.

NUM. XXXIX.

[Ibid. fol. 238.]

Ex consuetudine antiqua invenire debet sacrista unum cereum ante magnum altare continue ardentem. De nova vero constitutione invenire debet alium cereum similiter continue ardentem ante feretrum sancti Egwini, et unam lampadem continue ardentem ante tumbam beati Wlsini; et singulis annis pitanciam de salmone et caritatem de vino conventui die obitus beati Wlsini.

[Ibid. fol. 239.]

De antiqua consuetudine debet sacrista invenire duos cereos cotidie ad missam sanctæ Mariæ, et omnia vestimenta, et alios apparatus altaris, et singulis noctibus unum crassetum ardens usque mane ante altare sanctæ Mariæ, et de die unam lampadem ardentem, et recipere omnes obventiones illic factas.

De constitutione vero nova invenire debet ibidem unum cereum continue ardentem, et vii. cereos computatis duobus primis cotidie accensos ad missam sanctæ Mariæ et incensum cotidie, et unam lampadem cotidie ardentem, et unum crassetum de nocte sicut prius. Sed vestimenta, vel vasa, vel alios apparatus altaris non inveniet, nisi maxima necessitas fuerit; ut si furto vel igne, quod Deus avertat, perierint. Nec obventiones illic factas recipiet; sed custos altaris.

[Ibid. fol. 240.]

ITEM sacrista debet de nova constitutione invenire singulis annis, in festo sancti Wlstani ii. cereos arduentes ante feretrum sancti nocte et die; et in festo sancti Credani similiter duos. In utroque scilicet festo unum pro priore, alium pro seipso. Ad cereos prioris inveniendo pertinet de novo acquisita Selda quæ fuit Galfridi filij Johannis, quæ est inter Seldam quæ fuit Adæ le Veske et Seldam quæ fuit Willelmi de Tywe juxta portam cimiterij, quæ valet xii. denarios.

Lampadem vero ante altare sanctæ Mariæ continue ardentem debet sacrista invenire de decimis veteris dominici in Actheslend, quas acquisivit Thomas abbas quando fuit sacrista, et ad hoc eas assignavit. Ad idem facit tota sinapis sacristaria.

Summa v. marcæ et ii. solidi.

Terræ et redditus altaris sanctæ Mariæ in criptis per singulos annos.

Ante altare sanctæ Mariæ in criptis ex antiqua consuetudine debuit ut dictum est ardere una lampas de die et unum crassetum de nocte; et ad quamlibet missam de sancta Maria accendi duo cerei, et hæc ut dictum est inveniebat sacrista. De nova vero constitutione ardebit ibidem continue unus cereus et una lampas, et unum crassetum de nocte sicut prius, et cotidie debet imponi incensum ad missam, quæ omnia inveniet sacrista, et ad ea invenienda certos habet redditus ut dictum est. Præter hæc ad missam sanctæ Mariæ debent accendi cotidie cerei xxiii. De hijs inveniet sacrista vi. senescallus Evesham i. custos altaris omnes alios. Item ad eandem missam debent cotidie accendi lampades xxxiii. quas custos altaris inveniet. Similiter idem custos inveniet omnia vestimenta et vasa, et omnes alios apparatus altaris, et nulla vestimenta inveniet ibi sacrista, nisi magna necessitas fuerit, ut si forte furto vel igne perierint, quod absit.

[Bibl. Cotton. Vitellius D. III. I. fol. 131.]

DILECTIS fatribus et amicis P. priori et conventui de Evesham P. Bles. Lond. archid. salutem, et si quid dulcius aut desiderabilius est salute. Afflictioni vestræ totis animi præcordijs et intensa caritate compatiens, epistolam vobis consolatoriam sub aliqua stili urbanitate decreveram scribere; sed quia turba negotiorum mihi jugiter tumultuose incumbit, totus fere absorptus ab eis, aut non sum mecum, aut diversus et distractus sum, et sic dissipatæ sunt cogitationes meæ, torquentes cor meum, ut vix non dicam epistolam possim scribere, sed breve brevissimum. Vos autem qui spirituales estis, quorum unicuique data est manifestatio spiritus ad utilitatem, in hujus tempestatis effluente malicia, novistis qualiter vobis oporteat conversari et luctari cum mundo. Mundus enim in maligno positus, plenus laqueis, plenus scandalis et peccatis, circumseptus periculis, pravis colloquijs, iniquis consilijs, exemplis pessimis, et mortibus animæ infinitis. Proinde redimamus tempus quum dies mali sunt, nec poterit vobis deesse solatium si velitis frequenter instare orationi, Sacræque Scripturæ. Porro necesse est ut veniant scandala, et probentur corda hominum, atque inter flagella Domini præbeat improvisis vexatio intellectum. Omnes equidem filij iræ sumus, et si nobis Dominus iratus appareat, nos amorem ejus non odium æstimantes, ipsi flagellum cum equanimitate portemus. Verbum prophetæ est, 'Iram Domini portabo quia peccavi ei.' Flagellat nimirum Dominus quem corripit, et in suis verberibus nobis memoriam habundantiæ suæ suavitatis abscondit, et quos facit humiles sibi conservet amabiles. Vult enim ut de patientia nostra, quia de longo, vitæ fructus spirituales, et justitiæ manipulos colligamus. Sunt autem fructus spiritus, teste apostolo, caritas, gaudium, pax, longanimitas, bonitas, benignitas, mansuetudo, fides, modestia, continentia, castitas. Omnibus hijs privatur qui sustinentia caret; propter quod Salomon dicit, 'Væ hijs qui sustinentiam perdiderunt.' Sustinentia vero sunt patienter flagella Domini quibus nos erudit ad salutem. Deicit enim ut erigat, vulnerat ut sanet, ut pressura vertatur in gloriam et afflictio in coronam, ut qui prius flagellatus fuerat cum propheta decantet, 'Confitebor tibi, Domine, quoniam iratus es mihi, conversus est furor tuus et consolatus es me.' Quod autem Dominus per Sathanam colofizari permisit apostolum, fecit eum audire quod virtus in infirmitate perficitur; qui et de seipso dicit, 'Quum infirmior tunc fortior sum et potentior.' Utinam sic vos corrigat et emendando emundet, ut non destruat, et sera poenitentia vos oporteat quærelari et dicere, 'Destruxisti nos ab emundatione;' et illud, 'Multo sudore sudatum est et non exivit de ea rubigo;’ et rursus, ‘Percussisti eos et non doluerunt.’ Dolete igitur et plangite saltem dispendia spiritualis exercitij. Ex hac enim turbatione perditis quietissimos Rachel amplexus, divinæ suavitatis experientias, et beatæ contemplationis excessus. Quomodo namque mens hominis perplexa et anxiosa et humanis sollicitudinibus intricata spiritualibus inhærebit, aut cogitabit eterna. Sunt autem hujus mali occasio quidam inter conversos perversi, inter columbas corvi, angues inter anguillas, susurrones, detractores, Deo odibiles. Hij ut habeant equitandi materiam, seminant zizania inter fratres, contumant dolos, fastidiunt manna, sanguineas dapes appetunt, mensuramque Gomor in ollas carniū atque in allia et pepones Ægypti convertunt. Sic abhominaciones claustrales paradisi delicias exuunt, et post se trahentes sæculum quem reliquerant, forensibus se ingerunt consistorijs, atque in viarum discursibus, et in tumultibus curiarum, quicquid meruerant dampnabili commercio pro eterna perditione committunt. Denique facti transfugæ et emansores a claustro, effrenes, vagi et Sarabaitæ, dantur in reprobū sensum, ut jam nec animæ discrimen attendant, neque vereantur infamiam nec tremenda Dei judicia timeant, donec fodiat peccatori fovea, et poenitendi facultate prorsus ablata a Domino perpetua excommunicatione percussī corruant in gehennam. In tantæ igitur necessitatis articulo, psallite sapienter, orate ferventer, instate vigilijs, ignitis compunctionibus, humiliationibus arcanis, lachrimis, gemitibus, disciplinis. Sic enim Dominus hanc procellam convertet in auram, et absque dubio divinum sentietis auxilium quibus denegetur humanum. Juravit Dominus et non poenitebit eum, nec mentietur veritas quod sub jurejurando firmavit, dicens, ‘Amen, Amen dico vobis, si quid petieritis Patrem in nomine meo, dabit vobis.’ Quis ergo negligat pacem petere, nisi qui eam renuit impetrare? Corrigite quæso, et in Dominum dirigite vias vestras, quia testimonio Salomonis cum placuerint viæ hominis Domino tunc inimicos ejus convertet ad pacem. Obsecro autem vos, per misericordiam Dei, ut erga pastorem vestrum, qui pro communi libertate tam periculosæ viæ discrimini se exponit, fidelem et sincerum atque indivisibilem habeatis affectum. Sitis etiam inter vos unanimes et unius moris in domo, nec sint in vobis schismata, sed unitas spiritus in vinculo pacis; ubi est enim pax ibi est Deus, nam in pace factus est locus ejus. Omnis equidem congregatio vel conventus debet esse cithara dd. ubi multæ et diversæ cordæ quodam regulari moderamine quasi quodam plectro de compositione diversa mentium dulcissimæ faciant harmoniæ concentum. Si sit ibi corda quæ rauce sonet aut strepat, ne inducat discordiam omni studio ad consonantiam reducatur. Miror autem et conqueror quod apud dominum Canth. virum magnæ prudentiæ et consilij præcellentis nullum supra hac turbatione remedium invenistis. Solent enim quaslibet desperatas lites compescere, et inexorabiles magnatum discordias in gratiam reformare. Utinam vero nullam haberetis fiduciam in Romanis; nam ut aliqua quæ in libro experientiæ legi sub silentio claudam, illud possum vobis ad memoriam revocare, quod Machabæorum principes, quamdiu in Domino confisi sunt, de hostibus suis reportavere titulos triumphales, et ex quo inierunt fœdera cum Romanis miserabiliter in prælio corruerunt. Vos autem confidite in Domino; qui enim confidit in eo non confundetur: Turris fortissima nomen ejus Christus; heri et hodie et in eternum, nec abbreviata est manus ejus ut salvare non possit. Petite tantummodo in nomine Salvatoris. Promitto enim quod nullam apud eum patiemini repulsam si salutaria postuletis.

OR

Le Minstre in Shepey,

KENT.

SEXBURG, or Sexburga, widow to Ercombert king of Kent and mother of King Egbert, obtained land of her son in the Isle of Shepey, whereon to found a monastery, which she finished, and got well endowed for seventy-seven nuns, about the year 675.^a

SEXBURGA herself was the first abbess. She is said to have resigned her government within a short time of the foundation; and to have retired to Ely, where she afterwards succeeded her sister Etheldreda as abbess.^b

ERMENILDA, queen dowager of Mercia, and daughter of Sexburga, succeeded her mother as abbess of Shepey.^c

The religious suffered much here during the invasions of the Danes, by whom the monastery was at last in a great measure destroyed, and the nuns dispersed.

In this situation, according to Hasted, the edifice remained till the latter part of the reign of William the Conqueror, who, on the prioress of the nunnery of Newington, near Sittingbourne, having been strangled in her bed, confiscated the possessions of that convent, and removed the few remaining nuns from thence to this ruined monastery of Shepey; which continued but in a mean condition till the year 1130, when it was re-edified and replenished with Benedictine nuns by William Corboil archbishop of Canterbury, and dedicated to St. Mary and St. Sexburgh.^d

King Henry the Third, in his eighteenth year, confirmed to the prioress and nuns of this monastery the site of it and its appurtenances, together with the manor of Minster and all other lands and possessions, and divers liberties and privileges, as therein mentioned. Which charter was again confirmed by King Edward the Third, in his third year; who likewise afterwards, in the same year, granted to them an ample charter of confirmation of all their lands and privileges;^e and the grant of King Henry III. above-mentioned was likewise again confirmed by King Richard II. in the fourth year of his reign, and afterwards a third time by letters of inspeximus from King Henry IV. in his first year.^f

A.D. 1186. Roger abbat of St. Augustine demised to AGNES prioress of St. Sexburg certain tithes which his monastery possessed, in right of the church of Middleton, in the parish of Bobbing, at the yearly rent of ten shillings, on condition that all housekeepers which should be on the estates from which those tithes arose, whether they were married or not, should yearly repair to the mother church of Middleton, with their oblations, according to their several abilities, viz. on Christmas-day, the day of the Purification, and on Easter-day; and when there should not be any men, then the widows or damsels, if any such should be, should repair to the said church, in like manner, in lieu of them. And, in 1188, the same abbat demised to the prioress above-mentioned the tithes of Westlonde, within the parish of the said prioress, for the rent of fourteen shillings sterling, payable yearly to the sacrist of St. Augustine.^g

A complete list of the names of the abbesses of Shepey is probably now irrecoverable. The obits of the following are preserved in an ancient Calendar in the Cotton manuscript Faustina B. vi.

"2 Id. Martii, obiit JOHANNA DE BADELISMERE priorissa de Scapeya."

"12 Kal. Maii, ob. EUSTACHIA priorissa de Scapiea."

"4 Non. Oct. ob. AGNES^h priorissa de Scapiea."

"13 Kal. Oct. ob. CHRISTINA priorissa de Scapa."

"11 Kal. Dec. ob. GUNNORA priorissa de Scapeya."

AGNES REVERS is noticed as prioress, Oct. 2d, 1511, from the Archiepiscopal Registers at Lambeth, in one of Mr. Cole's manuscripts.ⁱ

In the eighth year of King Richard the Second, anno 1384, the temporalities of this monastery were valued at 66*l.* 8*s.* and the spiritualities at 73*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Total, 139*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.*^k

This monastery was suppressed in the 27th of Henry the Eighth; its annual revenues, according to Dugdale, amounting to 129*l.* 7*s.* 10½*d.*; but according to Speed, corroborated by the Valor Ecclesiasticus of King Henry VIII., to 122*l.* 14*s.* 6½*d.*^l

The revenues had decreased, from time to time, so

^a Tann. Not. Mon. Kent, LIV., Leland, Collect. vol. i. p. 89, Speed, &c. make Sexburgh to have founded this place A. D. 710, which is too late; it being plain from the Monasticon, &c. that it was begun before the death of King Egbert, in A. D. 673, and finished before her going to Ely, where she was sometime before the death of St. Etheldred, in A. D. 679. A monastery here is also mentioned in the Acts of the Council of Beccanceld, A. D. 694. Tann. ut supr. Dugdale, in the former editions of the first volume of this work, p. 152, following the same authorities with Leland and Speed, says: "De hujus cœnobii fundatione, et fundationis tempore, vide Lambardi Itiner. Cantii, et Cambdeni Britanniam, qui fundatum asserunt per reginam quandam Sexburgam nomine, circa annum Domini 710. Vide etiam supra pag. 88, col. 1 et 2." Lives of St. Sexburgh occur, MSS. Cotton. much, that at the Dissolution there were but ten nuns beside the prioress in it.

To the last prioress, ALICIA CRANE, King Henry the Eighth, on Nov. 20th in his 28th year, granted a pension of 14*l.* for her life, towards her proper support and maintenance.^a

The manor of Minstre, alias Sexburg, with the site of the priory, was granted, Nov. 12th, 29 Hen. VIII., to Sir Thomas Cheney, Knight.^b

The present church of Minster, being dedicated to St. Mary and St. Sexburg, as was the monastery, is supposed by some to have been the very church of it; but, by others, that it only adjoined to it. Hasted states, that it formed part of the endowment of the monastery at its first foundation.^c Weever, speaking of this monastery, says, "Some part of it is now converted into a parish-church."^d

Beside the possessions already noticed, the nunnery of Shepey was possessed, in the 22d of King Edward the Third, of lands in Milton.^e

William Robesart, by his last will, proved August 19th, 1499, gave the manor of Pistock, alias Woodstock, in Tunstall to this monastery, for the use of a solemn obit.^f

Selaese, or Selsey, Monastery,

Wilfrid having, about the year 681, preached the Chris-

IR William Dugdale, in the original edition of his work, in a single sentence, copied from Leland's Collectanea, notices the foundation of the monastery of Selsey in 711 by Wilfrid bishop of Hexham. But Bishop Tanner gives it an earlier date, though without relying on the authority of the Charters printed by Dugdale in the Account of Chichester Cathedral.^a He says, "St.

tian religion in the kingdom of the South Saxons, and converted many of those heathens to the faith, obtained, by the favour of Ædilwalch king of the country, this village, then consisting of eighty-seven families, with all the lands of the peninsula on which it is situated, for the building and endowing of a monastery for those religious persons^b who had been his companions in his exile.^c It was dedicated to the blessed Virgin,^d and EADBERCHT, abbat of this place, being, A.D. 711, consecrated the first bishop of the South Saxons,^e the episcopal seat was fixed and remained here till Bishop Stigandus translated it (by virtue of the constitution made at the Synod of London A.D. 1075) from this village to the larger town of Chichester."^f

ANNO Domini DCCXI. Wilfridus Hagustaldensis episcopus persecutionem declinans, in Insula de Seleseye per quinquennium latuit, et ibi monasterium fundavit in honorem beatæ Mariæ, donante ei terram rege Australium Saxonum Ethelwoldo, quod, multo post tempore, successores ejus tenuerunt.

[Bedæ Hist. Eccl. Gentis Anglorum, lib. iv. cap. xiii.]

"Quo tempore rex Aedilualch donavit reverentissimo antisti Vilfrido terram octoginta septem familiarum, ubi suos homines qui exules vagabantur, recipere posset, vocabulo Selaeseu, quod dicitur Latine Insula vituli marini. Est enim locus ille undique mari circumdatus præter ab Occidente, unde habet ingressum amplitudinis quasi jactus fundæ: qualis locus a Latinis Peninsula, a Græcis solet Cherronesos vocari. Hunc ergo locum cum accepisset episcopus Vilfrid, fundavit ibi monasterium, ac regulari vita instituit, maxime ex his quos secum adduxerat fratribus: quod usque hodie successores ejus tenere noscuntur. Nam ipse illis in partibus annos quinque, id est, usque ad mortem Ecgfridi regis, merito omnibus honorabilis, officium episcopatus et verbo exercebat et opere. Et quoniam illi rex cum præfata loci possessione, omnes qui ibidem erant, facultates cum agris et hominibus donavit, omnes fide Christi institutos, unda baptismatis abluit; inter quos, servos et ancillas ducentos quinquaginta: quos omnes ut baptizando a servitute dæmonica salvavit, etiam libertate donando humanæ jugo servitutis absolvit."

The chronology of the Abbey Church of Tewkesbury

Newbury Abbey, Gloucestershire.

Tewkesbury Monastery,

IN

GLOUCESTERSHIRE.

THE history of Tewkesbury monastery is given in Latin, at considerable length, by Dugdale, from a manuscript once belonging to the abbey.^a Oddo, and Doddo, or Dodo, two dukes of Mercia, are said to have been its first founders, in the year 715. They built it upon their own estate nigh the Severn, seven miles from Gloucester, upon a spot where one Theokus, a hermit, had his residence: whence, according to the Chronicle cited by Dugdale, the name of Theokesbury, or Tewkesbury, was supposed to have been derived. These Mercian noblemen granted the manor called Stanwey, with its members, and certain other smaller possessions, for the support of the monks; dedicating their new structure to the Virgin Mary. The monks who at this early period inhabited the monastery were not more than four or five in number.

Beside Tewkesbury, Oddo and Doddo were great benefactors to Pershore abbey, where their bodies are said to have been interred.

The next patron of the monastery of Tewkesbury whom we read of was one Hugh, also a Mercian nobleman, who, in 799, caused the body of Brictric king of the West Saxons to be brought hither for interment: being himself buried here A.D. 812.

Having undergone many calamities during the civil and Danish wars, and having been twice consumed by fire, Tewkesbury, about the year 980, was subjected as a Cell by its then patron, Haylward Mere (who is also called Snow or Snew), to his newly founded priory of Cranburne in Dorsetshire. In which subordinate condition it remained rather more than a hundred and twenty years.

From the evidence of Domesday we learn that the honour or seigniorship of Gloucester, which in the time of King Edward the Confessor had belonged to Brictric the grandson of this Haylward, was at the Conquest confiscated, and, with the patronage of the two monasteries of Cranburne and Tewkesbury, vested in the crown.

^f "Non tamen sine sanguine tantam victoriam consummans, multos ex charissimis amisit. Inter quos Rogerium de Glocestre probatum militem in obsessione Falesii arcubalistæ jactu in capite percussum, præterea Robertum filium Hamonis, qui conto ictus tempora, hebetatusque ingenio non paucis tempore quasi captus mente supervixit. Merito mulctatum ferunt, quod ejus liberandicausa rex Henricus Baio-tascivitatem, cum principali ecclesia ignibus absumpserit. Sed utrique, ut speramus, purgabile fuit. Nam et detrimenta ecclesiæ rex mirifice resarcivit, et Robertus monasterium Theochesberiæ suo favore, non

The church of Tewkesbury, however, as appears from the Domesday Survey, had its separate endowment, consisting of seven hides in Stanwege, four in Tatintone, three in Limentone, three in Waseborne, two in Fitentone, one in Ætone, and four and a half in Stanlege: making a total of twenty-four hides and a half, valued in the time of Edward the Confessor at the annual sum of twenty-four pounds ten shillings, which, from causes unexplained, had, in the time of the Conqueror, fallen to a revenue of twenty pounds. The above lands are said to have paid geld in the time of King Edward the Confessor as for twenty hides only.^b

Early in the reign of Henry the First, Robert Fitz Haimon, a noble Norman, who came in with William the Conqueror (and to whom King William Rufus had granted Brictric's estates as well as the patronage of these monasteries), enlarged the buildings and increased the possessions of Tewkesbury so much, that the monks of Cranburne chose in 1102 to remove hither, and make this the head house; leaving a prior and two monks only at Cranburne.^c

GIRALDUS, who had been originally a monk of Winchester, was transferred by the founder from Cranburne as the first abbat: not, as Stevens has it, in 1104, but in 1102.^d In 1109, however, refusing to gratify the covetous temper of King Henry the First, he was forced to leave his abbey, and return again to Winchester: "Regis animum nolens nec valens satiare muneribus, abbatiâ relictâ, ad ecclesiam Wintoniensem, cujus professus fuerat, reversus est."^e

In 1107, Robert Fitz Haimon, the founder of the monastery, died. William of Malmesbury notices his death as the consequence of a blow upon the temple received from a lance two years before, at the retaking of Falaise in Normandy.^f

Upon his death, King Henry, being unwilling that so fine an inheritance should be divided between co-heiresses, married his natural son, Robert, to Mabile, or Maud, Robert Fitz Haimon's eldest daughter; making Cecil and Hawise, the second and third daughters, abbesses of Shaftsbury and Winton, and marrying Amice, the fourth, to the Earl of Bretagne. Robert of Gloucester has preserved an amusing detail of the king's courtship for his son Robert, whom he afterwards created Earl of Gloucester.^g facile memoratu, quantum exaltavit, ubi et ædificiorum decor, et monachorum charitas adventantium rapit oculos, et allicit animos." Will. Malmesb. de Reg. lib. v. Script. post Bedam, fol. 89. The body of Fitz Haimon was originally buried in the chapter-house at Evesham, from whence his bones were removed, in 1241, by Robert the third abbat, and deposited within a tomb on the north side of the choir between two of the pillars; over which an elegant and light chapel of stone was erected by abbat Parker in 1397. Mr. Lysons saw this tomb opened with several others in the month of September, 1795, whilst some repairs were carrying on in the church. "At the west end was a large stone with a hole scooped out of it, in which were deposited two or three bones carefully wrapped up in lead, being, no doubt, all the remains of the founder which could be collected at the time of their removal." Archaeol. vol. xiv. p. 150.

^g "Ther was tho in Engelond a gret loverdyng,

On of the gretest that ther was, wythout Henry kyng, in 1110.^a Stevens says he died in 1124: but the manuscript Continuation of Florence of Worcester says on the 6th of the ides of December, 1123:^b in which year, it appears, the church of Tewkesbury was dedicated, on the 10th of the kalends of November, by Theulfus bishop of Worcester, assisted by four other prelates.^c

BENEDICT became abbat in 1124: and died in 1137.

ROGER, called in some places ROBERT, was the next abbat. He died, after having governed the monastery twenty-four years and eleven weeks, in 1161.^d In the time of this abbat, certainly before 1147, Robert earl of Gloucester, already mentioned, built a Priory, dedicated to St. James, on his own demesne, at Bristol; endowing it with lands, ornaments, and possessions, and making it subject as a Cell to the abbey of Tewkesbury.^e He also erected a spire on the tower steeple at Tewkesbury.^f William, his son, who succeeded him in the earldom of Gloucester, confirmed not only all the charters, confirmations, liberties, and donations which his father had granted to the abbey, but also those of all his ancestors.^g

FROMUND was made abbat of Tewkesbury in 1162. During his administration, William earl of Gloucester died upon St. Clement's night, A. D. 1173, leaving John the younger son of King Henry the Second his heir, that his inheritance might not be divided among females.^h King Henry the Second, however, retained the earldom in his own hands for six years, bestowing it on his son John, together with Isabel the youngest daughter of Earl William in marriage, in the last year of his reign. John appears to have been a benefactor to the town of Tewkesbury, and granted two Charters to the abbey.ⁱ In the reign of Richard the First, his brother, he built the long bridge in the town, giving the whole toll of his market there for its reparation. In 1177, according to the Cotton manuscript Cleop. A. vii. or 1178, according to the Annals of Winton, the church and monastic buildings of Tewkesbury were destroyed by fire. In which year, also, abbat Fromund died.^k

ROBERT, the next abbat, did not receive the benediction till Sept. 29th, 1182.

ALAN, prior of Canterbury, was elected abbat in 1186; receiving the benediction at Canterbury on the 16th of the kalends of June, 1187.^l He was a native of England, though afterwards a canon of the church of Benevento; and became prior of Canterbury in 1179. He was the friend, and one of the biographers of Thomas à Becket. He died in 1202. His tomb is in the south wall of the south aisle of Tewkesbury church: it consists of a coffin of Purbeck marble, laid under a very plain semi-quatrefoil arch; a figure of which, with a description of the tomb, may be seen in Mr. Gough's Sepulchral Monuments, vol. i. pl. ix. p. 36. Mr. Lysons, who saw this tomb opened in 1795, says, that besides the inscription given by Mr. Gough, on removing some mortar at the head of the coffin, another became visible: it was obliterated in some parts, but, when perfect, appeared to have been HIC IACET DOMINVS ALANVS ABBAS.^m

WALTER, sacrist of the monastery, was consecrated abbat in 1203.ⁿ In his time the inheritance of the earldom of Gloucester passed to the Clares, Amice the surviving daughter of Earl William having married Richard de Clare, whose successors were considerable benefactors to the abbey.^o Abbat Walter died in 1213:^p or, according to the Cotton manuscript Cleop. A. vii. in 1214.

HUGH, prior of Tewkesbury, became the next abbat. He received the benediction, by the bishop of Worcester's permission, from Giles bishop of Hereford:^q and died in 1215.^r He was succeeded by

BERNARD, one of the monks of this place, whose election being disapproved of,^s

PETER, a monk of Worcester, was chosen in his room. Peter received benediction from the bishop of Worcester April 3d, 1216:^t but, from an entry in the Cotton manuscript, it should seem as if afterward there was no great cordiality between them.^u

In 1230, Gilbert earl of Hertford and Clare, who died that year, gave the Mythe wood to the monastery, now entirely assarted.^x He died at Penros in Britany, bequeathing his body to be interred in the monastery.^y

Abbat Peter died on the 3d of the kalends of April, 1231.^a Willis says in 1232.^b He was succeeded by

ROBERT, prior of the monastery, whose surname, as Willis thinks, was FORTINGDON; and who, according to the Cotton Register, was frequently called ROBERT III.^c In his time, in 1234, the principal gate of the monastery, with two of the stables, were burnt.^d In 1237, the chapel of St. Nicholas in the church of Tewkesbury was rebuilt by Hervey de Sipton, then prior;^e and in 1239, according to the Cotton manuscript, the church itself, together with the high altar, were dedicated to the Virgin Mary.^f Abbat Robert died, according to Willis,^g in 1253; according to the Cotton Register, on the 12th of the kalends of December, 1254. His successor was

THOMAS DE STOKE, or STOKES, prior of St. James's Bristol, who was installed on the 2d of the ides of March following.

During the time of this abbat, in 1262, Richard de Clare, earl of Gloucester and Hertford, died at Eschmerfield in Kent, and was brought to Tewkesbury for burial; being interred in the quire, on the right hand of his father, with this epitaph, his tomb being adorned by his wife with gold, silver, and precious stones:

"Hic pudor Hippoliti, Paradis gena, sensus Ulixis, Æneæ pietas, Hectoris ira jacet."^h

The funeral was attended by the bishops of Worcester and Landaff, and the abbats of no fewer than eight monasteries: numerous indulgences being granted by the archbishop of Canterbury, the bishops of Chester, Worcester, and Landaff, to those who should pray for the earl's soul.ⁱ

Thomas de Stoke died in 1275, according to Willis, but according to Bishop Kennett's Diptycha, in 1277. The election of his successor,

RICHARD DE NORTON, however, was confirmed on the 13th kal. September, 1276.^k He died on the 18th kal. March, 1282: and was succeeded, on the 12th kal. June, in the same year, by

THOMAS DE KEMSEY.^l During his administration, in 1295, Gilbert de Clare, the second of the name, earl of Gloucester, was interred in the abbey church, on the left hand of Gilbert the first. Gilbert earl of Gloucester, the third of the name, and son of the preceding, was also buried in the chapel of the Virgin Mary at Tewkesbury, in 1314: and his wife in 1315. In this abbat's time also, Hugh le Despenser, who was executed at London, in 1326, was, at least in part, interred at Tewkesbury. "It is said that one of his quarters was buried near the high altar by the lavatory at Tewkesbury, and that, long after, the rest of his limbs were brought thither, and buried in that abbey."^m Abbat Kemsey died in 1328.ⁿ

JOHN COLES, or COTES, was the next abbat. He died in 1347.^o On August the 20th, in which year,

THOMAS LEGH, or DE LEGH, was elected abbat. In this abbat's time, Hugh le Despenser earl of Gloucester, the second of the name, who died Feb. 8th, 1349, and was buried at Tewkesbury, gave the monks the church of Lantrissan; out of which, upon the day of his anniversary, they had twenty marks, and thirty more for a pittance.^p The wife of this nobleman, Elizabeth, daughter to William de Montacute earl of Salisbury, who survived him, afterwards married Guido, or Guy de Brien; who was also a benefactor to the monastery: appropriating certain rents in Bristol, and annexing the profits to the office of sacrist, and to certain mass priests for their prayers.^q Abbat Legh died on October 16th, 1361.^r

THOMAS CHESTERTON, cellarer of the monastery, was elected abbat on November the 24th following: being confirmed on December the 9th. In his time, Edward earl of Gloucester, the nephew of the last-mentioned Hugh, died at Caerdiff Nov. 6th, 1375, bequeathing his body to be buried in the abbey of Tewkesbury, where it was interred before the door of the vestry, near the quire; his wife building, as a tomb for him, the chapel of the Holy Trinity. This Edward bequeathed, moreover, to the abbat and convent, a whole suit of his best vestments, as also two gilt chalices, and a hanap gilt; likewise, the ewer wherein to put the body of Christ on Corpus Christi Day, which was given to him by the king of France.^s Abbat Chesterton died in

THOMAS PARKER, or PAKARE, was the next abbat; who has been already noticed as the builder of a chapel over the grave of Robert Fitzhamon the founder. He also appointed a daily mass to be said for the souls of the founder and his wife. In his time, Thomas earl of Gloucester, who was murdered at Bristol, by the common people in 1399, was buried in the midst of the quire in the abbey church, under a lamp which burned before the host.^c Elizabeth, the mother of this Thomas, and wife to Edward earl of Gloucester last mentioned, was also buried at Tewkesbury in abbat Parker's time; dying on the feast of St. Anne, 1409. By her will dated July 4th, in which she styles herself Elizabeth de Burghersh, dame le Despenser, she bequeathed her body to be interred between Edward lord Despenser her husband and Thomas le Despenser her son: appointing her interment to be within three days after her decease; and that a black cloth, with a white cross, should be laid over her corpse, with five tapers about it, and no more, during the office of burial. Likewise that a stone of marble should be placed over her grave, with her portraiture thereon. She also appointed that seven of the most honest priests that could be found should sing for her by the space of one whole year after her death; and each of them, for so doing, to receive five pounds. Moreover, she willed that a thousand masses should be sung for her.^d Richard le Despenser earl of Gloucester, the son of Thomas, was buried at Tewkesbury in the fourteenth year of his age, in 1414.^e Abbat Parker died in 1420 or 1421, and was succeeded by WILLIAM DE BRISTOLL, or BRISTOW, of whom scarcely any particulars are preserved. During his abacy Richard de Beauchamp Earl of Worcester, whose death was occasioned by a stone thrown from a sling, at Mewlenbury in France, was buried at the end of the choir in the church of Tewkesbury in 1421. Isabel, his countess, who was afterwards countess of Warwick, is spoken of as an especial benefactor to the church. During her life-time she procured the appropriation of the churches of Tarrande in the diocese of Salisbury, and of Penmarshe in the diocese of Landaff:^f and in her will she directed that her body should be interred in the abbey,^g and her great templys,^h with the baleys,ⁱ sold to the utmost, and delivered to the monks of Tewkesbury, so that they grudged not with her burial there. She also willed that of her great sharpe a chalice should be made and offered to our Lady in the Lady-chapel there. She also gave her wedding gown, and all her clothes of gold and silk, one only excepted; farther directing that all her precious stones and pearls should be sold, as also her silver vessels and goods, to perform this her will.^k Abbat Bristow was certainly alive in 1439.^l Willis thinks he died about 1442.

JOHN ABINGTON, or DE ABINGDON, is the next abbat on record: who in 1443 stood godfather to Anne daughter to Richard Nevil earl of Salisbury.^m In the time of this abbat, on June 11th, 1445, died Henry duke of Warwick, who gave to the monastery the church of Scherston, as well as all the ornaments which he wore, to make vestments for the monks. Richard Nevil earl of Salisbury and Warwick afterwards confirmed the appropriation of the church of Scherston, with all former Charters which the duke of Warwick had granted, particularly one of fishing in the Severn, in the Avon, and in the Taff at Caerdiff.ⁿ The time of this abbat's death is not known. Willis mentions

JOHN DE SALIS as the next abbat, but without any date of election. He notices him as occurring in 1468.^o He was probably the same person with JOHN GALEYS, mentioned as abbat in the 31st of Hen. VI. A. D. 1453, in one of Cole's manuscripts.^p It has been conjectured that JOHN ABINGTON, and JOHN DE SALIS, or SALYS, were the same person.^q

JOHN DE STREYNHAM received the benediction as abbat Oct. 13th, 1468.^r During his time, on April 30th, 1471, the fatal battle of Tewkesbury was lost by King Henry VI. Leland informs us that of those who fled from the field some were slain within the abbey church. "Fugientes occisi in ecclesia de Theokesbyri."^s He adds the following List of the great men who fell, many of whom were buried in Tewkesbury church.

Abbat John de Streynsham, in 1475, performed the baptismal ceremony for Edward the eldest son of George duke of Clarence; and on Oct. 6th, 1476, Richard the second son of the duke of Clarence was born in the then new chamber of the infirmary within the monastery.

^s Lel. Itin. edit. 1769, vol. vi. p. 88. In the account of Gloucestershire in the work intitled 'Magna Britannia Nova et Antiqua,' p. 161, the church of Tewkesbury is said to have been reconsecrated in 1470, because defiled with blood. It probably should be in 1471. See Gough's edit. of Camden. Lond. 1789, vol. i. p. 269.

^t "Under a large grey marble slab, stript of its brasses, at the entrance of the choir at Tewkesbury, under the rood loft, is said to lie the unfortunate Prince Edward, only son of Henry VI. stabbed in cold blood after the battle. Some bones of a small skeleton, as of a youth, and a coffin, were discovered by the breaking of the stone, and might till lately be handled. The figures of a religious under a canopy, with pillars and four shields, were inlaid on the slab. The Plan [in Stevens] puts here the monument of Richard Beauchamp earl of Worcester (it should be Henry Beauchamp last earl of Warwick) who was buried at the head of Prince Edward. It is not likely that the last remnant of a royal house, which was so completely crushed in this battle, should have had any memorial laid over him." Gough, Sep. Mon. vol. ii. fol. Isabel duchess of Clarence, the great patroness of the monastery, died at Warwick castle 12th Dec. following. The detail of the ceremonies attendant on her funeral at Tewkesbury will be found in the first Number of the Appendix. Abbat Streynsham died June 30th, 1481.^a Willis says, in his time, or his successor's, Tewkesbury was made a parliamentary abbey: ^b but the abbat of Tewkesbury was summoned to parliament as early as the 49th of Hen. III.^c

RICHARD CHELTENHAM was elected abbat August 3d, and confirmed Sept. 2d, 1481.^d He will be hereafter mentioned as the re-edifier of the manor place of Stanwey. He died in the first year of King Henry VIII. His tomb, on the south side of the south aisle of Tewkesbury church, nearly opposite the chapel of the Trinity, (with his initials, R. C. which appear, with a crozier, on the tracery under the arch, and again in a cypher on shields in the spandrels of the arch.) is engraved in Mr. Lysons's Collection of Gloucestershire Antiquities, Pl. LVII.^e

HENRY BEOLY was confirmed abbat Nov. 22, 1509. He occurs in 1519, and again, in Lord Herbert's History of K. Henry the Eighth, and Collier's Ecclesiastical History, in 1529. He had for his successor

JOHN WALKER, who, deceasing anno 1531, 23 Hen. VIII. was buried in the abbey church.^f On his death

JOHN WICH, alias WAKEMAN, whom Antony Wood calls Robert, the last abbat, succeeded; who continuing till the Dissolution on January the 9th, 1539, and surrendering up his monastery with thirty-five of his monks, obtained a pension of 266*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* per ann. which pension was afterwards vacated, on his being consecrated, in Sept. 1541, to the see of Gloucester, newly founded by King Henry the Eighth; of which he became the first bishop, and sate to the time of his death, which happened in December, 1549. Godwin ^g in his account of him tells us he was buried at Worthington, meaning Wormington, Co. Gloucester; but Antony a Wood rather concludes it at Forthampton, in the said county, where he had a house and chapel. Mr. Lysons, in the work already quoted, Pl. XLV. has engraved the cenotaph of abbat Wich in Tewkesbury abbey-church, which Willis says he had himself prepared (according to tradition) for his interment. It is of stone, and stands at the entrance into the chapel of St. Edmund the Martyr. On the lower part is a figure representing the corpse of a priest in an emaciated state lying on a shroud. The canopy is in the latest style of Gothic architecture, being overcharged with a great profusion of arches, quatrefoils, &c.

At the time of its suppression this monastery was possessed of an annual revenue, according to Dugdale and Speed, amounting to 1598*l.* 1*s.* 3*d.*: or, according to the valuation given by Bishop Burnet, 1595*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.*^h The site was granted in the 36th of Hen. VIII. to Thomas Strowde, Walter Earle, and James Paget.

In Bishop Burnet's History of the Reformation, vol. i. p. 151, in the Appendix, we have the following Inventory of the goods and lands of Tewkesbury monastery, together with an estimate of the lands and buildings thereto belonging, copied from a book in the Augmentation Office, which begins thus.

Willis says, the cloisters, chapter-house, &c. of this monastery are reported to have been burnt down at the Dissolution by the king's visitors, on account, as it is said, of the monks pretending to resist them at their first coming.^b
Rudder says, it appears by an ancient Deed transcribed into an old Council Book, that before and at the time of the Dissolution, the body of the abbey church was used as the parish church, and that the parish purchased of the king, the chancel, steeple, and bells, with the clock and chimes, for 483*l.*^c

The following are the dimensions of the church, as given by Willis. Length, from east to west, three hundred feet. Length of the great cross-aisle, from north to south, about a hundred and twenty feet. Breadth of the body and side aisles, seventy feet. Breadth of the west front, about a hundred feet. Height of the tower, two hundred and ten feet.^d Tewkesbury church is built in the cathedral style. It consists of a nave, choir, transept, and square central tower: with several side-chapels, or oratories, branching from the north and south aisles of the choir. The greater LXXXVII.) and to have been nearly in the same style of architecture as those of Gloucester cathedral, which were erected in the latter end of the fourteenth or beginning of the fifteenth century.

^d Rudder, and Dyde in the Hist. of Tewkesbury, say a hundred and thirty-two feet: the Beauties of Engl. and Wales, a hundred and fifty-two.

part of the building is of Norman construction. It was begun by Robert Fitz Haymon, the refounder of the monastery, in 1102; and was finished soon after his death. The nave and choir are separated from the aisles by massive columns with circular arches: and four piers support the tower. The arches above the columns in the nave are plain and semi-circular, but those of the choir are pointed. The windows on the sides of the nave seem to have been altered when the choir was raised, about the beginning of the fourteenth century. At the west end is a large window with a pointed arch, which appears to have been introduced within a semi-circular arch in 1656. The east end of the church is hexagonal; being separated from the aisles by six short columns supporting pointed arches. Over these arches are windows filled with painted glass.^a The Lady chapel, which extended, according to Willis, a hundred feet more to the east, is entirely destroyed: though the large arch through which it was entered to the church is still visible on the outside. The wooden spire with which the central tower formerly terminated, fell, during divine service, on Easter day, 1559.^b

There are few of our churches which contain a greater number of ancient tombs, or such as are more likely to be interesting to an antiquary. Those of the patrons of the monastery, in right of the honor of Gloucester, have been already noticed in the account of the different abbats under whose administrations they were erected.

A brief for the repairs of this church, dated Feb. 25th, 1720, stated the value of the reparation then required at 3929*l*. The choir was fitted up in 1796, at an expence of 2000*l*.

Near the west end of the church stands the gate house embattled. Mr. Lysons says, "it seems to have been built about the beginning of the fifteenth century, and from the similarity of some of its ornaments to those of the founders' chapel, erected by abbat Parker, was probably built in his time.^c Willis and Gough state it to have been used as a prison.

TEMPORIBUS illustrissimorum principum ac regum Merciorum Ethelredi, Kenredi, et Ethelbaldi, floruerunt duo duces in Mercia sub prædictis regibus valdè nobiles, scilicet Oddo et Doddo, viri quoque præclari genere, morum probitate insignes; sed (quod magis ad divinæ laudis augmentum) devoti, et divino honori dediti, Deum præ omnibus, et super omnia diligentes, syncera devotione coluerunt. Quorum profectò virtus ad Dei cultum, et probata dilectio ex eorum factis efficaciter clauit, dum (Sacro Spiritu inspirante) monasteriis pluribus, ad divinæ laudis augmentum, et religionis favorem, per se et suos progenitores magnificè constructis terras plurimas contulerunt. Hii præfati duces, inter cætera suæ charitatis opera ac beneficia pietatis, in eorum dominio, propè Sabrinam, septem milliaria verò distans à Claudiacestria, (modò verò Glowcestria) ubi quidam heremita manebat nomine Theokus, unde Theokusburia dicitur, sub anno gratiæ DCCXV. quoddam monasterium, ad Dei honorem ac gloriosæ Virginis Mariæ ædificari jusserunt, et contulerunt ad illud Stanwey cum suis membris sic dicta, et alias paucas possessiones ad sustentationem monachorum, quorum erat numerus modicus, scilicet quatuor vel quinque, sub prioris obedientia secundum sancti patris nostri Benedicti regulam militantibus.

Istis verò ob eorum merita (ut firmiter credimus) ad cœlestia translatis, eorum corpora in ecclesia de Persora (quam plurimis possessionibus ampliaverunt) sunt sepulta, quia Dodo dux ibidem monachi habitum induit. Isti præfati duces habuerunt quendam fratrem nomine

Almaricum, cujus corpus fuit sepultum apud Derhurst in parva capella contra portam prioratus ibidem, quia capella illa aliquando fuit aula regia; ibi monstratur sepulchrum ejus usque in hodiernum diem, ubi scribitur in pariete supra hostium: 'hanc regiam aulam Doddo dux consecrari fecit in ecclesiam ad honorem sanctæ Mariæ Virginis ob amorem fratris sui Almarici.' Post mortem istorum, varia bellorum strage, Merciorum principes ac totius regni nobiliores per plurimos annos sunt attriti, ut in cæteris insulæ regionibus, quæ tunc temporis septem regibus subjacebat, quia nullus eorum solus monarcha in tota Brytannia extitit usque ad tempora Adelstani regis, qui primus monarcha fuit, manifestè claret contigisse. Unde fortuna variante, et regnorum fastigia sub rota volubili lamentabiliter subvertente, quis, qui per illa tempora periculosa in hujus ecclesiæ patronatu jure hæreditario succedere debuerat penè nostris majoribus reddebatur incertum; dum occisis pluribus, subactis aliis, nonnullis proscriptis, potentum potentior semper expelleret ipsum, sed et ipsum monasterium, expulsis fratribus, sæpe depredatum est, et bis combustum ignibus hostium regni. Transactis igitur in tam gravi depopulatione hominum ac mutua cæde nobilium ducentis annis, postquam regnorum insulæ hujus divisio multifaria cessit monarchæ, sævitia bellorum sedari cœpit, et in pacis concordia armorum tempestas paulatim serenari et pacari cœpit.

Anno Domini dccc. floruit in Mercia Hugo magnus dux, patronus prioratus Thewkesburie qui anno prædicto sepelivit regem Brictricum West-Saxonum in prioratu suo Thewkesbury in capella sanctæ Fidæ virginis, qui postea obiit et ipse anno Domini dcccxi. et sepultus in eodem prioratu suo fuit.

Circa annum gratiæ dccccxxx. sub inclyto et primo monarcha Adelstano, miles quidam nobilis Haywardus Snew dictus, propter albedinem, ex illustri prosapia regis Edwardi senioris ortus, claruit; vir quidem armis strenuus, honoribus pollens, animique præstans fide stabili: qui sui finis non immemor, pro se ac sua conjuge (nomine Algiva) temporibus regis Ethelredi et sancti Dunstani archiepiscopi, parvum monasterium in honorem Dei et Domini nostri Jesu Christi, matrisque ejus, ac sancti apostoli Bartholomei in suo dominio apud Craneburne fundari fecit, terrisque et possessionibus ditari. Congregatis fratribus ibidem sub abbatis obedientia secundum regulam sancti patris nostri Benedicti regulariter servitutis, prioratum Thewkesburie cujus patronus erat, eidem ecclesiæ de Cranburne in omnibus subjecit. Hæc acta sunt prope annum Domini dccccxxx. Primo domino Haywardo migrante ad cœlestia, et in ecclesia quam ipse fundaverat, honorificè sepulto, ejus filius cum sua uxore Algiva jure hæreditario succedit, dominus Algarus, Algaro Brictricus, fidei et nobilitatis suorum progenitorum testes ydonei, similique spiritu ducti et animo, juxta parentum vota, ecclesiam ab illis inceptam satis magnificè ampliaverunt. Postea, versa vice, scilicet anno Domini mxxvj. Willielmus dux Normanniæ Angliam adquisivit, qui duxit secum nobilem virum atque juvenem Robertum filium Haymonis, dominum de Astremervilla in Normannia. Et cum Matildis regina (uxor conquestoris) haberet nobilem virum, scilicet dictum dominum Brictricum Meaw, et dominum honoris Glocestriæ, exosum, eo quod nollet ei in matrimonium copulari, cum ipse esset in transmarinis partibus circa negotia regia imbassatoria, et illa erat sola, sed postea maritata domino Willielmo conquestori, quæ tempore opportuno reperto, licentiata à rege, regeque jubente, ipsum in manerio suo de Hanleya capi fecit et Wyntoniam adduci; qui ibidem mortuus et sepultus sinè liberis discessit.

Rex verò Willielmus dedit honorem Brictrici Matildis reginæ, quæ totum honorem Brictrici scilicet Glowcestriæ, quoad vixit, occupavit; mortua verò ipsa regina anno Domini mxxxii. mense Aprili, rex Willielmus ipsum honorem in manu sua cœpit. Defuncto igitur Willielmo conquestore anno Domini mxxxvi. successit sibi Willielmus Rufus filius ejus. Iste Willielmus processu temporis dedit honorem Brictrici Roberto filio Haymonis, cum omni libertate et integritate quibus pater suus vel etiam ipse Brictricus unquam tenuerunt,

Iste dominus Robertus copulavit sibi in uxorem Sibillam sororem Roberti de Belismo, comitis Salopiæ, et gennit ex ea quatuor filias Mabiliam, Hawysiam, Ceciliam, Amisiam. Anno Domini mc. mense Augusti obiit Willielmus rex junior, et successit sibi Henricus frater ejusdem. Anno Domini mcij. Robertus filius Haymonis ad exhortationem bonæ uxoris suæ Sibillæ et abbatis de Craneburne Giraldi, divino spiritu tactus, ecclesiam Theokesb. ad Dei honorem et gloriosæ virginis Mariæ, cum cæteris sibi officinis de novo fieri statuit, terris, redditibus, et amplis possessionibus ditavit. Et quia locus iste fecunditate soli, amœno situ, terræque fertilitate, quàm monasterium de Craneburne pro tunc videbatur præstantior esse, priore cum duobus fratribus ibi relictis ob fundatorum illius loci memoriam peragenda imposterum semper assignandis, cæteros omnes cum eorum abbate Giraldo supradicto, et quibusdam possessionibus sub anno gratiæ supradicto Theokesburie transtulit: ipsamque abbathiam de Craneburne mutans in prioratum, et in perpetuum abbathiæ Theokesburie in omnibus subjecit: sicque ipsum prioratum de Theokesb. in abbathiæ honorem magnificè sublimavit.

Iste venerabilis Robertus filius Haymonis, post fundationem hujus famosi monasterii, et alia strenuè gesta, diebus Marcii anno gratiæ mcvij. regis Henrici primi scilicet anno septimo, mortis solvens debitum, ad cœlestia migravit. Corpusque ejus in domo capitulari Theokes. (ut mos tunc erat plurimorum dominorum venerabilium ac nobilium,) traditum erat sepulturæ. Quod postmodum, tempore sanctæ memoriæ beati Roberti tertii abbatis in ecclesiam translatum est, et in dextra parte presbiterii, inter duas columnas honorificè collocatum. Hæc acta sunt circa annum Domini mccxlj. Super quo successu temporum dominus Thomas Parkarus abbas octodecimus capellam erigi fecit ex lapide satis mirificè tabulatam, sub anno gratiæ mcccxcvi. Et ob illius fundatoris et uxoris ejus memoriam, missam quæ celebratur quotidie pro defunctis statuit in eadem celebrari cum collecta pro fundatoribus, scilicet 'Misereere quæsumus Domine.'

Anno Domini mcxii. dominus Robertus de Candos fundavit ecclesiam de Goldeliva in honorem Dei et Domini Jesu Christi et beatæ dilectricis suæ Mariæ Magdalenæ et sanctæ Mariæ matris ejus, terrisque ac possessionibus ditavit, atque libertatibus a rege Henrico primo confirmatis, et per consilium ejusdem regis eam ad abbates Beccenses.....sive monachorum ibidem. Sic quoque ordinavit priorem nomine Hugonem cum xij. fratribus qui secundum regulam sancti patris nostri Benedicti militarent et in eadem ecclesia Deo servirent.

Iste dominus Robertus de Candos venit cum conquestore de Normannia, qui genuit de uxore sua nomine Isabella tres filios, quorum nomina hæc sunt, Robertus, Rogerus, et Godardus, sicque patronatus traditus in manum regis quarto nonarum Novembris, obdormivit in Domino, anno Domini mcxx. et in eadem ecclesia de Goldeliva in dextera parte presbiterii sepultus. A discessu ejus omnes reges Angliæ tenuerunt patronatum ecclesiæ de Goldeliva in ditione eorum ab Henrico primo usque ad Henricum sextum, hoc est pro cccxviij. annorum spatio, sicque nullus prior fuit admissus ad dictum prioratum nisi prius præsentasset se regi, sicque licentiatus à rege et admissus inductus et institutus fieret per episcopum Landavensem, et ejus archidiaconum. Et ultimus horum omnium sic institutorum, erat prior Laurentius de Bona-villa, quia tempore istius prioris dominus Henricus rex sextus gratis contulit patronatum hujus ecclesiæ, vel prioratus, domino Henrico duci de Warwick et prioratum ejusdem ad abbates et monachos Theokesburye.

Quomodo et quo ordine actum sit insequentibus declarabimus. Rex autem Henricus primus, post discessum Roberti filii Haymonis, nolens tantum ac tale dominium, scilicet honorem Glowcestriæ inter sorores dividi, Ceciliam et Hawysiam in abbatissas, Ceciliam Shaftisbury, Hawysiam Wyntoniam, promoveri fecit, tertiam Amiciam comiti Brytanniæ in uxorem dedit; solam

Mabiliam primogenitam reservando, quam filio suo notho, unâ cum integro honore patris dictæ Mabilæ, scilicet Roberti filii Haymonis, in uxorem dedit, creans eum consulem, et Glowcestriæ comitem post conquestum primum. Qui Robertus comes in dominio suo apud Bristoliam quendam prioratum in honorem Dei et matris ejus ac sancti Jacobi apostoli à fundamento construxit; terrisque et ornamentis, possessionibus et libertatibus ditavit; statuitque illum membrum fieri monasterii Theokesb. (sicut prioratus Craneburne,) subjectum in omnibus et unitum propter amorem quem habebat ad illud monasterium, et quia solebat omni die solis per annum habere secum abbatem Theokesb. cum duodecim monachis dum viveret. Item construxit castrum Bristolæ, et dedit decimum quemque lapidem castrum ad fabricam capellæ beatæ Mariæ virginis in dicto prioratu sancti Jacobi. Decessit autem hic comes prælustis sub anno Domini mclxlvj. pridie calendas Novembris, et regis Stephani anno duodecimo, cujus corpus in choro prioratus sancti Jacobi Bristolæ (quem ipse fundaverat) in tumba lapidea ex viride jaspide honorificè, ut decuit, collatum est ac sepultum. Cui successit comes Willielmus, filius et hæres ejusdem, qui accepta conjuge Hawisia, filia comitis Leicestriæ, genuit ex ea Robertum ante patrem morte præventum, cujus corpus sepultum est apud Keynesham, quod ipse Willielmus ob ipsius Roberti filii sui memoriam fundavit, terrisque et ornamentis ditavit. Genuit etiam tres filias; primogenitam videlicet Mabiliam comiti de Evercis in Normannia nuptam, de qua nascitur Almaricus, qui comitatum Glowcestriæ post mortem Isabellæ, tempore regis Johannis paululum possidens sine liberis citò decessit. Alteram genuit filiam nomine Amiciam, quam domino Richardo de Clare, comiti de Hertford, nuptui tradidit. Tertiam quoque filiam, Isabellam nomine, habuit. Sed post mortem patris sui, Henricus rex secundus honorem Glowcestriæ detinuit in manus suas per vj. annos. Qui regni sui anno ultimo, Isabellam, filiam dicti comitis Willielmi, Johanni filio suo dedit in uxorem (dicto sine terræ) cum integro honore totius comitatus Glowcestriæ; quem quidem honorem Johannes idem tenuit omni tempore fratris sui regis Ricardi.

Iste fecit pontem apud Theoces. qui vocatur Pons Longus, tempore comitatus sui; et dedit ad sustentationem dicti pontis totum teloneum de mercatu Thewkes. quod usque hodiè servatur, qui post mortem patris sui et fratris in regem electus est. Sed tunc quia non habebat liberos per Isabellam, post annum unum factum est divortium inter ipsos, sed tenuit sibi honorem Gloucestriæ, castrum Brystoliæ cum burgo, et totam bertonam, hundredum, cum suis annexis quod non devenit ad hæredes usque ad præsentem diem. Et maritavit Isabellam Galfrido de Mandevile comiti Essexiæ cum comitatu Glowcestriæ. Quo Galfrido de medio sublato, Isabella prænominata, tempore ejusdem regis (cum Lodovicus rex Franciæ Angliam occupasset) regis assensu, Huberto de Burgo justiciario Angliæ maritata est, sed infra breve de medio sublata est. Obiit nobilis comes Willielmus Gloucestriæ anno Domini mclxxiij. corpusque ejus apud abbatiam canonicorum de Kenisham, quam ipse ob sui filii Roberti memoriam fundaverat, terrisque ornamentis et libertatibus ditaverat, venerabiliter ut decuit, cum suo filio traditur sepulturæ. Iste Robertus natus fuit apud Cardif, et ibidem obiit anno Domini mclxvj.

Iste dominus Willielmus comes confirmavit omnes cartas confirmationes, et libertates et donationes quas pater suus et antecessores sui dederunt vel confirmaverunt eidem Tewkesbury. Etiam iste comes Willielmus dedit et concessit ad ecclesiam et prioratum de Goldclif, quod prior et omnes tenentes sui sint liberi imperpetuum sine tolne, id est, non debent solvere, et tam in Anglia quàm in Wallia apud Bristoliam, Kerdif, Newport, Karleon, et Chepstow, teloneum. Duabus igitur filiabus Willielmi comitis sine liberis decedentibus, devoluta est hæreditas ad Amiciam (Ricardo de Clare nuptam) et filiam Willielmi comitis, quæ omnem hæreditatem suam dedit Gilberto filio suo et dicti Ricardi, qui Ricardus obiit anno Domini mccvj. et apud Clare sepultus est.

cestriæ et Hertfordiæ comes conjunctim et divisim, qui accepta conjuge domina Isabella, filia Willielmi Marescalli senioris, comitis de Pembroke, genuit ex ea filiam Amiciam de nomine matris sortitam, anno mccxx. et anno mccxxij. postea genuit filium nomine Ricardum secundum, et hæredem suum. Denique elapso parvo tempore genuit duos filios, scilicet Willielmum et Gilbertum. Postremo genuit duas filias, Agnetam et Isabellam. Prædictus Gilbertus primus legavit nobis boscum de Mutha unâ cum corpore suo ad sepeliendum in ecclesia nostra de Thewkes. in medio presbiterii, anno Domini mccxxx. Iste obiit apud Penros in minori Britannia. Iste confirmavit ad ecclesias de Theokusbury et Goldclif omnes donationes et confirmationes antecessorum suorum. Cui successit Ricardus de Clare secundus filius et hæres ejusdem Gilberti et Isabellæ in hæreditatem patris sui, comitatus Glowcestriæ, et Hertfordiæ, qui duxit in uxorem Matildem nomine, filiam comitis Lincolnæ, genuitque ex ea filium, nomine Gilbertum secundum in crastino sancti Egidii anno Domini mccxliij. apud ecclesiam Christi in Hampscire. (Iste Gilbertus secundus dictus est Rubeus Comes, quia rufus erat et pulcher aspectu:) genuit quoque alios duos filios, Thomam et Benedictum, cum tribus filiabus, quarum una Isabella primogenita, Margareta, et Roysea. Iste Ricardus secundus confirmavit nobis boscum de Mutha et cætera dona et privilegia patris sui et antecessorum suorum. Et etiam ratificavit omnia dona comitis Willielmi ecclesiæ de Goldclif anno Domini mcclij. Iste Ricardus de Clare comes Glowcestriæ et Hertfordiæ tenuit festum Natalis Domini apud Theokes. Habuit in eodem loco secum lx. milites sibi servientes. Qui Ricardus obiit xiv. die Julii anno Domini mccxij. tempore Henrici regis iij. ante statutum apud Esmerfelde, qui comes perlustris quinto kalend. Augusti honorificè humatur in presbiterio apud Theokes. in dextera patris sui, ubi interfuerunt Landavensis et Wigorniensis episcopi, et xij. abbates, et copiosa multitudo baronum, militum ac magnatum. Et postea uxor ejus ornavit tumbam ejusdem auro et argento et lapidibus pretiosis, cum gladio et calcaribus quibus utebatur vivus. Defuncto Ricardo ij. de Clare, Gilbertus secundus filius ejus successit in comitatum Glowcestriæ et Hertfordiæ, qui ex sua conjuge Johanna de Acres, filia regis Edwardi primi, habuit filium unicum, scilicet Gilbertum tertium, et tres filias, viz. Elianoram, Elizabetham, et Margaretam. Iste Gilbertus secundus confirmavit omnia dona patrum suorum ecclesiæ Theokes. et etiam cartam comitis Willielmi ecclesiæ beatæ Mariæ Magdalene de Goldclif de tolneo et aliis donis suis. Qui Gilbertus secundus obiit in castello de Monmouth vij. idus Decembris anno Domini mclxxxv. et sepultus est apud Theokes. in sinistra Gilberti primi; cui successit Gilbertus tertius filius et hæres ejusdem, qui de uxore sua Matilda, filia Johannis de Borow comitis Ultoniæ, genuit filium, nomine Johannem, ante patrem immatura morte præventum, sepultus est apud Theokes. in capella gloriosæ virginis Mariæ. Iste Gilbertus tertius non declinans retrorsum, à Scotis in Albania apud Streveling die Natalis S. Johannis Baptistæ anno regis Edwardi secundi lamentabiliter occubuit, anno ætatis suæ xxij. viij. kal. Julii, anno Domini mcccxiij. Sed delatum est venerabile corpus ejus ad locum patrum suorum, scilicet Theokes. et sepultus est in læva patris sui; et domina Matilda uxor ejusdem obiit vj. nonas Julii, anno mcccxv. et sepulta est in sinistra viri sui. Tunc citò post decessum istius Gilberti tertii, comitatus et honor Gloucestriæ et Hertfordiæ sic penitus sunt dispersi, ut nullus in eodem dominio integro postmodum successerit usque ad præsentem diem: eo quod in trium filiarum Gilberti secundi, et sororum Gilberti tertii devenerit partitionem, quæ variis conjunctæ viris numerosa prole fuerant fecundatæ. Post Gilbertum tertium de Clare, successit in tertia parte honoris, et prima comitatus Gloucestriæ domina Elianora prima soror præfati Gilberti, in cujus partem devenit dotatio et prioratus ecclesiæ Theokes. quæ nupta fuit illustri Hugoni le Despenser, filio domini Hugonis le Despenser, comitis Wintoniæ, qui genuit ex ea Hugonem tertium, et Edwardum.

vj. kal. Novembris in castello, anno mcccxxvj. et eodem anno in vigilia sanctæ Andreae apostoli apud Herefordiam, Hugo secundus, camerarius regis Edwardi de Karnarvan, et maritus dominæ Elianoræ de Clare, et filius Hugonis primi, enormiter, perditiosè, et crudeliter, sine iudicio vel responsione, suspensus, distractus, et in quatuor partes divisus fuit, et in nostra ecclesia diu postea sepultus. Obiit domina Eleanora uxor ejusdem ij. kal. Julii anno Domini mcccxxxvij. Ista erat mater Hugonis tertii, et Edwardi primi, et Gilberti le Despencer per conjugem suam Hugonem secundum. Post mortem ejus maritata fuit domino Willielmo le Sowch, de quo genuit Hugonem Souch. Anno Domini mcccxxxv. primo die Martii obiit Willielmus le Sowch, et sepultus est in capella beatæ Mariæ Theokes. in medio. Et domina Elizabetha de Clare, secunda filia Gilberti secundi, et soror ejusdem Elianoræ, habuit tres viros, videlicet Johannem de Borow comitem de Holvestere, à quibus Willielmus comes Holvestre: à quo Willielmo, Elizabetha de Borow hæres ejus, quam Leonellus filius secundus regis Edwardi tertii duxit in uxorem; à quibus (Leonello videlicet et Elizabetha uxore ejus) filia una, unica hæres eorundem, nomine Philippa descendit.

Ista Philippa postea copulavit se in uxorem domino Edmundo comiti Marchiæ, de qua genuit Rogerum et Edmundum. Et iste Rogerus genuit Edmundum ultimum comitem Marchiæ, et Rogerum, et Annam, quæ domina Anna desponsata fuit domino Ricardo comiti de Cambridge, cujus pater erat dominus Edmundus de Langley, dux Eboraci, et regis Edwardi tertii filius tertius: de qua Anna genuit dominum Ricardum ducem Eboraci, qui copulavit sibi in uxorem dominam Ceciliam et filiam comitis de Westmerland, de qua genuit Et domina Isabella, tertia filia Gilberti secundi, copulata erat domino Hugoni de Audley. De cujus genealogia in sequentibus dicemus. Modò vertamus stylum ad Hugonem cum fratribus ejus Edwardum primum atque Gilbertum, pro quo Gilberto pro multis beneficiis quæ contulit ecclesiæ nostræ habemus quotidie orationem, 'Inclina,' in missa de Sancto Spiritu, Domino Hugone secundo sepulto, successit filius ejus Hugo tertius, qui de uxore sua Elizabetha, filia comitis Sarum, nullo penitus genito hærede, decessit sexto Idus Februarii sub anno Domini mcccxlviij. sepultus est apud Theokes. juxta summum altare in dextera parte. Iste, inter alia bona quæ contulit, ecclesiam Lantrissam appropriavit, de cujus ecclesia, in die anniversarii ejus conventus percipiet xx. marcas, et xxx. pro una pitancia. Iste fregit Scheltram apud bellum de Sluyse in mari, quia potens erat in bello.

Anno Domini mccclix. obiit domina Elizabetha le Despencer apud Asteley in comitatu Hamptoniæ, filia quondam Willielmi de Monte-acuto comitis Sarum, ac uxor Guidonis de Bryene militis, et relicto Hugone tertio le Despencer, ultimo die mensis Maii, hoc est, in die sanctæ Petronellæ virginis, sepulta jacet cum nobili viro suo primo marito in tumba satis præclara cum ymaginibus de marmore albo. Iste Gwido de Bryen appropriavit quosdam redditus in villa Bristolæ pro anima sua, et dictæ dominæ Elizabethæ uxoris suæ, et delegavit illud ad officium sacristæ Theokes. et qui primam missam celebrat pro dicto Gwidone quotidie in ecclesia nostra ad altare sanctæ Margaretæ cum hiis orationibus: 'Deus qui charitatis,' &c. pro consanguineis suis viventibus; et 'Inclina' pro mortuis. Missa in dominica de Trinitate; feria secunda de Sancto Spiritu; feria tertia de sancto Thoma; feria quarta de Sancta Requite; feria quinta de Ascentione; feria sexta de Sancta Cruce, sabbato de sancta Maria. Et qui celebrat per hebdomadam percipiet pro suo labore xxjd. et in anniversario ejus et dictæ Elizabethæ, si abbas celebraverit missam, percipiet vs. si prior, iij^s. iij^d. et qui legit evangelium viij^d. qui epistolam, viij^d. qui patenam viij^d. et præcentor cum duobus sociis cuilibet eorum viij^d. et priori xij^d. et unicuique monachorum iij^d.

Edwardus igitur primus, frater Hugonis tertii, ex Anna filia domini de Ferrers, genuit Edwardum secundum, Thomam, Henricum, et Gilbertum secundum, et fortunio belli ante fratrem suum decessit. Iste erat comes insulæ de Wight et postea factus comes Devonæ.

Edwardus verò secundus, filius istius Edwardi, successit Hugoni tertio, et copulavit sibi in matrimonium dominam Elizabetham, filiam domini Bartholomei de Borowashe, de qua genuit Edwardum tertium, qui obiit duodenus apud Kardif, sed apud Theokes. sepelitur in capella sanctæ Mariæ, et Hugonem quartum, qui obiit citò postquam natus erat et sepelitur cum fratre suo. Deinde genuit quatuor filias, quarum nomina sunt ista, scilicet Ceciliam, quæ obiit iuvenis, et sepulta est cum fratribus suis: deinde Elizabetham dominam de la Sowch, et relictam domini Johannis de Arundell, et dominam Annam quæ fuit desponsata Hugoni Hastings, et post Thomæ Morley et Margaretam quæ fuit nupta domino Roberto de Ferrers; et prædictus Edwardus in ultima ætate sua genuit Thomam le Despencer et comitem Gloucestriæ. Iste successit patri suo in hæreditatem et copulavit sibi in matrimonium dominam Constantiam filiam domini Edmundi de Langley, filii regis Edwardi tertii et ducis Eboracensis, de qua Constantia præfatus Thomas genuit Ricardum, Elizabetham, et Isabellam. Et prædicta domina Margareta, uxor domini Roberti de Ferrers, obiit tertio nonas Novembris, anno Domini mcccxcv. et sepulta est apud Merivale. Ista fuit mater domini Thomæ, Edmundi, et Edwardi de Ferrers. Et prædictus Edwardus secundus obiit in Cambria, apud Lanblethian in die sancti Martini, anno mcccclxxv. et sepultus est apud Theokes. ante ostium vestiarii juxta presbiterium, ubi uxor ejus ædificavit capellam ex lapidibus arte mirifica constructam, quæ dedicata est in honore Sanctæ Trinitatis. Iste, inter cætera bona quæ nobis contulit, calicem de purissimo auro nobis ditissimum dedit, et aliud jocale preciosissimum arte mirifica fabricatum, in quo corpus dominicum in diebus solennibus est impositum. Et domina Elizabetha uxor ejusdem permansit in viduitate sua post mortem viri sui ferè xxxij. annis. Et obiit die sanctæ Annæ anno Domini mcccxcix. et sepulta est infra chorum Theokes. in sinistra viri sui sub lapide marmoreo. Ista, inter alia bona quæ contulit monasterio, obtulit unam sectam vestimentorum rubeam cum leonibus de auro, scilicet, unam casulam cum iij. dalmaticis, et albis paratis, cum xv. cappis. Post obitum Edwardi secundi, Thomas filius ejus et hæres successit, comes Gloucestriæ, qui nequiter fuit occisus apud Bristoliam à populari vulgo, feria tertia post festum sancti Hilarii, anno Domini mcccxcix. et apud Theokes. sepultus in medio chori sub lampade quæ jugiter ardet ante corpus dominicum: obiit autem anno x. ante matrem suam.

Anno Domini mcccclxiiij. obiit dominus Ricardus tertius le Despenser, filius et hæres ejus, anno ætatis suæ xvij. apud Merton, cum esset in custodia regia quinque milliaribus distans à Londino, septimo die Octobris, sed sepultus est apud Theokes. in sinistra patris sui. Iste duxit in uxorem primam filiam domini Radulphi comitis de Westmerland, nomine Elizabetham, sed post obitum ejus, hærede nullo ex eis existente, maritata fuit domino Henrico Percy comiti de Northumbria, dotatione sua exeunte de dominio de Despensere. Et domina Elizabetha, prima filia domini Thomæ et Constantiæ uxoris suæ, et soror dicti Ricardi, obiit in iuvenili ætate apud Kardif, et sepulta est in ecclesia beatæ Mariæ ibidem, et in septimo mense postquam dominus Thomas le Despenser mortuus est, domina Constantia uxor ejus peperit ei egregiam filiam, nomine Isabellam apud Kardif, in die sanctæ Annæ, anno Domini mcccc. Et postea domina Constantia nupta erat domino Thomæ comiti de Arundell, de qua genuit filiam nomine Elianoram, quæ postea maritata fuit per dominam Isabellam sororem suam (comitissam de Warwick), Hugoni domino de Audley, de qua genuit filium nomine Jacobum; quem suscepit de sacro fonte dominus Willielmus de Brystow, abbas Theokes. Post obitum domini Ricardi tertii le Despenser, domina Isabella soror ejus suscepit dominum le Despensere, quam desponsavit dominus Ricardus quartus de Bellocampo, filius et hæres domini Willielmi Bewchamp, et dominus de Abergeveni, in die vij. dormientium, anno mccccxj.

Domini mccccxvij. et sepulta est apud monasterium de Reding anno Domini mccccxx. Dum dominus Henricus rex quintus Francos infestaret, dominus Ricardus quartus de Bellocampo factus est comes Wigorniae apud Londoniam, et domina Isabella uxor ejus concepit de eo, et peperit ei filiam nomine Elizabetham, quæ nascebatur apud Hanleyam xvj. die Septembris, anno gratiæ mccccxv. litera dominicali c. Quam suscepit de sacro fonte dominus Thomas Parker abbas, quæ postea nupta fuit domino Edwardo Neuill juniore filio comitis de Westmerland, de qua natus est dominus Georgius, hæres eorundem.

Et iste Ricardus iiij. de Bello Campo comes Wigorniae postea, tempore regis Henrici vj. xv. kal. Aprilis anno Domini mccccxxj. in Gallia apud Mews in Brye, lapide balistæ in latere percussus, citò post ibidem occubuit, et xxv. die Aprilis apud Theokes. est sepultus, ad finem chori, inter chorum et capellam fundatoris, inter ij. columnas, ubi postea domina Isabella uxor ejus ordinavit pulchram capellam arte mirificè fabricatam, quam consecrari fecit in honorem beatæ dilectricis Domini nostri Jesu Christi, Mariæ Magdalene, sanctæ Barbaræ virginis, et sancti Leonardi abbatis. Quæ capella dedicata est ij. die mensis Augusti anno Domini mccccxxvij. Post annum et decem menses postquam dominus Ricardus quartus comes Wigorniae mortuus est, dominus Ricardus Bewchampe v. comes Warwichiæ, et filius patris Ricardi quarti comitis Wigorniae, habita dispensatione papali desponsavit supradictam dominam Isabellam comitissam Wigorniae et relictam domini Ricardi supradicti, et seisivit eam in comitatu de Warwic, an. Domini mccccxxij. xxvj. die Novembris. Post annum et tres menses et paucos dies, xxij. die Marci, anno Domini mccccxxij. peperit prædicta domina Isabella Ricardo quinto marito suo egregium puerum nomine Henricum, et hæredem eorundem apud castrum de Hanley. Sed et nuptias supradictas celebravit magister Johannes Fordam, prior Wigorniae, ubi interfuit dominus Willielmus Bristow abbas Theokes. in eodem castello. Et quinto die postquam venerabilis Henricus natus fuit, dominus Henricus Bewford cardinalis presbyter, titulo S. Eusebii, atque episcopi Wintoniæ frater, et avunculus regis, et dominus Humfridus dux Buckinghamiæ et comes Staffordiæ, et Johanna domina de Abergeveni, pro nobilitate parentum, charissimo amore puerum susceperunt de sacro fonte; quem baptizavit dominus Johannes Fordam, prior Wigorniae, et tenuit eum ad confirmationem dominus Johannes Bewchamp baro de Powik.

Iste nobilis Henricus dominus le Despenser, decimo anno ætatis suæ, copulavit sibi in uxorem dominam Ceciliam, filiam domini Ricardi Nevill comitis Sarum, anno Domini mccccxxiiij. Post annum et vj. menses quàm iste generosus Henricus natus erat, nata est domino Ricardus quinto comiti de Warwick, de uxore sua Isabella, filia nomine Anna, quam eodem anno et mense (quo frater ejus Henricus duxit filiam comitis Sarum) Ricardus, filius dicti Ricardi comitis Sarum, conduxit in uxorem. Tempore elapso, iste venerabilis Henricus cognovit uxorem suam, genuitque ex ea filiam, nomine Annam, quæ nata est apud Kardif mense Februarii anno Domini mccccxliij.; quam susceperunt de sacro fonte dominus Johannes Abyndon abbas vicesimus Theokes. et domina Anna soror domine Isabellæ comitissæ, et amita domini Henrici, et uxor domini Hugonis de Audley, et domina Elizabetha seror dicti Hugonis. Et venerabilis dominus Ricardus quintus, comes Warwichiæ, cum haberet regimen Franciæ et Normanniæ sub domino Henrico rege vj. apud civitatem Rotomagensis diem clausit extremum, anno Domini mccccxxix. et sepultus est apud Warwick eodem anno. Et domina Isabella comitissa uxor ejusdem domini, et patrona nostra nobilissima, recessit de transmarinis partibus cum corpore viri sui, et venerabilis Henricus et strenuissimus juvenis, filius et hæres eorundem, cum maximo dolore et infirmitate, usque ad prioratum canonicorum de Southwick juxta mare, ibique aliquamdiu morigerati, domina Ysabella ægritudine fessa post paululum venit Londinum ad domum Fratrum minorum, ubi dominus Henricus rex vj. venit visitare ac consolare eam; qui com-

mendavit filium suum dilectissimum Henricum domino regi, petiitque ab eo humillimis precibus, quatinus executores illius appropriarent ad ecclesiam et abbathiam Theokes. ad valorem ccc. marcharum; quatinus ibidem ordinarentur vj. monachi plures quàm fuerant à prima fundatione, quatinus altissimo turificarent missarum orationumque suffragia pro salute animæ suæ et antecessorum et successorum suorum. Benignissimus rex, Deoque devotus, petitioni ejus annuit, atque in hæc verba consolationis recessit ab ea, dicens: 'Deus quem puro corde colis det tuam petitionem adimpleri secundum desiderium animæ tuæ.' At illa gratias egit Deo, regi-que benigno, sicque graviter vexata infirmitate in eodem loco obdormivit in Domino, in die sancti Johannis Evangelistæ, hoc est vj. kalend. Januarii, et in testamento suo legavit etiam ecclesiæ Theokes. omnia ornamenta capitis et corporis sui quibus utebatur viva, videlicet aurum et argentum, lapidesque pretiosos, et vestimenta preciosissima ad valorem, ut æstimabatur, ccc. marcharum. Ordinavit etiam quatuor missas quotidie celebrari in nova capella quam fundaverat pro se, et antecessorum et successorum suorum animarum salute, et quatuor monachos prima missa quotidiana de die, secunda de Trinitate vel de Sancto Spiritu, tertia de sancta Maria, iiij. de beata Requite: constituitque unicuique ad finem septimanæ ij. sol. sterlingorum pro labore suo. Confirmavit etiam omnia privilegia et donationes atque cartas antecessorum suorum. Et præcepit sub benedictione sua filio suo Henrico, quatinus ipse hæc omnia ratificaret et confirmaret atque adimpleret. Atque ita idus Januarii sepulta est apud Theokes. in dextra patris sui, à venerabilibus viris, scilicet Thoma Plufford episcopo Herefordiæ et ejus confessore, et domino Willielmo Bristow abbate Theokes. et domino Johanne abbate Winchcombæ, ubi et alii magnates plurimæ multitudinis interfuerunt. Hæc autem omnia facta sunt eodem anno quo dominus Ricardus Bewchamp quintus, et maritus ejus, mortuus est, cum magna solemnitate, honore, atque reverentia, sicut decuit, sic est humata: modò ædificatur super ejus membra tumba marmorea arte mirificè fabricata. Post decessum parentum venerabilium, venerabilis dominus Henricus hæres eorundem successit in hæreditatem paternam et maternam, qui per biennium existens in custodia regia postea restitutus est ad sua omnia in magna gloria. Nam coronatur à rege in regem de Wight manu regia, et nominatur primus comes totius Angliæ. Factum est autem post duos annos ut dominus Henricus rex vj. propter amorem parentum valde eum diligens, speciali amore contulit ei ducatum Warwicensem, dans ei castrum Bristollæ cum omnibus suis annexis, quod olim rex Johannes detinuit sibi, sicut supra memoravimus; dedit quoque ei insulas Gardsey et Jardsey. Addiditque ei patronatum ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Magdalene de Goldclif cum omnibus suis annexis. Deditque ei licentiam appropriare illam ecclesiam et prioratum cum omnibus suis pertinentiis, et facere illa omnia et singula membra fieri ecclesiæ Theokes. quatinus monachi ibidem Deo servientes turificarent missarum solemnias, orationum suffragia, cæterorum quoque contemplativa, bonorum operum suspiria, pro salute animæ et corporis ipsius regis atque domini Henrici ducis, et in speciali pro salute animæ dictæ Isabellæ, domine et comitissæ Wigorniae et Warwichiæ, et pro animabus antecessorum et successorum suorum, atque pro animabus omnium fundatorum et benefactorum ecclesiæ Godcliviæ. Atque altissimo quotidie sic adorato, animæ eorum epularentur in Paradisi amoenitate ut loco à Deo eis limitato.

Confirmavit etiam ipse nobilis rex, et sua carta magna atque secreto sigillo omnia privilegia possessionesque terrarum et ornamenta donationesque regum ac nobilium antecessorum suorum, tam in spiritualibus quàm temporalibus, sive in Anglia, sive in Wallia. Concessit etiam omnia confirmari ab archiepiscopis, episcopis, archidiaconibus, capitulis generalibus et specialibus, et in speciali à domino Nicholao Landavensi episcopo, et à magistro Roberto Cole ejus archidiacono, atque à capitulo Landavensis ecclesiæ, et parlamento à ducibus, marchis, comitibus, baronibus, militibus, justiciariis, ballivis, et aliis. Hæc omnia acta et con-firmata sunt anno Domini mcccclxij. et v. kal. Junii. Eodem anno monachi Theokes. ingressi sunt primum in prioratum prædictum Goldclif, domino Willielmo Bristow tunc abbate Theokes. Et frater Johannes Abindon tunc fuit cellerarius et procurator, et frater Thomas Winchcombe ordinatus prior ibidem per abbatem et conventum. Postea eodem anno per laborem magistri Adam Molenis, à domino papa Eugenio, ejusque consilio ratificata et confirmata sunt ista omnia et singula. Sicque temporis intervallo dominus Ricardus Langley dux Eboracensis confirmavit omnia dona et franchisesia et privilegia antecessorum suorum ad dictam ecclesiam pertinentia, scilicet Goldcliviam. Dedit etiam protectionem suam domino Johanni Abindon, et priori Goldclif, et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus, pro omnibus hominibus suis, tenentibus, officiariis, ac ministris in Wallia, sive in marchia Walliæ.

Similiter dominus Henricus Beuchamp dux Warwichiæ ratificavit, et confirmavit omnia dona antecessorum suorum in Wallia sive in marchia Walliæ ecclesiæ prædictæ. Sic quoque dominus Humfridus dux Bokinghamia confirmavit omnes donationes et confirmationes antecessorum suorum in Wallia sive in marchia Walliæ. Ita et dominus Richardus dux Norfolchiæ, et dominus de Chepstow, hoc est Striguliæ, ratificavit et confirmavit omnia dona antecessorum suorum. Memorandum quod frater Robertus Newent prior prioratus Goldcliviæ, et frater Ricardus Hardwick, et frater Thomas Percior expulsi sunt ex prioratu Goldcliviæ anno Domini mcccclv. litera dominicali C. nonas Junii, ex invidia Wallencianorum. Etiam tempore istius dominæ Isabellæ, dum adhuc viveret, appropriatæ sunt suo labore et adjutorio duæ ecclesiæ; scilicet ecclesia de Tarande Monachorum in diocesi Sarum, et ecclesia de Penmarche in diocesi Landavensi tempore domini Willielmi Bristow abbatis, et fratrum Willielmi Faukenere elemosinarii, et Johannis Abindon celerarii atque procuratoris.

Obiit autem dominus Henricus nobilis dux Warwichiæ, et primus comes Angliæ, dominus le Despencer et de Albergeveny, rex de insulis Wight, et Gardsey, et Jardsey, dominus quoque castri Bristolæ cum suis annexis, tertio idus Junii, anno Domini mcccclvj. anno ætatis suæ xxij. apud castrum de Hanleya, et sepultus est in medio chori Theokusburie, inter stallos, ubi ipse elegit sepeliri, quatinus commonachi, et allecti sui eum semper haberent in memoria. Media nocte fuit humatus cum magno luctu singulorum suorum, propter tumultus populi qui eum sic amabant, ne damnum viderentur inferre monasterio concursus populorum venientium. Iste dum viveret confirmavit omnia dona, privilegia, et cartas patrum et antecessorum suorum ecclesiæ Theokes. Legavitque nobis in suo testamento ecclesiam de Scherston, et omnia ornamenta corporis sui, ad faciendum inde vestimenta.

Memorandum, quod quinto idus Martii dominus Johannes abbas Theokes. ingressus est secundò in prioratum de Goldclif, anno Domini mcccvj. litera dominicali A. Et viij. idus Aprilis post, prior ingressus est cum suis sociis, scilicet monachis de Theokes. iij. nonas Junii. Et domina Elizabetha, filia domini Ricardi quarti comitis Wigornie, et dictæ Isabellæ, et soror dicti Henrici ducis, obiit xiiij. kal. Julii, anno Domini mcccxvii. anno ætatis suæ xxxij. et apud ecclesiam fratrum Carmelitarum de Coventry est sepulta. Et post obitum domini Henrici ducis, domina Anna, filia ejus unica et parvula atque hæres, tradita est in custodiam regis qui dedit eam, cum nonagia, dominæ Margaretæ reginæ. At illa dedit eam iterum domino Willielmo Pole, duci Suffolchiæ, in cujus custodia obiit, anno Domini mcccix. anno ætatis suæ sexto. Et obiit apud manerium de Herpendene, et sepulta est apud monasterium de Reding. Post mortem istius puellæ, successit in patronatum Theokes. ecclesiæ dominus Ricardus Nevill, sextus filius domini Ricardi Nevill comitis Sarum, qui duxit dominam Annam filiam supradicti Ricardi Bewchampe, quinti comitis Warwichiæ, et dominæ Isabellæ uxoris suæ et comitissæ, et sororis domini Henrici ducis. Et dominus Henricus rex sextus dedit illi comitatum Warwichiæ et dominium de le Despenser atque

Iste appropriavit ecclesiam de Scherston, et fecit eam annecti ecclesiæ Theokes. Confirmavit etiam omnia dona, privilegia, et cartas antecessorum suorum, et in speciali confirmavit cartam de piscatione apud Theokes. in Sabrina, et in Abbana, et etiam in Tofe apud Kardif, quod dominus dux similiter concessit et confirmavit. Anno Domini mccccl. obiit domina Cecilia, ducissa de Warwicke, et relictæ domini Henrici ducis de Warwick, quinto kal. Augusti, quæ post mortem domini Henrici maritata fuit comiti Wigornie, et domino Tip-toft, et sepulta fuit secundo kal. Augusti in capella beatæ Mariæ virginis apud Theokes. in loco ubi Willielmus Sowche antea erat sepultus. Et dominus Ricardus Nevill, sextus filius comitis Sarum. genuit de uxore sua Anna (filia comitis de Warwick et dominæ Isabellæ uxoris suæ) duas filias, Isabellam et Annam, quæ Isabella nupta fuit domino Georgio duci Clarenciæ, et filio Ricardi ducis Eborum, et fratris Edwardi regis quarti, de qua genuit filiam, nomine Margaretam, apud castrum de Farley quartodecimo die Augusti, anno Domini mcccclxxij. Et anno Domini mcccclxxv. natus est dominus Edwardus filius et primogenitus prædicti ducis Clarenciæ de prædicta domina Isabella et patrona nostra, apud castrum de Warwick xxv. die Februarii, quem susceperunt de sacro fonte dominus Edwardus quartus, et avunculus ejusdem pueri, et episcopus de Carlile, et ducissa de Suffolke, soror ejusdem Georgii; et ad confirmationem dominus Johannes Strensham abbas Theokes. Et dictus Edwardus tunc ordinatur comes Warwick per dominum Edwardum regem. Et anno Domini mcccclxxvj. natus est prædicto Georgio filius, nomine Ricardus, de sæpedita Isabella apud monasterium Theokes. in nova camera infirmariæ ibidem, sabbatho, viz. sexto die Octobris, circa horam secundam post nonam, litera dominicali F. et septimo die sequenti baptizatur in ecclesia parochiali, quem susceperunt de sacro fonte dominus Ricardus, abbas Evesham. et dominus Ricardus, prior Batoniæ, et domina uxor Jacobi Lutterell: ad confirmationem, dominus Willielmus Ferley, abbas Glowcestriæ, diversis abbatibus et prioribus præsentibus vestitis pontificalibus. Et octavo die ejusdem mensis confirmatur à domino Johanne Alkok episcopo Wigornie ad majus altare ecclesiæ nostræ, et vestitus ipse in pontificalibus. Quo tempore graviter infirmatur dicta Isabella ferè ad mortem. Et dominus prædictus Georgius recessit à monasterio nostro cum Isabella uxore sua infirmata usque ad Warwicke xij. die mensis Novembris et anno Domini mcccclxxvj. obiit domina Isabella, ducissa Clarenciæ, patrona nostra, apud castrum de Warwicke duodecimo die mensis Decembris circa horam undecimam ante mediam noctem, et defertur ejus corpus ad monasterium nostrum Theokes. Quarto die mensis Januarii dominus Johannes Strensham abbas Theokes. cum diversis abbatibus (vestitis in pontificalibus) et toto conventu, recepit ejus corpus in medio chori nostri et immediatè post fiebant exequiæ ejus à domino abbate et cæteris abbatibus et toto conventu in ix. lectionibus, postea à suffraganeis episcopi Wygornie, et episcopi Lincolnie, et decano et clericis domini ducis exequiæ agebantur; et vigiliæ per totam noctem à familia dicti ducis custodiebantur in crastinum, viz. in vigilia Epiphaniæ. Primam missam de sancta Maria celebravit suffraganeus Lincolnie episcopi in capella sanctæ Mariæ; secundam missam de Trinitate celebravit dominus abbas ad magnum altare; tertiam verò missam celebravit suffraganeus episcopi Wigornie, de Requie æterna, in qua sermonem fecit ad prælatos in choro, et cæteros ibidem quidam doctor sacræ theologiæ ordinum Minorum de Wigornia, Petrus Weld nomine. Et missâ finitâ, relictum est corpus ejusdem ducissæ in medio chori subtus le herse ibidem usque ad xxxv. diem. Et per omne id tempus solennes exequiæ fiebant quotidie in conventu pro anima dictæ Isabellæ. Postea, videlicet in octava Purificationis beatæ Mariæ, in quo die, missâ finitâ, corpus illius sepulturæ traditum fuit subtus le volte artificialiter facto retro altare majus, ante capellam beatæ Mariæ ecclesiæ conventualis, et hostium sepulturæ positum est ex opposito ostii capellæ sancti Edmundi martiris. Et dominus Ricardus, filius eorundem, obiit in juvenilitate apud castrum de Warwick, in festo Circumcisionis Domini, eodem anno quo mater ejus obiit. Et domina Anna, secunda filia Ricardi Nevill et Annæ uxoris suæ, nupta fuit domino Edwardo principi, filio Henrici regis sexti. Et post obitum ejus nupta fuit Ricardo duci Gloucestris, et filio Ricardi ducis Eboraci, et fratri Edwardi regis quarti, de qua genuit filium nomine apud castrum de Middlam, anno Domini mccccxxvj.

Ego dux Odo apud Theok. prioratum fundo.
Atque ego Doddo Stanwey cum membris addo.
Abbathiam fundo Ailwardus, Meaw dictus ego.
Algarus dico hæc omnia ibi confirmo.
Et Bictanus, ultimus ante conquestum dominus,
Hoc templum fundo mihimet verè corde jucundo
Bristow construxi honor ut fiat crucifixi.
Cartas confirmo facto verè corde paterno
Rex comes et eram quia duxi Isabellam.
Glowc. et Hertfordiæ comes eram, quia dilexi Amiciam Sylvam donavi, templum hoc semper amavi.
Argento jaceo, vos quia semper amo.
Bella construxi ne me perdent inimici.
Propter jus regni, gladii quoque mortem subivi.
Lantrissam Hugo mihimet tamen appropriabo Construxi, quia locum hunc semper amavi.
Et tuli dolorem propter mei regni amorem.
Et obii fato juvenili sic in ætate.
Propter regis regulam periit cum fundo Bewcham.
Warwick custos Normanniæ dux sicque placuit.
Dominus quoque primus ego fui sicque Goldelyf appropriavi.
Scherston approprio Theokes. cartaque confirmo.

— Est et monasterium Theocesberie, quod noviter Robertus filius Hamonis favore suo provexit, nec facile memoratu quantum exaltavit, ubi et ædificiorum decor, et monachorum charitas adventantium rapit oculos, et allicit animos. Fuerat illud primitus apud Craneburnam, sed abbatis Giraldi provisione, pro vicini fluminis opportunitate, et dominicarum terrarum, contiguè Theokesberiam aptius locari visum. Simul et videbatur voluntati religiosæ nomen applaudere, quod Theokesberia dicatur, quasi Theotocosbiria, id est, Dei genitricis curia, vocabulo ex Græco et Anglico composito.

[Ibid. fol. 68 b.]

CARTA Huctredi Landavensis episcopi facta Rogero abbati Theokesberie et conventui, interventu et concessu Roberti consulis Gloucestrie, anno ab incarnatione Domini m.c.xlvi. de controversia quæ fuit inter prædictos episcopum et abbatem et monachos, de decimis et aliis rebus, viz. de calumpnia quam idem episcopus moverat versus eos de eisdem, cujus continentia talis est. Idem episcopus concedit Deo et ecclesiæ beatæ Mariæ Theokesburie et monachis habere et tenere pacifice et quiete, omnes decimas, elemosinas et beneficia quæ in illo episcopatu sunt eis datæ, vel de cætero canonice dabuntur. Et pro hac concessione remiserunt abbas et monachi prædicto episcopo quietam totam decimam illam, quam habebant de dominicis culturis com. Glouc. in mora inter Taf et Ely. Et præterea duas partes decimæ de Malthelemaur, quas tenebant, et decimam terræ pertinentem ad capellam sancti Johannis quam habebant et quam dixit abbas pertinere ad sanctum Leonardum. Concedit etiam eisdem episcopus, ut quicunque ejusdem episcopatus corpus suum voluerit ad Theokesburiam deferri, deferatur, ita ut prius Landavensum ecclesiam respiciat.

NUM. VII.

Nicholaus Landavensis Episcopus eandem Compositionem confirmat.

[Ibid.]

COMPOSITIO facta inter ecclesiam de Theok. et Mattheum capellanum de Suelle super decimis de dominico auctoritate literarum domini papæ demandata abbati de Buttlesden et R. de Northampton et A. de Bukinham archidiacono, scil. quod monachi de Theok. percipient omnes decimas de dominico de Suelles, ita tamen quod si parochiani de capella posuerint oves suas in ovili domini de Suvella et in pastura de dominico hiemaverint, rector capellæ percipiet medietatem decimarum illarum et monachi reliquam medietatem. Monachi etiam percipient omnes decimas omnium servientium domini quæ erunt in ovili capellæ de Suvelle, vj. den. pro loco Berthonæ quam diu stabit in vilenagio. Erunt tamen quieti a præstatione eorum eo anno quo parochiani habuerint oves suas in Berthona domini et in dominico; et si remota fuerit Berthona; pœna etiam c. solidorum sub fidei præstatione interposita est, si aliter utraque partium a compositione resilient, parti eam observanti præstanda. Hanc compositionem prædicti iudices confirmaverunt.

Controversia inter Litinensem Ecclesiam, et Ecclesiam de Theok. quievit.

[Ibid.]

TESTIMONIUM Johannis Wigorniensis episcopi de compositione facta inter Litinensem ecclesiam et ecclesiam de Theok. super calumniis quas ecclesia Litinensis habebat versus Theok. Ecclesiam de decimis dominorum de Forthelmet et de Prato et de Bisselega et de Pulla, et de vinea in præsentia ejusdem episcopi, anno gratiæ M.C.LI. episcopatus ejus anno primo apud Glouc. ecclesiæ Litinensis decimam dominii de Pulla, et de vinea decimam, quas calumniabantur ecclesiæ Theok. liberam et quietam in perpetuum remisit. Ecclesia vero Theok. ecclesiæ Litinensi liberas et quietas concesserunt in perpetuum decimas frugum totius dominii, quod tunc erat quando compositio ista facta est, de Bisselega et de Forthelmetona, et de prato, et in bosco, et in plano, ita viz. quod si terra rusticorum creverit in essartis, illa decima concedatur sacerdoti de Forthelmetuna. Si vero terra dominii monachorum in essartis creverit, ecclesiæ Litinensi reddatur illa decima. Præterea Theok. ecclesia adquietare debet Litinensem ecclesiam erga sacerdotem de Forthelement, et de Bisseleg, qui pro cantaria primum habuit tertiam decimam partem frugum dominorum de villis prænominatis quam ex compositione ista, cum duabus reliquis partibus integram Lit. ecclesiæ concedit.

et ecclesiam et Beldeierum abbatem de Lir. et ecclesiam suam in cirographo sigillo partium signato, fuit hoc modo. Prædictus abbas de Lir. renunciens omni calumniæ, decimas suas cum terris et hominibus quos habebant in Forth et in Bisseleg et in Quinhulle abbati Rogero et successoribus suis et ejusdem ecclesiæ pro duabus marcis et dimidia reddendis ad Pentecosten perpetuo tenendas concessit, nisi, quod absit, abbas Theok. noluerit. Abbas autem Rogerus dedit prædicto abbati unam marcam argenti de caritate in confirmationem hujus conventionis.

NUM. LIII.

[Ibid. fol. 79.]

CONTROVERSIA quæ fuit inter ecclesias de Theok. et de Derhursta ita quievit. Decima Roberti filii Warini de Witefeld quam ecclesia de Derhursta aliquando contra ecclesiam Theok. calumniabatur, eo quod nullam partem inde habebat, per medium divisa est ita quod medietas de dominico blado ecclesiæ de Derhursta remaneat, et aliam partem ejusdem ecclesiæ Theokesbir. perpetualiter possideat. Eo pacto quod Rotericus monachus et prior ejusdem loci et monachi sui clamaverunt quietas et liberas et ab omni sequentium calumnia exemptas ecclesiæ de Theok. cæteras decimas quas ecclesia de Theok. in parochia de Derhurst habet, viz. dominicam decimam Frederici de Botintona tantummodo in annona, et dominicam decimam in Kenemertona.

LITERÆ Jocelini Salesbiriensis episcopi missæ Haimoni de Mappandona et Ernaldo decanis, quibus mandat eis se recepisse magistrum Herveum ad personatum ecclesiæ de Froma et capellæ de Caldewella ad præsentationem monachorum Theok. mandans ut ipsi magistrum Herveum pro capella sua denuncient personam.

NUM. LXIII.

W. Comes testatur Haimonem filium Gaufridi fuisse in Curia sua pro Ecclesia de Pentrith quæ adjudicata est Monachis de Theok.

[Ibid.]

CARTA W. comitis Gloucestriæ directa Jocelino Sarisburiensi episcopo cognato suo testificantis, quod abbas Theok. fuit in curia sua placitans pro advocacione ecclesiæ de Pentrith quam Haimo filius Gaufridi ex dono Roberti comitis patris W. comitis, suam dicebat esse, et recognitum est ibi in curia bar. dicti comitis ecclesiam Theok. et monachos a diebus Roberti Haimonis et ex ipsius dono ecclesiam de Pentriet possedissee, et patrem suum R. nullum jus advocacionis in præfata ecclesia dedisse, quando manerium illud prædicto Haimoni donavit. Requisivit autem ut quoniam curia sua veraciter H. cognovit pro calumpnia prædicti Haimonis ecclesiam Theok. non permitteret amplius vexari, et quicquid abbatum esset per rigorem justitiæ faceret integre restitui.

NUM. LXIV.

[Ibid.]

CARTA Willielmi comitis testificantis quod Radulphus Chamel, homo abbatibus Theok. et monachorum coram eo et hominibus suis apud Theok. penitus quietam clamavit calumpniam qua ipsum abbatem et monachos vexaverat de quadam hida terræ, quam pater suus antiquitus vendiderat prædictis monachis, asserens se injuste de hoc adversus eos insurrexisse, quia ipse cum adolescens esset eidem venditioni interfuit et facta patris sui concessit et confirmavit ut hæres suus. Ipse etiam Radulphus coram eo affidavit in manu Willielmi de Bosco militis prædicti comitis quod ipse et hæres sui sine fraude et dolo prædictam terram warrantizarent, et quod illos nunquam de prædicta hida vexarent. Sed et ipse Radulphus et Willielmus filius suus et hæres in capitulo Theok. juraverunt super sacrosancta evangelia quod non ipsi nec hæres sui illos de prædicta terra in aliquo tempore vexarent.

COMPOSITIO facta inter ecclesiam de Theok. et de Bekkeford in præsentia Rogeri Wigorniensis episcopi anno gratiæ m.c.lxxvii. xvii. kal. Junii, in ecclesia sancti Petri apud Winhecumbam, de capella de Wasseburna et decimis rusticorum de Dudicote; magister Silvester rector ecclesiæ de Bekeford in perpetuam elemosinam ecclesiæ de Theok. remisit omne jus quod vendicabat in capella de Wasseburna, ita quod si aliquod instrumentum haberet super hiis quæ petebat in præscripto capitulo nullas de cætero vires haberet. Ecclesia vero Theok. remisit ecclesiæ de Bekeford decimas messium et nutrimentorum et omnium quæ per annum renovantur de xii. virgatis terræ in Dudicote cum istam excolunt qui sunt parochiani ecclesiæ de Bekeford. Præterea ecclesia de Theok. concessit ecclesiæ sancti Andreae de Estona omnes decimas tam majores quam minores cujusdam virgatæ terræ quam Willielmus Francus tenuit de ecclesia de Theok. in eadem villa de Estona. Si autem forte processu temporis aliqua pars de xii. prædictis virgatis terræ in dominicam versa fuerit, nihilominus inde decimas persolvent. De xxx. vero acris terræ quas tempore

luerunt in eadem villa de Dudicote non solvent ecclesiæ de Bedeford decimas; si autem villanis traditæ fuerint, decimas inde solvent sicut et de aliis ecclesiæ de Bekeford.

De Ecclesiis de Merlave, de Hameled, de Sened, de Torneberya, et aliis quas Hugo Lincolniensis Episcopus con-firmat Monachis Theokesburiensibus.

[Ibid.]

CARTA Hugonis Lincolniensis episcopi qui inspectis cartis Roberti filii Haimonis confirmat monachis Theok. ecclesias de Merlave et de Hameled quas præ-fati patroni eis dederunt cum omnibus pertinentiis suis.

Idem episcopus per cartam suam instituit Robertum Bardulf in ecclesia de Hameled ad præsentationem monachorum de Theok. sub annua pensione lx. solidorum.

Idem Robertus Bardulf obligat se domino suo abbati Theok. ad dimidiam marcam annuatim pro hospitio suo, quia non habet honestum domicilium in quo possit eum recipere apud Feirford.

Litera Willielmi Wigorniensis episcopi testificantis quod ad præsentationem monachorum Theok. et Alani abbatis admisit Robertum clericum ad ecclesiam de Se-ned tenendam sub annua pensione unius marcæ solven-dæ duobus terminis, medietatem ad Pasca et aliam me-dietatem ad festum sancti Michaelis.

Testimonium ejusdem episcopi quod admisit magistrum Simonem ad ecclesiam de Tornebyria ad præsentationem monachorum Theok. tenendam sub annua pensione lxij. solidorum ad quatuor terminos anni.

Carta W. com. Glouc. confirmantis ecclesiæ Theok.
vii. acras agriculturæ et unam de prato quas Ricardus filius Hugonis Grossi de eo tenuerat et suo assensu dedit in elemosinam ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Theok.

Carta Roberti de Cairdif concedentis ecclesiæ de Theok. in perpetuam elemosinam decimam totius fœni in dominico suo de Waltuna, quam decimam pater suus sui permissione perfecit tempore Alani abbatis.

Controversia inter ecclesiam Theok. et ecclesiam de Langeduna super decimis de Hursta et de terra Nichol.
Blake tempore magistri R. Folet rectoris illius ecclesiæ sic quievit, scilicet, quod ecclesia de Langeduna et ejus rectores in perpetuum tenebunt illas decimas de ecclesia de Theok. solvendo iij. sol. annuatim ecclesiæ de Theok.
ad festum sancti Michaelis pro eisdem.

Carta W. Folet clamantis quietam in perpetuum ecclesiæ de Theok. terram illam de Tetteleia de qua controversia fuit inter eum et abbatem Alanum, etiam quod nec ipse nec hæredes sui ullo tempore illam repeterent nec aliquod clamium inde facerent.

Carta Roberti de Muchegros de Botintuna confirmantis ecclesiæ de Theok. elemosinam vi. solid. annuorum quos pater suus Fredericus dedit eidem ecclesiæ cum ibi habitum religionis sumeret, et obligavit hæredes suos ad eorum solutionem.

Carta Ricardi de Muchegros ratam habentis con-cessionem et donationem avi sui Frederici de vi. solid.
reddendis annuatim ecclesiæ de Theok. per manum hæ-redum suorum ad festum Annunciationis beatæ Mariæ, quando ibi monachus factus est, et nihilominus donatio-nem patris sui Roberti de Muchegros factam prædictæ ecclesiæ de Theok. et de aliis vi. solid. ad prædictum terminum ab hæredibus suis solvendis, quando et ipse ibi monachus est, ad quorum xij. solidorum solutionem idem Richardus Muchegros fideliter faciendam, sicut ab avo et patre suo facta est concessio, se et hæ-redes suos in perpetuum constituit debitores termino de-finito.

Carta Roberti de Muchegros dantis ecclesiæ de Theok. secum quando ibi monachus est redditum vj.
solidorum ab hæredibus suis annuatim solvendum, ad Annunciationem sanctæ Mariæ, exceptis illis vj. sol.
quos pater suus Fredericus eidem ecclesiæ dedit, quando et ipse ibi habitum monachi suscepit tempore Alani abbatis.

Carta Thomæ Janitoris per quam reddit ecclesiæ de Theok. et sancti Jacobi de Bristoll terram illam quam uxor sua Matildis divisit Deo et ecclesiæ sancti Jacobi.
Et præterea idem Thomas concessit eidem ecclesiæ sancti Jacobi xij. sol. terræ in rubea terra, et iij^{or}. acras terræ super Aexeliam et duas acras infra ita libere et quiete tenendas sicut R. comes Gloucestriæ dominus suus illi dedit et post eum W. comes filius suus confir-mavit.

Carta Willielmi Trian qui dedit et concessit capellæ sancti Michaelis domus infirmorum monasterii Theok.
quolibet anno xij^d. de redditu prati sui de Theok. ad lumen ejusdem capellæ.

Carta Alexandri de Stoke testificantis quod ipse assensu Roberti filii sui et hæredis quietam clamavit querelam et omnino sopitam remisit Alano abbati et conventui de Theok. de terra de Suilgete, ita quod nec ipse nec hæredes sui inde quicquam unquam clamarent.
Posteaque voluit sub habitu religionis vivere et mori, reddidit seipsum ecclesiæ beatæ Mariæ Theok. et dedit secum et assignavit de consensu prædicti hæredis sui in perpetuam elemosinam totam terram illam et pratum quam filius Sinardi hactenus de eo tenuerat in Langeford, ita quod abbas et conventus inde redderent annuatim Roberto filio suo ij. sol. ad festum sancti Michaelis et hæredibus suis pro omni servitio. Et si forte idem Robertus hæres suus vel ipsius Roberti hæredes non possent warantizare monachis de Theok. illam terram et pratum, tunc ipsi darent prædictæ ecclesiæ v. solid. annuatim pro escambio.

Carta Roberti de Stoke testificantis se præsentem esse cum pater suus remitteret quærelam suam versus ecclesiam de Theok. et cum se redderet eidem ecclesiæ, et totum confirmavit secundum quod carta patris sui proportat.

Carta Simonis de Columba et Roisiæ uxoris suæ concedentium ecclesiæ de Theok. in perpetuam elemosi-nam duas partes decimæ dominii sui de Buterlega in omnibus rebus de quibus decimæ dari debent, tertia parte retenta ad servitium oratorii sui, tempore Alani abbatis.

Carta Simonis de Columba qui concedit pro anima sua et nominatim pro animabus uxoris suæ Roisiæ et filiae suæ Roisiæ, ecclesiæ beatæ Mariæ de Theok. ubi corpus ejusdem uxoris suæ requiescit, totam decimam fœni de dominico suo de terra sua de Pulla quam dominus suus Henricus rex dedit ei pro servitio suo, tempore Alani, abbatis.

NUM. LXXIII.

*Contentio inter A. Abbatem et Herebertum Capellanum

[Ibid. fol. 74.]

DECISIO Causæ quæ vertebatur inter A. abbatem

et conventum Theok. et Herebertum capellanum super vicaria de Craneburna commissione facta auctoritate Celestini papæ Willielmo Herefordensi episcopo et A. abbati de Flexlega. Idem Herebertus dicens se in ecclesia de Craneburna perpetuam vicariam habere, et capellam in curia comitis de ipso comite tenere in capite et non de ecclesia de Theok. et multa alia proponens in dispendium ecclesiæ de Theok. super quibus aliquando tractus in com. auctoritate archiepiscopi coram R. abbate de Cirencestria et P. archidiacono Wigornia ad dominum papam appellavit sacramento præstito de appellatione proseguenda, quam biennium et eo amplius prosequi contempnente; tandem præfatis iudicibus causa demandata, et partibus in iudicio constitutis, idem Herebertus tandem cognovit, sine jure se injuste abbatem vexasse et nullum jus habere, nec in vicaria nec in capella vel aliis rebus quæ proposuerat versus abbatem, et prostratus veniam postulavit; unde abbas, ad præces iudicum remisso ei rancore, permisit, ut in vita sua vicariam teneret; dum tamen fidelitatem servaret. Quæ autem ad vicariam pertinent hæc sunt, Herebertus deserviet tamen ecclesiæ de Craneburna quam suis capellis, hoc est, capellæ de cimiterio, capellæ de curia comitis, capellæ de Winburna abbatis ad voluntatem et præceptum abbatis, vel illius qui in loco ipsius fuerit; nec in ecclesia ipsa de Craneburna vel capellis aliquid præsumet contra voluntatem. In mensa prioris procuratorem habebit singulis diebus et extra nil nisi forte graviter infirmatus, ita quod venire non possit. Die Natalis Domini, die Passionis Domini, die Paschæ, tertiam partem oblationum habebit in ecclesia de Craneburna, oblationem etiam in secunda missa pro defunctis presentibus secundum divisum, usque ad xij^d. quod autem supra fuerit, dividetur inter priorem et ipsum dimidiabiliter. Ad divisum faciendum non ibit nisi sub testimonio missi prioris clerici vel laici. Proventus de confitentibus inter priorem et ipsum dimidiabiliter. Idem Herebertus habebit unam virgatam terræ quam hactenus in Craneburna cum domibus ad ipsam pertinentibus tenuit, etiam totam Wilenagii decimam de Winburna abbatis, cum tertia parte dominici, excepta decima lanæ. Unusquisque denarius, si in missa sua oblatum fuerit suus erit. De sponsalitiis etiam tertiam sibi partem vendicabit. Nullum retinebit capellanum sub se, nisi de voluntate prioris.

NUM. LXXIV.

[Ibid. fol. 84 b.]

FINALIS Concordia inter Ceciliam comitissam Herefordiæ petentem, et Alanum abbatem Theok. anno regni regis Johannis tertio, apud Westmon. a die sancti Michaelis in unum mensem, de uno messuagio cum pertinentiis in Langeford, scilicet quod prædicta Cecilia remisit et quietum clamavit, pro anima sua et antecessorum suorum, de se et hæredibus suis, prædicto abbati et successoribus suis totum jus et clamium quod habuit in prædicto messuagio cum pertinentiis in perpetuum.

NUM. LXXV.

[Ibid.]

FINALIS Concordia facta in curia domini regis apud Merleberg, in octavis clavis Paschæ, anno regni regis Johannis ij. inter Rogerum Corbet et Hawisam uxorem suam petentes, et Alanum abbatem Theok. adforçantem de advocatione ecclesiæ de Chedeslega; unde placitum fuit inter eos in eadem curia, viz. quod ipse abbas remisit eis advocationem ecclesiæ prædictæ, et prædicti R. et Hawisa uxor sua dedit prædicto abbati et ecclesiæ de Theok. iij^{or}. virgatas terræ cum pertinentiis suis in Wadehamet, scilicet, unam virgatam terræ quam Hugo filius H tenuit, et dimidiam virgatam terræ quam Hugo Kinemar tenuit, et unam virgatam quam Ricardus Fid. tenuit, et unam virgatam et dimidiam quam Edmerus Hosp. tenuit. Et præterea quatuor virgatas terræ cum pertinentiis et dimidiam in Dreitona, scilicet, unam virgatam terræ quam Robertus Textor tenuit, et dimidiam virgatam quam Ricardus Langeman tenuit, et dimidiam virgatam terræ quam Thomas filius Sulsweni tenuit, et unam virgatam quam Rogerus filius Viduæ tenuit, et dimidiam virgatam quam Robertus de Winterfold tenuit, et dimidiam virgatam quam Esolvus filius molendinarii tenuit, et dimidiam virgatam quam Matildas vidua tenuit, habendas et tenendas eidem abbati et successoribus suis in puram et perpetuam elemosinam quietas ab omni servitio sæculari et exactione. Et ipse Rogerus et Hawisa uxor ejus et hæredes eorum warrantizabunt abbati et successoribus suis totam prædictam terram contra omnes homines.

Varia Cartæ.

CARTA Johannis de Suwik confirmantis ecclesiæ de Theok. quandam terram in Glouc. quæ jacet extra murum in Glouc. sancti Oswaldi quam Ricardus de Ee tenuit, et in burgo Theok. unum burgagium, et unam acram prati et alteram acram terræ colundæ super Aldebir. quas terras Willielmus pater suus dederat ecclesiæ de Theok. quas etiam Willielmus comes ei dederat pro servitio suo.

Carta Ricardi Swifh concedentis ecclesiæ de Theok. ad luminaria ij. sol. redditus annuatim de terra quam Alanus filius Walteri tenuit de eo, dedit in perpetuum de eadem terra xij^d. ecclesiæ sancti Petri de Bisseleya, et croftam unam in qua horreum sacerdotis situm est, tempore Alani abbatis.

Nicholaus de Sancta Brigida dedit ecclesiæ de Theok. medietatem decimæ suæ de Heresfeld quas canonici Lanton. tenent modo pro decem solidis.

Carta H. Wigorniensis episcopi testificantis quod ad præsentationem monachorum Theok. recepit Ricardum Camberlanum ad illam medietatem ecclesiæ sancti Petri de Bristoll quam Stephanus de Ripun tenuit ante illum, tenendam et habendam sub annua pensione trium solidorum solvendorum ecclesiæ sancti Jacobi Bristoll.

Carta Osberti Algari concedentis ecclesiæ de Theok. ad lumen ecclesiæ vj^d. annuatim reddendos ad festum sancti Clementis, quatuor scilicet de domo sua in qua mansit, et ij^d. de domo quam habuit de Bissel. quos duos den. hæres domus in qua mansit recipere debuit, et illos cum cæteris reddere ad prædictum terminum, tempore abbatis Alani.

Carta Randulphi Finegal concedentis ecclesiæ de Theok. sine aliqua reclauatione sui vel hæredum suorum illam terram totam quæ jacet a parte meridiei juxta vineam monachorum, quæ dicitur Novalanda, in perpetuam elemosinam, tempore Alani abbatis.

Carta magistri Nicholai de Semesbir. de duabus partibus decimarum ejusdem villæ, quas abbas Alanus ei reddidit ad firmam tenendas pro viij. solidis, dum fuerit in sæculari habitu, quos juravit fideliter solvere in octavis Paschæ et etiam sancti Michaelis pro æqua partitione.

Carta Nicholai de Muttona concedentis ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Theok. de consensu Philippi hæredis sui, pratum suum juxta torrentem de Carent, quod Osbernus filius Ailgari aliquando tenuit de eo, tenendum libere et quiete in perpetuum, solvendo inde annuatim ei et hæredibus suis xij^d. in Purificatione sanctæ Mariæ vj^d. et in Nativitate ejusdem vj^d. pro omni servitio.

Carta Willielmi de Colecumba filii Simonis de Hedelega concedentis et confirmantis ecclesiæ de Theok. illam virgatam terræ in Baldehala quam dederat Ricardo fratri suo pro servitio suo, et pro duobus calcaribus de duobus denariis reddendis in Pascha ei et hæredibus suis; et pro xvj. sol. reddendis priori de Malvern per annum pro omni servitio. Quam virgatam terræ idem Ricardus dedit ecclesiæ Theok. cum corpore suo quando in extremis habitum illius ecclesiæ recepit, salvo prædicto servitio Willielmo de Colecumba et hæredibus suis, et prioris majoris Malvernæ prædictis.

Carta Jordani Wace facta ecclesiæ Theok. anno primo W. abbatis de omnibus terris suis de Bristoll; viz. illa quæ est intra burgum Bristoll juxta macellum ex parte occidentali, et illa terra de feudo Roberti filii Marci quæ est proxima prædictæ terræ ex parte aquilonari, quæ reddidit ei annuatim iij. sol. et illa terra quæ est super montem versus ecclesiam sancti Augustini quæ reddit sancto Jacobo de Bristoll annuatim xij^d.; et omnes terras suas de Blidebluna in Hibernia, illam scilicet quæ est juxta ecclesiam sanctæ Trinitatis ex parte occidentali, et illam terram quæ est juxta ecclesiam sancti Audoeni. Præfatus vero abbas et monachi de qua eos seisivit de prædictis terris in pleno hundredo de Bristoll adquietaverunt prædictum Jordanum de xxvj. marcis argenti tam in Judaismo quam alibi, pro quibus terræ ipsæ erant obligatæ creditoribus; et receperunt eum et uxorem suam Editham in societatem sociorum, benefactorum, et orationum ecclesiæ, et invenient eis necessaria omnia in victu et vestitu in tota vita sua.

Carta Milonis Barba April. dantis ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Theok. in perpetuam elemosinam redditum xij^d. de terra quam Robertus Pipere tenuit in villa de Covintre quæ est in fossata baillii castelli comitis.

Carta Ailwardi juvenis facta ecclesiæ Theok. anno primo Walteri abbatis de terra sua in Hibernia quæ dicitur Crosalgium cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, ita quod Mathias et Thomas filii sui et eorum hæredes illam teneant de ecclesia de Theok. solvendo annuatim duos aureos ad festum sancti Michaelis et ipsi eandem terram ab omni servitio adquietabunt.

Carta H. Landavensis episcopi concedentis Domui de Morgan ecclesiam de Kenefet cum capellis, terris et omnibus pertinentiis suis assensu et petitione W. abbatis et conventus Theok. solvendo domui Theok. annuatim x. marcas; quinque infra octavam Paschæ, et quinque infra octavam sancti Michaelis.

Compositio inter W. abbatem et conventum Theok. et magistrum R. Foliot personam capellæ de Bikemer super duabus partibus minutarum decimarum curiæ de Bikemareys quas prædicti abbas et conventus sibi deberi proponebant assensu et voluntate Lambekini qui tunc temporis curam gerebat Roberti Foliot prædictæ capellæ advocati, viz. quod abbas et conventus duas partes decimarum frugum curiæ prædictæ sicut consueverunt, et medietatem omnium minutarum decimarum percipient. Dictus vero R. et successores sui personæ prædictæ capellæ habebunt ad servitium capellæ tertiam partem decimarum frugum, et medietatem minutarum decimarum, et totam decimam fœni de dominico curiæ una cum decima terræ et aliis bonis quæ Willielmus Foliot qui ipsam capellam fundavit eidem capellæ caritative concessit. Hæc compositio confirmata est a partibus et a domino Malgerio Wigorniensis episcopo.

Carta Roberti de la Mare facta ecclesiæ de Theok. et monachis, annuente Mabilia uxore sua et hærede, de una virgata terræ in Wodemanescot cum omnibus pertinentiis suis, liberam et quietam ab omni sæculari servitio et exactione, illam viz. quam Reginaldus Wigig. tenuit de eo, quam virgatam terræ dedit cum corpore suo quando agebat in extremis. Concessit etiam eidem ecclesiæ prædictum Reginaldum, tanquam nativum suum, cum omni sequela sua, in perpetuum.

Controversia inter Malgerum episcopum Wigornensem et Walterum abbatem et monachos Theok. mota anno incarnationis Dominici m.cc.vij. sic quievit; Abbas et monachi parabant per aquam quæ dicitur Avena, Wigorniensis episcopo duas vias competentes, unam versus Gloucestriam, et aliam versus Wigorniam et Malveriam, et paratas conservabunt competentes. Abbas etiam et monachi providebunt, quod episcopus et successores sui nullum damnum incurrent in pratis suis vel molendino de Bredona occasione molendini monachorum, neque aquæ detentæ pro molendino suo.

Controversia inter ecclesiam de Theok. et ecclesiam sanctæ Mariæ de Tweninga, tempore Malgerii Wigorniensis episcopi et W. abbatis Theok. amicabiliter sic quievit; ecclesia de Theok. habebit plenarie omnes decimas garbarum et omnium aliarum rerum de omnibus illis terris quas Walter de Mutta tenuit in Tweninga de feodo comitis Gloucestriæ et Duddingheshale, et de omnibus illis terris quas Willielmus Wigorniensis tenuit in eadem villa de eodem feodo. De illa autem virgata quam prædictus Walterus tenuit de feodo abbatis de Winchelcumba in prædicta villa nihil recipiet ecclesia de Theok. nec de Buttecroft. De omnibus autem illis terris quæ sunt in eadem villa de feodo comitis Gloucestriæ quas Ricardus de Lecche et Robertus Levieth, et Henricus filius Rogeri, et Willielmus Hoc, et Willielmus Wlmar, et Sebinus Hoc tenuerunt percipiet ecclesia de Theok. duas partes decimarum de garbis, et mortuorum corpora cum principali legato de eisdem terris præter illam virgatam terræ quam Willielmus Pac et Nicholaus frater ejus tenuerunt, in qua ecclesia de Tweninga omnes decimas et omnia jura parochialia percipiet. Ecclesia etiam de Tweninga, et quicumque in ea persona fuerit recipiat partem decimarum de garbis cum omnibus minutis decimis, oblationibus, et obventionibus quæ de præfatis terris provenire poterint. De quibus terris ecclesia de Theok. duas partes garbarum percipiet. Hæc compositio in cirographum reducta sigillo abbatis et conventus Theok. et magistri Simonis de Hailes rectoris ecclesiæ de Tweninga confirmata est.

Compositio inter abbatem W. de Theok. et Henricum de Campo Ernaldi militem, de terra quæ dicitur Ealdeduna, quam prædictus abbas et monachi de Theok. dicebant ad villam suam pertinere, hoc modo facta est; Henricus prædictus de consensu Oliveri hæredis sui et aliorum hæredum ejus quietam clamavit ecclesiæ de Theok. medietatem illius terræ in perpetuum. Et monachi clamaverunt ei et hæredibus suis quietam aliam medietatem, et hoc a procuratore monachorum magistro Petro apud Oxon et a prædictis Henrico et hærede suo Olivero firmiter in perpetuum tenendum affidavit.

Carta Jordani Parcarii et Margaretæ uxoris suæ concedentium ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Theok. et monachis totam aquam quæ est super terram suam quæ dicitur Superior Caldevall, ut monachi eam ducant libere et quiete per terram eorum quantum durat versus sine ulla molestia eorum vel hæredum suorum in futurum; et emendent in futurum quicquid emendandum fuerit sive in aquæ ductu sive in aqua pro commodo domus Theok. anno quo Anglia interdicta est.

Carta Osborni filii Ailgari concedentis et confirmantis ecclesia de Theok. die qua Willielmus filius suus ibidem monachus est totam terram et curtilagium cum cameris inibi ædificatis in burgo Theok. scilicet, quæ sunt inter domum Willielmi de Camera, ita quod ipse et hæredes sui prædicta curtilagia, terram et cameras ibidem ædificatas ab omni sæculari servitio adquietarent. Præterea concessit eidem ecclesiæ eadem die i. solidam in prædicto burgo Theok. de feudo Aluredi fabri quæ est prima domus ejus quam ipse emit a Rogero Talun, ita quod monachi prædictæ ecclesiæ adquietent illam terram annuatim versus prædictum Aluredum, et hæredes ejus de gabulo iij^{ord}. ad quatuor terminos anni.

Carta Roberti de Berga resignantis in manu W. abbatis et monachorum Theok. totam terram quam tenuerat in villa de Forhelmetun tam ex dono Alani abbatis, quam ex dono W. abbatis successoris sui, sine aliquo retinemento. Juravit etiam in præsentia prædictorum et aliorum multorum super altare sanctæ Mariæ de Theok. quod nunquam præsumet per se vel per hæredes suos repetere prædictam terram, et cartam posuit super altare, in hujus rei testimonium, anno ab incarnatione Domini m^occ^o.x. die sancti Jacobi apostoli.

sanctæ Mariæ Theok. et abbati et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus pro salute animæ meæ et hæredum meorum et antecessorum meorum in puram et perpetuam elemosinam tres acras prati in Strengesham de meo prato super Abenam, quæ jacent juxta pratum Rogeri clerici ad aquilonem habendas et tenendas de me et hæredibus meis liberas et quietas in perpetuum ab omni servitio et exactione sæculari. Et ego Robertus et hæredes mei debemus warantizare prædictas acras prati prædictis monachis et abbati contra omnes homines et fœminas. Ut hæc autem mea donatio firma et stabilis in posterum permaneat eam præsentī carta mea sigilli mei impressione munita corroboravi, hiis testibus, &c.

[Ibid. fol. 88 b.]

SCIANT præsentēs et futuri quod ego Robertus Bigod et hæres Hugonis Bigod dedi et concessi et hac præsentī carta mea confirmavi ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ de Theok. et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus totam terram meam de Godrinton quæ jure hæreditario me continebat ad perpetuam firmam, tam illam quam mater mea ibi habuit in dote ex dono patris mei, quam illam quam ego habui in manu mea, tenendam et habendam ad feudifirmam de me, cum pertinentiis, tam in dominicis quam in servitiis liberorum hominum et redditibus, in villenagiis, et molendinis, et boscis, et pratis, et pascuis, stagnis, et vivariis et in omnibus aisiamentis in villa de Godrinton et extra villam; reddendo inde annuatim in perpetuum mihi et hæredibus meis ij. sol. sterlingorum ad duos terminos anni, viz. ad festum sancti Michaelis xij^d. et ad Pascha xij^d. pro omnibus servitiis aliis et exactionibus et demandis, salvo servitio forinseco. Ego vero Robertus le Bigod et hæredes mei warrantizabimus prædictis monachis totam prædictam terram cum omnibus pertinentiis prænominatis contra omnes gentes. Et si forte eis warrantizare non poterimus faciemus eis rationabile escambium loco competenti. Pro hac autem mea donatione et perpetuæ firmæ concessionē prædicti monachi dederunt mihi de pecunia domus suæ quatuor viginti marcas argenti et quatuor et ij. palefridos ad corpus meum redimendum de prisoña domini regis Johannis in qua urgentissime diu detentus fui. Ut igitur hæc mea donatio et perpetuæ firmæ concessio incussa permaneat similiter eam præsentī scripto sigilli mei appositione munitam roboravi. Hiis testibus.

NUM. LXXVIII.

UNIVERSIS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis ad quos præsens carta pervenerit S. Dei gratia Wigorniensis episcopus, æternam in Domino salutem. Cum ex susceptione officii pastoralis regimine plantare debemus religionem et fovere plantatam; quam si forte non habemus in nobis in aliis tamen augere tenemur et conservare. Attendentes in locis religiosis illud coram Deo et hominibus specialius præfulgere quod in ipso fonte caritatis frequentius exercetur ipsa opera caritatis in eis augere decrevimus et nutrire. Verum quod hospitum susceptio magister est et magistra inter cætera caritatis opera, dicente Domino, 'Hospes fui et collegistis me,' considerantes eam compositione et copiositate studiosa in abbatiā de Theok. continne vigere, divinæ pietatis intuitu dedimus et concessimus abbati et monachis Theok. in proprios et perpetuos usus suos ecclesiam de Amenel, et eos in ejusdem ecclesiæ corporalem possessionem solemniter fecimus induci. Ita videlicet quod dicti abbas et monachi habeant et possideant prænominatam ecclesiam cum omnibus pertinentiis suis erogandam in perpetuos usus hospitum per magistrum hospitum, quicun-que pro tempore fuerit ibidem constitutus; salva perpetua vicaria quinque marcarum honesto et idoneo capellano qui in ecclesia illa in propria persona deservierit ab ipsis præsentato et a nobis et successoribus nostris canonice admissio. Salvis etiam nobis et successoribus nostris et archidiaconis loci jure pontificali et parochiali, et aliis hominibus ordinariis et consuetis a dictis abbate et monachis sustinendum et præstandum. Ut autem hæc nostra concessio et donatio perpetuæ firmitatis robur obtineat, eam præsentis scripti testimonio, et tam sigilli nostri proprii quam sigilli universitatis conventus nostri Wigorniensis auctoritate pontificali corroboravimus. Hiis testibus &c.

Honorius papa eam confirmat ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Theok. anno incarnationis Dominicæ m^o.cc.xx^o. tempore Petri ejusdem loci abbatis. Et eodem anno celebrata est secunda coronatio regis Henrici filii regis Johannis apud London in die Pentecostes xvi. kal. Junii. Et eodem anno facta est translatio sancti Thomæ martyris quondam Cantuariensis archiepiscopi per dominum S. Cantuariensem archiepiscopum in octava apostolorum Petri et Pauli, iij. idus Julii.

WILLIELMUS comes Gloucestræ suo dapifero Normannio, omnibusque baronibus et hominibus, et universis sanctæ ecclesiæ filiis, salutem. Sciatis me pro salute animæ Roberti comitis Gloucestræ patris mei, et salute animarum mei ipsius et uxoris meæ et liberorum nostrorum dedisse et concessisse ecclesiam de Escremovilla cum sibi pertinentibus in elemosinam Deo et ecclesiæ sancti Jacobi apud Bristoll, in qua corpus patris mei requiescit, ad victum monachorum ibi degentium, salvo tenemento Picardi clerici mei ejusdem ecclesiæ personæ dum vixerit. Hiis testibus &c.

Carta Henrici Dei gratia regis Angliæ, ducis Normanniæ et Aquitaniæ, et comitis Andegaviæ, archiepiscopo Rotomagensi, episcopis, abbatibus, comitibus, justiciariis, baillivis et omnibus ministris et fidelibus suis Normannis, salutem. Sciatis me concessisse et præsentī carta confirmasse ecclesiæ sancti Jacobi apostoli apud Bristou et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus ecclesiam de Escremovilla cum omnibus pertinentiis suis quam Willielmus comes Gloucestræ eis dedit in perpetuam elemosinam pro salute animæ patris sui Roberti comitis Gloucestræ, sicut carta prædicti comitis Willielmi quam inde habent testatur. Quare volo et firmiter præcipio quod prædicti monachi habeant et teneant prædictam ecclesiam de Escromovilla cum ad eam pertinentibus bene et in pace, et libere et quiete, et integre et honorifice sicut comes Willielmus eis dedit, et carta sua confirmavit. Hiis testibus.

Henricus Dei gratia Baiocensis episcopus omnibus fidelibus ad quos præsens carta pervenerit salutem, gratiam et benedictionem. Noverit universitas vestra, quod concessimus et Dei auctoritate et nostra confirmamus ecclesiam de Escremovilla cum omnibus pertinentiis suis tam internis quam externis et cæteris beneficiis ecclesiæ sanctæ Mariæ Theok. et ecclesiæ sancti Jacobi Bristoll, quam Willielmus comes Gloucestræ eisdem dedit ecclesiis pro anima patris sui in perpetuam elemosinam, et carta sua confirmavit. Concessimus itaque præfatis ecclesiis presentationem vicarii cum integritate omnium rerum quæ pertinent ad catietatiam^a præfatæ ecclesiæ de Escremovilla, salvo jure Bajocensis episcopi et consuetudine. Et ut hoc ratum et inconcussum permaneat, id cartæ nostræ et sigilli nostri munimine corroboravimus. Hiis testibus.

Rotrodus Dei gratia Rotomagensis archiepiscopus omnibus fidelibus tam præsentibus quam futuris ad quos præsens carta pervenerit, salutem. Volumus in publicam notitiam devenire, quod concessimus et Dei auctoritate et nostra confirmavimus donationem Willielmi comitis Gloucestræ, et confirmationem H. venerabilis

[Ibid. fol. 92 b.]

MEMORANDUM quod die Mercurii proxima ante festum apostolorum Philippi et Jacobi in capella beatæ Katarinæ apud Westmonasterium London comparuit Robertus prior Theok. et magister Ricardus de Fraxino cum literis conventus Theok. destinati ab eis ad petendum beneficium absolutionis in forma ecclesiæ pro eo quod nominatim excommunicati erant, ob hoc quod corpus P. quondam abbatis sui a domino Wigorniese nominatim excommunicatio in ecclesia Theok. traditum sepulturæ post denunciationem rite præmissam ejicere noluerunt: et licet de rigore literæ procuratoriæ ad absolutionem petendam nos essent sufficientes, dominus episcopus Wigorniensis gratiam eis faciens, a dicto R. priore et P. de delegatis monachorum Theok. necnon a dicto procuratore in animam totius conventus de Theok. de parendo mandatis ecclesiæ recepto sacramento, eos absolvit, necnon et sacramento præstito ab eisdem nihil in hoc negotio fraudulenter actum esse. Quibus solemniter peractis sub virtute præstiti sacramenti est eis injunctum, ut die solenni ab episcopo prædicto eis præfigendo in ecclesia de Theok. præsentem eodem episcopo et omnibus qui audire voluerint publice confiteantur quod quia non constare fecerunt episcopo de signis pœnitentiæ dicti abbatis super eo, scilicet quod in extremis constitutus absolutionem petiit sententiæ quam episcopus in eum tulisse dicebatur idem episcopus eos compellere possit ad corpus ejusdem abbatis ejiciendum, mitius tamen cum eis agere volens eis pepercit, quia de signis pœnitentiæ dicti abbatis ei constat, ut corpus ejusdem a sententia excommunicationis illius tunc reddat absolutum. Et si forte aliqui de monachis de Theok. nominatim excommunicati divina celebraverunt, ita quod propter hoc irregularitatem incurrerint, injunctum est eis, ut omnes illi qui ita celebraverint sedem adeant apostolicam, nec interim divina celebrent officia; et hoc si animabus suis viderint expedire; in hoc enim conscientiæ suæ eos reliquit. De generali autem sententia in conventum de Theok. lata a domino Wigornensi pro intrusionem facta in ecclesia de Feirford conscientiæ suæ eos committit. Excepto W. de Bellocampo monacho Theok. pro eadem causa nominatim excommunicato, qui sub prædicta excommunicatione nullo modo continetur. In cujus rei testimonium tam dominus Wigorniensis quam dictus magister Ricardus procurator dicti conventus Theok. præsentem scripto sigilla sua apposuerunt.

SEPTIMO idus Maii dominica tertia post octavam Paschæ de assensu communi et nullo reclamante vel contradicente electus fuit Robertus prior Theok. in abbatem ejusdem loci, sub tali forma. Impetrata licentia eligendi a domino H. de Burgo comite Canciæ, justiciario Angliæ et custode advocati nostri, Ricardi de Clar' recognoscente et concedente domino H. rege jus et libertatem ejusdem R. de advocacione abbathiæ de Theok. impetrata etiam absolutione a sententia qua dictus episcopus Wigorniensis W. dicebatur nos innodasse, qui etiam contra electionem nostram appellavit propter dictam sententiam, multis habitis orationibus in conventu de forma eligendi, tandem ita convenit, scilicet, quod primo lecta regula, et postea capitulo concilii de forma simplicis electionis secundum formam concilii procedendum esse decretum est; eo quod non esset contraria regulæ, scilicet ut tres fratres bonæ opinionis ab omnibus et nullo contradicente electi sint qui vota singulorum examinando cognoscerent. Priore primum prædictorum fratrum scilicet Ricardum de Bristoll nominante, secundum vero ex choro abbatis per Robertum tunc præcentorum nominato, scilicet Johanne de Sw-wike, tertium autem ex choro prioris Ricardum de Derbi sumpserunt. Isti tres auditis votis singulorum per consensum conventus, invocata gratia Spiritus Sancti et oratione præmissa, nominaverunt prædictum priorem, ex parte majoris partis et sanioris, et sensu et numero, eo quod esset vir bonæ opinionis et religionis et honestæ vitæ, misericordiæ, et pacis, et amator sacri ordinis, ut dispersa congregaret et congregata conservaret; qui multum renitens et plura objiciens, sed tandem victus instantia et præce conventus vix adquevit, dicens coram Deo in medio, quod mallet morti subiacere quam violare bonas et approbatas consuetudines ecclesiæ et quod eas pro posse suo sustineret, et quod nihil statueret circa obedientiariorum, vel alia in quibus de jure debet inquiri. Consensus conventus habet eorum consensu. Deinde paulo post venit dictus R. cum literis præsentatoriis conventus, scilicet ij. idus Maii apud Dorkecestrum quando colloquium habuit cum domino justiciario, licet breve; die vero sequenti comparuit coram justiciario et porrectis literis conventus, et eis diligenter auditis, sic respondit vir nobilis. Quia accepta a nobis licentia eligendi vobis abbatem ratione custodiæ patroni vestri quam habemus, ut nobis videtur secundum Deum processistis, si bene feceritis, inter Deum et vos sit. Electum diligenter suscepit et electioni consentiens manibus connexis in osculo pacis benigne suscepit, monens eum ut pompam sæculi relinqueret, et domum suam et monachos suos diligenter custodiret, et ipse ei consilium et auxilium in omnibus suis agendis diligentissime præstaret. Ipso ita a justiciario recepto, misit domi ab Staneweia Petrum et Robertum tunc præcentorem, retento secum Alano Corner, et H. tunc celerario qui domum venientes literas conventus præsentationis electi apud Wigorniam ex parte conventus detulerunt, agente R. prædicto convenientibus apud Wigorniam domino rege, justiciario, cancellario, episcopo Wigorniae et multis aliis, die Ascensionis Domini, scilicet in crastino sancti Dunstani inter magnam missam quam dominus episcopus Cycestriæ domini regis cancellarius celebravit, domino Wigornienso loco cantoris Ebor. tenente, præsentatus est dictus electus ibidem domino episcopo ex parte domini regis et justiciarii per manum domini Ricardi capellani et thesaurarii domini regis aliquando cancellarii domini justiciarii prædicti, domino rege dicente episcopo, ‘Domine episcope miserere pauperum illorum et parce expensis illorum quas faciunt causa electionis suæ. Multis enim debitis tenentur.’ Cui episcopus, ‘Domine vos et justiciarius fecistis quod vestrum fuit, admittendo electum, oportet quod ego faciam quod episcopi est cognoscendo de electione, si rite celebrata fuerit et canonice.’ In crastino autem venit apud Theok. archidiaconus Wigorniae, et pluribus aliis comitantibus clericis suis sapientioribus, et intrant capellam cum solo archidiacono Wigorniae, et dicto, ‘Benedicite,’ proposuit quia viduata fuit ecclesia nostra pastore, et ut audivit, elegimus priorem nostrum per licentiam advocati nostri mediante justiciario custode ipsius, sub qua forma volens scire, et tres dixit esse formas concilii contra quas si in aliquo fecimus nulla est electio nostra. Ostensa igitur forma electionis nostræ, dixit quod non fuit usquequaque secundum formam concilii celebrata, eo quod vota singulorum non erant mox in capitulo publicata; nobis e contra dicentibus, quod sic, et si forte in aliquo commisimus, simplicitas nostra debet excusare nos. Tandem nobis petentibus et illo consentiente, lectum fuit capitulum concilii de electione faciendâ, nec tamen totum. Et dixit, nullam istarum trium formarum tenuistis. Deinde requisivit, ubi essent illi tres fratres qui vota singulorum audierunt. Duobus vero ostensis Johanne et Ricardo, tertius vero fuit apud Bristoll, R. fecit dictos duos jurare tactis sacrosanctis quod dicerent verum. Sic reconcessit conventus, et illis diligenter examinatis inspexit episcopus duo paria literarum, scilicet præsentationis electi episcopi, et testimoniales electionis nostræ, in qua continebatur forma et modus ejusdem electionis. Postea visis literis et sufficienter examinatis

[Ibid. fol. 94 b.]

In nomine Patris et Filii et Spiritus Sancti, Amen. Ordinata est ecclesia sanctæ Mariæ Theokesburiensis cœnobii. Divisa sunt viz. ejusdem ecclesiæ quæque ministeria; et nominatim sunt distributa quæque quibusque, et singulis ministeriis pertinentia in eisdem ministeriis perpetualiter, quamdiu scilicet sæculum duraverit Deo opitulante firma assertione permansura et convenienter et divisæ sunt constituta ad singulas utilitates domus Dei regendas et promovendas quæque necessaria, sicut subsequenti capitulatione inscribitur. Sunt autem hæc ad monachorum mensam pertinentia. In ipsa Theodekesburia molendini duo, piscaria una, terra de Phytentona, decima domini et hominum ejusdem villæ, decimæ quorundam vicinorum, tertia pars omnium elemosinarum quæ fuerint in ecclesia, vel in capitulo quocunque modo fiunt in eadem domo Dei, præter consuetudines parochiæ, ecclesia sancti Petri de Bristoll, obedientia de Wallis præter terram quæ fuit Walchelini, Balingehopa juxta Hereford, Wasseburna, Stanleya, Staneweya, Tatintona, Leomintona, Amenel, Altentuna, Werftona, Tarenta. Hoc autem manerium Tarenta dedit abbas ejusdem ecclesiæ nomine Gyraldus, prece Roberti filii Haymonis, ad emendationem victus monachorum die hujus ordinationis. Unde tunc definita fuit fore cotidiana melioratio victus eorum duodecim denar.

Ad vestes monachorum pertinet ecclesia de Wairford, terra de Middelonda, omnes ecclesiæ quæ fuerunt Roberti capellani, Kingestona, postquam cœnobium, ædificatum fuerit. De manu abbatis centum solidi, donec constituentur in terra.

Ad secretariam pertinent omnes consuetudines parochiæ præter decimas. De elemosina dominici xl. sol. tertia pars omnium extrinsecarum elemosinarum quæ fiunt in eadem ecclesia.

Ad emendum parcamentum pertinet quædam terra in Walis quæ fuit Walkelini, decima Roberti de Baskerewille.

Ad elemosinam pertinet Ceotel in Dorsete, terra de Pequemintona, una haya ad Wyncelcumbam, decima totius victus cœnobii, decima census de Bristoll.

Cæteri redditus et terræ quas privilegium ecclesiæ nominando distinguit, ad emendum terras, ornamenta, ad supplenda omnia deficientia prædictorum, ad agenda quælibet opera, ad explendas omnes res abbatis ordinantur.

Facta est hæc Ordinatio a prædicto abbate, monitu et consilio Roberti filii Haymonis ejusdem ecclesiæ fundatoris et domini, ipso præsentem et Sibilia uxore sua, atque filia sua Mabilia, Gylebertoque de Deulframvilla, Ricardo de Croyle, multisque aliis, præsentem etiam toto conventu ipsius ecclesiæ, v^{to}. kal. Octobris, anno scilicet ab incarnatione Domini m.c^{mo}.v^{to}.: quo eodem Henricus rex Anglorum destruxit Baiocas incendio. Hujus ordinationis violatorem, si forte ullo tempore surrexerit, excommunicavit, eodem die abbas prædictus, ut a consortio cœlesti separatus in pœnis gehennalibus permaneat sine fine cruciandus, nisi satisfaciens resipuerit, toto conventu ecclesiæ et omnibus qui aderant respondentibus Amen.

[Ibid. fol. 96.]

ANNO gratiæ m.cc.xl. nono. Anno regni regis Henrici filii regis xxxiv. tempore domini Roberti abbatis Theouk. captus est quidam latro nomine Ricardus filius Aluredi de Wrthe de feodo abbatis in Dors. et quia baillivi abbatis minus discreti erant, nec etiam unquam viderunt iudicium fieri de latrone in curia abbatis volentes consulere discretiores quid agendum esset eis in tali casu, dum res moram traheret longiorem, ductus est latro ille ad curiam domini comitis de Craneburn, ubi iudicatus est et suspensus per insipientiam baillivorum abbatis. Quo audito abbas vehementer commotus est versus baillivos suos, et dolore cordis tactus videns libertatem ecclesiæ suæ in hoc facto nimis læsam; et dum ista agerentur captus est et alius latro in feodo abbatis ibidem, nomine Johannes Milksop filius Rogeri Milksop de Berkel, et ductus est in curiam abbatis apud Upwynburnam, et ibidem imprisonatus circa festum sancti Andree apostoli. Hoc audito abbas festinanter præparavit et venit ad locum illum, et fecit summoniri curiam suam, et vocavit multos tam de suis quam de vicinis, milites et liberos volens uti libertate sua ibidem sicut et fecit apud Theok. sed baillivus comitis hoc non permisit, quia intendebat facere de isto sicut et de primo, faciens districtiones in terra abbatis pro detentione latronis. Quo viso abbas tempestive adivit dominum suum, viz. Ricardum de Clare tunc comitem Gloucestræ, et ostendit ei verbo ad verbum injuriam sibi factam contra libertatem et tenorem cartarum prædecessorum suorum quas etiam eidem tradidit inspiciendas. Dominus vero comes dissuasus fuit per consiliarios suos contrarios, et non permisit abbati uti libertate sua sed descendit ad inquisitionem, volens certificari de libertate abbatis in hunc modum.

‘Ricardus de Clare, &c. Adæ de Becktesgat baillivo suo de Craneburna, salutem. Monstravit nobis dilectus noster abbas Theok. quod quidam latro captus est in terra sua de quo dicit se habere libertatem in curia sua faciendi iudicium, et tu ei facere non permittis. Quocirca tibi mandamus quatenus illud iudicium in respectum ponas, et diligenter inquiras si dictus abbas aliquo tempore tali libertate usus fuerit, vel nos vel antecessores nostri de latronibus in terra sua captis, et illam inquisitionem nobis sub sigillo tuo habere facias. Vale, dat. circa festum Purificationis apud Theok.’

Et propter absentiam majorum et discretorum de curia de Craneburna non fiebat inquisitio ista. Unde abbas magis fatigatus tandem accessit ad dominum comitem; sed adhuc nihil aliud potuit impetrare nisi literas iterato de inquisitione facienda per hoc breve,

Veniens ibi abbas apud Craneburnam ad curiam domini comitis, porrectum est breve istud in medium, quo perlecto electi sunt inquisitores secundum formam mandati; viz. Rogerus Waspul, Robertus de Lucy, Henricus de Wyrleya, Willielmus de Franceys, Thomas Aland, Ricardus de la Forde, Ricardus le Wodeward, Robertus de Musters, Walterus Abbe, Willielmus filius Adæ, Johannes de Gillingeham, Rogerus le Yreis, et quidam de nominatis erant ex Phariseis. Dicunt per auditum quod antiquis temporibus habuerunt abbas et conventus libertatem suspendendi et furcas erigendi; sed nullus eorum recolit, nec meminit vidisse tempus.

Dicunt vero quidam in inquisitione assistentes quod recolunt vidisse tempus quando unus natus abbas de Wynb. appellavit filium suum in curia de Craneb. et convictum super crimen furti suspendit eum. Item dicunt quod in hoc anno post festum Omnium Sanctorum proxime præteritum captus fuit quidam latro in terra abbatis, et super furto convictus in curia de Craneb. passus fuit iudicium suspendii. Dicunt etiam quod senescallus abbatis instanter petiit curiam domini sui de eodem latrone; sed quia specialiter non fuit datus procurator ad hoc prosequendum in curia de Craneb. neque per literas abbatis neque speciale mandatum senescalli de Craneb. ex quo latro convictus fuit super furto, decrevit iudicium non differri. Sentiens igitur abbas multa sibi imminere dispendia, et inquisitionem sibi esse contrariam, posuit clamium suum contra inquisitionem et inquisitores, quod tacito ordine juris facta est inquisitio, qui substituerunt utrum latro iste iudicatus esset in curia de Craneb. tempore custodiæ vel tempore veri domini. Videns etiam quod baillivus adeo tardasset quod nullatenus attingere posset ad dominum comitem cum inquisitione, die, et loco nominatis, timens insuper quod dominus comes nimium remotus esset a loco illo, cum esset in procinctu ad transfretandum, adeo amicabiliter locutus est, et aperta manu quod habuit transcriptum inquisitionis sub sigillo baillivi, nec sibi nec suis parcens eadem die iter arripuit versus dominum comitem quem invenit apud Thonebrugg. In crastino autem commutans dominus comes consiliarios suos crudele responsum, et pejus priore dedit abbati, viz. quod custodiret prisonem suam usque ad reditum suum in Angliam, quia adhuc voluit magis certificari de processu rei, et de inquisitione minus rite facta, secundum clamium quod abbas posuit contra ipsam inquisitionem. Hiis auditis, multum tristis effectus abbas, et omnes qui cum ipso erant, respondit quod non habuit castellum neque carcerem ad custodiend. prisiones per tantum tempus, cum etiam in dubio esset reditus comitis in Angliam, et multiplicavit precem tantum quod exauditus est sub hac forma.

Venit igitur abbas ad Upwynburn. kal. Aprilis, et tenebat curiam suam ad quam venit multitudo clericorum et laicorum. Venit etiam prædictus baillivus comitis ad petitionem abbatis sicut unus de populo. Roboravit enim abbas curiam suam de multo consilio, quia dicebatur inter plebeios quod latro iste fuit aliquando Uthlac coram justiciariis domini regis apud Syreburn. et ideo voluit abbas procedere in hoc facto sub multorum discretorum testimonio et consilio. Et processum est ita.

Andreæ anno regni regis Henrici filii regis Johannis xxxiiij^o. quod Johannes Milksop de Craneb. furatus fuit xxxj^d. a bursa Walteri Wymund de Brist. ad domum Alic. relictæ Haywardi de Oudelinton, et nocte illa idem Johannes cum prædictis denariis furatis posuit se in fugam versus Wodekeswrthe. Quando prænominatus Walterus Wymond sciebat quod denarii ejus furati fuerunt secutus fuit eundem Johannem cum clam. et hutes. patriæ ad boscum de Wodekeswrthe, et ibidem cum clam. et hutes. ut latro cum dicto latrocinio captus fuit; et ad curiam domini abbatis de Theok. apud Upwymb. imprisonatus, et in prisona detentus usque ad diem hundredi dicti abbatis. Ad prædictum hundredum venit prænominatus Walterus Wymund, et prædictum Johannem Milksop appellavit de dictis xxxi. denariis sibi per eundem Johannem Milksop furatis, qui denarii separatim inventi fuerunt in manibus dicti Johannis in pleno hundredo, et eundem appellavit de dicto latrocinio.

Unde judicium hundredi consideravit quod idem Johannes Milksop nihil respondit quod ei valere posset. Ideo judicatus suspenditur.

Wimburn, or Winburn, Monastery,

IN DORSETSHIRE.

WIMBURN, or Winburn, monastery was founded by Cuthburga, daughter of Kenred, and sister of Ina, kings of the West Saxons, for nuns of the Benedictine order.

Cuthburga was espoused to Egfrid king of the Northumbrians, but the nuptials not being completed, she separated herself from him, and retired to the monastery of Barking in Essex ; and afterwards built this nunnery, where she passed the remainder of her days in devotion, and was buried, as Leland informs us, in the presbytery or choir.^a

According to some of our historians, the nunnery of Wimburn was built in the year 713. The Annals of Derleye say in 715.^b John of Tinemouth, and Leland from a Chronicle of Rievaulx abbey, in 718. Henry of Huntingdon places it between the 26th and 36th years of Ina's reign, that is between A.D. 713 and 723.^c The Saxon Chronicle mentions the foundation incidentally under the year 718, without noticing the actual year in which it took place.^d Camden, in his account of Dorsetshire, fixes the foundation in 713.

Bishop Tanner, and Hutchins in his History of Dorsetshire, give this nunnery an earlier date, from the notice of it in an epistle of Aldhelm bishop of Sherburn, concerning the liberty of election granted to all congregations under his government : in which the same liberty is said to be granted to the monastery seated by the river called Winburnia, over which CUTHBERGA, the king's sister, presided. This epistle is dated A.D. 705. The third year of the Indiction.^e

St. Quenburga, sister of Cuthburga, according to Tinemouth's Historia Aurea, was a co-foundress.^f She is said to have been also buried at Wimburn.^g

Cressey, in his Church History, informs us that

Agatha and Lioba, two sisters, were educated in this nunnery under TETTA the sister of King Ina. Lioba and Agatha becoming afterwards, successively, abbesses of Scoversheim, near Mentz, in Germany. They both died A.D. 752.^h

The nunnery, or monastery, of Wimburn, was originally dedicated to the Virgin Mary ; but, in after ages, to St. Cuthburga the foundress, who occurs in most of the printed Calendars for the English use previous to the Reformation. The Missals printed at Rouen in 1515, and at Paris in 1519 and 1529, in quarto, have an office prescribed to her as a virgin, used every year on her anniversary, August 31st.ⁱ

The nunnery having been destroyed by the Danes, King Edward the Confessor, or one of his predecessors of the same name, converted it into a house of secular canons.^k

No remains of the original church of Wimburn are now to be found. The present structure is of Norman origin, though still dedicated to the Virgin Mary and St. Cuthburg. On the north side of the altar, however, in the chancel of the church, are the three quarter effigies of a king, crowned and sceptered, with this inscription :

"IN HOC LOCO QUIESCIT CORPUS SANCTI ETHELREDI REGIS WEST SAXONUM, MARTYRIS, QUI ANNO DOM. DCCC.LXXII. XXIII^o. DIE APRILIS PER MANUS DANORUM PAGANORUM OCCUBUIT."

Beneath the inscription, which looks little older than the sixteenth century, is an escutcheon charged with a cross fleury. Carter, who has engraved this monument in his Specimens of Ancient Sculpture and Painting, No. xxviii. has, by mistake, given it the date of 827.^l

The interment of Ethelred at Wimburn is noticed in the Saxon Chronicle under the year 871;^m as well as that of King Sigefurth under the year 961.ⁿ

The History of the COLLEGIATE FOUNDATION of WIMBURN is reserved for another portion of the Monasticon.

NIHIL in hoc sæculo prolixa foelicitate fruitur; nihil diuturna dominatione potitur; nihil, quod non ad fatalem vitæ terminum veloci cursu tendere videatur. Et ideo sic nobis mundanarum rerum patrimonia sunt perfruenda ut tamen æternæ patriæ emolumentis nunquam fraudaremur. Hinc est enim quod ego Aldhelmus, postquam me immeritum, nullisque prædignis moribus comprobatum in pontificatus officii sedem divina gratia subtronizasset: proposui arcano mentis meæ affectu, ut monasteriis meis Maeldumesburgs, Froom, Bradamford, quibus jamdudum in abbatatus gradu constitutus suffragante Domino regulariter præfui; religiosum abbatem, quem sibi spontanea familiarum mearum optio consona voce elegissent, canonica creatione atque regulari sanctione constituissent. His voluntariis propositionibus meis pia monachorum meorum restitit pertinacitas: et cum hoc sedulo sæpius in conventu fratrum meorum fiducialiter narrassem nullus his votis meis placidissimum præbebat assensum; dicentes, 'Quamdiu vitali vegetaris spiritu nobiscum præsentis vitæ studio deputaris, tuæ semper dominationis jugo humillime colla subdere non dedignamur. Sed hoc supplici prece communique rogatu deprecamur, quod sub sacra scripturarum testificatione et favorabilium virorum claro consensu corrobore, ut nullus post obitum tuum nec regalis audacitas, nec pontificalis autoritas, vel aliquis ecclesiasticæ seu sæcularis dignitatis vir, sine nostro voluntatis arbitrio in nobis sibi vendicet principatum.' Huic debitæ monachorum meorum maxime famulorum Dei petitioni libentissime consensi, et in monasterio quod juxta fluvium qui dicitur Wimburnia situm est, cui venerandi regis nostri germana Cuthburg præsidet, cum optabili famosissimi regis Yny consensu, et reverendissimi fratris et coepiscopi mei Danielis præsentatæ promissionis devoto nutu, decentissimam vernarum Domini postulationem sacræ crucis signaculo confirmavi. Croxland Abbey, Lincolnshire, 1815.

who all lived in separate cells, near to the oratory of Guthlac: in these, by Kenulph's leave, they were suffered to pass the remainder of their days. Pega, also, Guthlac's sister, within a year after her brother's death, leaving his psalter, with the whip of St. Bartholomew and other reliques, in the hands of abbat Kenulph, retired to her cell, about four "leucæ"^a from her brother's oratory; where having continued two years and three months, she went to Rome, and there finished her life.^b

In the third year of Ethelbald's reign, having completed the endowment of Croyland monastery, he promulgated an Instrument, which is also preserved by Ingulphus, called "Statutum Ethelbaldi,"^c relieving the monasteries and churches of his kingdom, generally, from all secular services, except the repair of castles and bridges.

Having reigned forty-one years, Ethelbald was slain at Seggeswold by Bernred, an usurper, in 755, who was himself cut off the same year.^d Ethelbald, being buried at Ripedune, or Repton, was succeeded by Offa, the grandson of his uncle, the founder of the monastery of St. Alban.

Offa, who also reigned forty years, granted to

PATRICK, the successor of Kenulph in the abbacy, his Charter of protection, dated in 793.^e

Egbert, who succeeded Offa, reigned but a hundred and forty-one days, so that time was hardly afforded to him to patronize the abbey of Croyland. His son Kenulph, however, reigned twenty-six years; and in the twelfth year of his reign, A.D. 806, granted a fresh Charter of confirmation.

SIWARD was at this time abbat. Having acknowledged the innumerable miracles which were incessantly working at Guthlac's tomb, this Charter grants the singular privilege to all those who shall have visited it as pilgrims, and returned with St. Guthlac's mark upon their hoods, that they should pass, for ever, free of toll throughout Mercia.^f

The next of the royal Charters granted to this monastery, recorded by Ingulphus, is that of Witlaf, who, from duke of the Wiccii, became king of Mercia in 825. In this instrument, Witlaf notices his concealment from the pursuit of Egbert, by abbat Siward, in the cell of St. Etheldrith, for four months; and adds to the privileges granted to the monastery by preceding kings, that of sanctuary within the five waters of Croyland. He gives also his coronation-robe "ad capam inde sive casulam faciendam;" a golden veil, embroidered with the fall of Troy, to be suspended against the walls at his anniversary; his gilt cup, embossed with figures of vine-dressers fighting with dragons, which he called his "crucibolum;" and the horn which he used at his table, for the elders of the monastery to drink out of at festivals, and to remember him in their prayers. This Charter is dated in 833.^g Among the grants which it confirms are the donations of Fregistus and Algar, two knights, whose original Charters, of the years 819 and 825, are preserved by Dugdale, from the manuscript collections of John Oldfield, Esq. of Spalding.^h Witlaf annually visited the shrine of St. Guthlac, always leaving some donation. He died in 838, having reigned thirteen years.ⁱ

Bertulph, the brother of Witlaf, who succeeded him in the throne of Mercia, reigned also thirteen years; but he appears, at least in the beginning of his reign, to have shown little favour to Croyland. Ingulphus expressly says, that, to carry on a war against the Danes, he plundered the monastery of all the jewels which had been bestowed upon it by preceding kings, as well as of all its treasure.^k In recompense, however, he afterwards granted a Charter of confirmation sufficiently ample to regain for him the favour of the monks.^l It is dated

A.D. 851. A national council being assembled at the granting of this Charter, numerous cures among the prelates and nobility are stated to have been wrought at it by St. Guthlac, more particularly in the removal of paralytic affections: inasmuch that the reputation of the shrine of the saint was much increased.

Beorred, or Burgred, succeeded Bertulph in the kingdom of Mercia; in whose time abbat Siward died, full of age and infirmities, after having ruled the monastery of Croyland sixty-two years.^m His successor in the abbacy was THEODORE. In his time the Danes ravaged the whole country, and more especially Northumberland and Mercia. Earl Algar the younger, a commander in the wars, and who had been the friend of Siward as well as of Theodore, about this period gave to the abbey, for his father's soul, the manor of Spalding; a confirmation of which, as well as of the general possessions and privileges of the monastery, he obtained for the monks from Beorred, A.D. 868.ⁿ This earl, in 870, assembling an army in these parts, at first made great head against the Danes: but meeting with a reverse of fortune, and being himself slain in the conflict, the survivors of his army were pursued by the victors, even to the door of Croyland church. Nothing was left for the convent but to retire as fast as they could with the body of St. Guthlac, his psalter and whip, and the other reliques, and with their principal jewels, and charters. With these they loaded a boat; and buried their altar-piece and plate in the well in the cloister; but the altar-piece, which was the gift of Witlaf, not sinking to the bottom with the rest, was committed to the care of the abbat and older monks, while the load in the boat was sent away to be hid in Ancarig wood, where they had a hermitage. Thirty monks remained there; the abbat and his companions, Elfget the deacon, Savinus the sub-deacon, and Egelred and Wlric, who are called "pueri ceroferrarii," continued to perform the service in their proper habits, and had just finished mass when the Danes broke in. Osketul, their king, with his own hands murdered the abbat. The rest were slaughtered, after suffering the most cruel torments to make them discover the church-treasure. Asker the prior was slain in the vestry, Lethwyn the sub-prior in the refectory; Turgar, a boy of ten years old, was the only person spared. The Danes broke open all the tombs in hope of plunder. These were, on the right hand of St. Guthlac's tomb, the monuments of Cissa, Beccelin, and abbat Siward; on the left, the tombs of Egbert the secretary of Guthlac, St. Tatwine, Etheldretha, Queen Celfreda, and Wilmund the son of Witlaf. Being disappointed of their object, the barbarians laid the bodies on a heap, and setting fire to them, burnt the church and convent together, three days after their arrival, on the 7th of the kalends of September. They afterwards destroyed Medeshamsted abbey, and ravaged the country in their retreat: but two of their carriages, heavy laden, being lost in the river Nene, Turgar availed himself of the confusion to escape to Croyland, where he found several of the monks, already returned from Ancarig, endeavouring to extinguish the fire, and searching for their slaughtered companions, all of whose bodies were not discovered till six months after.

The first care, after they had cleared away the ruins, was to choose an abbat; when their choice fell unanimously on

GODRIC. He was shortly after applied to to assist in removing the ruins of Medeshamsted abbey, on which occasion the stone pyramid still remaining in the church, described by Ingulphus, was erected over the bodies of eighty-four monks.^o

^a The measure of the "leuca," or "leuga," was more extensive than the present mile: it is thus explained in another part of Ingulphus's History, p. 82: "—quum leuca usualis mensura terram metientium apud Francos constet de duobus millibus passuum."

^o Ingulphus, p. 21. See also Gough's Hist. Croyl. p. 7. The burial of the eighty-four monks by Godric, and the cross erected over them, have been already mentioned in the account of Peterborough Monastery, vol. i. p. 346.

Under pretence of driving out the Danes, Beorred took this opportunity to seize on the lands and possessions of many religious houses in his dominions. Among the rest, those of Croyland; whereby were alienated the manors of Spalding, Deping, Croxton, Kyrkton, and Kymerby in Lindsey, Bukenhale, Halyngton, Whaplode, Sutterton, Langtoft, Barton, Repinghale, Kirkby, Drayton, Thirning, Glapthorn, Adyngton, Staundon, and Badby. Of these the greater part were afterwards restored to the monastery by King Edred, at the intercession of abbat Turketul.^a

Beorred, having retired to Rome, died in 874; having for a successor Ceolwlf, one of his servants, by whom the monastery of Croyland was almost ruined. He exacted from it no less a sum than one thousand pounds: insomuch that no person would enter himself of the house on account of its impoverished state. The monks were obliged to sell all their plate except three chalices, the crucibolum of Witlaf, and a few other valuables.^b

Abbat Godric died A.D. 941, leaving the monastery so much reduced, that there were in it only five old monks, Clarenbaldus, Swarttingus, Thurgarus, Brunus, and Aio. Of these, the two last had retired in despair to Winchester and Malmesbury.^c

King Edmund, who was then on the throne, and who had restored Glastonbury monastery, meditated doing the same at Croyland, but was unfortunately murdered at Pucklechurch by a robber. The restoration of Croyland was therefore reserved for the succeeding reign of Edred, brother to Edmund.^d

In the second year of Edred's reign, A.D. 946, the Northumbrians rebelling, and Wlstan, then archbishop of York, favouring them, the king sent his chancellor, Turketul, who was also a prebendary of York, a man of great wisdom and prudence, to endeavour to restore peace. He happened to take his way by Croyland, where the three first of the monks before mentioned met him, and entreated him to pass one night with them; leading him to a little oratory which they had constructed in a corner of the ruined church, and showing him the relics of St. Guthlac, they related to him the whole history of their misfortunes. After which, they entertained the chancellor and his retinue with the greatest hospitality which their situation allowed of: urging him also to intercede with the king for the restoration and rebuilding of their monastery.

Turketul, compassionating their wretched state, promised not only his intercession with the king, but that he would himself assist in their relief. In the morning, he ordered his servants to leave the monks sufficient provisions till his return, with a hundred shillings to buy more: and so departing, with tears, he recommended himself to their prayers. From that day he took so great an affection to the monks and their monastery, ("tam intimo ac individuo amore congluti-natus est" says Ingulphus,) that as long as he lived, he never ceased upon all occasions, to extol the courtesy of these old monks, their sanctity, and charity, and to bewail their misfortunes: and from him it came to be proverbial to speak of Croyland-Courtesy.^e After executing his commission in the North, Turketul took Croyland in his way back, and gave the monks twenty pounds in silver. Returning to the king, after his other affairs, he acquainted him with the calamities of Croyland monastery, managing so dexterously, that the king committed the care thereof to him, promising his assistance in every thing. Turketul then declared his intention of becoming a monk. The king endeavoured by every possible means to dissuade him, but in vain. The chancellor prevailed; and a day was appointed for them both to repair to Croyland. Previous to this, Turketul arranged his worldly affairs; and, having discharged all his debts, made over sixty manors to the king, reserving only every tenth, being the six manors nearest to Croyland, for the monks: these were, Wendlingborough, Elmyngton, Worthorp, Kottenham, Hokington, and Beby. Coming with the king to Croyland on the vigil of the Assumption of the blessed Virgin, he immediately sent to Winchester and Malmesbury for Bruno and Aio, who returned to, and were received in Croyland with great joy. On the day after their return, the feast of St. Bartholomew,

TURKETUL, laying aside his secular habit, became a monk; and the king constituted him abbat of the monastery.^f He received the benediction as abbat from the hands of Ceolwlf bishop of Dorchester, who was present at the ceremony of his profession. On the same day, at the king's wish, and by the advice of persons skilled in the law, to prevent future claims on the property of the monastery, Turketul and his five monks resigned their house, with all its lands, tenements, goods, and chattels, into the king's hands: and the king, having received the same, on the following day, engaged the necessary workmen, appointing one Egelric, an ecclesiastic and a relation of his own, to be surveyor of the intended building, ordering the expences to be defrayed from the royal treasury, and the timber and stone requisite for the structure to be taken from his manor of Castre. In a short time, the church, cloister, and different offices of the monastery were completed: and the king, returning to London, took with him the venerable Turketul, with two of the old monks, Turgarus and Aio, where, in a great council of the nation, A.D. 948, he granted them his Charter,^g the terms of which had been previously dictated by Turketul himself.^h In this Charter, the king withheld his confirmation to the monks of the privilege of sanctuary. Ingulphus expressly says, that Turketul would by no means consent to have the former immunities of the place restored, lest he should seem in any manner to give a sanctuary, against the laws, to wicked criminals and offenders.ⁱ

^c Ibid. p. 29.

^e "Ab ipsoque tunc primitus processit, quod Croyland Curtesy cognomen accepit." Ing. p. 30.

^f Ingulphus, in a subsequent page, says, that prior to his public profession Turketul made a sudden visit to Croyland, where, finding the three monks in their retreat, he communicated to them his intention of coming among them; and, being received into their fraternity, accompanied them in a visitation of the island of Croyland, ascertaining its boundaries, and causing the stone crosses set up as land-marks to be placed at a greater distance from the banks of the river than they had been, lest the force of the water should bear them down, as had been the case with the boundaries set up by Kenulph the first abbat. "Edoctus itaque cancellarius Turketulus de limitibus Croylandiæ et ejus terminis universis, jussit cruces lapideas terminorum innovari, et longius a ripis fluviorum in proxima solida terra infigi, ne forte lapsu temporis per aquarum alluvionem in flumina corruerent, prout antiquas cruces in eisdem limitibus per Kenulphum monasterii Croylandiæ primum abbatem ibidem aliquando appositas intellexerat corruisse. In australi namque ripa dictæ insulæ posuit tunc Turketulus cruce lapideam, quæ tunc distabat a Southee per sex perticatas, et in boreali parte dictæ insulæ tunc posuit aliam cruce lapideam, quæ tunc distabat ab Asendyk cadente in Weland per tres perticatas. Terminos etiam mariscorum, tam Alderlound in australi parte aquæ de Weland, quam Goggisland in parte boreali dictæ aquæ adiens, et limites eorum, prout chartæ foundationis monasterii demonstrabant, annotans, jussit similiter crucibus lapideis designari." Ing. p. 39. Mr. Gough says, "The latter of these crosses still remains between Spalding and Croyland, near Brother House and Cloot-bar, on the side of the bank, almost buried in the earth, with this inscription, 'Aio hanc petram Guthlacus habet sibi METANS.'" Hist. Croyl. p. 11. The last word of the inscription here mentioned should be METAM, not "metans." See the inscription itself in the Archaeol. vol. iii. p. 96, vol. v. p. 104.

Ingulphus also adds, that Turketul, at this time, redeemed from Earl Lewin, for forty mancuses, or mancuses, of gold, the lands which had formerly appertained to the monastery in Spalding, Cappelade, and Sutterton; taking possession of them as the attorney of the monks. He compounded with Earl Alpher for Drayton, at ten mancuses of gold; and with Earl Athelwold for Staundon and Baddeby at the same sum. He obtained Morburne from Earl Ailwin. Bokenhale, Halyngton, and Lindesey, he procured from Duke Oslac for twelve mancuses of gold. The manors of Langetoft and Baston were readily restored by the king. Depyng, which had devolved to two daughters of Langferus, who had been King Beorred's 'panetarius,' and on whom the king had bestowed the manor, was not given up while Turketul lived. Of Kyrketon, Kymerby, and Croxton, the Charters had perished; Duke Osbricht tenaciously retained them, and these manors had been noticed in none of the royal confirmations. Turketul in vain offered an indemnity for them. He, however, recovered, at this time Glapthorn, Thirning, Laythorp, Kyrkeby, Peykyrk, both the Adingtons, Repingale, Sutton, and Stapilton.

^g See Num. XI.

^h Ingulphus, pp. 30—32.

ⁱ "Antiquam vero loci impunitatem vel immunitatem nullo modo consensit acquirere, ne sceleratis et impiis refugium a publicis legibus videretur in aliquo præbere; et cum hujusmodi maleficis compelleretur vel in aliquo contra conscientiam suam cohabitare seu consentire." Ing. p. 40.

Many learned men followed Turketul to Croyland, two of whom took upon them the monastic habit. The rest continued seculars, some as priests, others as clerks. All these, who were many in number, he ordered to reside in the cell of the virgin St. Pega, on the east side of the monastery, and to have every day a portion of diet like the monks; and, building a chapel there, commanded them to perform the night as well as the day hours of divine service at the same time with the monks. This he did to inure them by degrees to the observance of the monastic rules; as having been before more irregular while laymen. He also appointed for them an uniform habit, consisting of a long gown, and under-garments reaching to their heels, all of black. They were confined to continence and obedience only; so that few of them returned again to the world. They had a prior, elected by themselves and confirmed by the abbat. Some of them, says Ingulphus, closed their lives in a most holy manner, and were buried at Croyland: others, in the course of time, became monks, and some of them abbats; of which number were the two Egelrics, who were successively abbats of Croyland after Turketul. In the latter part of Turketul's time, Pegeland, as the cell on the east side of the monastery was called, was almost deserted by its presbyters, who turned monks; so that, at last, not one was left to officiate there. Afterwards, whoever applied for admission into the abbey, of whatever rank or condition, was first placed at Pegeland, according to the report from whence he was either admitted or rejected. Turketul, in honour of St. Pega, appointed a priest to celebrate service there, without establishing a college of regulars or irregulars, which would have been prejudicial to his house. The first priest so appointed was named Reynfredus.^a

In the eighth year of King Edgar, A. D. 966, Turketul, assisted by the intercession of Dunstan archbishop of Canterbury, and Osketul archbishop of York, obtained from that monarch a Charter of confirmation;^b together with an Instrument of ecclesiastical censure from the archbishops, against such as should violate, infringe, or oppose the Charters of the kings Edred and Edgar.^c

Having thus established and secured his monastery by regal and episcopal authority, abbat Turketul next applied himself to collect and revise the muniments of his monastery. In this he was well assisted by his monks. Aio, who has been so often mentioned, was an eminent civilian; and Thurgar, from his earliest youth, had known the former monastery before its demolition. To these he added Swetman, a skilful notary, by whom the collections were digested. A regular history of the monastery was drawn up at this time, containing the principal events of the abbey (with those of the kingdoms of Wessex and Mercia interspersed), from its first foundation by King Ethelbald to the fourteenth year of King Edgar.

Upon the revival of the ancient rules and ordinances of his monastery, Turketul enacted the following new ones. He divided the whole society into three ranks: the juniors, from their first admission into the house to their twenty-fourth year, to take upon them all the offices of the choir, the cloister, and refectory, in singing, reading, and serving. The middle rank was composed of those who had been in the house sixteen years longer, who having gone through the different duties before-mentioned, now performed them only in turn, or twice a week, assisted by the juniors. The third comprehended those from forty to fifty years old, who were denominated seniors, and only celebrated mass with chaunting. These were exempted from all the offices of the house, except by particular appointment of the abbat. Whoever had arrived at his fiftieth year was called Sempecta, and had assigned him in the infirmary, by the prior, a decent chamber, with a clerk or boy to wait on him, who had an allowance from the abbat, and the same measure which was allowed to an esquire's boy in the abbat's hall. He had, besides, a junior brother to sit at table with him, who had the same allowance from the kitchen as the sick. The Sempecta, or privileged person, had free ingress and egress of the choir, cloister, refectory, dormitory, and other offices of the monastery, with or without his frock, without being troubled with the business of the house, or molested by any one. The prior of Croyland was to enjoin the penances of the monks, daily, in the chapter-house; and to increase or mitigate them as he saw fit. The management of the refectory and the infirmary was left entirely to his discretion: and unless convicted of some crime, for which he was to receive three admonitions, he was to continue Prior till his death. The abbat and prior, as well as the rest of the congregation, were to obey the regulations of the præcentor in the choir. Turketul annexed to the office of sacrist that of archdeacon over the whole parish of Croyland. He gave to the sacrist a gold cup, two silver bowls gilt, wrought with angels, and two silver basons embossed with armed soldiers; all which vessels had been given to him by Henry emperor of Germany, and had till then been used in his own chapel. He also assigned to the office of the chamber of the monks, his manor and church of Beby.

When the several statutes above-mentioned had been promulgated and received in the chapter, Turketul ordered them to be transcribed at the end of the rule of St. Benedict, that, being in the hands of all, none might through ignorance transgress them.^d

Turketul, sinking under the weight of years, and Ingulphus is minute upon the actions of Turketul's life, as well in the early part of his career, as after he became abbat of Croyland. He was the eldest son of Ethelward, brother of King Edward the elder, who gave him his paternal inheritance, and frequently proposed to him an advantageous match amongst the noble families of his kingdom. From his refusal of these, the king inferred his turn was for religion, and offered him the choice of two bishopricks; but Turketul refused every offer, not only of a temporal, but even of a spiritual kind: till, at last, the king appointed him to the post of chancellor, which he filled with equal advantage to the king and kingdom, and honour to himself. By his advice, the king performed many good acts; and, among the rest, nominated seven bishops to as many churches in one day. These were, Fridestan to the bishoprick of Winchester, Ceolwlf to Dorchester, Werstan to Sherbourn, Athelstan to Cornwall, Athelm to Fountains, Adulph to Crediton, and Bernek to the bishoprick of the South Saxons. See Ingulphus, p. 36.

In the reign of Athelstan, at the battle of Brunford, Turketul commanded the Londoners and Mercians, who engaged the Scots under Constantine; and, after a most bloody conflict, had nearly made himself master of the Scottish king's person, when he was surrounded, and on the point of being himself made prisoner, had not one of his officers slain the king, by whose death victory declared in favour of the English. He had the honour of conducting the four daughters of Athelstan to their husbands on the continent; the emperor's son, and one of his principal lords, the king of France, and the prince of Aquitaine. When Dunstan was disgraced and banished the court of King Edmund, he was the principal instrument in his recall to the royal favour, and made him a present of a rich chalice, preserved at Glastonbury in Ingulphus's time, and called Turketul's chalice. He held his post of chancellor in each succeeding reign from his first advancement to his retiring to Croyland abbey. Gough. Hist. Croyl. p. 10. Ing. pp. 37, 38.

^d "Quo etiam tempore venerabilis pater noster abbas Turketulus, antiquis observantiis veteris monasterii Croylandensis plenius auditis, examinatis, et integre intellectis, statuit, et decrevit subsequencia in suo Croylandensi monasterio perpetuis temporibus inviolabiliter ab omnibus observanda. Dividens enim totum Conventum in tres gradus, ut quilibet gradus suum statum agnosceret et teneret, statuit; videlicet, quod juniores ab ingressu monasterii usque ad annum vicesimum quartum in ordine subeant omnia onera chori, claustrii, et rectorii, canendo, legendo, serviendo, et omnes regulares observantias secundum magistri sui doctrinam custodiendo; quæ officia quicumque tam pro seipso, quam pro sociis suis, studuerit diligenter et devote peragere, ubique majorem favorem à superioribus suis merebitur obtinere. Si quis autem (quod absit) inflatus superbia, vel elatus alicujus artis scientia, vel confusus literarum copia, vel conductus parentum suorum aut alicujus alterius amicitia, susurro, seu detractor contentiosus, seu quocunque modo seniorum suorum contemtor eruperit in monasterio; tanquam veniens ab inferis Aleto, ab omnibus cautius evitetur, nec aliquam gratiam in capitulo, nec licentiam in refectorio, nec solatium in infirmitorio, usque ad vitii sui emendationem, de superioribus consequatur: sed sicut bos cornupeta domi recludendus, ne de leunculo leo evadat indomabilis, in ipso initio per priorum discretionem debite castigetur. Qui vero affabiles et faceti, casti et pacifici, mites et modesti, obsequentes et obediētes fuerint; omni favore digni, frequentius solatia sortiantur. Porro qui viginti et quatuor annos a conversione sua compleverint, per sexdecim annos sequentes medium gradum tenebunt. Isti sunt absoluti ab officiis parvæ cantariæ, epistolæ, evangelii, et cæteris minoribus laboribus: sed cum alia onera chori, claustrii, et rectorii fecerint in cursu suo circulari, supportationem frequentem à junioribus habebunt, ut bis, vel saltem semel in hebdomada, pro bono obedientiæ ipsi sua officia faciant, in cæteris diebus à junioribus adjuventur. Et cum istis magnisuffering even from the bodily wounds which he had received in early life, now applied himself chiefly to the duties of charity and religion: visiting the younger persons of the monastery, and the children of the nobility in their novitiates, daily, as well as the clergy at Pegeland who were charged with their instruction. Ingulphus adds, that, in these visits, he was always attended by a servant, who carried fruits, or some such little presents, as rewards to the young scholars: "afferente secum aliquo servitore ficus, vel uvas passas, vel nuces, vel amygdala, vel sæpius poma et pyra, vel alia talia munuscula, bene laborantes remunerabat præ ceteris, ut omnes ad diligentius insistendum suis lectionibus, non verbis tantum vel verberibus, sed sæpissime precibus, et præmiis provocaret." The Sempectæ he held in the highest veneration, conversing with them daily, and ministering to their comforts even from his own table. When the first of these privileged persons, Clarenbaldus, who was the oldest both as to age and monastic profession, fell sick, being a hundred and sixty-eight years of age, abbat Turketul performed the office of a servant, staying with him day and night, and administering the consolations of religion. He afterwards buried Clarenbaldus in the middle of the choir. In the next year, Swarlingus, another of the monks, died at the age of a hundred and forty-two years, whom Turketul attended in the same manner, and afterwards interred near Clarenbaldus. Brunus and Aio died the same year. The year following, Turgarus died, having completed his hundred and fifteenth year. These five monks had seen both monasteries; the old one destroyed by the Danes, and the new one recently restored. Last of all, A.D. 975, being the sixteenth and last year of King Edgar, abbat Turketul himself died, in his sixty-eighth year, and the twenty-seventh of his monachate. Having celebrated the feast of St. Peter and St. Paul, which falling in the dog-days was that year uncommonly hot, he caught a fever, which for three days continued violent. On the fourth day, while confined to his bed, he summoned the convent, then consisting of forty-seven monks and four lay-brethren; and in their presence commanded Egelric, his "provisor," or steward, to show them the state of the house, as well as to its treasure as its other valuables; making him answerable, by indenture, for every thing after his death. The treasure then produced, Ingulphus says, amounted nearly to ten thousand pounds. The relics also were many, and extremely valuable. They had been principally bestowed on Turketul, while chancellor, by the Emperor Henry, Hugh king of France, Lewis prince of Aquitaine, and many other dukes and earls, nobles and prelates, to gain the king's favour. Amongst them was the thumb of St. Bartholomew, which Turketul usually carried about with him, and with which he crossed himself in any imminent danger; some of the hair of the Virgin Mary; and a bone of St. Leodegar. On the day before his death, Turketul addressed a brief exhortation to the brethren on the observance of their rule, on brotherly charity, against negligence either in their temporal or spiritual concerns, and particularly to be careful of their fire, frequently and fervently repeating "Ignem vestrum optime custodite:" an expression which Ingulphus would refer prophetically to the fire which happened in his time. Abbat Turketul, commending himself to their prayers, and taking leave, of all, died on the 5th of the nones of July: being interred in his church, on the right of the high altar, by Ædulph abbat of Peterborough and Godmann abbat of Thorney.^a Egelric the elder, who has been already mentioned as the provisor of the monastery, was Turketul's successor; a person of great religion, and industrious in the management of temporal affairs. It was he who stimulated Turketul to procure the Confirmation-charter of King Edgar, and the ecclesiastical censures against its infringers pronounced by Dunstan and Osketul. During Turketul's life, Egelric completed the nave, and strengthened the tower of Croyland church; and after Turketul's death, he erected several additional structures to the monastery, as the monks infirmary, of a competent length and breadth, entirely of timber, a chapel of the same, and a bath. All were of timber, covered with lead, the marshy ground being ill calculated to receive stone-work. He likewise built the strangers, or guests hall, two large chambers, and a new brewery and bake-house, all of timber: also a granary, and a stable of considerable extent, at one end of which the abbat's horses were accommodated, and at the other those of the strangers, or guests. These three buildings, the stable, gratudo negotiorum, et providentia consiliorum, ac totius loci sollicitudo specialiter incumbit, decet, ut secundum suos labores, præter divinam remunerationem, quam monachi maxime expectant, vultum superiorum suorum sentiant rigidum vel benignum, affabilem vel austerum, cum onere recipiant honorem, et juxta sua merita gratiam vel gravamen. In gradu namque tertio qui quadragesimum annum attigerint, usque ad quinquagesimum annum in ordine seniores appellentur, absolvendi ab omni onere chori, claustrii, et refectorii, præterquam à cursu missarum, quæ cum nota canuntur. In quibus missis juniores de primo gradu, et mediocres de secundo gradu quotidie se devote offerendo sua onera supportabunt. Anno etiam quadragesimo secundo completo erunt isti excusati ab omni officio forinseco, scilicet provisoris, procuratoris, cellarii, eleemosynarii, coquinarii, operarii, et pitantiarii, nisi aliquid officiorum præmissorum abbas alicui seni ex urgente necessitate decreverit assignandum. Isti, tanquam milites emeriti, qui portaverunt pondus diei et æstus in servitio Dei, et pro statu monasterii sui carnem et sanguinem suum expenderunt, omni honore digni sunt, et nullius indigentiam patiantur. Hoc omnimodis in isto gradu attendendum, quod hujusmodi dispensationis gratiam illi dignissime consequantur, qua à primo ingressu in monasterium usque ad istam ætatem de nullo crimine convicti fuerint, pro quo poenam gravioris culpæ sustinere publice meruerunt. Quinquagenarius autem in ordine Sempecta vocandus, honestam cameram in infirmatorio de prioris assignatione accipiat, habeatque clericum seu garcionem suo servitio specialiter attendentem, qui exhibitionem victualium recipiet de parte abbatis modo et mensura, quibus ministratur garcioni unius armigeri in abbatis aula. Huic sempectæ unum fratrem juniorem commensalem tam pro junioris disciplina, quam pro senioris solatio; Prior quotidie assignabit: quibus, tanquam infirmis, de coquina infirmorum victualia ministrentur. Ipse vero sempecta pro sua voluntate et arbitrio, sedens et ambulans, ingrediens et egrediens, chorum, claustrum, et refectorium, et dormitorium, ac alias officinas monasterii, cum frocco, vel sine frocco, quomodo et quando voluerit, intrabitque et exibat. Nihil triste de negotiis monasterii in ejus audientia recitetur. Nullus eum in aliquo audeat offendere, sed summa pace animique quiete finem suum præstoletur. Statuit etiam tuncet decrevit quod quicumque fuerit prior Croylandiæ in futurum, licentiam habeat et potestatem quotidiani capituli monachorum pœnitentias injungere, et injunctas, prout viderit vultum pœnitentis contritum et compunctum, minuire vel augere. Omnes etiam licentiæ refectorii, omnia solatia infirmorii, ejus discretioni et arbitrio committantur: et prout hactenus solitum est ministrari, tam de victualibus quam de aliis necessariis, sive domi, sive foris fuerit, eodem modo in perpetuum ministretur, nisi convictus de aliquo crimine reus inveniatur, trina tamen admonitione de sua emendatione (prout sancta regula nostra dictat) præcurrente, qui prioratus officium in Croylandia semel obtinuerit, usque ad obitum suum prior perpetuo permanebit; et quia in medio fratrum rector eorum in honore, præter inclinationes omnis honor ei et reverentia exhibeatur. Præcentoris tabularum, ac ejus assignationibus in choro tam abbas et prior quam tota cætera congregatio humiliter obediat. Officio etiam sacristæ tunc in augmentum portionis suæ officium archidiaconatus super totam parochiam Croylandiæ assignavit, dum tamen sine acceptione personarum cum timore Dei rationabiliter et canonice suum officium exequatur. Dedit tunc officio sacristæ calicem aureum, et duas phialas argenteas et deauratas, ac in formam duorum angelorum opere cœlatorio fabrefactas, et duas pelves argenteas miri operis et magnitudinis, pulcherrime cœlatas cum militibus armatis. Quæ vasa universa imperator Almanniæ Henricus ei aliquando contulerat, et usque ad illud tempus semper in sua capella reservarat. Item officio cameræ monachorum tunc assignavit manerium suum de Beby cum ecclesia ejusdem villæ, divinam maledictionem imprecans, quicumque dictum manerium et ecclesiam ejusdem dicto officio immutaverit in damnum conventus, vel procuraverit immutari. Hæc sanctissima Statuta sua venerabilis pater noster abbas Turketulus in suo capitulo publice promulgata, et ab omnibus acclamata, et obedientissime acceptata, fecit scribi, et in fine regulæ sancti Benedicti jussit apponi, ut omnes cum vellent, valerent legem suam legere, et ne contingeret aliquem per ignorantiam contraire." The word SEMPECTA has been subjected to much discussion. See Gent. Mag. vol. LXV. P. i. pp. 208, 301: vol. LXVI. P. i. pp. 542, 649, 813, 906, 921, 1013: vol. LXVII. P. i. p. 24. P. ii. p. 1009. The following is Du Cange's explanation:

— "Nam Quinquagenarios monachos Sympæctas, appellatos admodum vero simile est, non quod ipsi Sympæctæ essent; sed quod ad ætatis provectionis solatium darentur eis συμπακται, seu juniores monachi, qui eis ministrarent, et cum iis mensæ assiderent, ut exerte scribit Ingulfus: quomodo ejusmodi seniorum monachorum συμπακτας habet Palladius in Hist. Lausiaca, c. 24, 83, quos Collutores vertit vetus Interpres cap. 24, unde liquet ab Ægyptiis et Orientis monachis id vocabuli acceptum." Glossar. edit. Par. 1736, tom. vi. p. 350. Another passage, in p. 351, interprets Sempectas, by "sodales, socios, seu familiares."

nary, and bakehouse, closed in the west side of the abbat's court, looking toward the town; the south side consisted of the hall and chambers for strangers; the east side had the "sutrinum," the hall of new converts, the abbat's kitchen, hall, chamber, and chapel, which terminated the cloister toward the west; the north side of the abbey was closed by the great gate, with the "diversorium pauperum," or almonry, to the eastward. All these several buildings (except the abbat's hall, chamber, and chapel, and the almonry, which Turketul had constructed with stone) were of wood, covered with lead. In dry years, Egelric tilled the fens in the four corners, and for three or four years they yielded a hundred fold: Tedwarthar fen was the most fruitful of all. The monastery became thus exceeding rich, so that it relieved the whole country round; and prodigious numbers of poor resorting to it, the town grew exceedingly large. Egelric made also two large bells, which he named Bartholomew and Bettelm; two of the middle size, named Turketul and Tatwin; and two smaller, called Pega and Bega. Turketul had made a larger bell, named Guthlac: all of which together made a finer ring of bells than was then known in England. Having held the abbacy ten years, abbat Egelric died on the 2d of the nones of August, and was buried in the chapter-house, A.D. 984.^a Ingulphus calls Egelric the relation only, the Cotton MS. Vespas. B. xii. says he was the nephew, of Turketul.

Egelric, the second of the name, called the younger, a relation of his predecessor, was the next abbat: a man more devoted to books and sacred literature, than skilled in the management of temporal concerns; though he managed his monastery extremely well. He gave to the common library of the monks original works of different authors, to the number of forty; and above a hundred lesser volumes of different treatises and histories. He gave numerous vestments to the office of the sacrist, viz. to every altar in the church two chasubles, one for Sundays, and another richer: to the choir twenty-four copes, six white, six red, six green, and six black: two large foot-cloths, woven with lions, to be laid before the high altar on great festivals; and two shorter, ornamented with flowers, for the festivals of the apostles. He also gave many hangings for the walls before the altars of saints on festivals, most of them of silk interwoven or embroidered with gold birds, and some plain. He made six chalices, which he gave to several altars and chapels; and to the choir six grails, four antiphonnars, and eight missals, for different altars. He furnished the offices of the monastery with copper vessels; clothed the whole convent every year with gowns, every second year with hoods, and every third year with frocks, at his own expence, exclusive of the supply afforded by Turketul's donation of the church and manor of Beby. Having governed the monastery eight years, he died on the nones of March, A.D. 992; and was buried near the former Egelric, in the chapter-house.^b

Osketul, who had been Prior of the monastery under Turketul and both the Egelrics, was the next abbat. Ingulphus speaks of him as a plain and upright man, of good birth, and well versed in letters: and moreover of such extensive charity, that he received the name of 'Father of the poor.' During his time, the Danes renewed their ravages. It happened, also, that Lefwin, sister of Osketul, and lady of Elnophesbury, flying from them, brought the reliques of St. Neot to Witlesey, whence she prayed her brother to transfer them to his monastery. This was accordingly done; and the reliques were transferred with great ceremony, and placed near the altar of the Virgin Mary.

King Ethelred demanding, about this time, a heavy subsidy from the religious houses, to pay the tribute exacted from him by the Danes, the assessors took not only the treasure, but the sacred vessels and jewels, and even spoiled the shrines of saints. Osketul, to save those of Croyland, paid no less than four hundred marks. Having held the abbacy twelve years, Osketul died on the 12th kal. November, 1005. To him succeeded GODRIC II., elected and made abbat in days of misery and tribulation. He ruled the monastery for the space of fourteen years, in the reign of King Ethelred. In his first year he paid to the king two hundred marks, and two hundred more to his officers, exclusive of smaller expences. The same thing happened in his second, third, and fourth years. Beside which, in the third year, two hundred pounds were exacted for the building of ships and the employment of seamen. In Godric's fourth year, Turkil, a Danish earl, arriving with a large fleet, a demand of a hundred pounds was rigorously enforced. The Danes over-running the country, burnt every thing which they could not carry off: destroying Drayton, Kottenham, and Hoketon, three manors belonging to Croyland, beside the whole county of Cambridge. These things, however, says Ingulphus, were only the beginning of evil.

It had now been the custom to pay four hundred marks a year, when, in 1013, Swane arriving with a fresh fleet, over-ran the country. Bursting from Lindsey, he burnt the villages, slaughtered the peasants, and tortured the religious to death. He burnt Baston and Langtoft, with the monastery of St. Pega, and its adjacent manors of Glington, Northumburtham, Makesey, Etton, Badyngton, and Bernake: the abbat escaping by night in a boat to Croyland. Fortunately, that year, the rain had laid the whole country under water, and had rendered the neighbouring marshes impassable: so that the abbey became the resort of multitudes. The choir and cloister were filled with monks, the rest of the church with priests and clerks, the whole abbey with the laity, and the church-yard, day and night, with women and children, under tents. The ablest among them, and the young, kept guard among the reeds and alders at the mouths of the rivers. There were then (to omit other burthens on the monastery) a hundred monks in commons; "in mensa." Swane, by a messenger, demanded a thousand marks of the monastery, threatening that the abbey should be burnt unless the money was paid by a certain day at Lincoln. Three months after the payment, his collectors obtained a thousand marks more, by threats, for victualling his army. In short, the expences of the house, and the different exactions, exhausted Turketul's treasure, and emptied the granaries of both the Egelrics: beside which, the king's officers still worried Godric for money, threatening to treat him as a betrayer of his country, and one who supported the Danes. Abbat Godric, terrified by these threats, assembled his convent, and acquainting them that there was no more money, entreated them to advise what could be done in this exigency. After much debate, it was determined to engage one of Eadric the duke of Mercia's officers, and, since there was no money, to grant him lands and tenements for his life, that he might protect them against the threatened dangers. One Norman, the son of Lefwin, and brother to Leofric earl of Leicester, was retained; the manor of Baddeby being, by his own demand, granted to him for a hundred years; which he was to hold of St. Guthlac, paying a pepper-corn per annum by way of rent, at the feast of St. Bartholomew. In consideration of which, he obliged himself, by a writing, to protect the monastery. This served the monastery in good stead till he was killed in battle against Canute, A.D. 1017. Norman's lands were given to his brother Leofric, and among the rest the lands at Baddeby, which, at the instigation of his confessor, were by him made over to the abbey of Evesham, by the abbat and convent whereof they were still retained in the time of Ingulphus.

Peace being again restored in England at Canute's accession, abbat Godric dismissed the monks of other houses who had sheltered themselves in his monastery. He died on the 14th of the kalends of February following: and was buried in the chapter-house of his abbey, opposite to Osketul.^c

BRITHMER, or BRIGHTMER, a relation of abbat Osketul, succeeded Godric, under whom, when procurator of the monastery, he escaped many dangers from

King Ethelred and the army of the Danes. This abbat, in 1032, obtained from King Canute a confirmation of the lands and privileges of the monastery,^a together with a gold chalice. On the king's return from Rome, in this same year, abbat Brithmer met him at Sandwich, and presented him with two palfreys; in return for which the king gave the abbat a vestment of silk, interwoven with eagles of gold, and a censer of silver gilt, which, being injured by age, was repaired in Ingulphus's time by Ednoth his secretary. He also gave twelve white bear skins, some of which also remained before the altars to Ingulphus's time. Abbat Brithmer, beside obtaining the confirmation from the king already mentioned, rebuilt many of the manor-houses of Croyland which had been destroyed by the Danes. He rebuilt the halls, with their offices, at Staundon, Drayton, and Morburne, together with barns, cow-houses, stables, sheep-pens, and kitchens at Kottenham, Hoketon, Wendling, Adyngton, Elmyngton, Langtoft, Baston, Bukehale, and Halyngton.

On the death of King Canute, which happened in the eighteenth year of abbat Brithmer, the succession being disputed, numbers of people, alarmed at the apprehension of war, sought refuge in the marshes of Croyland; where they so incommoded the monks, that the latter almost deserted their cloister, leaving scarcely a sufficient number of their brethren to officiate in the choir. Wulfius, the anchorite of Pegeland, was so harassed by these visitors, that he is stated to have fled to Evesham.

Hardecnut retiring to Denmark, Harold ascended the throne of England alone. He gave to Croyland his coronation robe of silk, ornamented with gold flowers, which the secretary (Stevens says the sacrist) exchanged for a cope. Had he lived, says Ingulphus, he would have been a greater benefactor. Hardecnut, who came over on his brother's death to succeed him, reigned but two years, and was succeeded in turn by Edward the son of Ethelred, afterwards named Edward the Confessor; in the sixth year of whose reign, A. D. 1048, abbat Brithmer died, on the 7th of the ides of April, and was interred at the entrance of the chapter-house. At this time, Wlgat abbat of Pegeland, by the superior interest of the abbats of Peterborough at court, lost his monastery; and the foundations of a new one, which he had laid in his manor of Northamburgt, being seized by Fernot lord of Bosworth, he had no other remedy but in the kindness of the king, by whom Wlgat and eighteen of his monks were invited to court. Shortly after which, Gerard the prior, and two of the monks of Croyland, surrendering Brithmer's pastoral staff to the king, it was bestowed upon WLGAT; the king, at the same time, directing a letter to the convent, enjoining the monks to receive him as their pastor on account of his many sufferings. He also granted to Wlgat a Charter confirming the lands and privileges of the monastery.^b

The year 1051 was remarkable for a dreadful famine. To relieve the abbey of Croyland from which, Thorold, sheriff of Lincolnshire (a relation of the Thorold who had before given the manor of Bokenhale), bestowed upon the monks the manor of SPALDING, with all its rents and profits. Thither six monks were sent to Thorold, who fitted up his manorial residence as a cell.^c Wlgat, having presided four years, died on the nones of June, A. D. 1052, and was buried in the chapter-house.

ULKETUL, or WULKETUL, monk and sacrist of Peterborough, was appointed his successor by King Edward; and was installed abbat on the feast of St. Mary Magdalen following.

In 1058, Algar earl of Leicester, who had been outlawed twice by King Edward, confirmed to Croyland all the grants made to the monastery by his progenitors; adding likewise to the maintenance of the brethren at Spalding. At which time, by the advice and consent of Algar, abbat Wulketul also assigned to the monks of Spalding the chapel of St. Mary there, with all its profits, together with such revenues as the monastery of Croyland had before possessed on the east side of the river Weland. These donations, it appears, were made for the maintenance of hospitality in the Cell.

In 1061 abbat Wulketul began the building of a new church, the old one, of Turketul's foundation, having fallen to decay. He was assisted in this work, with great zeal, by Earl Waldeve, who then gave to the monastery his vill of Bernak, assigning it to the building of the church for a double reason; first, because the manor had previously been an ecclesiastical possession; and, secondly, because it had a fine quarry of stone.^d

From this time, till after the Norman Conquest, few particulars immediately relating to the history of Croyland are preserved.

Ivo Tailbois, lord of Hoyland, or Holand, who, having married the sister, inherited the great possessions of the Saxon earls Edwin and Morcar, was an inveterate enemy to the monks: ravaging their lands, and maiming their cattle.^e His malevolence is stated to have been greatly increased by the honour shown to the body of Earl Waldeve, or Waltheof, on account of his former benefactions. Wulketul, in short, gave so great offence to the Normans generally, and to Ivo Tailbois in particular, by publishing the miracles performed at Earl Waldeve's tomb in the chapter-house, that he was summoned, in 1075, to a council at London, accused of idolatry, deprived of his abbacy, and committed to prison at Glastonbury, "sub cruentissimo tum abbate THURSTANO, procul a notis et a sua patria." The treasure of the abbey being confiscated to the king at the same time.

INGULPHUS, the historian, was the next abbat of Croyland; of whom we have a minute account drawn up by himself. He was born in London, and educated, in his younger years, first at Westminster and afterwards at Oxford; and, for his proficiency in learning, takes to himself sufficient credit. His introduction to court was at the time of the interview between King Edward the Confessor, and William duke of Normandy, in 1051; with the latter of whom he so far ingratiated himself as to sail with him to Normandy, and finally became the duke's secretary. In company with certain knights and clerks of the duke's court, about thirty in number, he set out on an expedition to the Holy Land, where joining the party of the archbishop of Mentz, they proceeded to Constantinople. Passing afterwards through Lycia, they fell into the hands of the Arabs; and were plundered of every thing long before their arrival at Jerusalem. They saw the church of the Sepulchre, but were prevented from visiting the other holy places by the tribes of Arabs. Having returned by a Genoese vessel from Joppa to Brundisium, they visited Rome; and, at length, of thirty horsemen, who left Normandy in high condition, scarcely twenty returned, and those, poor pilgrims on foot, wearied and exhausted. Ingulphus betook himself to the abbey of Fontenelle, where, having made his profession under abbat Gerbert, he was afterwards appointed prior. In 1066, when William took shipping at St. Walery for the conquest of England, Ingulphus brought him from his abbat twelve chosen horsemen to take part in the expedition, with a hundred marks for their pay. In return, William bestowed upon Fontenelle abbey the vineyard Cari Loci.

On the deposition of Wulketul, King William sent for Ingulphus to England to fill his place: and being invested with the pastoral staff by the king at London, and admitted and consecrated by Archbishop Lanfranc and the bishop of Lincoln, he was installed at Croyland on the feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, A. D. 1076.

Ingulphus's account of the state of the convent, at the time he undertook its administration, is interesting. He found there sixty-two monks, of whom four were lay brethren; beside more than a hundred monks of other monasteries, who were termed 'comprofessi,' and whose privilege it was, when they came, to have a stall in the choir, a seat in the refectory, and a bed in the dormitory. They came and went as they pleased, and having staid, some a year and some half a year, returned back to their monasteries. They chiefly made Croyland their place of refuge in troublesome times. Of the 'comprofessi' at this time in the monastery, ten were from Thorney; six from Peterborough; eight from Ramsey; three from Ely; nine from St. Edmundsbury; twelve from St. Alban's; ten from Westminster; two from St. Andrew Northampton; fourteen from Christ-Church Norwich; fifteen from Thetford; seven from Coventry; six from St. Mary York; ten from St. Mary Stowe; six from Michelney; and five from Malmesbury; beside many who came every day, and some who were constantly resident, who seeing the security of the place, and the harmony of the brethren of the monastery, entreated to be admitted into the society; the native urbanity of the place, from the earliest times, rarely giving any one a repulse.

When Ingulphus came to Croyland, his first care was to settle the affairs of the monastery, which he found in a confused and ruinous state. He learnt that one Asford of Heliestone, who had been bailiff to abbat Wulketul, had had the complete management of the revenues, that he had grown inordinately rich, knew the real state of the monastery, and was the only person who could relieve it. After long altercation, Asford produced his accounts, when it appeared that he claimed Heliestone as his own property. A day being appointed for the decision upon this claim by the king's judges at Stamford, Asford was riding thither, when his horse threw him and broke his neck. Credit not being immediately given to the news of this accident at Stamford, another day was appointed; but on the morrow, as the body was carried toward Peterborough, where Asford had appointed to be buried, passing on the way over ten acres of land belonging to Croyland which he had claimed in his life, a sudden darkness and heavy rain came on, when, the bier being broken, the body fell out upon the earth, where it lay a considerable time. This was considered as a miracle in favour of the monastery, whose right to the different lands in dispute was acknowledged by the family and relatives of Asford.^a

The fame of this triumph being spread abroad, none, Ingulphus observes, after this time, dared to encroach upon the patrimony of St. Guthlac: so that Richard de Rulos, who had married the daughter and heiress of Hugh de Evermue, lord of Brunne and Depyng, being disposed to make a large inclosure of fen and other lands, would not presume to do it without the consent of the monastery, to which he gave twenty marks of silver in alms at the time he made his request. The land which he inclosed was from St. Guthlac's chapel eastward to Caredyk, and across Caredyke to Cleylake beyond Crammor, keeping out the river Weland with a strong bank. Building thereon many tenements and cottages, and draining the land, he made Depyng a considerable town; changing the chapel of St. Guthlac to a parish church. This Richard de Rulos continued a steady friend to the monastery, and was upon all occasions an advocate in its favour with the king.

The concerns of the monastery being now upon a better footing, Ingulphus went to London to solicit the king for the release of Wulketul, who still continued in prison at Glastonbury. William's personal antipathy to Wulketul had ceased: but he was still determined against his advancement to any dignity in the church. The only permission which could be obtained was, that he might return to Peterborough, but never to Croyland, unless Ingulphus wished to consult him on the affairs of the monastery. Ingulphus took frequent opportunities of inviting Wulketul on temporary visits, and showed him such honour as induced him not only to communicate many matters of importance for the benefit of the house, but also to make some small donations thereto.^b Wulketul survived his deposition ten years: but being suddenly seized with the palsy, he lay ill four months, helpless and speechless, dying on the feast of St. Jerome, A. D. 1085; leaving many of the effects of Croyland abbey in the hands of the convent at Peterborough, whom he had in vain solicited to restore them.^c

The next fact of importance related by Ingulphus concerns the valuation of the abbey property as recorded in the Domesday Survey.

The following are the possessions of the monastery entered in the Record.

In Cambridgeshire, seven hides and a half of land in Hochinton, eleven hides in Coteham beside a rent of eels from the fen, seven hides and a half in Draitone, and three fisheries yielding a rent of four thousand eels at Wisbece. In Huntingdonshire, five hides with the manor in Morburne, and one hide and a half in Torninge. In Northamptonshire, one hide and a half in Wridtorp, three hides in Elmintone, two in Edintone, five hides and a half in Wendleberie, and four hides in Badebi. In Leicestershire, two carucates in Sutone and two in Stapleton, and ten carucates and a half in Bebi. In Lincolnshire, one carucate in Holeben and Copelande, two in Spallinge a berewick of Croyland, six carucates with the manor in Langetof, four carucates with the manor in Bastune, two and the manor in Duvedic, one carucate in Draitone a berewick of Duvedic beside four salt-works, twelve bovates of land in Alfgare another berewick, one bovat in Burtoft a third member of Duvedic, ten bovates with the manor in Buehehale, and ten bovates in the soke of Badesford.

The rental, as far as it is recorded, amounted at the time of the Survey to 57*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.*: exceeding by the sum of three pounds two shillings and four pence the produce which is stated to have been returned in the time of King Edward the Confessor. That the value, however here stated, was below the real receipts of the convent cannot be doubted, as there are several entries of rents in kind which are not estimated in money.^d

Ingulphus's transcript from the Survey, which he professes to have procured from London at considerable expence, enlarged in some instances and abbreviated in others, is given in the Note.^e It will be found, in nu-

^d See Num. XVII. In the Domesday Survey, both in Worcestershire and Herefordshire, (foll. 176, 182 b,) we have lands entered as belonging to the church of St. Guthlac; but this was the priory of St. Guthlac, situated in the suburb beyond Bye-street-gate, Hereford: founded by Walter de Laci, and afterwards made a cell to the abbey of St. Peter Gloucester. See Duncumbe's Collections for Herefordshire, vol. i. p. 418—424. Mr. Gough, Append. to Hist. Croyl. p. 157, says, many other religious societies were established in honour of St. Guthlac in different parts of the kingdom. A chapel dedicated to this saint formerly existed at Swaffham in Norfolk.

Ingulphus boasts, it will be seen, that his monastery was favoured by the commissioners. When Ingulphus went to London, he carried with him all the Charters which had been granted to the abbey by the Saxon kings, from the time of its foundation. They were read, he states, before the king and council; and although the earlier grants which were written in the Saxon hand, down to the last Mercian king, were treated with contempt, yet the Charters of

Edred, Edgar, and the succeeding kings being written wholly or in part in the Gallican hand, they were allowed: the king confirming to the monastery the Charter of Edred.^a

The same success, however, did not attend his solicitation to have Spalding restored; the interest of Yvo Tailbois prevailed against him, and Ingulphus had no other consolation than to recommend to his successors, at every favourable opportunity, to plead the original Charter of Thorold,^b whereby that cell was first granted to Croyland.^c

At his return, Ingulphus brought with him to his monastery a copy of the laws of Edward the Confessor, as King William had confirmed them;^d and a transcript of the decision of the great question of primacy, in 1072, in favour of the archbishop of Canterbury.^e

Item in Soudnaveslound hundred, in Adyngtona sanctus Guthlacus habuit et habet duas hidas: terra est quatuor carucat. in dominio est una, et duo servi et sex villani et III. bord. cum uno sochm. habente tres carucatas: ibi sex acræ prati, et molendinum tredecim solid. et quatuor denar. tempore regis Edwardi valebant quindecim solidis, modo XL. solid. Ibi etiam habet ecclesiam, et in alia Adyngtona dimidium virgatæ terræ ad geld. The reader who compares Ingulphus's transcript with the published Survey, will easily notice the more material errors of the scribe who copied for him. Exclusive of occasional misstatements in the quantity and value of land, the Domesday contraction for "modo" is almost uniformly lengthened into "monetæ." In one instance v, for "quinque," is interpreted "vero." Under Buchehale, or Bukenhale, the "sylva pastilis" and the "sylva minuta" are left undistinguished. "Juland" occurs for "inland." "Talba" for "Tailla." "Pet." for "pecuniam." "Usus" for "post." "Undecim acræ" should be "x. car.:" and churches are twice mentioned which do not occur in the Survey.

At the end of Ingulphus's transcript are a few remarks, p. 82—85, upon two or three passages of the Record.

A few days after his return (Mr. Gough by mistake says in 1072), the winter set in with unusual severity. The provision of the convent failed, and the fens were so bound up with ice, that nothing could be conveyed from the neighbouring manors. In this extremity, abbat Ingulphus betook himself to prayer for a whole night before St. Guthlac's shrine. In the morning, while the convent was at prayers in the church, a voice was suddenly heard from the north part of the monastery, as of an angel, saying, "Accipite victualia fratribus, et parate panes ut manducent hii:" the convent running out, no person could be seen; but four large sacks, two of wheat and two of flour, were standing in readiness in the church-yard.^a

In 1087, on the accession of William Rufus, Yvo Tailbois availed himself of his interest with that monarch, and seized upon all the lands of the abbey within his demesne, at Cappelade, Spaldyng, Pyncebek, and Algare. Ingulphus having in vain tried the mediation of Richard de Rulos and other friends of the monastery, at last applied to Archbishop Lanfranc, to whom he exhibited the title of the abbey to the lands in question, and through whose interest the sheriff of Lincoln was finally directed to enquire and compel restitution.^b

In 1091, the abbey was destroyed by a dreadful fire: of the circumstances of which Ingulphus gives a minute narrative. It was occasioned by the negligence of a plumber, who, having been preparing his lead for repairs on the tower of the church a whole day, when he went to supper, thoughtlessly left his embers covered up for the next day. The church (except the north transept), the chapter-house, the dormitory, the refectory, the infirmary, with all its offices, the strangers' and the converts' halls, the abbat's hall and chamber, and the library in which was a sphere of curious construction, all fell a prey to the flames. The charter-room, though it had a vaulted roof of stone, admitted the fire through its windows, which were of wood; so that, though the building escaped, the muniments were consumed or shrivelled. The vestry, which had a double stone roof, together with the vestments and reliques contained in it, and the transept of the church already mentioned, were the only parts of the structure which were preserved. The records which escaped were a few duplicates and triplicates of Saxon Charters, which Ingulphus had delivered out to Fulmar the chanter, to preserve in the cloister, in order to teach the junior monks the Saxon characters, which had been brought into disuse by the Normans, and could be read only by a few of the elder ones. These were saved by being placed in the cloister, in an old press, within the wall of the church. The old and beautiful Charters of the Mercian kings, with near four hundred other instruments, were burnt.^c

^c The following is Ingulphus's account of this calamitous event:

"Plumbarius enim noster circa sarta tecta reficienda in turri ecclesiæ occupatus, ad vesperum ignem suum non extinguens, sed mortuis cineribus fataliter et fatuissime operiens, quo paratior in mane suo operi insisteret, ad cœnam suam descendit; cumque finita cœna omnes servi nostrisua strata petissent, et sopor gravissimus singulos occuparet, exurgens ventus validissimus ex aquilone vere nobis malum maximum maturavit: intrans namque in turrim per apertos undique cancellos, sufflatis primo cineribus mortuis, ignem vivum in proxima tigna admovit, ubi aridam materiam et siccam sibi aptam citius inveniens, et fortius coalescens, etiam grossiora corripere cepit ignis: cernentesque diu villani lumen ingens in campanili, reputabant aliquid operis vel clericos ecclesiæ vel plumbarium consummare, tandem eructantes flammam percipientes, multo clamore portas monasterii percusserunt; erat enim circa noctis conticinium, cum universi in lectis nostris pausantes somnum primum et fortissimum faceremus. Demum ego expropterea ex somno populi clamore altisono, adque proximam fenestram festinans, tanquam in meridiana hora diei famulos omnes monasterii versus ecclesiam vociferantes et ejulantes ac discursantes clarissime cognoscebam. Cumque nocturnalibus nostris indutus, et sociis nostris excitatis, in claustrum descenderem properanter, ibi tanquam millia luminaria ibi accenderentur omnia coruscabant. Currensque ad ostium ecclesiæ et introire tentans, fere ab ære campanarum liquefacto et defluente, et plumbo similiter ferventissimo deguttante, interceptus eram; sed pedem retrahens et introspectiens ubique flammam dominantes, versus dormitorium cursum sumens, plumbo de ecclesia super claustrum deguttante, ac citius perforante, in scapula graviter adustus sum, et fere funditus concrematus, nisi in aream claustrum citius exsilissem, ubi cernens flammam ignivomam de turri ecclesiæ undique vapores etiam navim ecclesiæ corripuisse, et versus dormitorium fratrum crines suos jacere et juges favillas vibrare, exclamans ad eos adhuc tanquam mortaliter soporatos, vix valido ejulatu tandem valui excitare. Illi vocem meam agnoscentes, et nimium terri de stratis exsistentes, in suis nocturnalibus et seminudi, cum ignem in claustro audirent, per omnes dormitorii fenestras prorunt, et miserabiliter corruunt; multi vulnerati, et duro casu conquassati, pro dolor! et confracti. Flammæ vero semper valescentes, et de ecclesia versus refectoryum faces continuas jacentes, primo capitulum, deinde dormitorium, postea ipsum refectoryum, et eodem momento deambulatorium penes infirmitorium, ac totum ipsum infirmitorium cum omnibus contiguis officinis uno impetu depastæ sunt. Omnes autem fratres nostros ad me confugientes in curiam, cum plurimos cernerem seminudos, propriam cameram tentabam repetere, pro vestibis quas illic habebam, ubi majorem viderem indigentiam distribuendis: sed tantus calor omnem aulæ aditum occupabat, et maxime plumbi fluxus liquefacti ubique deguttabat, quod adhuc audacissimos juvenes ab ingressu longius arcebat. Porro ego adhuc ignorans infirmitorium nostrum ex altera parte igne correptum, circuibam per cœmeterium boreale versus ecclesiæ caput orientale; tunc percipiebam infirmitorium nostrum ignibus conflagrare, et ipsos invincibiles etiam in virides arbores, fraxinus, quercus, et salices circa crescentes fortissime debacchari. Reversus ego ad plagam occidentalem, reperiebam cameram meam tanquam clibanum assiduas flammam per omnes fenestras undique evomentem, et procedens omnia cætera ædificia contigua versus austrum, scilicet aulas conversorum ac hospitum, et alia quæcunque plumbo fuerant cooperta ignibus correpta oculis digne lacrimosis aspiciebam. Sed corruente turre ecclesiæ super australe brachium ejus, ipso fragore conterritus ego etiam ad terram semimortuus in extasin corruiebam. Elevatus quidem a confratribus meis, et in cameram portarii nostri portatus, vix usque ad mane rectum sensum meum vel solitas vires recipere prævalebam.

Clarescente tandem die, et me melius de frenesi mea convalescente, fratres lachrimantes ac languidi, et nonnulli multis membris

miserabiliter lacerati et adusti, in aula Grimketuli corrodiarii nostri divinum officium lugubri voce et lamentabili ejulatu communiter persolverunt. Completisque omnibus horis divini officii, tam diurnis quam nocturnis, ubi processimus ad videndum totius monasterii nostri statum, adhuc ignibus in multis officinis prædominantibus, tunc primitus percepigi granarium ac stabulum nostrum combusta, flammis eorum nondum sopitis, sed eorum postibus etiam in profundam terram ab ignibus adesis. Circa vero tertiam horam diei ignibus multum mitigatis ecclesiam intravimus, et aquis illatis ignem jam mitescentem ubique extinguentes, reperimus in choro incinerato omnes libros officii divini tam antiphonaria quam gradalia deperisse. Intrans tamen vestiarium, omnia sacra vestimenta nostra, sanctorumque reliquias, et nonnulla alia jocalia ibi reposita reperimus ab ignibus intacta, eo quod duplici arcu lapideo dicta domus erat tecta. In cartarium vero nostram ascendentes, quæ licet arcu lapideo erat per totum contexta, tamen per ligneas fenestras igne irruente, invenimus sicut in fornace fervente vel in furno candente, licet ipsa scrinia integra et salva apparerent, tamen omnia monumenta nostra contenta nimio ignis calore concreta sunt et penitus concremata. Chirographa nostra pulcherrima, litera publica conscripta, et crucibus aureis et venustissimis picturis ac elementis preciosissimis adornata, et reposita ibidem, omnia demolita. Privilegia etiam regum Merciorum antiquissima et optima, similiter aureis picturis pulcherrima consignata, sed litera Saxonica scripta, omnia sunt combusta. Universa talia monumenta nostra majora et minora, fuerunt numero fere quadraginta, uno momento noctis nigerimæ nobis nimium infelici infortunio perdita et destructa. Præcedentibus autem paucis annis gratiose assumens de cartaria plurima chirographa manu Saxonica exarata, eo quod eadem duplicata et quædam triplicata habuimus, tradideram ea cantori nostro, domino Fulmaro, in claustro conservanda, pro juniorum doctrina ad manum Saxonicam addiscendam, quoniam talis litera à longo tempore, causa Normannorum jam neglecta viluerat, et jam nisi paucis senioribus erat agnita; ut juniores instructi legere hanc literam, in suo senio fierent aptiores ad monumenta sui monasterii contra suos adversarios alleganda. Quæ chirographa quoniam in claustro in quodam veteri scrinio per ecclesiæ parietem circumcluso fuerant reposita, solummodo salvata sunt et ab incendio conservata. Hæc jam principalia sunt et præcipua nostra monumenta, quæ quondam secundaria et seposita, causa barbaræ literæ fuerant jam à longo levipensa et despecta, juxta illud beati Job, 'Quæ prius nolebat tangere anima mea, nunc præ angustia cibi mei sunt.'

"Tota quoque bibliotheca nostra periit, quæ amplius quam ccc. volumina originalia continebat, præter minora volumina, quæ amplius erant quam cccc. Pulcherrimumque pinacem tunc perdidimus et valde sumtuosum, de omni genere metalli pro varietate siderum et signorum mirabiliter fabricatum. Saturnus enim cupreus. Jupiter autem aureus. Mars vero ferrugineus. Sol de auricalcho. Mercurius Electrinus. Venus de stanno, et Luna fuit de argento. Coluri et omnia signa Zodiaci juxta suas naturas, suas imagines et colores, variis formis et figuris arte fabrilis sortientes, multiplicitate tam gemmarum quam metallorum et tam oculos quam ingenia intuentium supra modum sollicitabant. Non erat tale Nader in tota Anglia notum aut nominatum. Rex Franciæ quondam Turketulo dederat: at ille in suo obitu communi bibliothecæ, tam pro ornamento quam pro juniorum documento, commendarat, jam igne vorace consumtum et in nihilum liquefactum.

Infirmitorium nostrum cum capella et balneatorio et omnibus officinis adherentibus similiter consumuntur. Refectoryum nostrum et omnia in eo contenta, præter paucos ciphos mureos et cornu ac crucibolum Wichtlafi quondam regis Merciorum quæ in petrinis scriniis custodiebantur, cum coquinis annexis, et fratrum conversorum aula et camera cum omnibus contentis in ea, simul concremantur. noised about than the neighbours vied with each other in forwarding relief. Remigius bishop of Lincoln granted forty days of pardon to all who should be benefactors; sending, himself, forty marks of silver. The canons and citizens of Lincoln sent a hundred marks. Richard de Rulos, lord of Brunne and Depyng, sent ten quarters of wheat, ten of malt, ten of peas, ten of beans, and ten pounds in silver. Haco de Multon sent twelve quarters of wheat and twenty fat hogs. Elsin de Pyncebek, a hundred shillings in silver, and ten hogs. Ardnor de Spalding gave six quarters of wheat, two oxen, and twelve hogs. The benefactors, beside these, were very numerous. Even Juliana, a poor woman of Weston, gave a large quantity of wound thread, to sew the vestments of the monks.^a Several of their estates were also at this time let to great advantage:^b and the meaner tenants of the monastery were called upon for extraordinary services. With these helps the monks were enabled to set about rebuilding their church, by putting on a temporary roof, and supplying the loss of their bells and tower by two skillets, given them by Fergus, a brazier of Boston.^c The body of Earl Waldeve was next translated from the chapter-house, and deposited by the side of St. Guthlac, "ad latus sancti Guthlaci," under an arch of stone prepared for the purpose. Miracles were presently wrought at the tomb; and the concourse of people who flocked to witness them proved of especial benefit to the monastery.^d

Ingulphus now made considerable alteration in the internal regulations of the convent, together with some additions to the statutes of abbat Turketul.^e

Yvo Tailbois, the old and implacable enemy of the monastery, presuming, according to report, that all its Charters were consumed, renewed the dispute respecting the title of the monks to their lands in his demesne: when Trigus, a brother, and the proctor of the monastery, was directed to produce the Charters of Thorold and Earl Algar at Spalding. On returning home, the clerk of Trigus was waylaid and searched for the Charters by three servants of Yvo Tailbois, but without success. Ingulphus, from this time, kept the Charters of the monastery concealed. Within a short time after, Yvo was convicted of conspiring against the king and was in consequence outlawed.^f

Thus far the chief authority for the history and Charters of Croyland has been Ingulphus, its abbat.^g After having held the abbey thirty-four years, and having taken every necessary step for rebuilding and refurnishing it, he died on the 16th of the kalends of January, A.D. 1109, and was buried in the chapter-house.^h After a vacancy of three months and a few days.

JOFFRID, at the earnest solicitation of Alan Croun, the seneschal of the king's palace, was sent for by Henry the First from the monastery of Saint Ebrulph in Normandy, of which he was prior. He made his entry as abbat at Croyland on April 8th, 1109, soon after which he was consecrated by Robert bishop of Lincoln. He began the rebuilding of the church and monastery with stone: and, in furtherance of his work, obtained from the archbishops of Canterbury and York, as well as from the other bishops of England, the remission of one third of the penance enjoined on any person who should be a benefactor to the building. That no pains might be spared, Joffrid dispatched deputations of his monks to all parts with copies of the Indulgence, in hope of obtaining contributions. Ægelmer and Nigel were sent to France and Flanders. Fulco and Oger to the northern parts and Scotland. Suetman and the younger Wlsin to Denmark and Norway. Austin and Osbert to Wales, Cornwall, and Ireland. Peter of Blois gives a copy of Joffrid's circular letter which they carried with them.ⁱ He sent also to his manor of Cotenham, near Cambridge, Gilbert and three other monks, who had accompanied their abbat from Normandy, and who were versed in philosophy and other primitive sciences, to read lectures at Cambridge; where, having hired a barn, they were soon attended by a numerous congregation. The second year after their coming, so great was the number of their hearers, that no house, barn, or church, was large enough to receive them. They therefore separated to different places, and adopted the practice of the university of Orleans. Odo read lectures on grammar in the morning to the younger students: Terrie, on logic, to those who were more advanced, at noon: brother William read on rhetoric from Tully and Quintilian in the afternoon: while Gilbert preached regularly on every Sunday and saints-day, in different churches; to the common people in English, in Latin and French against the Jews; and on the holiday evenings he explained the Scriptures to the learned and the clergy. Thus producing a revenue of no inconsiderable consequence to the abbey.^k Other monks were sent, for the same purpose, to the manors of Wridthorp and Wendlingburgh.^l

In 1112, Robert, the brother of abbat Joffrid, who had also been a monk of St. Ebrulf, was made abbat of Thorney.^m

In 1113, abbat Joffrid sent Benedict and Stephen, two of the monks, to his manor of Beby, where, by their preaching, and more particularly addressing themselves to Robert earl of Leicester and the burgesses of that town, they acquired a large accession of alms from the faithful for their monastery. They also contributed much to the improvement of the manors of Beby, Sutton, and Stapilton.ⁿ

A. D. 1114, on the festival of the saints Perpetua and Felicitas, abbat Joffrid, in the presence of a large concourse of nobility and others, whose names are enumerated by Peter of Blois, laid the first stone of the new church, at the north-east corner of the intended structure. Richard de Rulos laid the next stone eastward, placing upon it twenty pounds toward the support of the workmen. Geoffrey Ridel placed the next to that, with ten pounds toward the workmen. The next stone to the east was placed by the lady Geva his wife, who offered one quarrier, at her own expence, for two years, in Bernak quarry, for the service of the monastery. Avice, the sister of Geoffrey Ridel, who laid the adjoining stone, gave another quarrier in like manner. Robert abbat of Thorney laid the stone at the south-east corner, giving ten pounds toward the workmen. Alan de Croun, or Creoun, laid the next stone eastward, and upon it his title to the patronage of Freston church; as did his wife Muriel the next, with the patronage of Toftis; their eldest son, Maurice, another, with the patronage of Butirwykys church; and their daughter Matilda another, with the patronage of Burton in Kesteven. All these titles were delivered publicly by Alan to abbat Joffrid, to erect a cell for the monks of Croyland in whichever of the churches he might think proper. Other persons who contributed in laying stones and offering money were Robert earl of Leicester, who placed the south-east stone "in cono capitis," Walter de Cantilupe and his wife Emicina, Alan de Fulbek, Theodore de Botheby, knight, and his wife Lezelina, Turbrand, a knight of Spalding, Simon earl of Northampton, who placed the north-east stone "in cono capitis," Ralph de Bernak and his wife Boass, Helpe and Simon, knights, with the latter's wife Gizlan, Sir Reyner de Bathe and his wife Goda: all these persons were contributors to the east front.^a

The convent of the abbat's choir laid the foundation of the north wall of the church after abbat Joffrid; as did the convent of the prior's choir that of the south wall after the abbat of Thorney. The base of the first pillar of the north wall was laid by Huctred, priest of Depyng, with a hundred and four of the towns-people, who offered one day's work in every month till the completion of the work. The base of the second pillar of the north wall was laid by John, priest of Talyngton, the inhabitants of the vill, who were sixty in number, making a similar offer with the men of Depyng. The foundation of the third pillar of the north wall was laid by Stanard, the priest of Uffington, with forty-two persons of his vill, upon the same terms. The foundation of the first pillar on the south side was laid by Turgar, priest of Grantham, who, with Giva and Eilward, deacons, and two hundred and twenty men of the vill, gave ten marks toward the workmen. The base of the second was laid by Turkill, priest of Hocham, who, with Elwy the deacon, and the men of Hocham, gave toward supporting the workmen twenty quarters of wheat and twenty of malt. That of the third was laid by Godescall, priest of Routzeby, who, with John the deacon, and the men of his vill, amounting to the number of eighty-four, gave six marks toward the workmen, two quarriers in their quarry, and the carriage of stone to the vessel and from the vessel "usque ii. baiardours," to serve at the church.

To all these benefactors, abbat Joffrid, when he had finished his discourse which he held to each while the different stones were placing, gave the fraternity of the monastery, and a participation in the prayers of the convent as well as in the before-mentioned Indulgences. He moreover invited the whole company, both men and women, to an entertainment. The abbats of Croyland and Thorney, with near four hundred monks of different monasteries, dined in the refectory: the two earls, and the two barons, with their wives, the knights, and gentry, dined in the abbat's hall: the six companies ("cunei") who raised the six pillars, with their wives, in the cloister; and the populace in the court: the whole amounting to more than five thousand persons.^b

From this time the building was carried on with unremitting ardour; the direction of the work being assigned to Odo the prior, and a lay-brother of the name of Arnold, "cementariæ artis scientissimo magistro." Abbat Joffrid, in the mean time, applying his mind to other business, went to London, where, chiefly by the assistance of Alan de Creoun, at that time the king's "dapifer," he obtained from Henry the First a new Charter of Confirmation.^c Theobald earl of Blois, and his brother Stephen, afterwards king of England, both of whom, in early life, had been students under Joffrid in the university of Orleans, aiding him with their interest.

In the same year died Yvo Tailboys, the great enemy to the monks of Croyland. He was buried at Spalding. In this year also died Alan Creoun, or de Credona, whose grant of the churches of Freston, Butterwik, Warneburne, Stonnesby, Claxby, and Burton will be found in the Appendix of Instruments.^d

In 1117, an earthquake, which was felt both in Italy and England, did much injury to the structure which was rising at Croyland. The new work, on which the roof had not been laid, gave way, and the south wall was cracked in so many places, that the carpenters were obliged to shore it up with beams.^e

Abbat Joffrid died in 1124. His successor in the abbacy was

WALDEVE, called by the writer of the Cotton manuscript Vesp. B. XI. WALDENUS.^f He was a monk of this house, and is spoken of as the brother of Gospatric, a nobleman.^g He translated to a new spot the reliques of St. Guthlac A.D. 1136: a rich shrine of wood, ornamented with plates of gold and silver, and precious stones, being prepared for them by a wealthy and religious person named Robert de Grandineto. Abbat Waldeve was accused by his monks, though it is not said of what, and deposed A.D. 1138 by Alberic the legate.^h

GODFREY, or GODEFRIDUS, was the next abbat, who had been prior of St. Albans; the customs of which monastery he introduced at Croyland.ⁱ He died on the 8th of the ides of April, A.D. 1142.

EDWARD, a monk and prior of Ramsey, succeeded Godfrey: at whose request King Stephen granted to the abbey his Charter of Confirmation in 1153.^k This abbat is stated not only to have enriched his monastery with ornaments and books, but to have improved its possessions. In his time, the church and offices were again destroyed by fire: however, the greatest part was rebuilt immediately in a magnificent manner.^l After having presided thirty years, abbat Edward died in the month of February, A.D. 1172.

ROBERT DE REDINGES, prior of Leominster, was made abbat by King Henry the Second, and received the benediction from Richard bishop of Lincoln in 1175. He completed the building of the new Church, and made the front of St. Guthlac's shrine. He also obtained a Charter of Confirmation of the abbey possessions, from King Henry the Second.^m

The Continuation of the History of Croyland contains an extended detail of the controversy which abbat Redinges had with the prior of Spalding and the people of Holand respecting the fen in the precinct of Croyland abbey. In the midst of this controversy, while on the road to attend the trial of it, he died at his manor of Cottenham in Cambridgeshire, on Easter eve, A.D. 1190.ⁿ

HENRY DE LONGCHAMP, a monk of Evesham, and brother to William Longchamp, bishop of Ely and chancellor, was the next abbat. He was appointed with the king's permission, by his brother in 1191. In 1193, to end the controversy respecting Croyland precinct, he crossed the seas, and had a conference with King Richard the First at Spires, by whom the Charter of King Henry the Second to Croyland abbey was confirmed on the second day after his release from imprisonment. The quiet possession of the fen, however, though enjoyed at intervals, was not finally confirmed to Croyland till the year 1199.^o

In 1195, in the sixtieth year from the first translation, St. Guthlac was again removed "ad ampliorem sublimationem;" and his shrine more worthily decorated. The removal began on the 5th of the kalends of May, the convent and others assisting and singing at the ceremony.^p

In 1202 a dispute arose about another fen between the abbats of Croyland and Peterborough; the adjustment of which, to the prejudice of the former, is recited in the continuation of the History of Croyland.^a

In 1220, abbat Longchamp obtained from King Henry the Third a confirmation of the abbey liberties.^b

Having governed the monastery forty-six years, he died in the month of February, 1236. His attention to the manor-houses upon the different estates, as well as to the buildings of the abbey, is particularly noticed by the writer of the Continuation.^c Upon his death,

RICHARD BARDENAY, cellarer of the house, was appointed by King Henry the Third to succeed him. In the time of this abbat, William de Albini had a grant of common for himself and his heirs in the marshes of Croyland, Spalding, Pynchbeck, Langtoft, and Baston, for their tenants in Uffington, Caswyk, and Talyngton.^d He enclosed and cultivated Aswyk fen, and began that of Dovesdale. He gave a hundred shillings a year from the fee of his church of Whaplode, to find a light perpetually burning before the altar of the Virgin Mary: and he increased the revenue of the offices, and greatly improved the different possessions of the monastery.^e He died A. D. 1247, and was succeeded by THOMAS WELLES, who had previously been "gremialis" and subprior of the house. Abbat Welles followed the example of his predecessor in improving the rents of the offices, and settled on the convent the newly-tilled land at Dovesdale. While on a journey to Rome upon the affairs of his convent, he was made prisoner and detained a considerable time by the Lombards. He died on the ides of October, 1254. The continuator of Blesensis states, that numerous sick persons were restored to health at his tomb; and that, two years after his death, on removing his body to the last arch of the north transept, his skin was found firm and uncorrupted.^f

RALPH MERSHE, or DE MERSE, a monk of Croyland, was the next abbat. At considerable expence, and after a long suit at law, he obtained for his monastery the manor of Gedney: he also procured the appropriation of the church of Whaplode;^g and purchased the advowson of Eston. By his interest with King Henry the Third, he also obtained markets and fairs in Whaplode,^h Baston,ⁱ and Croyland; with free warren in his manors of Croyland, Langtoft, Baston, Thetford,^k Burthorp, Bukenhale, Halyngton, Dovedyke, Whaplode, Holbech, and Aswyke.^l He built the tower of the church beyond the choir, with the chapel of St. Martin near the gate of the almonry: and, after witnessing numerous exactions from the crown upon his monastery, died on the feast of St. Michael, 1281.^m

RICHARD CROYLAND, a monk here, and a native of the town, immediately succeeded as abbat. He began the rebuilding of the east end of the church, in a style of beauty and elegance superior to all the other churches of the province. He also laid out considerable sums of money on the manor of Dovedyke, and built the manor-houses of Langtoft, Wendlyngburgh, and Morburn, with numerous offices in other manors.ⁿ

In the time of this abbat, frequent disputes arose between the lord of Depynge and the men of Kesteven on the one part, and the abbat of Croyland, the prior of Spalding, and the men of Holand, on the other, respecting the fens of Holand and Kesteven. The Continuation of the History of Croyland, so often quoted, contains an imperfect copy of the petition presented upon this occasion to parliament.

Abbat Richard Croyland resigned the government of his monastery in 1303. The king's licence to the convent to choose a successor was granted on Nov. 22d that year, and on the 25th of December following, the royal assent was given to the election of

SIMON DE LUFFENHAM.^o The Cotton manuscript Vesp. B. xi. states him also to have been a native of Croyland. He probably granted out the lands of his abbey in a manner detrimental to its interests, as we find his deposition by the bishop of Lincoln, in 1324, thus noticed in the same manuscript: "Cum plus justo carnales parentes suos diligeret et spirituales contempneret, per episcopum pro demeritis depositus est de abbate." The Continuation of the History of Croyland speaks of his cession only.^p His successor was HENRY DE CASEWYKE, or CUSEWYKE, so named from the place of his birth. Immediately upon abbat Luffenham's deposition, the escheator for the counties of Lincoln, Northampton, Cambridge, and Rutland, seized upon the goods of the abbey for the king's use: and the first act of abbat Casewyke's administration seems to have been an application for an allowance to the convent during the vacancy. Accordingly, upon an inquisition taken at Stamford in the second year of King Edward the Third, upon the oaths of eighteen jurors, there were found to have been in the monastery throughout the time of the vacancy forty-one monks, fifteen corrodiers, and thirty-six officers and servants, who were all returned by name. After which, an allowance was made from the exchequer of sixpence a day to the prior, three pence to each monk and corrodier, and two pence to each servant. The value of the monastery to the king at this time was 85*l.* 6*s.* 0½*d.* The allowance to the monks amounted to 8*l.* 17*s.* 0¼*d.*^q After having filled the abbatial office thirty-five years, abbat Casewyke died in 1358. During the time of this abbat, in 1332, a composition of fraternity was entered into between the convents of Croyland and Spalding.

THOMAS DE BERNAK, who was next elected abbat, was confirmed in his office by the bishop of Lincoln on the Wednesday next before the feast of St. Gregory, 1358.^r Mr. Gough places his death in 1378:^s but Bishop Kennett says, that

JOHN DE ASHEBY was made his successor in 1373.^t The controversy which took place in his time respecting the ancient bounds of the fens, and which was noticed even in parliament, is detailed at considerable length in the Continuation of the History of Croyland.^u He added to the church, or rather new cast, the large bells in the outward belfry.^x Having governed his monastery fifteen years, he died of a fever on the octaves of St. Bartholomew, 1392.

THOMAS DE OVERTON, the prior of the monastery, became the next abbat; and had the mortification to see the controversy as to the boundaries renewed.^y Upon the deposition of King Richard II., Thomas Holand earl of Kent, the inveterate enemy of the monastery, was beheaded for conspiring against King Henry the Fourth, A. D. 1400. Abbat Overton, with several other abbats of the province, was also charged with treason; but on his appearance before the king's justices at Huntingdon, he was acquitted.^z By way of improvement to the revenues of the monastery, he purchased the third part of the manor of Gedney, called Shelton Fee, from Sir Ralph Shelton; and the land called Beaumont's Fee, in Baston, of the Lord Henry de Beaumont. He also, for twenty pounds, procured a Charter of indemnification for escheats on a vacancy: gave new forms to the choir: added four bells to the tower: and rebuilt the brewery and bakehouse of the abbey. Toward the close of his administration he became blind; but, at the earnest desire of the convent, still continued to govern them: the management of their affairs being placed in the hands of the prior, who will be hereafter mentioned.^a Abbat Overton lived till the feast of St. Thomas the Martyr,^b A. D. 1417. He was buried before the high altar of the church.^c

The Continuation of the History of Croyland takes particular notice of several monks, who, in this abbat's time, were great benefactors to the house.

Laurence Chateres, the cook, gave forty pounds toward the building of the west side of the cloister, and forty pounds to find milk of almonds for the refreshment of the convent on fish days; a black vestment, wrought "scripturis aureis," for officiating in at funerals, valued at twenty-six pounds; and twenty pounds to build a farm-house on Dovedale manor.

William de Croyland, master of the works, built the before-mentioned western part of the cloister from the foundation; the north and south cross ailes of the choir, with their arches and glass windows; and the Lady chapel on the north side. He likewise built the refectory-house, and the lower part of the nave of the church toward the west; and both its ailes and their chapels from the foundations to the roof. He also gave two tablets to the altar of St. Guthlac.

Brother Richard Woxbridge gave a purple vestment sprinkled with gold flowers, two copes, and a chesuble with tunics.

Simon Eresby adorned the altar of St. John the Evangelist with tablets both above and below: he also gave the two principal censers of silver gilt, valued at forty marks; stands for holding lights in the chapel of the Virgin Mary, on the south side of the church; and a high screen at the lower end.^d

RICHARD UPTON, prior of the house, who had governed the monastery for five years, during abbat Overton's incapacity, was unanimously elected abbat on his death.^e He appears to have consulted the interest of his monastery in every thing. The Continuation of the History of Croyland gives a detail of his good actions. He gave a receptacle to carry reliques in, which cost a hundred and twenty marks; a red cope ornamented with gold and jewels, commonly called "Ibi et Ubi," valued at a hundred marks; a vestment ornamented with the arms of England and France quarterly, with copes of the same workmanship, which also cost a hundred marks; and silk embroidered with falcons of gold, enough to make seven copes, which abbat John Lytlington, his successor, made up. He spared no expence in repairing the pastoral staves in the vestry, and the pix at the high altar, ornamented with a silver crown set with jewels. He added many valuable books to the library: rebuilt the abbat's hall: and repaired a great part of the west side of the abbey court, to the water-gate.^f

Abbat Upton died May 14th, 1427, having been abbat nine years and four months, and was succeeded by respecting the fens were renewed.^g During the time of this abbat, also, A. D. 1447, a dispute arose with the Lord Thomas Dacre, lord of Holbeth, or Holbech. The abbat of Croyland was the paramount lord of Holbech, having, beside the fee of the church there, a market and fair, waste, and free warren, pillory and tumbrell, and the correction of the assize of bread and beer: contrary to which, the bailiffs and ministers of the Lord Thomas had distrained upon the common, and been guilty of other acts to the abbat's prejudice. The award of the bishop of Lincoln, in settling this dispute, will be found among the Instruments appended to this Account.^h

In the confusion of the war between the houses of York and Lancaster, King Henry the Sixth came to Croyland, to pay his devotions at the tomb of St. Guthlac. He stayed at the abbey three days and three nights, and was so pleased with the devout behaviour of the convent, as to desire admission into the fraternity: in return for which he bestowed upon the abbey a new Charter of liberties.ⁱ Soon after this, upon the death of the duke of York at Wakefield, the northern men rose, and committed the most dreadful ravages. The inhabitants of Croyland brought their treasures and effects to the abbey, as to a place of safety; while the abbat and convent removed their own treasures and archives elsewhere, to a place of better concealment: fearing that the report of the great wealth deposited in their house might make it an object for attack. Processions by the convent were made daily round the tomb of their patron saint; the gates of the abbey were guarded, as well as the adjacent village; the mouths of the dykes and canals were fortified with stakes; and trunks of trees and other obstacles to approach were scattered on the causeways. The hostile army, however, came within six miles only of Croyland, without entering the monastery.^k

In the first year of Edward the Fourth, the acts and grants of the three preceding kings were resumed and annulled in Parliament; and, among them, the Charter respecting the vacancy of the abbey, obtained from King Henry the Fifth by abbat Overton, and the Charter of liberties granted by King Henry the Sixth.^l

Abbat Litlyngton died on the 16th of June, 1469, in the eighty-fifth year of his age, and in the 69th year of his profession, having presided over the abbey of Croyland forty-two years and eight months.

The continuator so often quoted speaks of him as an exemplary benefactor to the monastery. He gave no fewer than nine copes of cloth of gold, embroidered, valued at two hundred and forty pounds: a suit of vestments of red and gold, consisting of three copes, with a chesuble, and three tunics, which cost a hundred and sixty pounds: and a gilt table for the high altar, with its "præclatorium," or screen, both behind and before. He made the ceiling in the lower part of the church; glazed the windows; and vaulted the ailes of the same with stone. He also constructed the organ which was placed at the entrance of the church, as well as the ^d Ibid. pp. 497, 498. William de Croyland's building of the lower part of the nave of the church is again mentioned in p. 515, together with the contributions of the following benefactors. Richard Baston and Roger Greyne, of Donyngton, gave each a hundred marks; Henry Welles archdeacon of Lincoln gave twenty pounds, beside ten pounds toward the reparation of Dovedale chapel; the Lord Thomas de la Warre and William Michel gave each twenty marks; John Kyme, John Wettlesey, John Edward, and John Ward, each ten pounds; John Curtes, William Porter, John Tomson, and John Bell, each ten marks.

^e The claims which were usually made on the installation of an abbat of Croyland, are thus detailed in the Continuation of the History of the Abbey, immediately after the account of abbat Upton's election.

"Sed jam quædam quæ de Abbatibus hujus monasterii noviter institutis, in eorum installationibus solent exigî, posteris nostris utiliter tradere, et præsentibus breviter inserere, minime credimus otiosum. Primo quidem quod capam illam qua installationis suæ tempore abbas ad altare steterit indutus, Capitulum Lincoln. quasi sibi debitam hactenus consuevit habere, quam de jure matricis ecclesiæ ritu antiquissimo sibi asserit pertinere. lesser one in the choir:^a and caused a carved table to be made for the altar of the Virgin Mary. He likewise gave to the vestry the principal cross for processions, a chalice, and some massive candlesticks; all of silver gilt.

Among the monks his contemporaries, John Leicester, Stephen Swynshed, Thomas Walden, John Lexington, John Wisbech, and Thomas Leverton, are also noticed as considerable benefactors. Richard Benyngton, another monk, gave forty pounds toward glazing the west window of the nave.^b

Abbat Litlyngton is also stated, in a subsequent page, to have sent the three old bells of the church to London in 1464, and to have had them cast into five; which on their return were consecrated by the bishops of Elphin and Lincoln, by the names of Guthlac, Bartholomew, Michael, Mary, and Trinity.^c

In 1464 Margaret duchess of Somerset, and her daughter, Margaret countess of Richmond, are recorded to have been received into sisterhood at Croyland.^d

In 1467 a great flood overflowed the district of Holand; the extraordinary appearances of the air were likewise supposed to prognosticate calamity; so that at last King Edward the Fourth himself was induced to undertake a pilgrimage, first to St. Edmund at Norwich, and afterwards to our Lady of Walsingham; in returning from which, with a suite of two hundred horse, he passed one night at Croyland abbey.^e

With the account of abbat Litlyngton the Second Continuation of Ingulphus's History of Croyland ends. It was, however, resumed the same year; when

JOHN WYSHBYCH, or DE WISBECH, prior of Freston, was elected abbat on the 3d of February, 1469-70.^f He rebuilt the chapel of St. Pega at Paylond, as it was commonly called, which had long been in a state of ruin; completed the state apartments, "cameræ illæ solennes," between the western part of the church and the almonry, which his predecessor had begun; built the large granary adjoining the bakehouse; made windows to the dark rooms for the abbat's officers near the cloister; and built convenient apartments at Buckingham college in Cambridge, where Magdalen college now stands, for the reception and residence of scholars sent from the monastery. He changed the annual service of four stone of wax, which used to be paid from the town to the abbey of Peterborough on St. Peter's day, for a pension of twenty shillings: and abolished the ancient custom, or rather abuse, of giving knives to all that came to the monastery on St. Bartholomew's day; whereby the abbat and convent were relieved from a great and needless expence.^g

In his time a misfortune of fire happened in the town of Croyland, which impaired the revenues of the monastery to the value of forty marks a year. Abbat Wisbech, however, bestowed different sums of money upon the abbey tenants to encourage them to build again: and would himself have rebuilt what belonged to the monastery had he lived longer. He died on the 19th day of November, 1476.^h

RICHARD CROYLAND, B. D., was elected abbat Dec. 17th following, having previously been "seneschallus," the steward of the monastery. The natural inclination of this good man appears to have been more to study and the transcribing of books than to the management of temporal affairs and the conducting of litigations. While engaged in transcribing manuscripts for the library of his house, his neighbours in the fens, perceiving his innocent simplicity, made new encroachments on the lands and privileges of the abbey. The inhabitants of Depyng, assembling to the number of three hundred, committed great depredations in Goggyslound marsh. The tenants, also, and parishioners of Whaplode fell furiously upon Lambert Fossedyk, the steward of the monastery, who would have hindered them from carrying away the trees which grew in the church-yard; and even threatened his life. But these, Ingulphus observes, were but trifles compared with the disturbance given to this abbat by his neighbour, William Ramsey, the abbat of Peterborough, about Alderland marsh, and other undoubted lands and privileges of the monastery. This difference, however, was adjusted by the interposition of Thomas Rotherham, sometime bishop of Lincoln, and then archbishop of York.ⁱ The arbitration took place in 1481, the twenty-first year of K. Edward the Fourth.^k On the death of Croyland,

LAMBERT FOSSEDYK, bachelor of laws, the steward of the monastery, was elected abbat January 12th, 1484. He enjoyed his dignity but two years. Dying of the sweating sickness, after an illness of eighteen hours, on November the 14th, 1485.^l A vacancy of two years duration ensued, when

EDMUND THORP, B. D. prior of the house, was elected his successor on the feast of St. Theodore, November 9th, 1487, who, upon his promotion, considering the trouble his predecessors had been brought into by their restless neighbours, used all possible methods to procure peace. The three principal controversies were, first, with the men of Multon and Weston, concerning the precinct of Croyland; secondly, with the tenants of the monastery and the men of Depyng, concerning the bounds of the demesne and the manner of pasturing in Goggysland; thirdly, concerning the marsh of Aleyrland. The first of these was, in a manner, by the management of the justices itinerant; the second, by the kindness of the king's mother, to whom Depyng belonged; and the third, by giving and appropriating to the monks of Peterborough, the church of Brynkehurst, by way of composition.^m

PHILIP EVERARD succeeded as abbat in 1497; who is also called EVEREDGE, and EVERMUE.ⁿ

WILLIAM GEDDYNG, or GEDYNG, succeeded to the abbacy in 1504.

RICHARD BERDENY, whom Leland calls BERKENY, had the temporalities restored to him Dec. 15th, A. D. 1507, being the 22d K. Henry VII.

JOHN WELLES, alias BRIDGES, had the temporalities of the monastery restored to him Oct. 3d, 1512; and was the last person who filled the office of abbat. In 1534, with William Pinchbeck, prior, Richard Slyford, or Slefurth, prior of Freston, Antony Overton, and twenty-seven other monks, he subscribed to the king's supremacy. After which, continuing abbat till the Dissolution, in 1539, he joined with the rest of the convent in the surrender of their house: obtaining for himself a pension of 130*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*^o

The site was granted in the fourth year of Edward the Sixth to Edward Lord Clinton. It now belongs, together with the manor and demesne lands of Croyland, amounting to six thousand five hundred acres, to the family of Hunter.^a

The Dates of the different portions of the EDIFICE of CROYLAND MONASTERY have been enumerated in the respective lives of the abbats by whom or in whose time, they were constructed.

The east part of the church, with the transepts, was taken down soon after the Dissolution; when the nave and its ailes were left standing as a parish church till the close of the seventeenth century: after which, the roof and south aile falling, the north aile was fitted up for the use of the parish, with a heavy short tower.

The ruins of the nave of the old church are a hundred and forty-four feet long by twenty-eight feet wide, exclusive of the south aile, which is twelve feet wide; so that the parish church, ninety feet long and twenty-four feet wide, probably includes more than the north aile, which otherwise would be twice as wide as the south. Willis imagined the choir, from the traces of foundations, as he says, to have extended two hundred feet further in length, and to have been eighty feet in breadth, which could not be true.

The beautiful west front, loaded with statues and having the legend of St. Guthlac over the door, is running every year faster to ruin. Mr. Gough has attempted an explanation of the mutilated figures which adorn it.^b

At the east end of the structure, Mr. Gough informs us, have been taken up the massive oak planks on which the foundations of the building were laid.^c

The monastic apartments ranged on the south side of the church.

A little to the east was Anchor Church House, q. d. Anchorage House, where Guthlac lived and was buried: an old decayed building on the site, with two rooms below and two above, was pulled down about 1720. There remains, at present, only the site, a small hillock.^d ^c Mr. Essex's observations on Croyland abbey and bridge form a principal part in No. xxii. of the Bibliotheca Topogr. Britan. They contain a minute view of the various changes which the fabric of the abbey underwent from the time of Ethelbald to the Dissolution under Henry the Eighth.

In the Additions to the History of Croyland, in the same number, p. 175, are preserved the arms in the windows of Croyland church, from the Collections of Gervase Holles, of Grunsby, Esq. made 1634; afterwards in the hands of Mr. Anstis. See, also, the Harleian MS. 6829.

Willis, beside the monument of Earl Waldeve, or Waltheof, enumerates the tombs of Alan de Cruen lord of Triston (it should be Friston), on the south of the high altar; Watkin Rodeley, esq. husband to the duchess of Somerset, in the Lady chapel; Richard Wellesby, esquire of the body to King Henry VII., and Thomas Welleby, his nephew; as formerly existing in this church.

triangular form, rising from three segments of a circle, and meeting at a point at top. It was built, under the direction of the abbats, at the junction of the Nen and Welland. A triangular bridge is mentioned here in very early times, and occurs even in the Charter of King Edred, "videlicet, a PONTE de Croyland TRIANGULO per aquam de Weland," &c. A.D. 943; and again, in Edgar's Charter, A.D. 966. The present structure, however, is not thought older than the time of King Edward the First. At the foot is an image, which has been variously designated.

The Boundary called St. Guthlac's cross has been already noticed as yet remaining between Spalding and Croyland, near Brother House.^e In Mr. Gough's time, another cross, at the end of the fen in the road from Croyland by Thorney to Peterborough, lay flat, upon a piece of ground of about a quarter of an acre, called Nomansland, ditched round, and belonging to Sir Sampson Gideon. Another stone, called also St. Guthlac's cross, forming the south boundary of the parish, stood near South-Ea. A fourth, the cross at Finset, had only the base remaining.

The arms of the abbey, three knives and three whips, were formerly in separate shields on the base of the cross at Finset.^f

Bishop Tanner mentions a Register of Croyland abbey belonging to the earl of Aylesbury; a Chartulary in Lord Exeter's possession; and another, bought at the Cecil auction, belonging to the earl of Kent. The two last were probably the same. He also notices two Registers in the hands of Maurice Johnson, Esq. of Spalding. These were, in fact, one a Register of Croyland abbey, and the other of Spalding priory. These manuscripts, in 1772, belonged to Mrs. Wingfield of Stamford, and were lent in that year, through the medium of Mr. Commissary Greaves, alias Beauprè Bell, Esq. of Fulbourne in the county of Cambridge, to Mr. Cole of Milton, whose transcript, partly consisting of verbatim copy and partly of abstract, is preserved in Volume xlv. of his Collections now deposited in the British Museum.^g

Among the Corrodies, two are sufficiently curious to be noticed here.

In the 13th of Edw. III. Eustace de Folleville bound himself to be counsel for life to the abbat in all suits relating to his house, at the expence of the monastery, for which it was agreed he should be paid a yearly salary of twenty shillings.

In 1339, Simon de Islep, canon of Lincoln, for his good advice and assistance in the affairs of the convent against all persons but the bishop of Lincoln and the abbat of Peterborough, had a yearly revenue of ten marks, and half a piece of clerk's cloth, with one fur of Strendeling and one of Squirrel at Christmas. This indenture is crossed over, or a line drawn through it; probably, Mr. Gough observes, when their proctor or advocate was made archbishop of Canterbury, the agreement ceased.

Such extracts from the Croyland Register as related to the parish of Hokinton and hamlet of Westwick in the county of Cambridge, Mr. Cole placed in a separate volume, now MS. Donat. Brit. Mus. num. 5887.

NUM. I.

[W. Malmesb. fol. 166 b, n. 50.]

CROILAND est una insularum jacentium in illo tractu orientalium stagnorum, quæ à meditullio terræ orientia, et per centum et eo amplius milliaria fluentia in mare, cum multis et magnis fluminibus impetu suo præcipitantur. Hic Guthlacus, non dejecta stirpe otundus ephēbus, spreto usu armorum quo pollebat, cum esset xxv. annorum, solitariam vitam ingressus, xv. annis deguit, quibus, assistente Dei gratia, et sacerdotii gradu et signorum honore, et vaticiniorum veritate approbatus est. Sed magis virtutum ejus gratia post obitum splenduit, tam sacratissimi corporis post annum incorruptela, quàm multorum miraculorum ostensione præcipua: meritis quoque ejus datur, quod ad corpus ejus ædificato monasterio, inter tot bellorum turbines, inter tot temporum volubilitates, nullam ærumnam vel detrimentum sui locus ille persenserit.

[Ingulphi Croiland. Hist. fol. 484 b, n. 30.]

— DEFUNCTO igitur ac sepulto Dei famulo Guthlaco, signa virtutum &c. coruscare frequenter cœperunt. &c. Rex autem Ethelbaldus, ut beatum consolatorem suum miraculis coruscare comperiret, locum sepulturæ ejus gaudens, et devotus expetiit, et ea quæ dicto viro Dei adhuc viventi, jam regnum adeptus, ante promiserat, plenè persolvit. Accersito namque quancyus quodam famosæ religionis monacho Eveshamensi, nomine Kenulpho, ut ibi cœnobium aggregaret sibi et Deo servientibus, perennitèr concessit, dedit et confirmavit, et ab omni redditu et consuetudine seculari, totam insulam Croylandiæ omninò absolvit; et inde chartam suam in præsentia episcoporum procerumque regni sui securam statuit.

[Lelandi Collectan. vol. ii. p. 278.]

ETHELBALDUS rex Merciorum insulam Croylandiæ, palis quercinis, quindecim vel eo amplius pedum, in paludem defixis, et terra desuper congesta, fratribus Deo et sancto Guthlaco ibidem servituris, locum illum, sicut finibus distinguitur, cum aliis donavit.

Croyland, ex Tabula quadam descripta.

[Ibid. vol. iii. p. 27.]

SANCTUS Guthlacus heremita, Croylandiæ insulam à demonibus liberavit, tandem ibidem obiit, et sepultus est.

Sanctus Cyssa ex pagano factus Christianus, successit Guthlaco.

Etheldrutha Offæ regis filia, et uxor Ethelberthi regis, et martyris, postea monialis, ibidem sepulta.

Beccelinus sancti Gudlaci discipulus, ibidem sepultus.

Ethelbaldus rex Merciorum post Gudlaci anachorite tempora, Croylandiam adduxit monachos, et ecclesiam novam fabricavit, quæ postea per Hinguarum et Hubbam penitèr spoliata, et destructa fuit.

Carta Ethelbaldi Regis, de Fundatione Monasterii de Croyland.

ETHELBALDUS divina dispensatione rex Merciorum, omnibus catholicæ fidei cultoribus salutem perpetuam. Regi regum omnium et universorum creatori^b magna cum exaltatione gratias ago, qui me usque ad præsens cunctis involutum sceleribus patienter sustinuit, misericorditer attraxit, et ad sui nominis agnitionem parumper erexit. Unde Deo adhærere mihi bonum est, et in ipso ponere spem meam. Sed quid retribuam Domino pro omnibus, quæ retribuit^c mihi ut placeam^d coram eo in lumine viventium; cum sine ipso nihil habemus, nihil sumus, nihilque valemus. Magna enim aviditate nostræ salutis auctor, et universorum largitor, acceptat nostra minima, ut causam habeat retribuenda maxima, et infinita gaudia. Sectantes ejus doctrinam per opera misericordiæ sic consolatur, dicens, 'Quod uni ex minimis meis fecistis, mihi fecistis.' Hinc est, quod cum dilecti confessoris mei, Guthlaci anachoritæ devoti instructus fuissem consilio, precibus pulsatus, gratanter in hunc modum acquievi. Ad perpetuæ^e securitatis memoriam hoc chirographo patenti dono, trado, et concedo omnipotenti Deo, beatæ Mariæ, et sancto Bartholomæo de dominicis meis ad fundationem monasterii nigrorum monachorum, sub norma sancti Benedicti Deo famulantium, totam insulam Croylandiæ ad sedem abbathiæ separatam, et separaliter obtinendam, cum quatuor aquis interclusam; videlicet cum aqua quæ dicitur Schepishee versus orientem, et cum aqua quæ vocatur Nene versus occidentem, et cum aqua quæ vocatur Southée versus austrum, et cum aqua vocata Asendyk versus aquilonem, ubi communis seweram est, inter Spaldelyng et dictam insulam. Et continet dicta insula in longitudine quatuor leucas, et tres leucas in latitudine cum mariscis adjacentibus versus occidentem ex opposito ejusdem insulæ ex utraque parte aquæ de Weland: cujus una pars versus boream vocata Goggislound, continet duas leucas in longitudine à ponte de Croyland, ubi fit ingressus ad insulam usque ad Aspath, et unam leucam in latitudine ab aqua Weland^f in australi parte usque ad Apenholt, versus boream juxta ripam, et habet per totam longitudinem æqualitatem latitudinis; et altera pars marisci in australi parte aquæ de Weland continet in longitudine duas leucas à ponte de Croyland usque ad Southlake juxta ripam ex opposito de Aspath, et habet in latitudine duas leucas ab aqua de Weland usque ad Fynset juxta aquam de Nene in australi parte ejusdem marisci, cum separali piscaria in aquis de Weland et Neene, usque ad supradictos utriusque marisci limites, et in aquis omnibus supradictam insulam ambientibus, unde quendam cœnositam Eveshamensem probatæ religionis virum, nomine Kenulphum, ut secum ejusdem ordinis monachos probatos ibidem congregaret, abbatem constitui, præbens eis de thesauro meo ad ædificationem monasterii ejusdem, primo anno trecentas libras legalis monetæ, et per decem annos proximè sequentes quolibet anno centum libras, concedendo eisdem licentiam ad villam ædificandam ibidem, sive includendam, quantum ex hiis duobus mariscis versus occidentem dictis monachis pro se et suis placuerit. Quare volo, quod prædicti monachi habeant ista dona mea cum omnibus appendiciis libera et soluta ab omni onere sæculari in perpetuam eleemosynam meam, cum omni commodo, quod evenire aut extorqueri poterit infra dictos limites, tam subter terram, quam supra, cum communia pasturæ pro omni genere animalium, omnibus seisonis sibi,^a et hominibus suis, sive tenentibus suis secum ibidem moram facientibus ex utraque parte aquæ de Weland, videlicet, ex una parte usque ad agrum de Medishamsted, et ex altera parte usque ad ædificia de Spaldelyng, cum omnibus libertatibus et liberis consuetudinibus, quas regia potestas liberiùs alicui ecclesiæ in regno meo contulerit temporibus retroactis. Et districtè præcipio, quod si quis contra hoc meæ autoritatis testamentum aliquod machinari impedimentum præsumperit, quo minùs pacificè possideant aliqua per me data et concessa, centum libras legalis monetæ thesauro meo persoluet, necnon dictis monachis pro damnis et expensis dignè satisfaciat. Deprecor omnes posteros meos mihi ad regnum succedentes, ut hanc pœnam et censuram meam ita observent inviolatam, sicut voluerint recipere debitæ justiciæ præmium, et evadere rapacitatis supplicium. Qui verò istam eleemosinam meam provexerit et defensaverit, in sorte electorum Dei remuneretur æternaliter. Firmatum est hoc chirographum meum in anno ab incarnatione Christi, dccxvj. quod et his probabilibus testibus sanctæ crucis indicio subnotatur. ✠ Ego Ethelbaldus rex Merciorum gratuito consensu confirmavi. ✠ Ego Brithwaldus Doroberniensis archiepiscopus ratificavi. ✠ Ego Wynfridus Merciorum episcopus approbavi. ✠ Ingwaldus Londoniensis episcopus merè consensi. ✠ Ego Adwinus Licheffeld. episcopus adoptavi. ✠ Ego Tobias Roffensis episcopus collaudavi. ✠ Ego Ethelredus abbas de Bardeney multum affectavi. ✠ Ego Egbaldus abbas de Medeshamsted illud fieri devotè rogavi. ✠ Ego Egga comes Lincoln. consilium dedi. ✠ Ego Leuricus^b comes Leycestriæ assensum præbui. ✠ Ego Saxulphus filius Saxulphi comitis corroboravi. ✠ Ego Ingulphus presbyter et humilis minister vocatus audiui. ✠ Ego Ethelbaldus, licèt indignus, patientia tamen divina regni Merciorum gero gubernacula, summa cum fiducia auctori meo Christo redeo humiliter: de quo prophetice scribitur in psalmo, 'Miscrationes ejus super omnia opera ejus.' ejusdem pietati me totum submitto, et sanctæ matris ecclesiæ precibus, beneficiisque spiritalibus commendo.

ETHELBALDUS ego rex sub domino super Anglos
Hanc abbatiam construo, Christe, tibi.
Insula de Croyland, vastum regis speciale, Dicitur hæc terra, quam tibi trado, Jhesu.
Hanc totam terram cum circumeuntibus undis
Quæ claudunt illam, do tibi, summe Deus, Insuper argenti primo fabricantibus anno Trecentas latomis annumerabo libras:
Annis inde decem dabo centum quolibet anno Libras in latomos, qui steterint ad opus.
Kenulphus monachus professus Eveshamiensis
Abbas primus erit, huic ego trado locum.
Cunctaque confirmo magnatum dona meorum,
Si dederint terras seu tenementa Deo.
Istum Kenulphum si quis vexaverit Anglus, Rex condemno mihi cuncta catella sua:
Inde meis monachis de damnis omnibus ultra Usque satisfaciat, carcere clausus erit.
Adsunt ante Deum testes hujus dationis Anglorum proceres, pontificesque mei.
Sanctus Guthlacus confessor et anachorita
Hic jacet, in cujus auribus ista loquor.
Oret pro nobis sanctissimus iste sacerdos,
Ad tumbam cujus hæc mea dona dedi.

CUM plerumque contingere soleat, pro incerta temporum vicissitudine, ut ea, quæ multarum et fidelium personarum testimonio consilioque roborata fuerunt, per contumaciam plurimorum, et machinamenta simulationis fraudulentæ, et sine ulla consideratione rationis in animarum suarum periculo dissipentur, nisi auctoritate literarum, et testimonio chirographorum in perpetuam memoriam fuerint consignata. Quapropter ego Ethelbaldus rex Merciorum pro amore cœlestis patriæ, et pro redemptione animæ meæ, statuendum esse prævidi, ut eam per bona opera liberam efficere ab omni vinculo delictorum. Dum enim mihi omnipotens per misericordiam elementiæ suæ absque ullo antecedente merito sceptrum regni largitus est, ideo libenter, ex eo, quod dedit, retribuo. Hujus rei gratia hanc donationem meam me vivente concedo, ut omnia monasteria et ecclesiæ regni mei a publicis vectigalibus, operibus, et oneribus absolvantur, nisi in instructionibus arcium vel^a pontium, quæ nunquam ulli possunt laxari. Præterea habeant famuli Dei propriam libertatem in proficuo sylvarum, in fructu agrorum, et in captura piscium: nec munuscula præbeant regi, vel principibus, nisi voluntaria: sed liberi Domino serviant in contemplatione pacifica per totum regnum meum, usque in ævum.

[Rer. Anglic. Script. Vet. tom. i. p. 8.]

WITLAFIUS dispositione divina rex Merciorum, omnibus christicolis universam Merciam inhabitantibus salutem sempiternam. Magnalia Dei prædicare et publicare minimè mihi verecundum, sed verè videtur honorificum et gloriosum: unde apertè confitebor Domino, qui in altis habitat, humilia respiciens in cœlo et in terra, quoniam ad tempus iratus est mihi, conversus est furor suus, et consolatus est me, humilians in ira sua peccatorem usque ad terram, detrahens usque ad pulverem, et iterum misericordia sua suscitans de pulvere egenum, et de stercore erigens pauperem, ut sedeam cum principibus et solium gloriæ teneam. In die igitur bonorum ne immemor sim malorum; memor ero Rahab et Babylonis scientium me; non Rahab meretricis, sed Etheldrithæ sanctissimæ virginis, cognatæ meæ, pro sponsi sui agni immaculati amore Croylandiæ reclusæ, et in tempore tribulationis meæ me in cella sua quatuor mensium spatio diligentissimè abscondentis à facie inimici et persecuentis; memor etiam ero Babylonis, non turris confusionis, sed sanctissimæ ecclesiæ Croylandensis, quæ terra turris ad cœlum ascendens vigiliis et orationibus, psalmis et lectionibus, disciplinis et afflictionibus, lachrimis et singultibus, elemosinis et innumeris aliis devotionibus pietatisque operibus, pro sæculo^a peccatore fortissimam violentiam regno cœlorum ingerit die ac nocte. Itaque quoniam venerabilis pater dominus Siwardus abbas Croylandiæ protexit me in tabernaculo suo in die malorum, celans ac salvans à facie tribulantis: ultra privilegia meorum antecessorum regum Merciorum, qui prædictum monasterium variis libertatibus et donariis nobiliter illustrarunt, offero et ego magno altari prædicti monasterii de paupertate mea calicem aureum, crucem auream, et tabulam capellæ propriæ laminis aureis deauratam, me profitens dictæ ecclesiæ perpetuum pro viribus defen-sorem. Insuper præcipio omnibus ministris meis per universam Merciam constitutis, quod abbati Croylandiæ, monachis, et omnibus fratribus illius sanctissimi monasterii, cum ad civitates et castella regia pro quocunque negotio accesserint, tanquam Wymundo filio meo, vel mihi, obediant in omnibus et ministrent, nihil pro expensis, quas ipsi, vel sui fecerint ibidem, ab iis accipientes, sed cum litera vel signo dictorum monachorum, arcarius meus omnes expensas hujusmodi, cum dicti ministri mei annumeraverint, pro fisco integrè acceptabit.

Volo etiam et præcipio, quòd quicumque in regno meo pro quocunque delicto reus inventus et legibus obnoxius fuerit, si fugerit ad dictum monasterium, et coram abbate dicti monasterii, qui pro tempore fuerit, gratiam sanctissimi confessoris Guthlaci ibidem corporaliter quiescentis invocans, fidelitatem ei et servitium juraverit sempiternum; salvus et securus sub protectione abbatis et monachorum suorum, in quocunque servitio per totam insulam Croylandiæ ipsum posuerint, sicut in asylo, vel in camera mea propria, pace mea et impunitate gaudeat, nullusque ministrorum meorum ultra illum insequi audeat, nec in aliquo molestare, sub pœna perditionis dextri sui pedis, quicumque in meo regno istud meum privilegium tentaverit in aliquo violare. Licebitque dicto fugitivo in quinque^a aquis quæ dictam insulam ambiunt, navigare et piscari, ac aliter, quocunque modo a dominis suis assignatus fuerit, laborare, absque ministrorum meorum, vel alicujus alterius calumnia vel gravamine. Quòd si extra dictas aquas, vel metas dicti monasterii captus aliquando fuerit, pœnam quam quondam meruit, sive mortem, sive membrorum suorum mutilationem, si ministri mei, vel quicumque sui adversarii per juramentum sex hominum fide dignorum probare poterunt, quòd extra metas suas inventus fuerit, absque ulla gratia sustinebit. Dictas verò metas monasterii Croyland in quinque ejus aquas prædictas tam ministris meis, quam abbati et monachis suis pro suis dictis fugitivis describere^b feci et notare.^c Dictæ namque aquæ vocantur istis nominibus; videlicet Schepishee ad orientem, in cujus ripa occidentali crux lignea stat vetusta, et distat ab ipsa aqua per decem pedes, æqualiter posita in medio inter duos angulos ejusdem insulæ, scilicet Aswiktoft, qui est angulus et meta dictæ insulæ contra vulturnum, et Tedwarker qui est angulus et meta dictæ insulæ contra subsolanum. Secunda aqua, quæ claudit dictam insulam ad austrum vocatur Southée, in cujus ripa est posita crux lapidea distans à Namanlandhirne per quinque perticatas, et a Southée per sex perticatas, ubi Southée intrat in aquam de Neene, quæ currit ad pontem de Croyland: sed metæ fugitivorum in illa parte diriguntur in mariscum occidentale per Finfet^d contra africanum, et sic usque ad Folwardstakyng contra eorum, et sic divertendo ad boream, ubi Southlake intrat in aquam de Weland ex opposito lapideæ crucis, quæ stat in boreali ripa dictæ aquæ de Weland, distans ab ipsa aqua per quinque pedes, quæ currit inde ad prædictum pontem de Croyland: sed metæ fugitivorum ab illa cruce diriguntur in mariscum boreale directè usque ad Oggot, qui est angulus metarum contra favonium, et sic redeundo versus orientem per Wodelade usque ad Apynholt, et ibi ascendendo per aquam de Weland, quæ est quarta aqua claudens insulam in illa parte, sicut tertia aqua de Neene claudit eam ex altera parte pontis de Croyland, usque ad severam de Asendyk cadentis in Weland, ubi stans fracta crux lapidea distat ab ipsa aqua de Asendyk per tres perticatas in ejus ripa australi: et ipsa aqua de Asendyk est quinta aqua claudens ab illo loco insulam prædictam, contra aquilonem usque ad Aswyktoft. Si extra istas quinque aquas et metas prænotatas fugitivus inventus fuerit, tanquam Semei extra Jerusalem publicis legibus subjiaciendus, pœnam, quam meruit, patietur. Quod si infra prædictas metas, et prædictarum aquarum ripas exteriores homicidium, furtum, vel aliam forisfacturam fecerit, per ballivos dicti monasterii capiendus, juxta demerita in ipsa insula, cujus immunitatem perdidit, patietur, et ibidem judicandus in carcere abbatis condemnabitur. Et ut istud meum privilegium firmius et fortius ad posteros perseveret, per dominum meum Egbertum regem West-Saxoniam, et Athelwlfum filium ejus illud obtinui confirmari.

Offero etiam secretario dicti monasterii in ministerium sanctissimi altaris chlamydem coccineam, qua indutus eram in coronatione mea, ad capam inde sive casulam faciendam; et in ecclesiæ sanctissimæ ornamentum, velum meum aureum quo insuitur excidium Troiæ, in meo anniversario (si sibi placuerit) in parietibus suspendendum. Offero etiam refectorio dicti monasterii, ad usum præsentis quotidie in refectorio, scyphum meum deauratum, et per totam partem exteriorem, barbaris vinitoribus ad dracones pugnantibus cœlatum, quem crucibolum meum solitus sum vocare, quia signum crucis per transversam scyphi imprimitur interiùs, cum quatuor angulis simili impressione protuberantibus; et cornu mensæ meæ, ut senes monasterii bibant inde in festis Sanctorum, et in suis benedictionibus meminerint aliquando animæ donatoris Witlafii.

Confirmo etiam dicto monasterio omnes terras et tenementa, possessiones, et earum peculia, et omnia alia donaria, quæ predecessores mei reges Merciorum, et eorum proceres, vel alii fideles Christiani, sive Judæi, dictis monachis dederunt, vendiderunt, vel invadiaverunt, aut aliquo alio modo in perpetuam possessionem tradiderunt; et specialiter donum Thoroldi quondam vicecomitis Lincoln. in Bokenhale, videlicet duas carucatas terræ et dimidiam, et viginti sex acras prati, et quinquaginta acras sylvæ, et lxx. acras de Brusche. Item donum Geolphi filii Maltæ in Halington, viz. quatuor bovatas terræ de Juland,^e et decem bovatas in servitio, et triginti tres^f acras prati in Gernthorp. Item donum Fregisti^g militis, viz. totam villam de Langtoft, et in campis ejusdem villæ sex carucatas terræ arabiles, habentes in longitudine quindecim quarentenas, et novem quarentenas in latitudine, et centum acras prati, et sylvam et mariscum duarum leucarum in longitudine, et duarum leucarum in latitudine. Et ecclesiam ejusdem villæ, et xl. acras de eodem feodo in campo de Depyng. Item donum Algari militis filii Northlang, scilicet Northland in Baston, viz. quatuor carucatas terræ arabiles, continentes in longitudine octo quarentenas, et octo quarentenas in latitudine, et xlv. acras prati, et mariscum continens in longitudine xvi. quarentenas, et viii. quarentenas in latitudine, et ecclesiam ejusdem villæ, et unum molendinum, et dimidium alterius molendini, et totam piscariam in aqua à molendino versus occidentem usque ad finem ejusdem marisci ejusdem villæ versus orientem. Item donum ejusdem Algari militis in Repyngale, viz. tres carucatas terræ arabiles, et xl. acras prati. Item donum Normanni quondam vicecomitis in Sutton juxta Bosworthe, duas carucatas terræ, et unum molendinum ventricium. Item donum ejusdem Normanni in Stapilton, viz. manerium et duas carucatas terræ. Item donum ejusdem in Badby, viz. quatuor hidas terræ cum appendiciis. Item donum domini Algari comitis in Holbecke, et in Cappelade, viz. quatuor carucatas, et sex bovatas, et octodecim acras prati, et mariscum. Item donum ejusdem in villa sua de Spaldelyng, viz. tres carucatas terræ. [Item donum ejusdem in villa sua de Pyncebek, videlicet unam carucatam terræ. Item donum ejusdem in Algarkirke villa sua, videlicet undecim bovatas terræ: et in parochia de Sutterton tres carucatas terræ,]^h et unam bovatom, et xxvi. acras prati, et quatuor salinas cum ecclesia ejusdem villæ. Item donum Oswii militis in Draytona, viz. octo hidas terræ, et quatuor virgatas, et ecclesiam ejusdem villæ. Item donum Asketelli coci mei in Glapthorn, videlicet tres virgatas terræ. Item donum Wlgeti quondam pincernæ mei, in Peiekyrke tres virgatas terræ. Item donum [Edulphi] nuncii mei in Laithorp, unam bovatom terræ. Item donum Siwardi vicecomitis in Kyrkeby, tres bovatas terræ, unam mansionem et tria cotagia. Et in Staundon donum Sigburgæ comitissæ, quinque

NUM. IX.

Carta Bertulphi Regis Merciorum de Terris et Privilegijs Abbatiae de Croyland.

[Ibid. p. 12.]

BERTULPHUS rex Merciorum venerabili patri domino Siwardo abbati Croylandiæ, omnibusque fratribus suis monachis ejusdem monasterij præſentibus et futuris, salutem in Domino sempiternam. Gratias debitas vobis omnibus dignissime reddo pro pecunia, qua me per vos dudum prætereuntem, in mea maxima indigentia, contra Paganorum violentiam gratissimo et liberalissimo animo refovistis. Quo tempore quia de injuriis damnis, vobis per quosdam vestros^b adversarios maliciose nimium illatis, mihi graviter conquesti estis, qui nequiter insidiantes in exterioribus ripis aquarumstrarum, si dictas ripas ascenderent in piscando qui de fugitivis servi vestri sunt effecti, et pari modo multotiens custodientes terminos mariscorum vestrorum, si forte oves et boves aut cætera animalia vestra longius errantia revocare dicti servi vestri excederent, ut eosdem servos vestros extra vestram insulam inventos, velut impunitatis suæ violatores, publicis legibus subjicerent et damnarent, sicque necesse fuit frequentissime, vel dictos servos vestros in manus hostium suorum incidere et perire, vel eorum labores ad justum commodum vestrum non procedere. Proposita ergo tali querela vestra per fratrum Askillum commonachum vestrum palam coram prælatis et proceribus totius regni mei Merciæ apud Beningdon ultimo congregatis, omnibus tenerrime compatiens super ejusmodi vobis illatis injurijs, ad honorem Dei et sanctæ matris ecclesiæ relevationem, considerantibus etiam et collaudantibus universis perfectionem sanctissimæ religionis vestræ, pro majore pace et quiete vestri sacri monasterij, complacuit privilegia domini Withlafii regis, fratris, et prædecessoris mei de impunitate vobis concessa, declarare et dilatare, in eleemosynam animæ meæ, declarataque ac dilatata meo chirographo confirmare.

Quapropter præcepi Radboto vicedomino Lincoln. cæterisque ministris meis in illa parte constitutis, insulam vestram Croylandiæ, ac terminos mariscorum vestrorum circuire et describere, mihi que et concilio meo, ubicumque in ultimo Paschæ fuisset, fideliter et lucide demonstrare; qui jussa complentes, istis nominibus insulæ vestræ mariscorum vestrorum circuitum mihi, et concilio meo, sanctum Pascha nostrum tunc apud Kyngesbury tenentibus, aperte descriptum obtulerunt. Claudit enim insulam vestram de Croyland ad ejus orientem (prout antiquitus per eam dotavit monasterium vestrum inclutus quondam rex Merciæ Ethelbaldus fundator vester, et cæteri reges Merciorum sui successores suis chirographis confirmaverunt) ab Aswyktoftirne usque ad Tedwarthar aqua de Schepishee, habens dictam insulam in parte sua occidentali et mariscum de Capelade in parte sua orientali; et de Tedwarthar usque ad Namanslandhirne claudit eam aqua de Southee, habens dictam insulam in parte sua boreali et sylvam de Ancarig in parte sua australi; et de Namanslandhirne usque ad pontem de Croyland claudit eam aqua de Neene, habens dictam insulam in parte sua orientali et mariscum vestrum dictum Alderlound in parte sua occidentali; et de ponte de Croyland usque ad Wodeladmouth claudit eam aqua de Weland, habens dictam insulam in parte sua orientali, et mariscum vestrum dictum Goggislound in parte sua occidentali; et de Wodelademouth usque ad communem seweram de Asendyk claudit eam prædicta aqua de Weland, habens dictam insulam in parte sua australi et mariscum de Spaldelyng in parte sua boreali; et de prædicta sewera usque ad Aswyktoft claudit eam prædicta aqua de Asendyk, habens prædictam insulam in parte sua australi et mariscos de Spaldelyng, Weston, et Multon in parte sua boreali. Mariscorum vero vestrorum, jacentium ex opposito insulæ vestræ de Croyland ad ejus occidentem, limites et termini, per eosdem ministros meos descripti, nominibus istis mihi sunt oblatis, viz. de Namanslandhyrne usque ad Fynset, et inde ad Groynes,^c et inde usque ad Folwardastakyng, et inde versus boream usque ad Weland, ubi Southlake intrat in Weland, et sic transeundo ipsam aquam de Weland et ascendendo ad Aspath, et inde versus boream usque ad Werwerlake et sic per Harynholt usque ad Mengerlake, et inde usque ad Oggot sive Dedmanslake, et sic per Apynholt et Wodelade versus orientem usque ad Wodeladmouth, qui est terminus insulæ vestræ in illa parte contra boream, sicut Namanslandhyrne est terminus insulæ vestræ contra austrum. Communia etiam pasturæ omnium animalium vestrorum protenditur ultra dictos terminos mariscorum vestrorum versus austrum usque ad agrum monachorum ecclesiæ de Medeshamsted, et versus occidentem usque ad agrum monachorum ecclesiæ sanctæ Pegæ in australi marisco de Weland, et in boreali marisco protenditur versus occidentem usque ad ædificia de Depyng, et versus boream usque ad ædificia de Spaldelyng omnibus anni temporibus, prout a fundatione monasterij vestri hactenus omnia præacta pacifice possedistis. Pro servis ergo vestris, quos de fugitivis sive piscatores, sive pastores vobis facietis, cum communi concilio totius regni mei concedo sancto monasterio vestro ultra exteriores ripas quinque agrorum claudendum insulam vestram viginti pedes in latitudine ab ipsa aqua ubicunque ascenderint ad retia sua extrahenda, aut ad alia sua necessaria in terra solida peragenda. Similiter quocunque protenditur animalium vestrorum communia in prædictis mariscis, illuc extenditur etiam fugitivorum vestrorum licentia, ut si forte in agros contiguos ex tempestate, vel alio infortunio, vel latrocinio subducta fuerint; consentientibus omnibus prælatis et proceribus meis, concedo ipsis fugitivis vestris, quod sicut alij liberi homines, animalia vestra prædicta persequantur, et meliori modo quo poterunt, repetant et reducant, et quasi in ecclesia sua essent, pace mea et impunitate per totam viam suam gaudeant; subque mutilatione membri magis necessarij nullus eos audeat molestare, vel in aliquo contrariari.^a Insuper pro dicti Withlafij quondam regis fratris et prædecessoris mei, proque redemptione meorum peccatorum, cum communi consilio gratuitoque consensu omnium magnatum regni mei, concedo Deo et beatissimo confessori suo S. Guthlaco, sacratissimoque monasterio vestro Croylandiæ, quod per totum regnum meum Mercie, abbas, monachus, conversusve sacri monasterij vestri, qui nunc estis, vel qui vobis succedent in futurum post vos, ibidem Domino servituri, pro quocunque negotio processerint de dictis fugitivis viæ suæ famulos licenter sibi faciant et producant; inque præsentia dicti abbatis, monachi, vel conversi ubique per regnum meum, sicut in ecclesia sua Croyland, salvi permaneant et securi, ac ab omni periculo immunes penitus et indemnes, sub mutilatione membri magis dilecti, si quis istud privilegium meum attentaverit in aliquo temere violare. Quod si extra prædictos viginti pedes in ripis exterioribus aquarum vestrarum, aut extra villatas, quæ communia vobiscum vendicant in occidentalibus mariscis vestris ex utraque parte aquæ de Weland, aut alibi, vobis absentibus, absque viatica litera abbatis loci vestri, talis fugitivus repertus fuerit, juxta demerita legali supplicio subjacebit.

Declaratis itaque terminis tam insulæ vestræ, quam mariscorum vestrorum, declaratis etiam ad honorem Dei privilegij domini Withlafij, ac aliorum regum Mercie, prædecessorum meorum, vobis magnifice concessis, complacuit unanimiter mihi ac universo concilio meo, vestra omnia loca mei auctoritate regij chirographi confirmare. Confirmo ergo vobis et omnibus successoribus vestris regulam sancti Benedicti sub habitu vestro tam nunc professis, quam post vos professuris, principalem vestram ecclesiam Croylandiæ, in qua venerandæ reliquiæ sanctissimi Christi confessoris et patroni vestri beati Guthlaci corporaliter tumulati, ultimam resurrectionem feliciter expectunt; totamque insulam adjacentem, prout per terminos suos superius declaratos ministrorum meorum diligentia sufficientissime est descripta, in sedem separalem abbatihæ vestræ, in situm specialem monasterij vestri, et in vestrum plenum dominium singulariter et perpetuo possidendum, una cum duobus mariscis jacentibus ad ejus occidentem, viz. Alderlound in australi parte aquæ de Weland, et Goggislound in ejusdem aquæ parte boreali, per terminos similiter superius declaratos. Hæc est hæreditas Domini, dos ecclesiæ Christi, solum sanctæ Mariæ et beati Bartholomei apostoli, sancti Guthlaci monachorumque suorum sanctuarium sacratissimum, et monasterium ab omni terreno servitio liberissimum, illustrissimorum regum eleemosyna specialis, et in omni tribulatione universis locus refugij singularis, mansio sanctorum perpetua, et possessio viris religiosis communi regni concilio specialiter appropriata, proque frequentibus miraculis sanctissimi confessoris inter vineas Engaddi balsami mater semper fertilis, et pro regum privilegij Bosor in solitudine, omnibus poenitentibus civitas gratiæ et salutis. Si quis sacrarium hoc violaverit, vel in aliquo vexaverit, vindicabit in illum dextera mea, et hæredes mei, quicunque post me fuerint hujus regni Mercie perenniter sceptrigeri successores.

monasterio vestro Croylandiæ de dono Fregisti, quondam militis domini Kenulphi regis, ecclesiam de Langtoft et in campis ejusdem villæ sex carucatas terræ habentes in longitudine quindecim quarentenas, et novem quarentenas in latitudine, et centum acras prati, et sylvam, et mariscum duarum leucarum in longitudine, et duarum leucarum in latitudine, et xl. acras de eodem feodo in campis de Depyng. Confirmo etiam Deo et sancto Guthlaco, sacroque monasterio vestro de dono Algari militis filij, Nortlang, ecclesiam de Tetford cum capella sancti Joannis Evangelistæ de Baston, et in eadem parochia quatuor carucatas terræ continentes in longitudine octo quarentenas, et octo quarentenas in latitudine, et xl. acras prati et mariscum continentem in longitudine sexdecim quarentenas, et octo quarentenas in latitudine, et unum molendinum, et dimidium alterius molendini, et totam piscariam in aqua, sicut circuit pratum vestrum versus orientem, et de dono ejusdem Algari militis in Repingale tres carucatas terræ, et lx.^b acras prati. Confirmo etiam Deo et Sancto Guthlaco, sacroque monasterio vestro de Croyland, ex dono Algari comitis, patris junioris Algari qui nunc est, ecclesiam de Cappelade, cum capella sancti Joannis Baptistæ in eadem villa, et in campis tam de Holbeth, quam de Cappelade quatuor carucatas terræ arabilis, et sex bovatas et octodecim acras patri, et mariscum duo mille acrarum, et mariscum tres mille acrarum; et de dono ejusdem Algari comitis senioris ligneam capellam sanctæ Mariæ per Spaldelyng, quæ Anglice Stokkym appellata, sita est in orientali parte fluminis ejusdem villæ; et in campis tam de Pynchbek, quam de Spaldelyng quatuor carucatas terræ, et totam piscariam prædicti fluminis a ponte quæ ducit de cœmeterio prædictæ capellæ sanctæ Mariæ ad cœmeterium lapideæ capellæ sancti Nicholai, et Anglice Stonyn appellatæ, quæ sita est in occidentali ripa, in manerio prædicti comitis Algari, qui dedit ipsam piscationem a prædicto ponte usque ad seweram de Asendyk Deo et sancto Guthlaco de Croyland, pro anniversario die patris sui omnibus annis in vestro monasterio solenniter celebrando. Confirmo etiam Deo et sancto Guthlaco, sacroque monasterio vestro, de dono ejusdem comitis Algari senioris ecclesiam de Sutterton, et tam in campis de Algarkyrk, quam de Sutterton tres carucatas terræ arabilis, et duodecim bovatas et viginti sex acras prati, et quatuor salinas. Et de dono Oswij militis in Drayton octo hidas terræ, et quatuor virgatas. Confirmo etiam Deo et sancto Guthlaco, sacroque monasterio vestro, de dono Asketelli tres virgatas terræ in Glapthorne. Et de dono Wlgeti tres virgatas terræ in Peiekyrk. Et de dono Edulphi de Laithorpe unam bovatom terræ. Et de dono Siwardi vicedomini in Kyrkeby tres bovatas terræ, unam mansionem et tria cotagia. Et de dono Sigburgæ comitissæ in Staundon quinque hidas terræ. Et de dono Wlnoti in Adyngton duas hidas terræ cum advocatione ecclesiæ ejusdem villæ; et in alia Adyngton de dono ejusdem, unam virgatom terræ. Confirmo etiam Deo et sancto Guthlaco, sacroque monasterio vestro de dono Thoroldi vicedomini Lincoln. in Bukehale duas carucatas terræ et dimidium, et viginti sex acras prati, et l. acras sylvæ [et septuaginta acras] de Brusce. Confirmo etiam Deo et sancto Guthlaco, sacroque monasterio vestro, de dono Geolphi filij Malti in Halyngton quatuor bovatas terræ de Julando, et decem bovatas in servitio et xxxiii. acras prati in Gernthorpe de eodem feodo. Hæc omnia supradicta, ecclesias, capellas, terras, tenementa, pasturas, piscationes, maneria, mansiones, molendina, mersea, et mariscos, libera et soluta ab omni servitio sæculari et onere terreno, concedo vobis et successoribus vestris in perpetuum; et præsentī meo chirographo confirmo in regiam eleemosynam meam, pro anima domini Withlafij quondam regis, fratris et prædecessoris mei, et pro animabus omnium progenitorum, parentum, et amicorum meorum. Et emancipo ab omni debito regis, et omnis alterius domini et hominis, cujuscunque fuerit dignitatis, excellentiæ, vel honoris, ut nihil a modo de vestri sacri monasterij Croylandiæ monachis, literatis, aut laicis, servis, aut tenentibus vestris, exigere poterunt, præter

BEORREDUS, largiente Dei gratia, rex Merciorum, omnibus provincijs et populis earum universam Merciam inhabitantibus, et fidem catholicam conservantibus, salutem eternam in Domino nostro Jhesu Christo. Quoniam, peccatis nostris exigentibus, manum Domini super nos extensam quotidie cum virga ferrea cernimus nostris cervicibus imminere; necessarium nobis et salubre arbitror, pijs sanctæ matris ecclesiæ precibus, eleemosynarumque liberis largitionibus iratum Dominum placatum reddere, et dignis devotionibus ejus gratiam in nostris necessitatibus auxiliariam implorare: ideoque et ad petitionem strenuissimi comitis, Algari mihi meritoque dilectissimi, concessi regio chirographo meo Theodoro abbati Croylandiæ, tam donum dicti comitis Algari, quam dona aliorum fidelium præteritorum ac præsentium dicto suo sancto monasterio, in eleemosynam etiam animæ meæ, et in remissionem meorum criminum, devotione libera confirmare. Confirmo ergo Deo et sanctissimo confessori suo Guthlaco Croylandiæ, monachisque omnibus ibidem Deo servientibus, et in perpetuum servituris, totam insulam suam monasterio adjacentem, prout in chirographis inclyti quondam regis Merciorum Ethelbaldi fundatoris sui, ac aliorum regum prædecessorum meorum, per limites et terminos est^a descripta in situm separalem abbathiæ suæ, cum duobus mariscis jacentibus ex opposito ejusdem insulæ ad orientem ex utraque parte aquæ de Weland, viz. cum Alderlound in parte australi et cum Goggislound in parte boreali, eisdem terminis quibus eos ab initio habuerunt. Carta Eadredi Regis.

PAX in summæ Trinitatis nomine, Patris, et Filii et Spiritus Sancti, Amen. Ego Edredus rex terrenus sub imperiali potentia regis seculorum æternique principis, magnæ Britannie temporale gerens imperium, universis Christianis tam præsentibus quàm posteris salutis beneficium in authore salutis. Vobis liqueat omnibus, quod per devotam suggestionem et frequentem provocationem dilecti clerici et cognati mei Turketuli mihi factam super reparatione, restauratione, ac libertate sacrosanctæ ecclesiæ et monasterii Croylandensis, in qua reconditæ sunt reliquie sancti Guthlaci confessoris et anachoritæ, non modicum condolui, et compassus sum, tam pro depopulatione sanctæ matris ecclesiæ, quàm pro minoratione beneficiorum spiritualium pro animabus progenitorum meorum per opera misericordiæ multipliciter et frequenter impensorum; recolens, ibi cœnobium nigrorum monachorum ordinis sancti Benedicti à nobili rege Merciorum, Ethelbaldo nomine, quondam Alwionis filio esse fundatum, affluenter ditatum, et regalibus privilegiis sufficienter munitum, ut per inspectionem chartarum ejusdem Ethelbaldi ad securitatem dictorum monachorum compositarum, satis erat consilio meo declaratum. Sed post multorum temporum curricula per paganorum exercitum erat devastatum, et cum omnibus ornamentis et monumentis compluribus, igne crematum et consumptum. Ubi prædictus Turketulus, qui juxta psalmistæ vocem propheticam, 'Odit ecclesiam iniquantium, et dilexit decorem domus Domini,' pio stimulatus desiderio, dictum cœnobium reparare et reædificare summopere molitur. Hic homo divinæ charitatis zelo in tantum accensus est, ut corde ac corpore se ovili dominico ibidem mancipare indesinenter adoptat. Unde quinque monachi senes in eadem insula latitantes, de quibus duo à dispersione^b regressi, de ejusdem Turketuli et aliorum jurisperitorum consilio informati, quasi graviter formidantes jacturas et dispendia varia, futuris temporibus inopinatè emergentia, [prius] totam abbatiam cum omnibus possessionibus [suis] obtentis, et ejusdem Turketuli sollicitudine recuperatis, meo etiam favore acquisitis, cum sex maneriis de prædiis suis hæreditariis, in manum meam [regiam] funditus et sponte resignarunt, ut per meam redonationem de firmiori et liberiori ex tunc et in posterum gratulentur possessione. Sed quum fœdus verbo solummodo initum, dum à memoria fuerit devolutum, in materiam contrahitur litigiosam, nisi rei gestæ perennis scripti patrocinium suffragetur. Hinc est, quod sæpeditum Turketulum cum præfatis monachis jam in habitu adunatum, grato meo consensu et assensu abbatem ejusdem monasterii constituo; et tam abbatiam, quam omnes possessiones sic recuperatas et mihi resignatas, ex dono meo regali de cætero in perpetuam et puram eleemosynam illis monachis, et omnibus successoribus eorum sub eadem regula, et eodem habitu sancti Benedicti ibidem Deo servientibus, trado, dono, et confirmo, et in hunc modum per singula declarare dispono.

Inprimis totam insulam Croylandiæ, pro gleba ecclesiæ, et pro situ separali ejusdem monasterii cum his limitibus distinctam; videlicet, à ponte de Croyland triangulo per aquam de Weland versus Spaldelyng usque ad Asendyk, ubi Asendyk cadit in aquam de Weland ex boreali^c parte crucis lapideæ per prædictum Turketulum ibidem affixæ; et sic sursum versus orientem per Asendyk usque ad Aswyktoft, et inde usque ad Shepishee in orientali parte ejusdem insulæ, et sic usque ad Tedwarthar, et ibi intrando Southee usque ad Namanlandhyrne, ubi crucem lapideam affigi præcepit idem Turketulus, distantem à Southee per sex perticatas, et sic in illa aqua sit divisio duorum comitatuum, Lincolnie videlicet et Grantebrigie, et distat eadem crux ab aqua de Neene versus occidentem per quinque perticatas; et inde per eandem aquam de Neene, sicut currit ad supradictum pontem de Croyland; cum separali piscaria tam in aquis omnibus ambientibus eandem insulam, quam in stagnis et paludibus infra situm inclusis; una cum mariscis et alnetis adjacentibus versus occidentem ex opposito ejusdem insulæ, in omnibus Lincolnie comitatu annexas ex respondentibus, et per hos limites in hunc modum determinatis, videlicet à Namanlandhyrne per aquam de Neene versus occidentem usque ad finem factum, ubi crux lapidea defixa est juxta ripam; et ab inde usque ad Grinis, et sic usque ad Folwardstakyng, et inde usque ad Southlake, ubi Southlake cadit in aquam de Weland, et sic transeundo eandem aquam, et incipiendo ad Kenulphston juxta ripam ex opposito de Southlake, ubi primus abbas à fundatione ejusdem monasterii, nomine Kenulphus, posuit crucem lapideam pro limite inter Croyland et Depyng; et ab inde tendendo versus boream juxta Aspath usque ad Werwarlake, et sic usque ad Harynholt, et deinde sursum per Mengarlake et Lurtlake, et ibi sunt limites dividentes Hoyland et Kestevene, et inde usque ad Oggot, et sic usque ad Apinholt, sive alio nomine Wodelade, ubi Wodelade cadit in aquam de Weland: cum omnibus appendiciis, et omni commodo quod possit evenire, sive extorqueri infra supradictos limites, tam subter terram quàm supra; cum communia pasturæ [omni tempore anni pro omni genere animalium, sibi et omnibus hominibus suis sive tenentibus suis secum infra dictos limites cohabitantibus, et erit illa communia pasturæ]^d in mariscis adjacentibus ex utraque parte aquæ de Weland, videlicet ex una parte ab ipsa aqua usque ad agrum de Medeshamsted, et ex alia parte ab eadem aqua usque ad ædificia de Spaldeling, cum separali piscaria in eadem aqua de Weland, à Kenulphston usque ad pontem de Croyland, [et in aqua de Neene a limite Finefacto nomine usque ad pontem de Croyland] et ab inde in eadem aqua, et in aqua de Weland coadunatis, usque ad Asendyk. Possunt etiam dicti monachi de eisdem mariscis versus occidentem adjacentibus, pro se et hominibus sive tenentibus suis, includere croftos sive pratum circa pontem separaliter quantum illis placuerit. Quare volo, quod dicti monachi habeant prædita ista de donatione et confirmatione mea, libera et soluta ab omni causa et onere sæculi,^a et omnes libertates et liberas consuetudines, cum omni illo quod appellatur, socha, sacha, tol et tem, infangthef, weif, et stray, et cum hiis legitimè appendentibus in puram et perpetuam eleemosynam meam.

Præterea trado, dono, et confirmo eisdem monachis has possessiones eidem cœnobio ex donatione antiqua procerum regni mei ab olim dependentes; videlicet in Lincolnshire, in Spaudelyng tres carucatas terræ; in Pyncebeck unam carucatam terræ; in Cappelade tres carucatas terræ, sex bovatas terræ, et duodecim acras prati, cum ecclesia ejusdem villæ; in Algare duodecim bovatas terræ; in Donnesdyk duas carucatas terræ, et viginti acras prati; in Drayton unam carucatam terræ, et sex acras prati, et quatuor salinas; in Burtoft unam bovatom terræ, cum socha, sacha, et cum ecclesia de Sutterton; in Bokenhale duas carucatas terræ, et dimidiam; et viginti sex acras prati, et quinquaginta acras sylvæ, et sexaginta et decem acras de Brusche; in Halington decem bovatas terræ cum quatuor bovatis de Juland,^b et cum triginta duabus acris prati de eodem feodo in Gerumthorp; in Langtoft sex carucatas terræ arabiles (et habet quindecim quarentenas in longitudine, et novem quarentenas in latitudine) et centum acras prati, et sylvam, et mariscum duarum leucarum in longitudine, et duarum leucarum in latitudine, et ecclesiam ejusdem villæ, et quadraginta acras de eodem feodo in campo de Deping; in Baston apud Tetford quatuor carucatas terræ arabiles, et quadraginta quinque acras prati cum ecclesia ejusdem villæ, et cum sexdecim quarentenis marisci in longitudine et octo quarentenis in latitudine; cum uno molendino aquatico, et dimidio molendino; in Repyngale tres carucatas terræ arabiles et sexaginta acras prati; in Laitorp unam bovatom terræ; in Kyrkby tres bovatas terræ, unam mansionem, et tria cotagia.

In Northamptonshire, in Wedlyngburgh sex hidas terræ, et dimidiam, cum ecclesia ejusdem villæ, cum socha, sacha, &c. In Adington tres hidas terræ cum advocatione ecclesiæ ejusdem villæ; in Helmyngton tres hidas terræ; in Glapthorn tres virgatas terræ; in Wyrthorp unam hidam, et dimidiam, cum uno molendino aquatico; in Peykyrke duas virgatas terræ; in Badby manerium, et quatuor hidas terræ, cum triginta acris prati.

In Huntyngdonschyr, in Morberne quinque hidas terræ, cum advocatione ecclesiæ ejusdem villæ; in Thiring unam hidam et dimidiam terræ.

In Leycestreshire, in Beby decem carucatas terræ, et dimidiam, cum ecclesia ejusdem villæ; in Sutton duas carucatas terræ; in Stapilton duas carucatas terræ.

In Gruntebrygeshire, in Kotenham undecim hidas terræ, cum advocatione ecclesiæ ejusdem villæ alternis vicibus; in Hokitton septem hidas terræ, et dimidiam, cum ecclesia ejusdem villæ; in Draiton octo hidas terræ, et dimidiam, cum advocatione ecclesiæ ejusdem villæ.

In Hartfordshire, in Staundon quinque hidas terræ.

Et volo quod dicti monachi sint quieti et soluti ab omni scotto, geldo, auxiliis vicecomitem, hydagio, et à secta in schiris, wapuntakis, hundredis, thrithingis et omnimodis aliis curis, et sæculi oneribus universis. Et præcipio, quod omnes homines fugitivos quos iidem monachi per testimonium quatuor vel quinque hominum fide dignorum, coram vicecomite in patria, in qua tales manent, possunt affidare suos nativos esse, reducantur per prædictum vicecomitem in abbatiam eorum cum omnibus catallis et sequelis eorum, omni reclamazione et reluctatione abinde remota et annullata. Et si quid prius egerint in fraudem dominorum suorum, illud cassatum omnino decerno. Et si quis hominum nativorum suorum vel native de eis tenentium aliquod delictum fecerit, pro quo catalla sua debet perdere, ipsa catalla prædictis monachis integrè liberentur ubicumque facta fuerit justitia. Et volo, quod si vicecomes vel aliquis de ballivis seu ministris meis, repertus fuerit negligens, vel protrahens eorum negotia contra juris ordinem et libertates eorum, sit in forisfactura viginti librarum thesauro meo solvendarum.

Et ne aliquid omittatur, quod ad securitatem iurium et libertatum eorum monachorum præsentis chartæ convenit inserere, saltem propter eos, quos plus terret dispendium temporale vitæ præsentis, quam supplicium gehennale perpetuò duraturum; districtè præcipio, quod omnes et singuli cujuscumque fuerint gradus vel conditionis, qui præsentis scripti sanctionem, contra formam et effectum voluntatis meæ expressæ in eodem, in aliquo violare nituntur, perturbare, vel minuere procurant, consilio, auxilio, vel favore, quominus pacificè possideant aliqua dona sibi concessa, vel vescantur aliquibus privilegiis superius memoratis; sint condemnati in pœna forisfacturæ centum librarum legalis monetæ, thesauro meo, hæredum, vel successorum meorum persolvendarum, quoties sic attentare præsumserint; nec non quod satisfaciant dictis monachis pro damnis et expensis per eos sibi factis vel illatis, taxandis per juramenta quatuor vel quinque hominum fide dignorum, per quos rei veritas melius agnosci poterit, coram iudicibus meis, hæredum, vel successorum meorum definiendis. Ut sic qui sæculo spontè renunciantes, se iugo dominico manciparunt, et jam facti sunt mundo mortui, absque mundi turbine et inquietudine liberam habeant facultatem divinæ vacare contemplationi.

Ista donaria, licet minima, ad laudem summæ Trinitatis, et in pretium redemptionis animæ meæ, prædictis monachis devotus perpetuavi et stabilivi, in anno ab incarnatione sempiterni principii, Domini nostri Jesu Christi nongentesimo quadragesimo octavo, in præsentia archiepiscoporum, episcoporum, et procerum regni mei subscriptorum. ✠ Ego Odo Doroberniensis archiepiscopus consilium et consensum meum ad istud dedi. ✠ Ego Wlstanus archiepiscopus Eboracensis devotus subnotavi. ✠ Ego Alfredus Schyreburnensis episcopus affectavi. ✠ Ego Kynsius Lichefeldensis episcopus consensi. ✠ Ego Kynewaldus Wygornensis episcopus istud factum corroboravi. ✠ Ego Ceolwulphus Dorcastrensensis episcopus desideravi. ✠ Ego Athelwoldus abbas Abendonensis approbavi. ✠ Ego Dunstanus abbas Glastoniæ multum adoptavi. ✠ Ego Oslac dux ad instantiam domini mei regis collaudavi. ✠ Ego Brithnodus dux commendavi. ✠ Ego Alcinus comes favi. ✠ Ego Aigulfus comes consignavi. ✠ Ego Radbodus comes consensum dedi. ✠ Ego Byngulph vicedominus consului. ✠ Ego Alfer vicecomes audiui. ✠ Ego Farceus minister interfui. ✠ Ego Sigeus minister auscultavi. ✠ Ego Æthelwardus minister aspexi. ✠ Ego Turketulus (licet minister inutilis) finem cernens mei propositi, ob hujus rei gratiam æternum Deum laudo per omnia, et licet serò veniens sub habitu monachali, et animo contrito iugo regulari meipsum submisi, ut saltem sic senectutis meæ fœces Creatori meo cogar immolare. Magnificat ergo anima mea Dominum, et vos fratres magnificate Dominum mecum, ut in sanctitate et justitia coram ipso servientes, semperque mundi principe triumphato, sic curramus in præsentis vitæ stadio, ut in futuro ad divinæ speculationis bravium pertingere mereamur. Amen.

Cum vero sanctissimi archiepisc. mei Dunstanus Dorober. et Osketulus Eboracensis apertius insinuassent, quomodo celebre monasterium Croylandense quondam ab inclyto rege Merciorum Ethelbaldo fundatum, alijsque Merciorum regibus, successoribus ejus, multis et magnis donarijs et dignitatibus ditatum, insuper immunitatibus et immensis privilegijs ampliatur et magnifice confirmatum, demum nefandissimis Danis totam terram opprimantibus, ab iisdem dictum monasterium fuerit igne crematum et devastatum; sed postea, tanta cessante procella, per industriam venerabilis patris Turketuli, cooperante sibi gratia pijssimi regis patru et prædecessoris mei Edredi, jam resurrexit restauratum, et iterum in sanctorum habitaculum ædificatum, et regio chirographo confirmatum; gaudio magno gavisus sum, et crescenti quotidie, convalescentique indies temporibus meis per totam Angliam cultui Christiano totis animi præcordijs (Deo teste) congratulatus; prædicto viro^b venerabili, abbati Turketulo, quondam patris mei, patruorumque meorum patricio potentissimo, ac omnium hostium Anglici regni triumphatori strenuissimo, jamque patriæ coelestis amore servorum Christi sanctissimo pastori et praelato, concedo de regalibus sylvis meis suo Croylandensi monasterio magis vicinis et propinquis, scil. de Ancarygwood, et Medeshamstedwod, regalibus manerijs meis de Estreye et de Castre pertinentibus, arbores et meremium ad ædificationem sui monasterij prædicti, quot et quantum placuerit accipere; nec aliquis ministrorum meorum in illa patria præsumat eum in aliquo impedire. Ipsum etiam Croylandense monasterium cum tota insula adjacente et cum villa duobusque mariscis jacentibus ex utraque parte aquæ de Weland versus occidentem, iisdem limitibus et terminis, quibus dicti monasterij monachi a sua prima fundatione illa continue possederunt, et prout plurimorum regum prædecessorum meorum, et præcipue inclyti regis Edredi patru prædecessorisque mei chirographa et monumenta sufficienter, ab oriente ad occidentem, et ab austro ad aquilonem, declarant ac manifestant; concedo et confirmo in perpetuam eleemosynam prædicto patri meo Turketulo abbati, ac monachis suis, ac omnibus eorum successoribus ibidem Deo servientibus: scilicet dictam insulam de Croyland, procedendo de ponte suo triangulo per aquam de Weland versus Spaldelyng usque ad Asendyk, ubi Asendyk cadit in aquam de Weland ex boreali parte crucis lapideæ per prædictum Turketulum ibidem affixæ, et sic sursum versus orientem per Asendyk usque ad Asendtoft, et inde usque Schepishee in orientali parte ejusdem insulæ, et sic usque ad Tetwarthar, et ibi intrando Southee usque ad Namanlandhyrne, ubi crucem lapideam affigi fecit idem Turketulus, distantem a Southee per sex perticatas, et distat eadem crux ab aqua de Neene versus occidentem per v. perticatas, et inde per eandem aquam de Neene sicut currit ad prædictum pontem de Croyland, cum separali piscaria tam in aquis omnibus ambientibus eandem insulam, quam in stagnis et paludibus infra situm inclusis; una cum mariscis et alnetis adjacentibus versus occidentem ex opposito ejusdem insulæ, in omnibus Lincolniae comitatu connexis et respondentibus, et per hos limites determinatis, viz. a Namanslandhyrne per aquam de Neene versus occidentem usque ad Fineston, ubi crux lapidea defixa est juxta ripam, et inde usque ad Greynes, et sic usque ad Folwardstaking, et inde usque ad Southlake, ubi Southlake cadit in aquam de Weland, et sic transeundo eandem aquam ad Kenulphston juxta ripam ex opposito de Southlake, ubi primus abbas ejusdem monasterij nomine Kenulphus posuit crucem lapideam pro limite inter Croyland et Deping, et inde versus boream juxta Aspath usque ad Werwarlake, et sic usque ad Harynholt, et inde sursum per Mengarlake et Lurtlake, et inde per Oggot usque ad Wodelade, ubi Wodelade cadit in aquam de Weland; cum omnibus commodis quæ poterunt evenire vel extorqueri infra prædictos limites, tam subter terram quam supra; cum communia pasturæ omni tempore anni pro omni genere animalium, sibi, et omnibus hominibus suis, et tenentibus suis secum infra dictos limites cohabitantibus in mariscis adjacentibus ex utraque parte [aquæ de Weland, videlicet ex una parte]^c ab illa aqua usque ad agrum meum de Medeshamsted, et ex alia parte ab aqua eadem usque ad ædificia de Spaldelyng, cum separali piscaria in eadem aqua de Weland, a Kenulphston usque ad pontem in Croyland, et in aqua de Neene a limite, Fineston nomine, usque ad prædictum pontem de Croyland, et inde in eadem aqua et in aqua de Weland coadunatis usque ad Asendyk. Concedo etiam quod dicti monachi possint includere de mariscis adjacentibus versus occidentem pro se et pro tenentibus suiscroftos sive pratum circa pontem separaliter, quantum illis placuerit, prout patruus meus rex Edredus eisdem hæc omnia suo chirographo confirmavit. Concedo etiam et confirmo prædicto monasterio omnia prædicta libera et soluta ab omni onere sæculari, et quod habeant omnes liberas consuetudines, cum omni illo quod appellatur socha, sacha, tol et tem, infangthef, weyf, et stray, et cum his legitime appendentibus. Concedo etiam et confirmo eisdem monachis omnes terras et tenementa, ecclesias et capellas, et omnes possessiones eidem monasterio pertinentes, quas præfatus rex Edredus, vel optimates sui, dicto cœnobio pro suorum redemptione peccaminum, in perpetuam eleemosynam donaverunt, vel per præfatum abbatem Turketulum datæ vel acquisitæ sunt, id est, in Croyland, Spaldeling, Pyncebek, Cappelade, Algare, Donnesdyk, Drayton, Burtoft, Southerton, Bokenhale, Halyngton, Gerunthorp, Langtoft, Baston, Depyng, Tetford, Repyngale, Laythorp, Kyrkeby, Wendlingburgh, Adyngton, Elmyngton, Glapthorne, Wyrthorp, Peykyrke, Baddeby, Morburne, Thirning, Beby, Sutton, Stapelton, Kottenham, Hoke-ton, Drayton, et Staundon. Hæc omnia tenementa, ad honorem Dei, et sanctæ ecclesiæ suæ relevationem, et ob amorem^d sancti Guthlaci corporaliter in cœnobio Croylandensi requiescentis, confirmo venerabili patri meo Turketulo abbati Croylandiæ, ac monachis suis, et eorum successoribus ibidem Deo servientibus in perpetuum. Prohibeo etiam, ne quisquam ministrorum meorum in patria Girviorum præmemoratos limites mariscorum Croylandiæ introeat, aut se in aliquo intromittat; cum tam de donatione regis Edredi patru et prædecessoris mei, quam de confirmatione mea possideant prædictos mariscos, et situm separalem monasterij sui, et a marisco meo de Ege crucibus lapideis, ac alijs intersignis et terris separatos. Contra ergo hujus nostri chirographi propositum quicumque dictum Turketulum abbatem patrem meum, vel monachos suos vexare, vel inquietare pro aliquo præmissorum præsumserit, præter meam indignationem et vindictam, nisi citius cum condigna satisfactione resipuerit, longius a sanctorum congregatione segregatus cum Dathan et Abiram damnationem gehennalem sentire possit: qui vero auxerit nostram eleemosynam, aut in aliquo promoverit hujus mei chirographi voluntatem, inter omnes sanctos et electos Dei sempiternam sortiatur felicitatem. Sancitum est hoc chirographum meum in anno Dominicæ incarnationis dcccc.lxvi. præsentibus archiepiscopis, episcopis, abbatibus, et optimatibus regni mei subnotatis. ✠. Confirmatio Cartarum Regum Edredi et Edgari Abbatie Croylandensi concessarum, sub censuris Ecclesiasticis, per Dunstanum Cantuariensem, et Osketulum Eboracensem Archiepiscopos, et alios.

UNIVERSIS posteris Christianam fidem profitentibus, Dunstanus Dorobern. et Osketulus Eborac. archiepisc. Athelwaldus Wyntonie, Oswaldus Wigornie, et Lefwinus Dorcast. episcopi salutem in Domino sempiternam. Cum naturaliter Ægypti pastores omnes ovium execrantur, et filij tenebrarum filios lucis furore implacabili persequuntur (semper enim Madian perdere populum Domini machinatur:) cupientes igitur in futurum contra sceleratos et sacrilegos sanctam matrem ecclesiam jugiter infestantes murum defensionis opponere, et quicumque se divino servitio manciperaverunt, et in castris Domini quocunque modo militaverunt, reddere ab hujusmodi persecutoribus securiores, et in domo Domini tutiores: attendentes etiam sanctissimam devotionem, quam piissimi reges nostri temporis, sc. Edredus quondam rex, et inclytus rex Edgarus nunc superstes (inspirante Sancto Spiritu) conceperunt ad restauranda sacra servorum Christi monasteria, et ecclesiam Dei ubicunque relevandam; chirographa eorundem regum benignissime concessa venerabili patri Turketulo abbati Croylandensi (qui pro patriæ coelestis amore divitias multas et magnas dignitates fortissime reliquit) de confirmatione sui monasterij sibi confecta nos auctoritate divina confirmamus, ratificamus; ac omnes, qui timore Dei postposito, possessiones dicti monasterij diripere tentaverint, vel pacem dictorum monachorum contra intentionem ac voluntatem præactorum regionum chirographorum perturbaverint, aut perturbari procuraverint, arte vel ingenio, consilio vel favore, quocunque colore sua machinamenta homo seminaverit inimicus, et filius iniquitatis sua fuderit argumenta, ex tunc excommunicantes, nomina illorum de libro vitæ tollimus et a consortio sanctorum separantes, ac a limite^a portæ coelestis longius repellentes, nisi condigna satisfactione citius sua errata correxerint, infernalibus incendijs cum Juda traditore damnandos pro suis demeritis irremissibiliter^b deputamus. Insuper spiritualitatem totius insulæ Croylandiæ, villæque adjacentis, prout a fundatione monasterij sui dicti monachi hactenus habuerunt, viz. quicquid attinet ad archidiaconatus officium omnibus correctionibus ad instantiam partis, vel quocunque modo infligendis pro quibuscunque delictis vel criminibus, per quamecunque personam commissis vel committendis ibidem, præfato venerabili abbati Turketulo, et omnibus successoribus suis abbatibus in eodem monasterio futuris, et eorum officialibus ad hoc officium vice sua exequendum substituendis cum consensu Agelnothi archidiaconi procurantis istud fieri, concedimus et assignamus; excommunicantes et exterminantes a facie Dei, et a glorifica visione vultus sui in die magni judicij omnes, qui dictum patrem Turketulum, vel aliquem successorum suorum super hoc de cætero inquietaverint, vel aliquod præmissorum violarint, vel violari procuraverint quocunque modo, in perpetuum eos Sathanæ sine fine tradentes, nisi citius resipuerint, et cum condigna poenitentia prædicto monasterio satisfecerint pro patrat. Istud privilegium sancitum est et immutabiliter decretum ad honorem Dei, et sanctæ matris ecclesiæ relevationem, ac sancti Guthlaci confessoris reverentiam, in præsentia regis Edgari, prælatorum, procerumque suorum anno Dominicæ incarnat. dcccc.lxvi. apud London collectorum. Carta Cnuti Regis, cum Calice Aureo, Monasterio Croylandensi concessa.

CNUTUS rex totius Angliæ et Danmarchiæ et Norwagiæ et magnæ partis Swavorum, omnibus provincijs, nationibus, et populis meæ potestati subjectis, tam minoribus quam majoribus, salutem. Cum terram Angliæ progenitores mei et parentes duris extortionibus et diris depredationibus sæpius oppresserunt, et (fateor) innocentem sanguinem frequenter in ea effuderunt; studium meum a principio mei regni fuit, et semper erit in futurum, tam penes cælum, quam penes seculum propter hæc mea peccata, et parentum meorum satisfacere; et statum totius sanctæ matris ecclesiæ, et uniuscujusque monasterij sub imperio meo constituti, cum in aliquo meo patrocinio indiguerint, devotione debita emendare; omnesque sanctos Dei per hæc, et alia bona opera mihi in meis necessitatibus reddere benignos, ac deprecationibus meis favorabiles et placatos. Ideo in arras hujus meæ satisfactionis offero sancto Guthlaco de Croyland, et cæteris sanctis ejusdem loci de substantia mea unum calicem, confirmans Brithmero abbati et monachis suis totum monasterium suum Croylandiæ cum insula circumjacente, et duobus mariscis adjacentibus, scilicet, Alderlound et Goggislound, eisdem terminis et limitibus, quibus in chirographo inclyti quondam regis Edredi restauratoris sui dicta insula, dictique duo marisci satis aperte describuntur. Confirmo etiam omnes ecclesias et capellas, terras et tenementa, libertates et privilegia in ejusdem regis chirographo contenta, cum quibus omnibus dictus rex Edredus dictum monasterium Croylandiæ ad honorem Dei et sancti Guthlaci confessoris sui corporaliter in eo requiescentis dotavit, donavit, ditavit, et suo chirographo confirmavit. Nullusque hominum meorum audeat amodo dictos monachos inquietare, Carta Edwardi Regis de Confirmatione Abbatiae Croylandensis, et omnium Possessionum ejusdem.

[Ibid. p. 64.]

Ego Edwardus gratia Dei rex Anglorum domino Wlgato abbate Croylandiæ postulante, dominoque Gerardo priore dicti monasterij devote supplicante, testamenta prædecessorum meorum regum Angliæ, sc. pijssimi regis Edredi, et inclyti regis Edgari avi mei, monasterio Croylandiæ concessa, in omnibus laudo, approbo, et confirmo. Dederunt enim, et suis chirographis confirmarunt Deo et sancto Guthlaco, ac monachis suis totam insulam Croylandiæ in situm separalem monasterij dictorum monachorum, sicut jacet circa dictum monasterium limitibus et terminis in prædictorum regum chirographis satis aperte descripta et definita, cum duobus mariscis ejus, scilicet, Alderlound et Goggislound ex opposito ejusdem insulæ ad ejus occiduum jacentibus, similiter cum iisdem finibus et metis quibus in iisdem chirographis describuntur. Hæc et omnia alia donaria prædictorum regum, scilicet, Edredi restauratoris dicti monasterij, et Edgari avi mei, prædictis monachis et eorum successoribus concedo et confirmo, cum omnibus libertatibus et privilegijs in eorum chirographis dicto monasterio concessis et contentis, habenda sancto Guthlaco et prædictis monachis suis in puram regalem eleemosynam in perpetuum. Testibus Egitha regina mea, Edfio et Alfrico archiepiscopis, Godwino, Leofrico, et Siwardo comitibus, cum cæteris optimatibus meis, qui assunt in curia mea, multis.

[Ibid. p. 85.]

Ego Willielmus Dei beneficio rex Anglorum, ad humilem petitionem familiaris mei Ingulphi abbatis Croylandensis monasterij chartam privilegiatam, quam egregius rex Edredus prædecessor meus Deo et sancto Guthlaco, ac monachis de Croyland concessit et donavit, coram me et concilio meo perlectam et declaratam, laudo, approbo, et confirmo, et in omnibus effectualiter observari præcipio. Prohibeo etiam ne quisquam sub ditione mea illos temerarie vexare præsumat, ne excommunicationis gladio intereat, et pro jure ecclesiastico violato infernorum exquirat cruciatus. Sed habeant omnes possessiones suas in perpetuam et regalem eleemosynam ex meo dono, et confirmatione, ad laudem Dei, et ob reverentiam sancti Guthlaci confessoris ibidem corporaliter quiescentis, cum omni illo quod appellatur socha, sacha, tol, et tem, cum legibus et consuetudinibus illis jure perpetuo tenendis, cum quibus eas liberius et quietius tenuerunt diebus illis quibus præfatus rex Ed-redus vivus fuit et incolumis. In hujus scripti robore optimates in eodem nominati testes affuerunt, Lanfrancus archiepiscopus Cantuariæ, Thomas archiepiscopus Eboracæ, Walkelinus episcopus Wintoniæ, Willielmus episcopus Dunelmæ, Willielmus comes, Alfredus comes, Alfredus filius Topi, Willielmus Malettus, et alij.

Henrici R. Carta.

HENRICUS rex Angliæ episcopis Angl. baronibus, vicecomitibus, omnibusque fidelibus suis Francis et Anglis salutem. Sciatis me concessisse et confirmasse Joffrido abbati Croylandiæ et omnibus successoribus suis, et monachis ibidem Deo servientibus, omnes possessiones et libertates specificatas in charta domini Edredi quondam regis Angliæ, de qua charta illustrissimus rex Willelmus pater meus intentionem facit in charta confirmationis suæ monasterio eidem inde facta. Et ideo præcipio quod habeant omnes tenuras et possessiones suas liberas et solutas ab omni servitio sæculari, scilicet scotto, geldo, et omnibus auxiliis vicecomitum et omnium ministrorum eorum, hidagio, danegeldo, schiris, hundredis, wapuntagiis, trithingis, placitis, et querelis, et ab omnibus operibus, castellorum, arcium, pontium, portuum, viarumque sustentatione, et omni cariagio et summagio, et navigio, et regalium domorum ædificatione, et ab omni onere sæculi sint immunes.

Concedo etiam prædicto abbati et monachis suis, quod ipsi habeant francum plegium in omnibus dominiis suis in custodia sua; et prohibeo ne aliquis de hoc se intromittat, nisi ipsi et ballivi sui; cum socha, sacha, tol, et tem, infangthef, hamsokne, gridbregre, blodwithe, murdro, et tesauo, forestall, flem, et flitte, et ordel, et aliis libertatibus quas regia potestas aliquibus aliis monasteriis dare consuevit. Prohibeo similiter ne aliquis alterius domini capiat teloneum, passagium, vel genus aliquod vectigalis exigat infra fines et limites villarum suarum, scilicet Croyland, Langtoft, Cappelade, et Wendlingburgh, absque dictorum abbatum et monachorum licentia et voluntate, sub forisfactura x. librarum thesauro meo vel hæredum meorum quotiens hoc attentare præsumserint, si convicti inde fuerint, solvendarum. Huic meæ concessionem ex parte mea testes interfuerunt isti subscripti, Robertus episcopus Lincoln, Herveus episcopus Heliensis primus, Warnerus de Lusors, Hugo de Essartis, et alii plures, apud Oxenford, anno Domini cæ incarnationis millesimo, centesimo quarto decimo, et regni regis quarto decimo. Signum regis ipsius.

Acta in Capitulo nostro Croyland vij^o. Die Mensis Junij Anno Henrici Abbatis tertio, et Anno Domini Millesimo. ccc^{mo}. vicesimo septimo, de Terra servili liberis Hominibus non tradenda.

Cum ecclesia nostra Croiland dampna non modica sustinuerit ex eo quod hactenus permissum est liberis hominibus seu aliorum nativis terras nostras serviles seu custumarias gersumare in curiis nostris, ac etiam ex

eo quod permissum est nativas nostras liberis hominibus sive aliorum servis cum terra nostra servili desponsari. Quidam siquidem processu temporis clamaverunt se in dictis terris habere liberam tenuram. Nos etiam inter cætera dampna commodum multiplex quod dominus solet de exitu nativarum suarum percipere ea occasione frequenter perdiderimus: ne futuris temporibus inde contingat deterius, de communi assensu capituli nostri ordinamus et constituimus, inhibentes ne amodo quisquam liber homo, vel aliquis qui non sit nativus ecclesiæ nostræ prædictæ capiat in curia seu extra curiam, pro se et hæredibus suis, terras nostras serviles, nec hujusmodi terras per aliquam nativarum nostrarum sibi ex nunc desponsandam teneat seu percipiat secundum consuetudinem maneriorum prius permissam tenendas. De terris servilibus dimissis ante hanc nostram ordinationem aliis quam servis nostris, ordinamus quod quam citius commode redire poterunt ecclesiæ nostræ revertantur in forma nunc ordinata ulterius tenenda. Nec volumus quod ad fines seu commodum pecuniarium quæ ex tali gersumarum promissione ante istam ordinationem pervenire solet ex nunc respiciatur, ad terminum tamen quinque annorum vel sex annorum et non ulterius, rotulis Curiae nostræ inserendis omni modo tolleramus hujus terras liberis hominibus posse dimitti. Ordinamus insuper quod terra nostra bonda operabitur nobis non præciatur ex licentia curiæ ad manus duorum vel plurium tenentium bondorum nostrorum, propter mala quæ hactenus tam illis quam nobis evenerunt: præcipientes senescallis nostris quod hæc a nobis ordinata et statuta ex nunc in futurum omnibus maneriis nostris observentur et per rotulos curiarum nostrarum ad perpetuam rei memoriam reducantur.

The Award of William Alnwyk Bishop of Lincoln, in the Controversy between the Abbat of Croyland and noble Lord Dacre, Lord of Dacre.

[Hist. Croyl. Contin. Rer. Ang. Scrip. Vet. tom. i. p. 522.]

BE hit knowen to all theym which thees present letters shall see or heare; that whereas diverse debates, variance, controversiz, and dissencion hath growen and late bene moved and stered betwix the noble Lorde Thomas Dacre lorde of Dacre, and John his son, clamying to have correction and punishments of all manner of trespas and offences done in the kyngys hyegh wayes, common stretys, and wast grounds in the ton of Whapplode in the shire of Lincoln, be the ryght of the maner and lordship of Holbech pertenyng to the said Thomas of that one partye: and the worshipful and religiouse fader Johan the abbat of Croyland, affermyng and sayng the contrarie, and that all such ryghts longed only to hym be ryght of the maner and lordship of Whapplode, pertenyng to the said abbat be ryght of his chyrch, on the other partye; upon which debates, variance, contraversiz and dissencion, as weel upon all the incidentz, dependantz and thyngs grown upon the same, it haath lyked the said parties to biende hem be theyr dede obligatorie beryng date the xvii. day of the moneth of Februarie the yere of the reygne of King Herry the Sext, xxvi. to stand and obey to tharbitrement, ordinance, awarde, judement and decree, or counsel of me William, be the suffrage of God bishop of Lincoln, as hit appereth more pleynly be the condicions of the said obligations. I William byshope abovesaid, desyryng the good pees, ease, and rest of bothe parties afornsaid, their successours, servantz, men, and tenants, aftyr divers dayes of examination of the said matier of debate, variaunce, contraversiz, and dissention, and good deliberacion hadde, comunicacion hadde also thereupon with wise, sadde and leerned men in the lawe, the xxi. day of this present month of September, the yere of the reyn of Kyng Herry the Sext, xxvii. arbitre, award, ordeign, deem, and decree, in forme that followeth.

First consideryng that the said abbot, be the ryght of his chyrch is call'd, lorde of the said ton of Whapplode, and haath ther be sufficiant graunt, warranth, and autorite, leet, and also fayere and market, in the waast grounde of the said ton, and that he and his predecessours have hadde a viewe of franc-plege, in the said ton of Whapplode, and have punished and corrected trespas and offences, done within the hyegh waye, common strete, and waest-ground, within the said ground of Whapplode, with all manner of wayfes and strayes, and tresoutrove, and other liberties and fraunches pertenyng to the viewe of franc-plege; the whych possession he and his predecessours have contynude sythen the tyme of King Herry the Thyrd, as it appereth moor pleynly be the court rolles maad of the said view; and the said Thomas Lord Dacre haath not passing xii. tenaunts in the said ton; the said abbot and his successours shall have, and peseble enjoye all manner of correction and punishment of all manner of trespas and offences done in the said wayes, streets, and waast-ground, within the said ton of Whapplode, with wayfes, strayes, and other libertes and fraunches longyng to the viewe of franc-plege, of the said abbot in the said ton. Excepte alway undyr excepted, and followyngly juged and decreed unto the said Lord Dacre, be this my present award, consyderyng also, that the said Thomas Lord Dacre, haath in lyke wyse in his courts holden at Holbech, inquired of trespas and offences done wythyn the hiegh waye, common-street, and waast-ground of the said ton of Whapplode, and receyved presentments of the same, from the tyme of Kyng Edward the Thyrd, as it appereth be the court rolles, made of the viewe hadde in his courtz kepte at the said Holbech; and so of mykell lattor tyme possessed in the behalve; whych possession for so mykell is as it semes of less weght and force; I awarde, ordeyngne, deem, and decree, that the said Thomas Lord Dacre, his heyres and his successours, shall now be his tenaunts, inquire in his courtz, holden at Holbech, of such trespas and offences done wythyn

the hiegh way, common-strete, and waast ground, wythyn the said ground of Whapplode, and peseble punysh and correct only his own tenauntz, resyeng upon his ground, in the said ton of Whapplode, whych hold not of the said abbot of Croyland nor his successours beyng for the tyme. And iff the said abbot or his successours, eny tenaunt or tenauntz of the said abbot, or his successours, as of his manyer of Whapplode, or eny other resyeng in the said ton, not tenaunt and resyeng of the said Lord Dacre ground, his heyer or heyres, within the said ton of Whapplode, be presented in the court or courtz of the said Lord Dacre beyng for the tyme, for eny trespas, offence or misprision done wythin the said ton of Whapplode, or wayes, stretes or waastground of the same. Ney the said Lord Dacre, his heyer nor heyeres, theyr officer nor officers, nor theyr servauntz, nor ministers, shall in eny wyse execute the said presentment, nor levy eny amerceament nor fyne of the said abbot, his successours, nor none of the tenauntz of the said abbot, as of his manyer of Whapplode, or his successours, or eny other resyeng in the said ton, not tenaunt and resyeng on the said Lord Dacre ground wythyn the said ton of Whapplode, for the said cause. And in semblable wyse, if the said Thomas Lord Dacre, or his heyres, eny tenaunt or tenaunts of the said lord or his heyres, resyeng upon his ground in Whapplode, not holding of the abbot, beyng for the tyme, be presented in the abbot's court, for eny trespas, offence or misprision, done wythin the said ton of Whapplode, or wayes, stretes, or waast grounds of the said ton, that ney the said abbot, nor his successours, theyr assignes, servantz, nor ministers, shall execute the said presentments, nor levy any amerciament nor fyne of the said Thomas Lord Dacre, his heyres, nor noon of his tenaunts resyeng upon his ground in Whapplode, nocht holdyng of the abbot, nor his successours, for the said cause.

And whereas the said parties were in variaunce, as for the dryfft within the marysh and common of the said ton of Whapplode and Holbech; I deem, award and decree, that the said Thomas Lord Dacre and his heyres, and the said abbot and his successours, shall take, occupye, and use theyr said dryffts wythin the said marysh of Whapplode and Holbech, at such tyme as theym lykes; ych of them be such wayes wythin his own ton, and in such forme as it haath been used of old tyme, with all maner of profetes of wayfes and strayes, and other liberties pertenyng to the said dryffts. Provided alway, that the said Thomas Lord Dacre, his heyres, nor his successours, shall at no tyme of theyr dryfft, make theyr common way thorow the said ton of Whapplode, nor nou way thereoff to the manyer of Holbech, but alonly thorowe Holbech droue, and be other wayes of the said Holbech, as it haath bene used of old tyme, but in cas that the said old wayes may not be used in forme, as they haath bene aforn tyme, because of surundyng of waters, than the said Thomas Lord Dacre, beyng for the tyme, shall be his officers giff warnyng to the said abbot, or to his officers, be reasonable tyme, to forne he enter with eny such dryffts, the ton of Whapplode, or the hiegh-way thereof, to the intent that the inhabitantz thereof may remeve and avoyd theyr catell oute of the stretes and hiegh-way there pasturyng for the tyme, that they be not chaced, nor driven forth to theyr hurt, with his said dryffts so to be maade, shall mowe com thorow the said ton of Whapplode, with his dryfft, nocht clamying there by eny tytle of ryght ageyn, or contrarie to this my present award.

Monastery of St. John of Beverley,

YORKSHIRE.

N conformity with Sir William Dugdale's example, the first foundation of the church of St. John at Beverley is here noticed among the monasteries of the Benedictine order. It was anciently called Monasterium in Silva Derorum, Inderaunda,^a or Deirwalde.^b

The Register, or Town-Book of Beverley is said to carry its antiquity as high as the second century; representing it to have been founded in the time of Lucius, the first Christian king of Britain, A. D. 126, and to have been destroyed, in the year 450, by Hengist and Horsa.^c

The total improbability, however, of this statement, need hardly be mentioned.

On better authority we are informed, that, about the year 700, John archbishop of York, the fifth from Paulinus,^d finding the parish church of Beverley dedicated to St. John the Evangelist, converted it into a monastery, and assigned it unto monks; building the presbytery or choir of the church anew, and appointing a place for the prior in the nave. He is also stated to have erected, on the south of the building, an oratory to St. Martin, wherein he afterwards placed nuns; associating the two foundations, "monasteriis istis," seven priests, and as many clerks, in the body of the church: for the support of all these he purchased the manor of Ridings, and then built the church of that lordship; giving also to the church of Beverley lands in Middleton, Welwik, Bilton, and Patrington.

Puch, a certain earl, lord of the manor of South Burton, two miles from Beverley, whose wife St. John had healed of a grievous sickness, was also a benefactor; making Yolfride, or Yolfrida, his daughter, a nun in the monastery, and giving with her the manor of Walking-tone. Yolfrida died on the 3d of the ides of March, A. D. 742, and was buried at Beverley.

Addi, earl of North Burton, gave the manor of that place, with the advowson of the church.

King Osred also gave Dalton, with its church.^e

The names of but three ABBATS of this monastery are preserved.

BERCTHUN,^f BERTINUS,^g or BRITHUNUS,^h was the first abbat, appointed at the time of the foundation. He died A. D. 733, and was interred in the church, near the remains of St. John of Beverley. His successor was

WINWALDUS, a monk of the house, who died A. D. 751.ⁱ

WULFETH, or WLFETH, the third abbat, died A. D. 773.^k

In 866, a hundred and forty-six years from the death of St. John, Beverley minster was destroyed by the Danes, with all the books and other ornaments belonging to the church. The place is stated to have lain desolate for three years; after which the priests and clerks who had survived the destruction of their house returned and repaired it.^l

In 925, according to the History of St. Leonard's Hospital at York, King Athelstan, marching a second time against the Scots, in his route, near Lincoln, met with a company of pilgrims, who, upon the king's enquiry, stated that they came from Beverley, where did rest a glorious confessor, John by name, by whose merits and intercession the blind, lame, and other infirm persons were restored to health. Athelstan, deviating himself from his line of march (but directing his army to pursue their way to York), visited St. John's sepulchre; and placing his knife upon the high altar of the church, engaged his promise, that, if he returned victorious, he would redeem it at a large price.^m Brompton says, that, upon his battle with the Scots, he prayed to God, that, at the intercession of St. John, he would vouchsafe to manifest by some evident sign, whereby the present and after ages might know that they did of right owe subjection to the English. Smiting, thereupon, a rock ^d This John, afterwards called St. John of Beverley, was born at Harpham in Yorkshire. He received his education first at Whitby in the foundation, of St. Hilda, and afterwards under Theodore archbishop of Canterbury. At a subsequent period he became a hermit at Hameshalg in Northumberland; then bishop of Hexham; and finally archbishop of York: whence, having sat thirty-three years, eight months, and fourteen days, he retired, A. D. 717, and lived privately at Beverley, dying on the seventh of May, A. D. 721.

Bede, who was his disciple, has been elaborate upon his life and miracles. Hist. Eccl. lib. v. ca. 2-6. See also Num. I. Collections respecting him, from different authorities, will likewise be found in the Acta Sanctorum of the Bollandists, Mense Maii, tom. ii. p. 166, followed by the Life which was written of him by Folcardus, a monk of Canterbury. Consult, too, Twysd. x. Script. col. 291, 296, 357, 358, 794, 1692, 1693.

William of Malmesbury, lib. iii. de Gestis Pontif. Angl. in Script. post Bedam, fol. 153, speaking of St. John of Beverley's miracles, says, "Johannes vir eximiarum virtutum notissimum prædicatorem habet Bedam in Gestis Anglorum. Sed nec modo minor est laudibus suis, nec adhuc defunctus miraculis. Celeberrimum illud habetur quod habitatores Beverley, quo loci jacet, pro spectaculo soleant exhibere. Tauri ferocissimi qui nodosissimis vinculis astricti magno virorum fortium sudore adducuntur, statim ut cœmiterium ingressi fuerint, ita omni feritate sopita conquiescunt, ut oves simplicitate putes. Laxatis ergo nodis dimittuntur, per atrium proludere, qui ante quicquid obstat, solebant cornibus et pedibus impetere."

King Henry the Fifth attributed his victory at Agincourt to the intercession of this saint, on whose day it happened: on which occasion a synod held at London, A. D. 1416, ordered his festival to be kept all over England. See Lyndwoode, Provinciale p. 104, and the 'Statutum domini Henrici Chicheley Cantuar. Archiep. pro festo S. Johannis Beverlaci celebrando.' Wilk. Concil. tom. iii. p. 379.

near the castle of Dunbar with his sword, he made so great an impression, that the stroke was seen to be a full ell in depth. Carrying, also, the Banner of St. John along with him, he obtained the victory; and, upon his coming back, enriched Beverley with very large possessions, liberties, and privileges.^a Athelstan, in fact, became the refounder of the church, about the year 828; making it COLLEGIATE, for Canons Secular. He gave unto it certain lands in Brandesburton and Lokington; and all his right of hestraffa, that is to say, of all the provender which was yearly payable to him for his horses, from the whole of the East Riding of Yorkshire. He also gave, for the better support of the religious, certain thraves of corn, or money in lieu thereof, arising out of divers particular places in the East Riding; which gift was afterwards confirmed by King Henry the Second.

A poetical version of King Athelstan's Charter, probably by a hand of a later time, will be found in the Appendix of Instruments.^b It grants, in addition to other ample immunities, the privilege of sanctuary.^c

The History of the CHURCH OF BEVERLEY, in its COLLEGIATE Form, is reserved for a future Portion of the Monasticon.^d

^c The Leuga, or privileged circuit of St. John of Beverley, occurs in the Domesday Survey. The Register of this Sanctuary, during the reigns of King Edward the Fourth, King Henry the Seventh, and King Henry the Eighth, still remaining among the Harleian manuscripts in the British Museum, will be hereafter described in the account of the Collegiate foundation of Beverley.

Connected with this privilege of Sanctuary, was the Fridstol, or stone chair, which stood on one side of the altar of the church, bearing this inscription:

"Hæc sedes lapidea Fredstole dicitur, i. e. Pacis Cathedra, ad quam reus fugiendo perveniens, omnimodam habet securitatem."

The Fridstol occurs in the Laws of K. Edgar, ca. 16. There were formerly several of them in the northern part of Britain. One occurs in the Charter of Immunities renewed by King Henry the Seventh to St. Peter's York, where it is interpreted "Cathedra quietudinis vel pacis." See Wilk. Leg. Anglosax. Glossar. p. 403. Hæc scriptura inventa postea in theca reliquiarum S. Joannis.

Anno Domini mxxxvij. vj. mensis Sept. combusta fuit ecclesia S. Joannis in sequenti nocte post festum Mathæi apostoli. Translata sunt eodem tempore ossa S. Brithuni abbatis Beverlaci.

Hic Alfredus episcopus Ebor. ordinavit tres officarios in ecclesia Beverlaci, sacristam, cancellarium et præcentorem, habitum canonicorum gestaturos. Hic Alfridus acquisivit à quodam Fortio divite, pecunia sua terram apud Middleton, Holme, et Fridaythorp. Hic etiam Alfridus ab Edwardo rege impetravit, ut tres feriæ annuæ essent Beverlaci. Hic etiam consuetudinem fecit ut vicini nobiliores ter in anno, jejuni et discalceati, reliquias S. Joannis intra et extra villam sequerentur. Hic etiam refectorium et dormitorium disposuit apud Beverlacum fabricari, sed morte præventus est.

Kinsius archiepiscopus Eboraci turrin in ecclesia excelsam fabricavit apud Beverlacum. Aldredus archiepiscopus Eboraci, refectorium et dormitorium in Bederna Ebor. perfecit.

Edwardus rex, instantia Aldredi, dedit ecclesiæ Beverlacensi dominium in Leven. Hic primus septem canonicos fecit præbendarios. Hic etiam præbendarios certa loca assignata et vicarios eis designavit. Hic Aldredus veterem ecclesiam novo presbyterio decoravit. Hic etiam addidit octavum canonicum præbendarium.

Hic à presbyterio ad turrin totam ecclesiam pictorio opere, quod cælum appellabat, exornavit. Hic supra ostium chori pulpitem ære, ære auro, argento auro, mirabili opere Teutonico exornavit.

Alveredus historicus sacrista et thesaurarius Beverlaci scripsit historiam de rebus Anglicis. Rex Gulielmus primus fixerat tentoria vij. millium passibus à Beverlaco.

Thurstinus miles Gulielmi primi insequutus est veteranum in ecclesia Beverlacensi stricto gladio, et ibi miserrimè morbo correptus est.

Gulielmus primus dedit Siglesthorn ecclesiæ Beverlacensi, et præcepit ne ejus exercitus ecclesiam Beverlacensem lederent.

Thomas senior, archiepiscopus Eboraci, dedit Thomæ juniore nepoti suo, propter discordiam canonicorum novam dignitatem, id est, præposituram de Beverlaco, ita tamen ut neque vocem in capitulo neque stallum in choro haberet.

Locus qui Bederna antiquitùs dicebatur, nunc est domus præpositi; et nova Bederna adjuncta est ejus domui, ubi nunc sunt vicarii præbendariorum, quibus præpositus stipendia persolvit.

Ripon, or Rippon, Monastery,

IPON, formerly Inrhypum,^a Hripensis Ecclesia,^b or Ad Ripam,^c was another foundation which began as a Benedictine monastery, but was changed to a collegiate church about four hundred years after its first establishment.

Bishop Tanner says,
"Alchfrid king of the Northumbers gave this place first to abbat

EATA, to build a monastery; but, before it was finished, he was sent away, and

ST. WILFRID made abbat here before A. D. 661."^d Alchfrid, it appears, had originally intended the discipline of the monastery to have been after the rule of Mailros; but, upon maturer deliberation, preferring the doctrine of Wilfrid, who had been at Rome, and who had received the ecclesiastical tonsure from Dulfín archbishop of France, he sent Eata, and, with him, St.
Cuthbert, who had also been appointed a monk of Ri-pon, away.^e

The reason of their being sent away was that they refused to celebrate the feast of Easter, and to observe all other canonical rites according to the usage of the Roman and apostolical church.^f

By some of our historians, however, Wilfrid is made the founder, and the king to have given the ground and the revenues. Omitting all notice whatever of Eata.^g

In the Life of Wilfrid quoted by Leland, the earliest endowment of Ripon appears to have consisted of certain lands bordering upon the river Ribble; in Hac-mundernes, in Gedene, in the territory called Dunuting-e, or Dunge, and in Aetlevum.^h Peter of Blois, in another Life of St. Wilfrid, states that, upon the first construction of the building, certain persons, who were present at its consecration and dedication to St. Peter, gave other lands; viz. Ribble and Hasmundesham, and Marchese, and land in the parts of Dunge: and that Wilfrid gave a copy of the Gospels; as also a library, and many other books of the Old and New Testament; together with certain tablets skilfully wrought with gold and precious stones.ⁱ

BOTUUNE, BOTWINE, or BOTHWINUS, abbat of Ripon, is stated in the Saxon Chronicle to have died in 785.^k Simeon of Durham and the Chronicle of Mailros say in 786.^l He was succeeded by

ALBERHT, or ALBERTUS, who died in 787.^m

SIGRED was appointed the next abbat.ⁿ

Early in the ninth century this religious house was endowed with great privileges by King Athelstan, who also made it a sanctuary, extending the circuit of protection to a mile from the town.^o The poetical version of his charter, similar to that in the Appendix to Beverley monastery, mentions the grith-stole, or chair of asylum.

The History of the Church of Ripon printed by Maynard, as Dugdale's, at the end of the second edition of the History of St. Paul's Cathedral, says that afterwards, the church of Ripon, for want of repairs, falling down, Odo archbishop of Canterbury removed the bones of St. Wilfrid, who had been buried there, to the church of his see, about the year 940.^p But, in truth, the church continued in great repute till it was burnt down

rat. Unde et ille, quia catholicum eum esse comperit, mox donavit terram decem familiarum in loco qui dicitur Stanford, et non multo post monasterium triginta familiarum in loco qui vocatur Inrhypum; quem videlicet locum dederat pridem ad construendum inibi mo-nasterium his qui Scottos sequebantur." Hist. Eccl. lib. v. ca. 19, edit. Smith, p. 206.

^f Compare Bede, Hist. Eccl. lib. v. ca. 20.

^g Thus Hoveden, in a passage which will be hereafter quoted.
Append. of Instruments, Num. I. Gervase of Canterbury, Script. x.
col. 1636, says, "Dederat autem Alfridus rex cuidam Wilfrido viro doctissimo locum amplum ad construendum monasterium, videlicet in Ripun, ubi et ipse postmodum abbas et presbyter factus est."

Ripum producens ibi eum occidit extra portam monasterii: delato

pro redemptione animæ suæ locum quendam regni sui, qui vocatur Inrhy-pum ad construendum ibidem monasterium Eatanabbati donare, tollens idem abbas quosdam e fratribus secum, in quibus et Cudberc-tum, condidit ibi quod petebatur monasterium, atque eisdem quibus antea Mailros institutis disciplinæ regularis imbuat." Vit. S. Cuthb.
ca. vii. edit. Smith, p. 234. "Interea quia fragilis est et more freti volu-bilis omnis sæculi status, instante subito turbine, præfatus abbas Eata cum Cudbercto et cæteris quos secum adduxerat fratribus domum re-pulsus est, et locus monasterii quod condiderat aliis ad incolendum monachis datur." Ibid. cap. viii. p. 235.

And again, in his Ecclesiastical History, A.D. 662, "Porro Alchfrid magistrum habens eruditionis, Christianæ Vilfridum virum doctissimum: nam et Romam prius propter doctrinam ecclesiasticam adierat, et apud Dalfinum archiepiscopum Galliarum Lugduni multum temporis egerat, a quo etiam tonsuræ ecclesiasticæ coronam susceperat, hujus doctrinam omnibus Scottorum traditionibus jure præferendum sciebat: unde ei etiam donaverat Monasterium quadraginta familiarum in loco qui dicitur Inrhy-pum; quem videlicet locum paulo ante eis qui Scottos sequebantur in possessionem monasterii dederat. Sed quia illi postmodum data sibi optione, magis loco cedere quam suam mutare consuetudinem volebant, dedit eum illi qui dignam loco et doctrinam haberet et vitam." Bedæ Hist. Eccl. lib. iii. ca. 25.

In another passage of his History, A.D. 709, speaking of Wilfrid, Bede says, "At ille Britanniam veniens, conjunctus est amicitii Alchfridi regis, qui catholicas ecclesiæ regulas sequi semper et amare didice-in the devastation which King Edred made in these parts, about A. D. 950.^a Archbishop Oswald, and his successors, archbishops of York, assisted in the rebuilding of the church; and Archbishop Aldred, about the time of the Conquest, endowed it with lands, and made it COLLEGIATE, as it continues to this day.^b

With the foundation in the COLLEGIATE form we have nothing to do at present.

TERRÆ datæ S. Wilfrido à regibus juxta Ribel flumen, id est, Hacmundernes, et in Gedene, et in regione Dunutinga, et in Aetleum, in cæterisque locis. Ecfrius rex adhuc juvenis, cum Bernoth quodam subregulo ejus amico, Pictorum ingentem numerum parva manu stravit, et duos fluvios cadaveribus interfectorum replevit. Wilfridus adeptus est locum à regina sancta Ætheldrythe, condendo monasterium Hagustaldun. Berthwaldus frater Ethelredi regis Merciorum, Wilfridum exulem hospicio excepit. Wilfridus misit Bradwinum presbyterum et abbatem, magistrumque Alfridum nuncios ad Alfridum regem Northumbrorum.

Berthwaldus archiepiscopus Cantuar. synodum congregavit in partibus aquilonis juxta flumen Nid ab oriente, ubi rex erat cum principibus et abbatibus, et beata Elfleda.

Berecfridus princeps secundus à rege in synodo. Synodus in campo nomine Tostrefeld.

Berecfridus unà cum regio puero Alfridi obsessus in Bebbanberg, vovit se satisfacturum Wilfrido, si hostes recederent, et regius puer aliquando paterno potiretur solio. Wilfridus designavit Tatbertum comitem suum individuum præfectum, si ipse fortè moreretur, Ripensi ecclesiæ.

Tibba et Eabba, monitu Ceolredi regis Merciorum, invitabant Wilfridum ut in partes Merciorum veniret. Postremò ad monasterium ejus quod in Undalum positum est, in quo olim Andreæ apostoli dedicavit ecclesiam Wilfridus pervenit, ubi paulo post obiit.

Bacula abbas, inter cæteros, corpus Wilfridi syndone involvit. Vixit Wilfridus in episcopatu annis xlvj.

Tatbertus fit præfectus Ripensis ecclesiæ. Wilfridi corpus perductum ad Ripensem ecclesiam. Nobiles quidam exules combusserunt cœnobium in Undalum ubi Wilfridus obiit, excepta una domo in qua Wilfridus obiit, illam nullis fomitibus adjectis comburere potuerunt. Monasterium de Undalum erat magna sepi spinea circumdatum, quæ etiam conflagravit, sed crux lignea ibi posita ubi Wilfridi corpus ligneo balneo colutum fuit, à trucum labibus intacta permansit.

Leland, in his Itinerary, edit. Oxf. 1770, tom. i. p. 91, says, "The old towne of Ripon stode much by north and est, as I could gather by veuing of it. The best of the towne now standith by west and southe. The old abbay of Ripon stood where now is a chapelle of our Lady in a botom, one close distant by from the new minstre."

"One Marmaduke abbat of Fountaines, a man familiar with Salvage archbishop of York, obtainid this chapelle of hym and prebendaries of Ripon: and having it given onto hym and to his abbay pullid down the est end of it, a pece of exceding auncient wark, and buildid a fair pece of new werk with squarid stones for it, leving the west ende of very old werk standing."

"He began also and, finished a very fair high waul of squarid ston at the est end of the garth, that this chapel stondith yn: and had thought to have enclosid the hole [building] with a waulle, and to have made there a cell of in the est end of this chapel. And there lyith another of them yn the chapel garthe. And in the chapel singith a cantuarie prest."

"One thing I much notid, that was three crossis standing in row at the est ende of the chapelle garth. They were things antiquissimi operis, and monumentes of some notable men buried there: so that of all the old monasterie of Ripon and the towne I saw no likely tokens left after the depopulation of the Danes in that place, but only the waulles of our Lady chapelle and the crosses."

"The common opinion is that Odo, archbishop of Cantewarbyri, cumming ynto the north partes with King had pitie of the desolation of Ripon chirch, and began or caussid a new work to be edified where the minstre now is."

"Howbeit the hole chirch that now standith indubitably was made sins the Conquest."

St. Frideswide's Monastery,

NOW

Christ-Church,

OXFORD.

FRIDESWIDE, or FRIDISWIDA, who was anciently honoured as the patroness of Oxford, is said to have been the daughter of Didanus,^a a "sub-regulus," or petty prince, in these parts, who, about the year 727, on the death of his wife Safrida, founded a nunnery here for twelve religious virgins of noble birth, under the government of his daughter.^b Frideswide being buried here, and afterwards canonized for a saint, this Monastery, in process of time, was dedicated to her memory, and called almost always by her name.^c

The nuns having been dispersed in the Danish wars, this church came into the possession of secular canons, and was burned to the ground A.D. 1004, when Ethelred determined to exterminate the Danes.^d William of Malmesbury, speaking of the council of Danes and English assembled by the king at Oxford, says, that when Sigeferd and Morcard, having been accused of treachery by Edric, were unjustifiably put to death, the dependants of these noble Danes, attempting to revenge the death of their lords by arms, were worsted, and driven into the tower of St. Frideswide's church, where, as they could not be dislodged, they were consumed by fire. From the tenor of Ethelred's charter it is evident that he both rebuilt and better endowed the monastery. Malmesbury only says, that, shortly after, the foul stain was wiped out by the king's penitence, and the sacred place repaired.^e

Capgrave says, a certain king, before the Norman Conquest, is said to have expelled the canons, and to have given this monastery to the monks of Abingdon for some years, and then to have restored the canons again.^f

After the Conquest, the seculars were again ejected, though Bishop Tanner thinks not till after the compilation of Domesday Book.^g An abbat and monks, he adds, were here for some time. Then the priests got in once more, and continued till A. D. 1111,^h or 1121;ⁱ at which time Roger bishop of Salisbury placed in this church a convent of regular canons of the order of St. Austin, under the care of

GUIMOND, or WIMUND, a learned clerk, and chaplain to King Henry the First, who became the first Prior.^k

^c Tanner, ut supr. In some few old Charters, temp. Hen. I. it is called "The Church of the Holy Trinity in Oxford," as Brian Twyne, x. o. p. 115, ex Registro Frideswidæ. The Life of St. Frideswide quoted by Leland (see Num. II.) says this church in the first instance was dedicated to St. Mary and All-Saints.

For the Life of St. Frideswide the reader may consult Capgrave's Nova Legenda Angliæ, fol. Lond. Wynk. de Worde, 1516, fol. clii. b; Britannia Sancta, p. 207; and Butler's Lives of the Saints, edit. 8vo. Dubl. 1779, vol. x. p. 453. See also Alfordi Annal. Eccl.

Algar, a prince of the Mercians, smitten with the beauty and virtues of Frideswide, and not being able to overcome her resolution of chastity, is stated to have given loose to the reins of his criminal passion so far as to lay a snare to carry her off; which was prevented by miraculous interference. The virgin, being warned in a vision, withdrew privately in a boat to a place ten miles from the city, called Benton; where she lay concealed, with two of her companions, in a forsaken hut covered with ivy, which had been originally a hog-stye. Algar, in the mean while, desisting not from his purpose, threatened to destroy the city of Oxford, if the inhabitants did not discover to him where Frideswide was concealed: till, at length, being struck with blindness, near the north gate of the city, he acknowledged the hand of God, implored Frideswide's prayers, and was again restored to his sight: and, going home, ceased to give her any further molestation. From which time, as both our historians and legendists remark, for divers ages, none of our kings durst enter Oxford, upon a notion that the attempt would be dangerous to them. Capgrave says, "Ob cujus equidem tyranni supplicium innatus est horror regibus Angliæ ut nec unus urbem Oxoniæ ut fertur præsumat intrare." St. Frideswide remained three years in her solitude; after which, returning to Oxford, that she might not be hurthensome to her sisters there, she chose a solitary place for her habitation, not far from the city, then called Thornbery, but since Binsey, where she built an oratory, and obtained by her prayers a well, which was long visited by pilgrims, and still exists.

For numerous particulars of this well, by some called St. Frideswide's, and by others St. Margaret's, see Hearn's Textus Roffensis. Compare also Sir John Peshall's Ancient and Present State of the City of Oxford, pp. 321, 322.

St. Frideswide is commemorated in the Roman Martyrology on October the 19th, and has an office of nine lessons in the Sarum Breviary.

Nova Legenda Angliæ, ut supr. Bishop Tanner says, "This may perhaps account for that in Leland. Collect. tom. iii. p. 72, out of the Rochester Chronicle, viz. 'A. D. 1049. Institutio canonicorum Frideswidæ.'" Notit. Monast. Sir John Peshall, in his Ancient and Present State of the City of Oxford, without any sort of authority says, p. 121, "1060. These secular canons of St. Frid. being expelled the monastery on account of their having wives, K. Edward ordered a set of regulars to succeed them in their office, at the instance of Pope Nicholas II."

^g The entry in the Domesday Survey respecting the property of the canons is short, and mixed with lands held in capite of the king by individual Priests. See the whole article, Num. V. The canons of St. Frideswide are said to hold four hides of the king near Oxford, valued at forty shillings per annum. One Siward, also, is stated to hold two hides of land of the canons in Codeslam, of the same value.

Willis, taking the earliest date of Guimond's appointment, ascribes to him the building of the present cathedral of Christchurch, which he says was finished under his two immediate successors.^a After the death of Guimond, which happened according to one account in 1130, and according to another in 1141,

ROBERT, surnamed DE CRICKLADE, alias CANUTUS, was the next who presided.

In 1142, while King Stephen formed the siege of Oxford, to oblige the monks of St. Frideswide, he gave them the chapel of Brehull, now Brill, in Buckinghamshire. Nigh which time Maud, the empress, to ingratiate herself also with the said monks, gave them a like grant of the mother church of Oakle, with the chapels of Brill, Borstall, and Edingrave.^b So, as in this competition for the crown of England, Bishop Kennett observes, these Religious had the same bribe offered them by both the contending parties; that which side soever they deceived, they might be true to their own interest.^c

The bishop of Lincoln, by another Charter, at the instance of Maud the empress, gave the monks leave to appropriate to their own use the said church of Oakle, with the chapels of Brehull and Borstall: and K. Stephen sent other letters to Alexander bishop of Lincoln, to advise that he had given and confirmed to the monks the chapel of Brehull, with all tithes and customs of his demesne, as freely as his predecessors had ever enjoyed the same.^d

Two other Charters of the Empress Maud, beside that already referred to, will be found in the Appendix; together with two Charters from King Stephen.^e

Prior Robert occurs in 1157; and was chancellor of the University of Oxford in 1159.

In this last year, Malcolm king of Scotland gave to the monks the manor of Pidington in the parish of Ambrosden,^f which, though confirmed by Charters from King Henry the Second^g and Thomas Becket archbishop of Canterbury, and ratified by Simon St. Liz, the third Earl of Northampton and Huntingdon,^h was still detained from them for near two centuries by injustice and court interest.ⁱ

In 1161, Reginald de St. Walery confirmed his

"Anno gratiæ millesimo C^{mo}. xxij. et anno regni regis Henrici primi [xxij^o.] magister Gimundus dicti regis Henrici capellanus videns quod rex clericos suos fere illiteratos in episcopos promovere, aliis dignitates aliis redditus non modicos conferens, sibi que cum literatus esset et integre opinionis nihil præter victum et vestitum a rege donari, indignans super hoc, die rogationum, cum rex missam audiret ipse lectionem propheticam, in qua scriptum est, 'non pluit super terram annos iij et menses vj.' sic pronuntiando legit, 'non pluit super terram annos i. i. i. et menses v. j.' clericis omnibus super hoc admirantibus ipsum et deridendo subsannantibus, increpatus post missam a rege quare sic legisset subridendo respondit q^d. vos sic legentibus episcopatus et ecclesiastica beneficia confertis. Qui mox ejectis inde canonicis secular. qui usque ad id temporis eidem ecclesiæ præfuerant, regulares canonicos congregavit, quorum ipse primus prior extitit dictam feliciter regens ecclesiam annis xix."

Dr. Leonard Hutton, in his Letter on the Antiquities of Oxford, at the end of Hearne's Textus Roffensis, says of St. Frideswide's monastery, "It was given by William the Conqueror to the abbot and monks of St. Mary the Virgin in Abbington, for a cellorgrange, as they pleased to use it. But the abbot and monks of Abbington perceiving it to be very ruinous, and that the charges of repaying it would rather be a burthen, than the church an honour to them, gave it to Roger, the bishop of Salisbury, their ordinary, having first obtained leave of King Henry the First soe to doe. Whereupon the bishop understanding that the king had already (as much as in him lay) given it to Guimundus his chaplaine, a man very religious and excellently learned, gave presently the disposition thereof to the king, and the king to Guimundus."

^d Ibid. p. 99. The church of Oakle was subsequently the source of a tedious contention between the prior and convent and the crown: the particulars of which will perhaps be best given in a connected form.

In 1221, the king having by judgment in his temporal court recovered this church from the prior and canons, they, not willing to stand to the verdict, procured letters from the pope, appointing delegates to examine the cause and give a new determination of it. Which method was thought so prejudicial to the king's court, crown, and dignity, that a memorable Prohibition was issued out against them: (See the Append. of Instr. Num. XXVI.) and within this year, the king, in exercise of his right, presented to the church of Oakle with its appurtenances, which were the chapels of Brill and Borstall. But Pope Honorius the Third was so zealous in defence of the convent's title and the supposed rights of holy church, that in the third, fifth, and sixth years of his pontificate, he sent over three several bulls to assert the claim of the priory to the said church against all appeals and prohibitions of the king. (See Kennett. Paroch. Antiq. p. 192.) In 1223 we find the controversy still going on: (Ibid. p. 196.) but in 1316, 19 Edw. I. the right of patronage was finally adjudged to the prior and canons, when the king gave them seisin by his precept to the sheriff. Ibid. p. 378.

In 1327, having obtained licence from the bishop of Lincoln to appropriate this church and its chapels upon the death or cession of the then incumbent, the prior and canons prevailed upon William de Whytington, the then rector, to make a solemn resignation: the day after which, the 8th of the kal. of April, 1327, the prior and canons were regularly inducted. Ibid. p. 407.

The endowment of the vicarage of Oakle did not take place till 1343, 18 Edw. I. A copy of the Instrument of Ordination is preserved by Bishop Kennett. Ibid. pp. 455, 456.

An agreement between the prior and convent, as appropriators of Oakle, and Edmund Rede, Esq. lord of the manor of Borstall, in 1449, respecting the appointment of a capellane to serve in the chapel of Borstall, will be found in the same work, pp. 660, 661.

ⁱ Bishop Kennett, in his Parochial Antiquities, pp. 74, 116, ascribes the primary donation of this manor to Earl Simon, but subsequently corrects the mistake, p. 382.

The particulars of the long detention of this manor from the monks are here brought together from different parts of the Parochial Antiquities. They show that law had its delays at an earlier period than we are usually accustomed to suppose.

Simon de St. Liz himself is stated to have been the first who seized upon the manor; upon which grievance the canons of St. Frideswide made their complaint to Pope Alexander III. who sent letters to the archbishop of Canterbury, then his legate, and the bishop of Chichester, commanding them to see restitution made to the said prior and canons; and till such restitution should be given he forbade all divine offices to be celebrated within the fee, under which the said village of Pidington was contained. Par. Antiq. p. 383.

In 1294, it appears, this manor had been given by the king to Adam de Plugenet. Ibid. p. 324. On whose death, in 1320, reverting to the crown, it was bestowed by King Edward II. on his indulged friend Hugh Despenser the elder, who granted it to his kinsman Sir John de Handlo, of Borstall, to hold during his life. Ibid. p. 382.

In 1330, in Hilary term, we find the first trial for this manor, in the King's Bench at Westminster. The prior of St. Frideswide, by William de Marshton his attorney, now pleaded, that the said manor of Pidington was the right of his church, and that Helias, his predecessor, was seized of the said manor in the time of King Henry the Third. Sir John de Handlo, by William de Coleshall his attorney, answered, that he rightfully held the said manor, being demised to him for the term of his life by Hugh le Despenser the elder, and by the forfeiture of the said Hugh, the manor or fee of it was now escheated to the king, without whose leave he could not further answer. And therefore time was allowed till the beginning of Trinity term, and fifteen days after, that in the mean time he might consult the king. At the beginning of Trinity term both parties appeared by their attorneys, when the defendant, Sir John de Handlo, pleaded that he had not yet obtained the king's consent, and had the hearing deferred to the first day of Michaelmas term; at which time he suffered himself to be nonsuited, and had, by essoin, time allowed till Easter term in the year following; when the prior of St. Frideswide appeared in his own person, and Sir John de Handlo by Thomas de Tychevike his attorney; at which time a breve from the king was delivered to the judges, requiring them no longer to admit the excuses of the defendant, but to proceed in the trial of the cause, yet to give no sentence in it without his knowledge and advice. In pursuance of this precept, Sir John de Handlo was in this Michaelmas term obliged to plead his answer; in which he put himself upon his trial in the King's Court, and desired a recognizance to be made, that, for three marks paid to the king, he might hold the said manor of Pidington for the term of his life, as in right from the king, &c.; and by several pleas and excuses had the process continued till Easter term, 7 Edw. III. Ibid. pp. 413, 414, 415.

In 1333, in Easter term, the suit was further prosecuted, when the sheriff returned the names of four knights, Sir William Harcourt, Sir John de Bampton, Sir Richard de Beaufo, and Sir John Miry, who appeared in court, and upon their oath elected thirteen other knights, Sir Edmund de Cornwall, Sir Richard de Abberbury, Sir John Golafre, Sir John de Wroughton, Sir John de Chetwode, Sir John de Leuknore, Sir Philip de Ailesbury, Sir Roger Fitz-Roand, Sir Thomas de Coudray, Sir John de Oddigesles, and Sir Robert de Sari; who, by the king's precept directed to the sheriff, were obliged to attend at York in Michaelmas term, where no final determination could be given; so that Sir John de Handlo kept possession of the said manor of Pidington. Ibid. p. 421.

In 1335, 9 and 10 Edw. III. the sheriff of Oxfordshire received a precept from the king, to require Sir John de Handlo, of Borstall, to restore the manor of Pidington to the prior of St. Frideswide, or father's gift of the manor of Kniton, or Knyttinton, in Berkshire. This was soon after ratified by a Charter of King Henry the Second;^a and again confirmed by King Henry the Third, in the 13th year of his reign.^b The original grant of Knyttinton was made about the year 1116.

Bishop Kennett informs us there had been a long controversy depending between the church of St. Frideswide and the cell of Cogges, concerning two parcels of tithe of the demesne of Gilbert Pipard, in Fretwell; which church of Fretwell was dedicated to St. Olave, and the advowson of it given by Ralph Foliot to the priory of St. Frideswide: which controversy, in presence of Richard archdeacon of Oxford and the chapter of the rural deanery of Stoke, was decided in 1166, on this agreement, that the canons of St. Frideswide should pay yearly to the cell of Cogges, in consideration of that tithe, the sum of one besantine, or two shillings, within the octaves of Michaelmas.^c

PHILIP occurs prior A.D. 1180, and again in 1188;^d in the first of which years the reliques of St. Frideswide were translated from an obscure to a more noted place in the church.^e At which solemnity, Wood says, in his Annals, the king, bishops, and nobles being present, divers miracles were wrought both on clerical and laical people, causing thereby the fame of the saint to spread far and near.^f

Wood also informs us, upon the authority of a manuscript copy of Wikes's Chronicle, that in the time of this abbat, in the second year of King Richard the First, A.D. 1190, the most part of the city of Oxford was burnt, together with the sacred edifice of St. Frideswide:^g but this does not appear in the copy of Wikes printed by Gale, nor in any other of our ancient Chronicles: so that the fact is probably to be discredited.

A copy of the work which prior Philip wrote on the miracles of St. Frideswide, is preserved among the Digby manuscripts in the Bodleian library, num. 177.

JOHN occurs prior A. D. 1191; in whose time the monastery received the confirmation of its possessions from King John.^h

W. is noticed as prior in some of Antony a Wood's Papers, A. D. 1204.ⁱ

SIMON occurs A. D. 1219: again, on the 11th of the kalends of June, 1225: and a third time in 1227.^k Licence to elect, upon his resignation, was granted on July the 6th in the following year.^l

HELYAS, or ELIAS, canon of the convent, was elected and admitted prior, with the king's consent, July 20th, A. D. 1228, 12 Hen. III.^m The next prior, according to Willis, was

E. Scotus, on whose deprivation, in 1235,

WILLIAM DE GLOCESTER, or DE GLOVERNIA, late cellarer of Dunstable, called by Twyne WILLIAM DE SANCTO ALDATO, was advanced to this dignity.ⁿ Dr. Hutton's excerpts from the Patent Rolls, however, name WALTER DE CROKESLEY, a canon of the convent, as having received the royal assent to his election as prior on the 19th of September in this year.^o On the 17th of October following, the royal assent was given to the election of

GILBERT, then sub-prior, in his room.^p

ROBERT DE WESTON, the royal assent to whose election was given on the 3d of June, 1248, is nevertheless stated to have succeeded on the death of prior WILLIAM.^q

ROBERT, or as he is sometimes called, JOHN DE OLNEY, received the king's assent to his election July 28th, 1259. He had previously been sub-prior of the church. It was during his time, and in the barons' wars, that King Henry the Third, in spite of the tradition which represented it as dangerous for any king of England to enter the monastery, paid his memorable otherwise to answer his contempt before the judges at York, in Midsummer term. Ibid. p. 425.

In 1337, Eleanor widow of Hugh Despenser junior, and afterwards the widow of William Zouch of Mortimer, died on the 2d of the kalends of July, laying claim to the fee of Pidington; and left Hugh Despenser her son and heir, twenty-nine years of age, who doing his homage had livery of the lands of her inheritance, and deceasing this year, he first quitted to Nicholas de la Beche and to John de Handlo knights, and to the heirs of the said Nicholas, all his right in the manor of Pidington. Which Nicholas de la Beche having been, in 9 Edw. III. made constable of the Tower of London, did now obtain from the king a grant in fee of the manor of Whitchurch, co. Oxon. and the reversion of two parts of the manor of Pidington, which John de Handlo held for life, and of the third part held for life by Henry de Pembruge. The great controversy for this manor of Pidington, between the priory of St. Frideswide and Sir John de Handlo, was still depending, and was kept so for many years, the methods of law seeming at this time as tedious as art and interest can ever make them. Ibid. p. 445.

In 1346, Aug. 5th, Sir John de Handlo died possessed of this manor, which after his death was to pass to Sir Nicholas de la Beche; but he dying also within this year, the reversion was to John, son of John de Sutton and Isabel his wife, daughter of John de Cherleton lord of Powys, who did fealty to the king for the said manor of Pidington Sept. 20th. Ibid. p. 461.

In 1350, the prior and convent of St. Frideswide resumed the suit for recovery of their right, and obtained a precept from the king to the sheriff, that John de Peyto junior, who held the said manor for his life from Sir John de Sutton and Isabel his wife, should make restitution, or show reason to the contrary. Ibid. p. 474. In 1352, in Easter term, the prior prosecuted his action. Ibid. p. 476. In 1356, we find, that, at the suit of the prior of St. Frideswide, a precept had been issued to the sheriff to require John de Peyto jun. to appear in Trinity term and answer the said action; who not appearing and making other default, another mandate was directed to the sheriff to seize into the king's hands the manor of Pidington, and to summon the said John de Peyto to appear in Michaelmas term, at which time he made his essoin, and was respited to Easter term in the year following. Ibid. p. 479.

In 1357, the cause depending between the prior of St. Frideswide and John de Peyto for the manor of Pidington was now further prosecuted in Easter term, when Sir John de Sutton and Isabel his wife appeared in court, and pleaded that a fine was levied by which they had granted the said manor to John de Peyto to hold for life, with reversion to them and the heirs of the said John, and desired an assize or trial might be had for the premises, and offered to the king half a mark for an inquisition of right, and four knights were appointed to elect a jury. Ibid. p. 480.

In 1358, in Hilary term, the trial proceeded between the prior of St. Frideswide and Sir John de Sutton and Isabel his wife; at which time the four knights summoned to elect a jury appeared and chose out of themselves and others sixteen knights, who in Trinity term were to give their verdict. In the Trinity term ensuing the cause was kept depending, and four other knights were summoned to appear in Michaelmas term to elect a new jury. Ibid. pp. 484, 485. In Trinity term 1359, the jury gave their verdict at Westminster before William de Sutton and Robert Thorp, justices, that the said manor did in right belong to the prior and his convent. Upon which judgment, the king issued his precept to the sheriff to give possession of the said manor of Pidington to the prior: and the sheriff sent a writ to his bailiffs to execute the said precept.

In 1360, Sir John Sutton of Duddeley and Isabel his wife, and John de Peyto, made a full and free release of all right and claim to the manor. Ibid. p. 488.

In 1362, the prior and canons, to prove and maintain the rights and privileges of their lately recovered manor, procured an exemplification of a deed of release from the abbot and convent of Missenden in com. Buck. who had quit-claimed all pasturage and other profit within the wood or manor of Pidington, which they might pretend to from the Charters of Alberic earl of Damartin and Joan de Pidinton his wife, who had granted Muswell, within the said manor of Pidington, to the said abbey of Missenden. Which release appears to have been made in the reign of Hen. II.

In 1363, the prior and convent of St. Frideswide had the extent, customs, and privileges, of their manor of Pidington now taken upon oath and recorded. Ibid. p. 494.

III. that according to a custom had from the time of the translation of the reliques of St. Frideswyde, the chancellor and scholars of the university would in the middle of Lent, and on the day of the Ascension of our Saviour, go in a general procession to her church as to the mother church of university and town, there to pray, preach, and offer oblations to her shrine.

ⁿ Willis, ut supr. See also Kennett's MS. Diptycha, MS. Lansd. Dr. Pegge, in his Life of Bishop Grosseteste, p. 48, says, it was in 1236 that the bishop extended his visitation to the monasteries of his diocese, and was very strict with them and their governors, when, among others, the prior of St. Frideswide was deposed. The Annals of Dunstable say, p. 230. "Et Willielmus de Glovernia substitutus est apud sanctam Frideswidam et W. de Wiltone apud Caldenore, qui ambo fuerunt canonici de Dunstable."

visit, A.D. 1264.^a At his departure, he gave the annual sum of ten marks to the prior and convent, to be paid at Michaelmas by the sheriff of Oxford and Berkshire, for the maintenance of four lights to be kept constantly burning, day and night, before St. Frideswide's shrine.^b

On the death of prior Olney, which happened in 1278,

JOHN LEWKOR, or DE LEWKENESHOVERE, was elected his successor: the consent to whose election was given by the king on the 1st of October.^c The cession of John de Lewknor is recorded upon the Patent Rolls in 1284.^d Willis, in the second volume of his Mitred Abbies, considers him to have been the same with John Oysyher, who was killed about that year in a tumult by a certain clerk named John de Deryngton.

ROBERT DE EWELM received the temporalities as prior on Feb. 3d, 1284.^e In his time the second translation of St. Frideswide's relics took place. Wood says, "A.D. 1289, 17, 18 Edw. I. on the Sabbath day next after the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin, scil. 4 id. Sept. was the old shrine of St. Frideswide of Oxon translated, and, with all honour that was meet for such a thing, was placed in a new and more precious shrine in the church bearing her name, near to the place where the old one stood; which shrine had been several years before prepared. At this solemnity were present William bishop of Salisbury, Edmund earl of Cornwall, and many other persons as well religious as secular."^f

Willis says, that abbat Ewelme resigned in 1291; but upon the Patent Rolls we find that the licence to elect, upon his cession, was not granted till April 12th, 1294.^g

ALEXANDER DE SUTTON, his successor, was admitted prior on the 3d of the kalends of May following.^h

In the time of this prior a controversy arose, the particulars of which it may not be irrelevant to transcribe from Bishop Kennett.

"Edmund earl of Cornwall in right of his honour of St. Walery was possest of some demesne land in Knyttington in the county of Berks, and his steward used to hold a court in that place, and had by custom been entertained at the charge of the prior of St. Frideswide, to which monastery, as has been already mentioned, the said manor was given by Guy de St. Walery: which charge of reception the prior finding to be a burden, and the stewards pleading to be a custom, the said prior made his complaint to the earl, who sent his mandate to Simon de Grenhull steward of St. Walery, that he should make a special inquisition upon this matter, and return him the full and just account. On receipt of which precept, the steward caused a court for the honour of St. Walery to be held at North Oseney, and there an inquisition was made upon the oath of twelve men, who gave their verdict that the said manor of Knyttinton was formerly in the hands of Guy de St. Walery, who gave the said manor in frank almoigne to the prior and canons of St. Frideswyde, and that one Peter de Asherugge then steward of the honor of St. Walery did appropriate the said manor to the honor of St. Walery, and held there a yearly court, levying twelve pence of the said village; and that the place of keeping the said court was upon an open green within the said village over against the house of Hugh de Gardin, and in rainy weather by leave of the bailiff of the said prior, the steward held his court in the manor house of the prior, and sometimes in the houses of the other tenants of the said prior, so as the steward had no right to house-room or entertainment or any other claim, but the sum of twelve pence from the said village: and in the time of John de Diggeby formerly steward of the honor of St. Walery, John de Leukenor then prior of St. Frideswydes desired the said John de Diggeby to stay with him on the court day at his manor house, and there entertained him at his own charge; and for two following years the prior made the like invitation; after which the said John de Diggeby for the whole time of his stewardship had there his entertainment by extortion not by right. Upon which return of the jury, the earl of Cornwall directed another precept to Simon de Grenhull, steward of his honor of Walingford, to refrain from such oppression of the said prior, &c. dated July 4th, 26 Edw. I."ⁱ

Wood says, A.D. 1308. "On the Thursday after the feast of the Holy Trinity, in the first year of Edw. II. was St. Frideswide's chest (so called because it had been for about sixty-eight years kept in the church belonging to the priory bearing that name) robbed of twelve marks in silver, by John Sutton the porter, and John Fykeys sub-sacrist thereof. The fact was committed at nine of the clock in the morning, at what time the prior and canons were at dinner, but the theft being soon discovered the malefactors fled, and could not afterward be found to suffer the law. As for the chest itself, it was first appointed by Hugh Walleys, bishop of Lincoln, to contain the money due to the university from the town upon the unlawful hanging of three clerks, an. 1209. which money, with other sums, that amounted to six marks or more, was paid yearly to it. But what the said bishop did further order in relation to this chest, his successor Dr. Grosseteste did supervise and a little alter; for besides divers orders which he made for the disposing of, and lending out the money, he did ordain that the said chest should stand in St. Frideswide's church, and the keys thereof to be kept by certain canons of that place by the appointment of the chancellor &c. Afterwards Mr. John de Aveton gave the said chest forty shillings for the use of the poor scholars, Mr. William de Grey five marks, and Mr. John Mauduit forty shillings, besides others. Therein also were put the mulets paid by those that were perturbors of the peace, the silver cross which the Jews were forced to give for breaking of the old, and other jocalia belonging to the university."^k

Abbat Sutton died in 1316; in which year, on the 3d of the kalends of September,

ROBERT DE DORVESTON was admitted prior:^l whom Willis calls ROBERT DE TORNSTON. In his time, A.D. 1331, the prior and convent had the king's licence to appropriate the church of Churchehull, in the diocese of Lincoln.^m Willis states abbat Dorveston to have died in 1346; but it appears upon the Patent Rolls that

JOHN DE LITTELMORE, or LYTTLEMORE, who had been elected prior on Dorveston's death, had the temporalities of the monastery restored to him on the 2d of February, 1338.ⁿ On Lyttlemore's death,

NICHOLAS DE HUNGERFORD was elected prior; and admitted on the 5th of the ides of May, 1349.^a He continued prior till 1362; when, in consequence of being accused of great dilapidations,^b as Willis conjectures, he resigned to

JOHN DE WALLINGFORD:^c who likewise quitting this office, the king granted a congè d'elire, dated Nov. 20th, 1373, to the convent, to elect a new prior: in pursuance of which,

JOHN DUDEFORD, or DODEFORD, was elected in the following month.^d

In his time, in 1377, the chapel of Hedingdon, near Oxford, was appropriated to the priory, and a vicarage endowed there, to the value of five marks; the total value of the church being at that time twenty marks.^e

In 1381, a dispute between the vicar of Elsfeld, near Oxford, and the prior and canons, occasioned an exemplification of an agreement made between their respective predecessors in 1295, by which the prior and canons, appropriators of the church of Elsfeld, augmented the portion of the vicar by an additional allowance of one quarter and a half of bread corn, and the like quantity of barley, at three seasons yearly.^f

In 1382, another controversy happened, between the university of Oxford on the one part and the prior and convent of St. Frideswide on the other, concerning jurisdiction in the fair annually kept by the latter in Oxford, which was finally settled by a commission dated at Westminster on the 18th of November.^g

On prior Duford's death,

THOMAS BRADENELL was elected, and his election confirmed May 23d, 1391.^h The time of this prior's death is not noted, but Willis presumes his successor was

RICHARD DE OXENFORD, who occurs in the years 1401 and 1409.ⁱ The election of

EDMUND ANDEVER, or DE ANDOVER, to be prior, was confirmed on the 8th of June, 1434.^k

ROBERT, who is also called ROBERT DOWNHAM, occurs as prior before the year 1441, and again in 1456. He was succeeded by

GEORGE NORTON, who occurs in 1475 and 1479.^l

RICHARD WALKER, canon of St. Augustine's monastery Bristol, was made prior in 1480.^m Upon whose death,

THOMAS WARE was admitted prior January 6th, 1496.ⁿ Upon his death,

WILLIAM CHEDILL was elected, on the 6th of June, 1501.^o He resigned after about twelve years government, and was succeeded by

JOHN BURTON, sub-prior of the convent. He was confirmed in his office April 8th, 1513.^p In 1518 he commenced LL.B. and was afterwards doctor.^q

the king, the queen, and Cardinal Wolsey, “came with a splendid retinue to Abingdon, and there lodged themselves in the abbey. The next day certain persons of the university went to congratulate them, but Queen Katherine being desirous to come to Oxford, was attended in her journey by the cardinal: and being entred within the limits, was received by the scholars with all demonstrations of love and joy. After she had received their courtesies, she retired to St. Frideswide's monastery to do her devotions to the sacred reliques of that virgin saint (being the chief occasion, as it seems, that brought her hither) and after that was done, she vouchsafed to condescend so low as to dine with the Mertonians.”^r

The same writer informs us, that, in 1523, Cardinal Wolsey sent John Longland bishop of Lincoln, as his orator, to the university of Oxford, announcing his intention to found a college for two hundred students and seven lecturers: not long after which the bishop came and made preparations for the cardinal's buildings, and caused the canons of St. Frideswide's to leave their habitations.^s

In short, the priory of St. Frideswide was suppressed by virtue of a bull from Pope Clement VII. bearing date 3 id. Sept. 1524, allowed of, and confirmed, on the 7th of January following by King Henry VIII.^t who, by letters patent dated July 1st, 1525, granted the site and lands to Cardinal Wolsey, who thereupon began the foundation of a noble college for a dean, sub-dean, a hundred canons, thirteen chaplains, professors in divinity, law, physick, and the liberal arts, and for other persons, to the number of a hundred and eighty-six, which was dedicated to the Holy Trinity, the Virgin Mary, St. Frideswide, and All Saints.^u

Cardinal Wolsey obtained leave to enrich his college by suppressing certain priories and nunneries,^x the revenues of which were estimated at nearly two thousand pounds.^y

The king's patent, after a preface paying high compliments to the cardinal's administration, enables him to build his college principally on the site of the priory of St. Frideswide; and the name, originally intended to be “The College of Secular Priests,” was now changed to “Cardinal College.” The secular clergy in it were to be denominated the “Dean and Canons secular of the Cardinal of York,” and to be incorporated into one body, and subsist by perpetual succession.^z By other patents and grants to the dean and canons, various church-livings were bestowed upon them.^a

“With respect to the constitution of this college,” Mr. Chalmers says, “there is a considerable variation between the account given by the historian of Oxford, and that by Leonard Hutten, canon of Christ church in 1599, and many years sub-dean. His manuscript, now

Previous to Wolsey's foundation, prior Burton surrendered the monastery. On his resignation he obtained a salary of twenty marks per annum during life, and retired to the neighbouring abbey of Oseney, where he became abbat in 1531; about seven years after which, according to Willis, he died, and was there interred.

in the possession of the college, states, that according to Wolsey's design, it was to be a perpetual foundation for the study of the sciences, divinity, canon and civil law, also the arts, physic, and polite literature, and for the continual performance of divine service. The members were to be a dean, and sixty regular canons, but no canons of the second order, as Wood asserts. It appears, however, by Wolsey's statutes, which are still preserved in the college, that Wood's account was right, and that the first design included, besides the sixty regular canons, forty of the second order.

"Of these Wolsey himself named the dean and eighteen of the canons. The dean was Dr. John Hygden, president of Magdalen college, and the canons first nominated were all taken from the other colleges in Oxford, and were men of acknowledged reputation in their day. He afterwards added others, deliberately, and according as he was able to supply the vacancies by men of talents, whom he determined to seek wherever they could be found."^a

"The society as he planned it, was to consist of one hundred and sixty persons: but no mention could yet be made of the scholars who were to proceed from his school at Ipswich, although, had he lived, these would doubtless have formed a part of the society, as the school was established two years before his fall.

"This constitution continued from 1525 to 1829-30, when he was deprived of his power and property, and for two years after it appears to have been interrupted, if not dissolved. It is to his honour that, in his last correspondence with secretary Cromwell and with the king, when all worldly prospects were about to close upon him, he pleaded with great earnestness, and for nothing so earnestly, as that his majesty would be pleased to suffer his college at Oxford to go on. What effect this had, we know not; but the urgent entreaties of the members of the society, and of the university at large, were at length successful, while at the same time the king determined to deprive Wolsey of all merit in the establishment, and transfer the whole to himself.

"Accordingly, in 1532, the society was refounded by the king, under the title of 'King Henry the Eighth's college in Oxford.' The patent for this is dated July 8th, and orders, that the said college be again founded on the same site, ground, and circuit, dedicated to the Holy Trinity, St. Mary, and St. Frideswide, and endowed with 2000*l.* yearly, for the maintenance of a dean and twelve canons, who should form a chapter, or body corporate. Dr. Hygden was again appointed dean, and on his death, five months after, was succeeded by John Oliver, D.C.L. Doctors Rope, Croke, Corin, Robins, and Wakefield, scholars of great eminence in their day, were among the first appointed canons. This second foundation continued until May 20th, 1545, when the Charter was surrendered by the dean and canons into the hands of the king, who dismissed them with yearly pensions, to continue until they should be otherwise provided. Among those thus dismissed, we find two names of great celebrity, John Cheke, afterwards Sir John Cheke, of Cambridge, tutor to Prince Edward, and Leland, the very celebrated antiquary. Cheke had a pension of 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* and Leland had some preferment elsewhere.^b

"The king then changed the college into a cathedral church, translating the episcopal see from Oseney, where it had been established in 1542."^c

Bishop Tanner, in the Notitia Monastica, says, the bishoprick and chapter were twice founded, as appears by the foundation charters in the inner treasury at Christ-Church, No. 5, 6. In the first foundation the church is called "The Cathedral Church of Christ and the Blessed Virgin Mary." ROBERT KING is made Bishop, JOHN LONDON, LL.D. dean, and six canons only. In the second foundation, dated Nov. 4th, 1546, the church is called "The Cathedral Church of Christ in Oxford." ROBERT KING is made bishop, RICHARD COX dean, and eight canons; and Dec. 11th following, the king made a new endowment to the value of 2200*l.*^d The canons, or prebendaries, occupied the lodgings of the abbat and monks, but the bishop's residence was in Gloucester hall, now Worcester college.^e

No change afterwards took place in the constitution of the society, except in the addition of one studentship to the number of those which the dean and canons were bound to find and maintain.^f Queen Elizabeth, in 1561, ordered that there should be an annual election from Westminster school, to fill up certain vacancies. The other vacancies are filled up by the dean and chapter. There is no Visitor of the society but the king, or persons commissioned by him.^g

The BISHOPS of Oxford have been

ROBERT KING, D.D., already noticed. He died in 1557.

THOMAS GOLDWELL, bishop of St. Asaph, was designed for this see, and had a patent for restitution of the temporalities, dated Nov. 9th, 1558:^h but before the translation could be perfected, Queen Mary died. He afterwards quitted his bishoprick of St. Asaph, and conveyed himself beyond sea.ⁱ

After a vacancy of ten years,

HUGH COREN, or CURWYN, LL.D., was elected bishop Sept. 26th, 1567. The temporalities of the see were restored to him Dec. 8th following. He gained the favour of King Henry the Eighth by upholding the king's marriage with the lady Anne Boleyn. He was afterwards dean of Hereford. Godwin says he was made archbishop of Dublin in 1555: but no mention of this dignity occurs in the Instruments by which he was translated to the see of Oxford. He died, according to Le Neve, in the

^a Chalmers's Hist. of the Colleges, Halls, &c. of Oxford, 8vo. Oxf. 1810, vol. ii. p. 301.

^b Tanner says, the clear yearly value of the King's college in Oxford, 26 Hen. VIII. was 455*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* as MS. Valor in Offic. Primit. but in Bryan Twyne. 2. 804, the value is 703*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.* which might be the gross sum.

In the Pension Roll of 2 & 3 Phil. and Mar. we have the following account of the pension still payable:

"COLLEG. REGALE alias dict. SANCTÆ FRIDESWIDÆ in Oxon. Annuit. Aliciæ Perott per annum xxx*l.* Radulphi Sadeler per annum vj*l.* xiiij*s.* iiiij*d.* Dicti Radulphi Sadeler per annum xxvj*l.* xiiij*s.* iiiij*d.* Penc. Ricardi Croke per annum xxvj*l.* xiiij*s.* iiiij*d.* Johannis Powell per annum xxvj*s.* viij*d.* Petri Vayne per annum xxvj*l.* xiiij*s.* iiiij*d.* Jacobi Proctor per annum xx*l.* Henrici Williams per annum xx*l.* Johannis Robynson per annum xx*l.* Owini Oglethorpe per annum xx*l.*"

^c Chalmers, ut supr. pp. 303, 304. See Num. XLIV.

^d The following, probably relating to the first of these foundations, is extracted from the Pension Roll, 2 & 3 Phil. and Mar.

"ECCLESIA CATH. CHRISTI Oxon. Feod. Griffini Tindalenuper auditoris omnium possess. dicti nuper eccles. cathedr. per annum x*l.* Johannis Domini Williams Sen*l.* omnium possessionum præd. per script. ^e Of this he was afterwards deprived, and had no residence until Bishop Bancroft, in Charles the First's time, built one at Cuddesden, which was burnt down during the Rebellion. It was afterwards rebuilt by Bishop Fell, and continues to be the residence of the bishops of this see. Chalmers, ut supr. p. 305.

^f There seems a great difference of opinion as to the foundation of this additional studentship. Mr. Chalmers, from Willis's Cathedrals, vol. ii. p. 429, says, "In Queen Elizabeth's reign, the family of Venables in Cheshire giving an estate to this college, on a composition it was agreed, that the nomination of a Student should be in the heirs of that family, which was confirmed by an Act of Parliament, 1601, 43 Elizabeth." Stevens, quoting from Willis's Mitred Abbies, says, "The number of students, by a late agreement with the earl of Abingdon, one of the college tenants, is a hundred and one. The earl being to nominate an additional student." Gutch, in his Notes to Wood's Account of the Colleges and Halls of Oxford, p. 436, noticing the benefaction of William Thurstone, a wealthy citizen of London, says, "Mr. Thurstone having left 900*l.* for the founding a fellowship in Christ-Church, after much dispute it was determined by the king's authority that another studentship should be added to the number of 100 originally established. This took place in the year 1664." The fact is, that these statements are all partly right. In 1663, W. Thurston did certainly found an additional studentship, about which there was some dispute at the time. From him it became the property of the family of Venables, who were previously entitled to nominate one out of the original hundred students, not to add one to that number. From that family it descended, with the name and property, to the Vernons, by whom it is at present possessed; and who, when that particular student makes a vacancy, fill up the place by right. The present student on this foundation is a son of Lord Vernon.

WALTER BLANDFORD, D.D., was elected Nov. 7th, 1665, confirmed in St. Mary's church Oxford on the 28th of the same month, and consecrated in New college chapel the 3d of December following.

NATHANIEL CREW, LL.D., was elected June 16th, 1671, confirmed in the church of St. Mary le Savoy the 27th of the same month, and consecrated at Lambeth July 2d following. He was translated to the see of Durham Oct. 22, 1674.

HENRY COMPTON, D.D., was elected Nov. 20th, 1674, confirmed Dec. 2d, and consecrated on the 6th of the same month. On Dec. 18th, 1675, he was translated to the see of London.

JOHN FELL, D.D., dean of the cathedral, was elected bishop Jan. 8th, 1675, confirmed February 5th, and consecrated the next day. He died in the month of July, 1686.

SAMUEL PARKER, D.D., was consecrated at Lambeth Oct. 17th, 1686. He died March 20th, 1687, and was buried in Magdalen college chapel Oxford.

TIMOTHY HALL, D.D., was consecrated Oct. 7th 1688. He died April 10th, 1690, and was buried in the church of Hackney, near London.

JOHN HOUGH, D.D., was consecrated May 11th, 1690. He was translated to the see of Litchfield and Coventry August 5th, 1699.

WILLIAM TALBOT, D.D., dean of Worcester, was consecrated September 24th, 1699. He was translated to the see of Salisbury in 1714.

JOHN POTTER, D.D., was elected bishop May 9th, 1715, and consecrated at Lambeth on the 15th of the same month. In January, 1737, he was translated to the archbishoprick of Canterbury. He died Oct. 10th, 1747.

THOMAS SECKER, D.D., was translated to the see of Oxford, from Bristol, in the month of March, 1737: whence, in 1758, he succeeded Archbishop Hutton in the see of Canterbury.

JOHN HUME, D.D., was translated to the see of Oxford, from Bristol, June 10th, 1758.

ROBERT LOWTH, D.D., bishop of St. David's, was translated to the see of Oxford Sept. 16th, 1766: whence, on May 3d, 1777, he was preferred to the see of London.

JOHN BUTLER, D.D., succeeded to the bishoprick of Oxford May 3d, 1777. He was translated to Hereford in 1788.

EDWARD SMALLWELL, D.D., was translated to Oxford, from the bishoprick of St. David's, March 11th, 1788.

JOHN RANDOLPH, D.D., canon of Christ-Church, was preferred to the bishoprick of Oxford Aug. 13th, 1799. In 1807, he was translated to the see of Bangor; and, on Bishop Porteus's death, in 1809, to London. He died July 28, 1813.

CHARLES MOSS, D.D., canon residentiary of St. Paul's, succeeded to the bishoprick of Oxford Jan. 13th, 1807. Upon whose death, WILLIAM JACKSON, D.D., was preferred to the see, Dec. 31st, 1811.

HENRY LEGGE, LL.D., dean of Windsor, succeeded on the death of Bishop Jackson. The congrè d'elire for his election passed Dec. 30th, 1815, and he was consecrated at Lambeth March 24th, 1816. In August, 1817, he succeeded to the wardenship of All-Souls college Oxford, vacant by the death of Dr. Isham.

The following are the names of the DEANS of Christ-Church:

JOHN HYGDEN, D.D., appointed in 1524, upon the cardinal's foundation.

JOHN OLIVER succeeded in the month of February, 1533.

RICHARD COXE, D.D., was translated from the deanery of Oseney to this of Christ-Church on Nov. 4th, 1546: being the first dean upon the cathedral foundation.

RICHARD MARTIALI became dean in 1553, upon Coxe's deprivation.

GEORGE CAREW was appointed by the queen in 1559: on whose resignation,

THOMAS SAMPSON succeeded, in 1561.

THOMAS GODWYN, D.D., became dean in the month of June, 1565: afterwards bishop of Bath and Wells.

THOMAS COWPER, D.D., succeeded in Hilary Term, 1567. He quitted this deanery in 1570, on being appointed to the see of Lincoln; and was afterwards bishop of Winchester.

JOHN PIERS, D.D., succeeded in 1570: afterwards archbishop of York.

TOBY MATTHEW, D.D., became dean in 1576. Archbishop of York, 1606.

WILLIAM JAMES, D.D., became dean in 1584. Bishop of Durham, 1606.

THOMAS RAVYS, D.D., succeeded in 1594: afterwards bishop of Gloucester.

JOHN KYNG, D.D., was installed Aug. 4th, 1605. Bishop of London, 1611.

WILLIAM GOODWYN, D.D., installed Sept. 13, 1611.

RICHARD CORBET, D.D., installed June 24th, 1620. Bishop of Oxford in 1628; and in 1632 translated to Norwich.

BRIAN DUPPA, D.D., was installed Nov. 28, 1629: afterwards, successively, bishop of Chichester, Salisbury, and Winchester.

SAMUEL FELL, D.D., was promoted to this deanery June 24th, 1638.

EDWARD REYNOLDS, D.D., succeeded in 1648. He was necessitated to leave his deanery in 1650, refusing to take the Independent engagement; when JOHN OWEN, M.A., afterwards D.D., was appointed by the parliament to succeed him, in 1651.

EDWARD REYNOLDS, D.D., was restored March 13th, 1659.

GEORGE MORLEY, D.D., was installed dean July 27th, 1660. Bishop of Winchester, 1684.

JOHN FELL, D.D., installed Nov. 30th, 1660. He became bishop of Oxford in 1675; with permission to hold the deanery in commendam.

JOHN MASSEY, M.A., was installed Dec. 29th, 1686.

HENRY ALDRICH, D.D., installed June 17th, 1689.

FRANCIS ATTERBURY, D.D., installed Sept. 27th, 1711. Bishop of Rochester, 1713.

GEORGE SMALRIDGE, D.D., installed July 18th, 1713. Bishop of Bristol, 1714; with leave to hold this deanery in commendam.

HUGH BOULTER, D.D., installed Nov. 6th, 1719. Archbishop of Armagh, 1724.

WILLIAM BRADSHAW, D.D., installed Sept. 17th, 1724; also holding the bishoprick of Bristol.

JOHN CONYBEARE, D.D., installed January 27th, 1732: likewise bishop of Bristol; holding this deanery in commendam.

DAVID GREGORY, D.D., installed May 18th, 1756.

WILLIAM MARKHAM, LL.D., installed October 23d, 1767. Archbishop of York, 1776.

LEWIS BAGOT, LL.D., installed Jan. 25th, 1777. Bishop of Bristol, 1782; with leave to hold the deanery in commendam.

CYRIL JACKSON, D.D., installed June 27th, 1783.

CHARLES HENRY HALL, D.D., was preferred to the deanery October 21, 1809.

The foundation of the present structure of Christ-Church seems properly referred by Dugdale and Browne Willis to the close of the twelfth century. Mr. King, in his Munimenta Antiqua, is anxious to refer it to a period more remote; but without sufficient reason. The church itself is in the shape of a cross, with a tower and spire in the centre. The following are its dimensions, as given by Browne Willis. Length, from east to west, a hundred and fifty-four feet. Breadth of body, and side-aisles, fifty-four feet. Length of the cross-aisle, from north to south, a hundred and two feet: excluding the old clock-house, which, if taken in, would make it about a hundred and twenty feet. Height of roof in the western part, forty-one feet and a half. Height of the same in the eastern part, on account of the vaulting, four feet lower. Height of the steeple, a hundred and forty-four feet. The chapter-house is of the time of Henry the Third. The cloister was built in the middle of the fourteenth century. In 1630, the old stalls of the choir of Christ-church were removed, the present erected, and the choir paved with black and white marble, as exhibited in the view; the interior roofing of the nave, of wood, was renewed in 1816.

Bishop King's monument, formerly in the choir, was removed in 1630 to the south aisle. It consists of an altar tomb, with a plain Gothic canopy above. Upon the ledge, this inscription, in the black character:

"Hic jacet Robertus Kyng sacre theologie Professor et primus Ep'us Oxon. qui obiit quarto die Decembris Anno."

The word "Domini," and the date, "M.D.lvij." having been erased since the time of Anthony à Wood.

A tomb beneath the great window in the north aisle, anciently the chapel of the Holy Virgin, is assigned by Willis to James Souch, or Zouch, who, by his will, dated Oct. 16th, 1503, appointed the same to be made.

In the north aisle, beneath the respective arches which divide it from the Divinity or Latin chapel, are the following effigies, upon altar tombs:

1. A figure in armour, reputed to be that of Sir Henry de Bathe, chief justiciary of England, who died in 1261.

2. The figure of an ecclesiastic, usually ascribed to Guymond the first prior, who died in 1149; but sometimes to Philip the third prior of St. Frideswide's, who died about the year 1190. From the style of the ornaments which mark the canopy above the figure, it is probable that this tomb is of a date still later. No crozier, or pastoral staff, occurs upon it. A lion is represented at the feet of the figure.

3. The figure of Lady Elizabeth Montacute, who was buried here in 1353: she, for the endowment of a chantry, gave to the monastery Stockwell mead, forming about one half of what is now called Christ-Church meadow. The arms of Montacute, which occur three times on the tomb, are also repeated on the vaulting of the cloister of the church, to the building of which this lady appears to have been a benefactress.

Beneath the uppermost or last arch, is the shrine of St. Frideswide: the lower part consists of an elegant structure of stone, built over an altar tomb, on the slab of which are the impressions of brasses for a man and woman. In the upper part is a wooden room, corresponding in its pinnacles and ornaments with the stone-work of the shrine below. The preparation of a new shrine for St. Frideswide in 1289 has been already noticed: but whether the same with this admits of doubt.^a

The foundation of Cardinal college took place March 20th, 1525. It was begun on ground which had been cleared by pulling down the west end of St. Frideswide's church to the extent of fifty feet, with the whole west side of the cloister: London college, which had originally been the synagogue of the Jews, being also removed. The foundation stone had the following inscription:

"REVERENDISSIMUS IN CHRISTO PATER AC DOMINUS, DOMINUS THOMAS WULCY, MISERATIONE DIVINA, TITULO SANCTÆ CECILIÆ, SACRO-SANCTÆ ROMANÆ ECCLESIAE PRESBYTER CARDINALIS, EBORACENSIS ARCHIEPISCOPUS, ANGLIÆ PRIMAS, ET APOSTOLICÆ SEDIS LEGATUS, EPISCOPUS DUNELMENSIS, EXEMPTIQUE MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI PERPETUUS COMMENDATARIUS, CANCELLARIUS ANGLIÆ, ET DICTÆ SEDIS APOSTOLICÆ AD VITAM SUAM ETIAM DE LATERE LEGATUS, HANC PETRAM POSUIT IN HONOREM SANCTÆ ET INDIVIDUÆ TRINITATIS, GLORIOSISSIMÆQUE VIRGINIS MARIÆ, SANCTÆ FRIDESWIDÆ, ET OMNIUM SANCTORUM, XX^o. DIE MARTII, ANNO DOMINI M.D.XXV."

At the time of Cardinal Wolsey's fall, the Kitchen, the Hall, the east, south, and most part of the west side of the Great Court called Wolsey's Quadrangle, were completed. From the lines on the front of the walls it is supposed that the whole quadrangle was to have had a cloister in the inside; but it does not appear that any progress was made in constructing it. The north side of the quadrangle was finished in 1665, by Dr. John Fell: at which time the parapet of the whole was surrounded with stone rails. The tower over the gate, which was begun by Wolsey, was not finished till 1681, when it was finished by Sir Christopher Wren upon a plan of his own.

What is now called the Chaplain's Quadrangle, was completed in 1672. It stands upon the site of part of the original Priory, where the hall or refectory of the monastery is supposed to have been placed.

Peckwater Square, or court, was rebuilt in 1705, after a plan by Dean Aldrich. The Library, on the south side, was begun in 1716. Peckwater Square was so called from an ancient hostel, or inn, formerly occupying a part of its site, given to the monastery by Ralph the son of Richard Peckwater, about A.D. 1246.

The north and east sides of Canterbury Quadrangle, on the site of Canterbury hall, founded and endowed by Archbishop Islip in 1361, were finished in 1775, chiefly at the expence of Richard Robinson, D.D., the late

^a Wood says, the shrine of St. Frideswide "being adored till the dissolution of the religious houses, it was then, 30 Hen. VIII., amongst others, taken down, and all the offerings were conveyed into the king's treasury; so that the bones left behind were only feigned, which laid there till the beginning of Queen Elizabeth: for we read (Fox's Acts and Mon. vol. ii. and Hist. de Exhumatione Katherinæ nuper Uxoris Petri Martyris, by James Calphill, D.D., 1562, 8vo.) that Peter Martyr's wife, who was buried here 1552, was taken up at the command of the visitors (A.D. 1556) and buried in a dunghill, she being then esteemed a heretic: but when Queen Elizabeth came to the crown she was taken up again, and her bones so mixed with St. Frideswydes, and both buried together, that if it should happen she should hereafter be taken up they should not distinguish her bones from St. Frideswydes: upon which this epitaph was laid:

'Hic requiescit religio cum superstitione.'

See Gutch's Appendix to the Hist. and Antiq. of the Coll. and Halls in Oxford, 4to. Oxf. 1790, pp. 306, 307. Previous to this time the bones of St. Frideswide had been kept in two silk bags, and were upon solemn days laid upon the altar of the church, to receive the reverence of the people.

The shrine was at first placed in a chapel on the south side of the church. Mr. Gough, Sep. Mon. vol. ii. p. clxxxviii. says, "The shrine of St. Frideswide in the north aisle of Christ-Church Oxford is a rich piece of Gothic wood-work; but as the altar tomb under it has on its slab the brassless figures of a man and woman, I cannot help surmising that it has been removed from its own original station. Browne Willis, who notices these figures, does not remove my scruples by observing that 'they were said to be in memory of Didanus and Saffrida her parents.'" lord primate of Ireland. The south side was rebuilt in 1783.

Bishop Kennett, in his Parochial Antiquities, speaking of Oxford in early times, says, "It was then customary for the Religious to have Schools that bore the name of their respective Order. And these were Schools appropriated to the benefit of particular religious houses; as the Dorchester Schools, the Eynsham Schools, the Schools of ST. FRIDESWIDE, of Littlemore, of Oseney, of Stodley, &c."^a Wood says, that those belonging to St. Frideswide's priory were situated near to School street.^b St. Patrick's schools, two in number, were given to St. Frideswide's priory by one master John, the son of Haman a mercer, about the year 1255, being then situated near to the houses which Alice his sometime mother had given to that priory.^c Civil Law School, or Great Civil Law School, in St. Edwards parish, also belonged to St. Frideswide's; it yielded to the canons, by the name of Civil School, three and fifty shillings and four pence, as appears by an inquisition. The donor of this hall to the priory was unknown.^d The prior and convent of St. Frideswide had also, in early times, Brend Hall, which, with Winchestre, was confirmed to the scholars of Lincoln college in 1438 by the prior and convent.^e Urban Hall and Bekes Inn were purchased of the priory of St. Frideswide by Bishop Fox, for which he covenanted to pay twenty six shillings and eightpence to the prior and convent out of the rectory of Wroughton in Wiltshire. This was to procure a part of the scite for Corpus Christi college.^f

Of the REGISTERS of ST. FRIDESWIDE'S PRIORY, two are still to be found in Oxford; one, a manuscript of the large folio size, written on two hundred and fifty-one leaves of vellum, (besides a few transcripts of Instruments, on the leaves originally left blank,) is preserved in the chapter-house at Christ-Church.^g The other Register, in a smaller size, though imperfect at the end, is preserved with Bryan Twyne's manuscripts (by whom it was given to the society) in the inner library of Corpus Christi college.^h

NUM. I.

[Will. Malmesb. fol. 166 a, n. 10.]

FUIT antiquitùs in Oxenfordensi civitate monasterium sanctimonialium in quo requiescit Frideswida, virgo sacratissima, regis filia, quæ regis thoros despexit, integritatem suam Domino Christo professa. Sed ille, cum ad virginis nuptias appulisset animum, precibus et blanditiis inaniter consumptis, vi agere intendit. Quo Frideswida cognito, fugæ in silvam consuluit. Nec latibulum latere potuit amantem, nec cordis desidia obfuit, quin persequeretur fugitantem. Iteratò ergo virgo juvenis furore comperto, per occultos tramites, Deo comitante, Oxenfordiam ingressa est nocte intempesta. Illuc cum manè curiosus amator devolasset, puella jam de fuga desperans, simulque pro lassitudine nusquam progredi potens, Dei tutelam sibi, persecutori pœnam, imprecata est. Jamque ille cum comitibus portas subibat urbis, cum cœlesti plaga irruente cæcitatem incurrit. Intellectoque pertinaciæ delicto, et Frideswida per nuncios exorata, eadem celeritate qua perdiderat, lumen accepit. Hinc timor regibus inolevit Angliæ, illius urbis ingressum et hospitium cavere: quod feratur pestifer esse, singulis refugientibus sui damno periculi veritatem rei experiri. Ibi ergo fœmina virginei triumpho compos, statuit monasterium et diebus suis sponso vocante subivit fatum. Tempore verò Egelredi, cum Dani neci adjudicati, in monasterium illud confugissent, pariter cum domibus insatiabili ira Anglorum flammis absumpti sunt. Sed mox regis pœnitentia purgatum sacrarium, restitutum monasterium, veteres terræ redditæ, recentes possessiones additæ. Nostro tempore, paucissimis ibi clericis, qui pro libito viverent residuis, datus ille locus à Rogero Salesberiensis episcopo, Guimundo excellentis literaturæ et non aspernandæ religionis canonico, qui non inoperosè commisso insudans muneri, multos ibi canonicos regulariter victuros Deo exhibuit.

ANNO DCCXXXV. Frideswida virgo hoc tempore obiit. Hæc enim filia fuit Didani subreguli, et Safridæ, in urbe Oxoniæ moram trahentis, super terram nudam sompno victa recumbebat illam, assiduè prostrata petebat genibus quando orationes fundebat Domino, viliū olerum pulmento modicoque pane ordeaceo famis expugnavit proterviani, aqua verò sitim exinguebat, parentumque assensu habitum monialium suscepit, cujus exemplo xij. nobilibus ortæ natalibus puellæ, relictis omnibus secutæ sunt Dominum. Ex regis itaque munificentia cœnobium construxit, jejuniis, et orationibus instabat continuis, &c.

Tandem Oxoniam rediit, et ne sororibus in cœnobio dimissis onerosa esset, in loco quodam juxta urbem multis arboribus consito, Thornbiri nuncupato, oratorium ædificiaque construxit, fontemque usque hodiè manantem precibus impetravit et meritis.

[Lelandi Collectan. vol. i. p. 342.]

CIRCA annum Do. DCCXXvij. Didanus quidam sub-regulus, civitatem Oxenfordæ incolatus sui frequentia honestabat. Safrida uxor Didani. Frideswida filia Didani et Safridæ.

Algiva, fœmina religiosissima, eruditæ Frideswidam (Algiva forsā abbatissa monasterii sanctæ Mariæ Winton.).

Frideswida fit sanctimonialis, et xij. nobiles puellæ ejus exemplum secutæ sunt. Ex regis itaque munificentia diversoria religioni aptissima secus ecclesiam construuntur.

Didanus conjugis nuper amissæ dolore percussus, ecclesiam infra urbis ambitum construxit, et in honore sanctæ Mariæ et Omnium Sanctorum dedicatam, filiæ commendavit poscenti.

Rex Algarus inflammatus amore Frideswidæ, eam, quamvis monacham, in uxorem expetit. Frideswida fugit, rapta navicula, per Tamesim ad Bentonam villam, decem millium passibus hinc distantem, et silvam vicinam petit, ubi in derelicto porcorum mapali hædera obducto delituit. Algarus comminatur excidium urbi Oxenfordensi, non inventa Frideswida. Algarus in pœnam tyrannidis superum vi oculorum lumen amisit. Hinc innatus horror regibus Angliæ, ut nec unus profectò successorum ejus Oxenfordiam præsumat intrare. Mansit Frideswida tribus ferè annis in solitudine præfata, sed non ignota incolis. Frideswida conscensa navicula properè venit ad prædium Oxoniensi civitati propinquum, quod Buseneia dicitur, ubi oratorium construxit ac ædificia. Erat in prædicto prædio locus Thornebyri dictus, solitarius ac religioni aptus, ubi oratorium construxit. Frideswidæ precibus fons erupit in Thornebyri. Obiit sancta Frideswida xiiij. kal. Novembris. Sepulta est in ecclesia sanctæ Mariæ Oxon. propè Tamesim.

Ethelredus rex, combustis Danis, qui in ecclesiam sanctæ Mariæ confugerant, ambitum ecclesiæ, sicut ante voverat, ampliavit.

ANNO Domini MCXj. Rogerus Sarum episcopus, dedit locum in Oxonia, in quo corpus beatæ Frideswidæ virginis requiescit, cuidam canonico nomine Wimundo, qui multos ibi canonicos congregans, vices prioris super eo gerebat. Fuerat enim antiquitùs locus ille sanctimonialibus deputatus, quorum monasterium tempore Ethelredi regis Danis neci adjudicatis et causa salutis in illud confugientibus, omnino cum eis igne consumptum est.

[Ex Registro Oseneyen. in Bibl. Cottoniana, Vitellius F. xvi. fol. 4 b.]

NOTANDUM quod Didanus, quondam rex Oxenfordiæ, regnavit anno incarnationis Dominicæ dcc. circiter xxvj. Iste rex Didanus, pater fuit sanctæ Frideswidæ; qui sibi hunc locum dedit optatum, et monacharum habitum dari fecit: ecclesiam, diversoriaque religioni aptissima secus eam construxit, ut patet in vita beatæ virginis. Item patet ibidem, quod locum illum qui tunc dicebatur Thornebirie, nunc autem Benseya, eadem virgo pacificè optinuit; nam ibidem latitando fontem precibus impetravit, et unum à dæmonio vexatum, et alterum cujus manus securi adhæserat liberavit. Post gloriosum beatæ Frideswidæ obitum, per intervalla temporum, amotis monialibus, introducti sunt canonici sæculares. Postea, anno gratiæ millesimo quarto, Etheldredus rex omnes Danos Angliam incolentes utriusque sexus jussit occidere, et combusti sunt apud Oxoniam omnes qui illuc confugerant, cum ecclesia, libris, et ornamentis, quod patet per cartam Etheldredi regis in hunc modum quæ subsequitur.

Anno Dominicæ incarnationis millesimo quarto, indictione secunda, anno verò imperii mei vicesimo quinto, Dei disponente providentia, ego Adelred, totius Albionis monarchiam gubernans, monasterium quoddam in urbe situm quæ Oxoneforde appellatur, ubi beata requiescit Frideswide, libertate privilegii, auctoritate regali pro cuncti patrantis amore stabilivi, et territoria quæ ipsi adjacent Christi archisterio novi restauratione libelli recuperavi, cunctisque hanc paginam intuentibus, qua ratione id actum sit paucis verborum signis retexam. Omnibus enim in hac patria degentibus sat constat fore notissimum, quoniam dum à me decretum^a cum consilio optimatum satrapumque meorum exivit, ut cuncti Dani qui in hac insula velut lolium inter triticum pullulando emergerant, justissima exinanitione^b necarentur, hocque decretum morte tenus ad effectum perduceretur, ipsi quique in præfata urbe morabantur Dani mortem evadere nitentes, hoc Christi sacrarium, fractis per vim valvis et pessulis, intrantes, asylum sibi propagnaculumque contra urbanos suburbanosque inibi fieri decreverunt: sed cum populus omnis insequens, necessitate compulsus, eos ejicere niteretur nec valeret, igne tabulis injecto, hanc ecclesiam, ut liquet, cum ornamentis^c ac libris combusserunt. Postquam Dei adjutorio à me et à meis constat renovata, et ut præfatus sum, retentis privilegii dignitate cum adjacentibus sibi territoriis in Christi honore^d roboratâ, et omni libertate donatâ, tam in regalibus exactionibus quàm in ecclesiasticis omnino consuetudinibus. Si autem fortuitò aliquo contingeret tempore aliquem vesanæ mentis, quod absit, irretitum desidia, hujusce donationis nostræ munus, satagente diabolo, defraudare, anathema sanctæ Dei ecclesiæ excipiat æternum mortis, nisi ante exitum quæstionem tam calumpniferam ad satisfactionem perducatur exoptabilem. Istis terminis præfati monasterii rura circumcincta clarescunt.

Literæ Alexandri III. Papæ.

[Ibid. p. 383, ex Chartular. S. Fridesw. p. 117.]

ALEXANDER episcopus, servus servorum Dei, venerabilibus fratribus Cantuariensi archiepiscopo, apostolicæ sedis Legato, et Cicestrensi episcopo, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Ex parte prioris et fratrum ecclesiæ S. Frideswydæ ad aures nostras noveritis pervenisse, quod cum bonæ memoriæ Malcolmus quondam Scotiæ rex eidem ecclesiæ villam de Pydentone, cum universis pertinentiis suis, in perpetuam eleemosinam contulisset, et scripti sui munimine confirmasset, ita quidem quod Johanna nobilis mulier in vita sua eandem villam teneret, et servitium quod de prædicta villa eidem regi debuerat præfate ecclesiæ solveret: Willielmus frater ejus qui sibi in regno successit eandem villam præscriptæ ecclesiæ abstulit, et postmodum David frater ejus qui honorem de Huntingdon tenuit, præscriptam villam quæ ad ipsum honorem spectare dignoscitur injuste detinuit, et nunc comes Simon qui præscriptæ ecclesiæ prætexatam villam scripti sui robore confirmave-rat in suæ salutis periculum detinet occupatam. Quia igitur quod Deo semel offertur non debet ei temeritate qualicunque subtrahi vel auferri, fraternitati vestræ per apostolica scripta præcipiendo mandamus, quatenus inquisita veritate rei, si vobis constiterit eandem villam memoratæ ecclesiæ violenter ablatam fuisse, eidem ecclesiæ villam ipsam auctoritate nostra, contradictione et appellatione cessante, restitui faciatis, et deinde si quis adversus præfatum priorem et fratres exinde agere voluerit, causam audiat et fine debito terminetis. Si vero ad mandatum nostrum prælibata villa eidem ecclesiæ non fuerit restituta, in feodo sub quo eadem continetur (donec ipsa villa dictæ ecclesiæ remota appellatione restitatur) dominica prohibeatis officia celebrari. HENRICUS permissione divina Lincolniensis episcopus dilectis in Christo filiis priori et conventui monasterii S. Frideswidæ Oxon. salutem, gratiam, et benedictionem. Licet super appropriatione ecclesiæ de Acleye, et capellis de Brehull, et Borstall, et Adingrave eidem ut asseritur pertinentibus et annexis, tam diutina quam sumptuosa suborta fuerit quæstio, &c. Nos, ex officii nostri debito, omnem vobis facere justitiam volentes, cum favore volumus juxta appropriationem præfatam quandocunque cedente vel decedente rectore ipsius ecclesiæ nunc incumbente ecclesiam et ipsius possessionem propria auctoritate libere ingredi possitis, et dictam ecclesiam cum suis capellis in usus proprios retinere, et fructus percipere ex iisdem. Proviso tamen quod ecclesia per idoneum canonicum domus vestræ prædictæ prout sede apostolicæ vobis est indultum et antiquitus extitit consuetum deserviat, qui quidem canonicus tanquam vicarius perpetuus a loci diocæsano curam animarum eidem ecclesiæ imminentem percipiet et supportet absque eodem diocæsano nullo modo amovendus, ut ab eadem congrue deserviat in divinis.

Salvis etiam mihi omnibus episcopalibus consuetudinibus et Lincolniensis ecclesiæ dignitate. In cujus rei testimonium præsentibus sigillum nostrum apposuimus.

[Kennett, Paroch. Antiq. p. 455. ex Chartul. S. Frideswidæ Æd. Chr. Oxon.]

UNIVERSIS S. ecclesiæ filiis præsentis literas inspecturis frater Johannes de Litlemore prior domus S. Frideswidæ Oxon. Linc. dioc. et ejusdem loci conventus salutem in omnium Salvatore. Universitati vestræ notum facimus per præsentis quod cum nos præfati prior et conventus ecclesiam de Acleia Linc. dioc. cum capellis suis de Brehull et Borstall, quibus quondam minus juste spoliati fuerunt prædecessores nostri, judicialiter recuperantes, in ejus possessionem canonice reinducti, unum de canonicis nostris, ut olim fuisse dignoscitur, rite electum et ad ejusdem ecclesiæ vicariam præsentatum vicarium legitime institutum accepimus in eadem, de præfata ecclesiæ nostræ et capellarum ejusdem alteragiis ut tenemur congruam portionem reservatam eidem vicario de qua valeat commode sustentari, episcopalia jura solvere, oneraque sibi incumbencia supportare competentius, proportionavimus et in perpetuum rei memoriam scripto mandare curavimus. In primis eidem ordinavimus indifferenter de præfata ecclesia et capellis ejusdem supradictis omnes oblationes quæ quater in anno ab omnibus parochianis, et in nuptiis, purificationibus, sepulturis, anniversariis, in cera, pecunia, ovis, aut fructibus, de jure, consuetudine, aut sponte offeruntur in eisdem: et quartam partem omnium obventionum funeralium dictorum parochianorum alibi quam apud Acleyam sepultorum, quæ de jure veteri vel novo debetur ecclesiæ parochiali. Item decimas lini, canabi, apum, fructuum, et omnium de ortis provenientium, ac universa herieta inanimata. Item omnes decimas animalium quæ aliter quam in pecunia decimari non solent. Item omnes decimas personales in dictis villis provenientes de quæstu eorum qui de mercatura sua vivunt: et prout supradictum de Brehull cum decima aucarum et ovorum. In Aclee et Adyngrave decimam lactis, porcellorum, aucarum et ovorum. In Borstall scilicet lacta et porcellos, aucas, ova tantum de villa non de curia. Ordinavimus eidem vicario nostro tresdecim quarteria bladi boni percipienda de grangiis prædictæ ecclesiæ per annum, videlicet quinque quarteria frumenti, et quinque quarteria ordeï, unum quarterium pisarum de melioribus dicti manerii sui pro potagio suo, et duo quarteria avenarum pro prebenda equi sui, et decimam fœni de Lathmede pro foragio suo, si vero dictum pratum solitam decimam non reddit aliquo casu, libenter dicto vicario duas carectatas fœni ibidem de manerio nostro illo anno, et carragium ad hæc omnia de manerio ecclesiæ nostræ prædictæ, et duas carectatas straminis singulis annis. Assignavimus et eidem vicario nostro unam placeam contiguam tenemento Willielmi de Medhull latitudine quinquaginta pedum, et extendentem se a placea in longitudine usque ad finem crofti nostri ad ædificandum sibi mansum competentem sump- tibus nostris in eadem. In cujus rei testimonium, &c. Dat. Oxon. in capitulo nostro in festo S. Michaelis, anno Domini millesimo trecentesimo quadragesimo tertio.

[Ex Reg. Islip. fol. 189 b. Wilk. Concil. tom. iii. p. 51.]

REVERENDISSIMO in Christo patri, ac domino suo, dom. Simoni Dei gratia Cant. archiepiscopo, totius Angliæ primati, et apostolicæ sedis legato suus humilis et devotus . . . Officialis Lincoln. sede vacante, per vos legitime deputatus, reverentiam et honorem debit. tanto patri. Mandatum vestrum recepi xii. cal. Januar. A.D. infrascripto. 'Simon, etc. discreto viro officiali nostro Lincoln. sede episcopali ibidem jam vacante, per nos legitime deputato, salutem, gratiam, et benedictionem. Querelam religiosorum virorum subprioris et conventus prioratus sanctæ Frideswidæ Oxon. dictæ Lincoln. diœc. gravem recepimus; continentem, quod quidam frater Nicolaus de Hungerford priorem dicti prioratus se præ- tendens, bona ejusdem prioratus adeo graviter dilapida- vit et consumpsit continue, ac de diebus in dies dilapidat et consumit, quod nisi celeriter adhibeatur remedium, idem prioratus per ipsum fratrem Nicolaum priorem præ- tensum ejusdem ad irreparabilis dissolutionis oppro- brium in proximo deduceretur: qui non solum rerum, ut præmittitur, verum etiam famæ suæ prodigus, et propriæ salutis immemor existens, vitam duxit diutius enormiter dissolutam, et adhuc ducere non desistit; oc- casioneque præmissorum et alias fuerunt et sunt quam- plurima tam in capite, ut præmittitur, quam aliunde in prioratu prædicto corrigenda, ac debite reformanda; præsertim cum ibidem periclitetur religio, regularis di- minuatur devotio, bonaque et redditus, unde canonici dicti prioratus sustentari, et cætera onera ejusdem sup- portari deberent, temere dissipentur; quodque pars re- ligiosorum virorum prædictorum coram vobis congruis loco et tempore sufficienter comparens, et præmissa vobis seriatim exponens, a vobis, sibi et prioratui præ- dicto, juxta negotii qualitatem et naturam, prout ex officii vestri debito tenebamini, de remedio congruo pro- videri, plenamque justitiam in præmissis fieri cum in- stantia debita postulavit. Vos tamen partem ipsam sic effectualiter petentem exaudire non curastis, sed plus debito distulistis minus juste; unde pars eorundem reli- giosorum virorum ad nos competenter accedens, sibi super hoc de remedio provideri petiit opportuno. No- lentes igitur sibi in sua deesse justitia, sicuti nec debemus, vobis firmiter injungendo mandamus, quatenus, si est ita, parti ipsorum religiosorum virorum infra xv. dierum spatium a tempore receptionis præsentium continue numerand. faciatis in præmissis justitiæ complementum; alioquin citetis, seu citari faciatis peremptorie præfatum fratrem Nicolaum, priorem supradictum, quod compa- reat coram nobis seu nostro commissario, octavo die juridico post lapsum dictorum xv. dierum, ubicunque in nostris civitate, diœc. seu provincia tunc fuerimus, in dictæ querelæ negotio processuri, facturique ulterius et recepturi, juxta ipsius negotii qualitatem et naturam, quod justitia suadebit. De die vero receptionis præsen- tium, et quid in præmissis feceritis, nos vel nostrum commissarium, dictis die et loco certificetis per vestras literas patentes, harum seriem continentes. Dat. apud Maghfeld xviii. cal. Januar. A.D. 1362, et nostræ con- secrat. xiii.' Post cujus mandati receptionem fueram ex parte religiosorum subprioris et conventus cum in-stantia requisitus, quod partes meas interponerem, justi- tiamque facerem in præmissis, juxta vim, formam, et effectum ejusdem mandati vestri, ac qualitatem negotii et naturam. Verum quia arduis negotiis aliis præpedi- tus huic negotio intendere non valeo quovismodo, præ- dictum fratrem Nicolaum citari feci, quod compareat coram vobis vel vestro commissario, octavo die juridico post lapsum dictorum xv. dierum, ubicunque in vestris civitate et diœc. seu provincia tunc fueritis, in dictæ querelæ negotio processuri, facturique in omnibus et recepturi, quod tenor ejusdem mandati vestri exigit et requirit; volens et consentiens, quod vos per vos, alium seu alios negotium prædictum tam ad instantiam, quam ex officio audiatis, discutiatis, et fine debito terminetis cum omnibus suis emergentibus, contingentibus, et con- nexis, juxta juris exigentiam, ipsiusque negotii qualita- tem et naturam in omnibus et per omnia prout ego pos- sem seu deberem. Rex omnibus ad quos &c. salutem. Inspeximus bullam sanctissimi domini nostri Clementis ejus nominis, divina providentia, papæ septimi, ad reverendissimum in Christo patrem Thomam, miseratione divina, tituli sanctæ Cecilie trans Tiberim sacrosanctæ Romanæ ecclesiæ presbiterum cardinalem, Eborum archiepiscopum, et apostolicæ sedis legatum, necnon felicitis recordationis Leonis nuper papæ decimi et Adriani papæ sexti, ac etiam sanctissimi domini nostri Clementis, divina providentia, hujus nominis papæ septimi moderni, dictæque sedis ad nos, regnumque nostrum Angliæ ac omnes et singulas ipsius regni nostri provincias, civitates, terras, atque loca illi subjecta et alia illi adjacentia ad vitam suam etiam de latere legatum, episcopum Dunelmensem, exemptique monasterii sancti Albani commendatorium perpetuum, Angliæ primatem et Cancellarium nostrum, per nomen dilecti filii Thomæ tituli sanctæ Cecilie presbiteri cardinalis in regno Angliæ sui et apostolicæ sedis legati transmissam plumbo sigillatam et datam Romæ apud sanctum Petrum, anno incarnationis Dominicæ millesimo quingentesimo vicesimo quarto, tertio nonas Aprilis, pontificatus ejusdem anno primo, cujus tenor sequitur in hæc verba:

et apostolicam benedictionem. Quoniam per literarum studia viri bonis moribus imbuuntur, humiles extolluntur, studiosi, spiritu sapientiæ et intellectus suffusi, gerendis seriem, ac cæteris opem concilii afferunt sanioris, dignum censemus ut hujusmodi studiis vacantibus favores gratiosos et opportuna commoditatum auxilia liberaliter impendamus. Cum itaque circumspectio tua, in partem sollicitudinis a sede apostolica vocata, sicut in humanis adhuc agens, consilio, prudentia, et auctoritate sedem hanc honorare, ac eandem hæresibus undequaque impetitam illibatam conservare, fidemque Christianam tueri studuisti, honoras^a construas quantumque tueris; ita, quo magis a Domino, ad animæ tuæ salutem, promerearis, literarum et eruditionis, quæ unicum fidei et religionis præsidium sunt, in collegio, per circumspectiōnem tuam in alma Achademia Oxoniensi construendo, sedem perpetuam ponere et constabilire intendis, nos igitur præsentium temporum calamitate edocti quantum religionis et fidei retulerit orthodoxæ sana scientiarum studia constitui, sanctumque proinde animi tui propositum ad effectum perducere cupientes, ac de ingenii tui claritate, providentia, ac morum integritate, aliisque virtutum donis, quibus mirum in modum insignitus es, confidentes, motu proprio, non ad alicujus nobis super hoc oblata petitionis instantiam, sed de nostra mera deliberatione ac certa scientia, circumspeditioni tuæ in monasterio, per priorem gubernari solito, sanctæ Frediswidæ, ordinis sancti Augustini Lincolniensi diocese, quod in ipsius universitatis medietate existit, si ad hoc carissimi in Christo filii nostri Henrici Angliæ regis illustris accesserit assensus, nomen monasterii et dignitatem prioratus necnon ordinem hujusmodi et dependentiam auctoritate nostra supprimendi penitus et extinguendi, ac canonicorum inibi degentium personas ad alia monasteria sive loca ejusdem ordinis transferendi, necnon, suppressis monasterii nomine, dignitate, ordine, et dependentia hujusmodi, nomen collegii clericorum secularium imponendi, et collegium hujusmodi instituendi, ac illi omnes et singulos ipsius tunc sic suppressi monasterii fructus, redditus, proventus et bona, quæ omnia præsentibus pro expressis haberi volumus, ad effectum ut personæ idoneæ pro ratione facultatum dicti loci in eodem loco instituendæ, partim publicis lectionibus astrictæ liberales artes ac commodum studentium profiteantur et aliis interpretentur, partim ecclesiæ dicti loci intendentes divinis inserviant, perpetuo applicandi et appropriandi, aliaque prout tibi commodo dictæ universitatis videbitur, in præmissis et circa ea necessaria faciendi, statuendi, ac etiam sub censuris et pœnis ecclesiasticis exequendi, plenam et liberam auctoritatem tenore præsentium concedimus, non obstantibus apostolicis ac bonæ memoriæ Ottonis et Ottoboni olim in regno Angliæ apostolicæ sedis legatorum ac in provincialibus et sinodalibus conciliis editis generalibus vel specialibus constitutionibus et ordinationibus, necnon monasterii et ordinis prædictorum juramento, confirmatione apostolica et quavis firmitate alia roboratis statutis et consuetudinibus, ac eidem monasterio et ordini sub quibuscumque tenoribus et formis ac cum quibusvis clausulis et decretis concessis privilegiis et indultis apostolicis, quibus illorum tenores præsentibus pro expressis habentes, illis alias in suo robore permansuris, hac vice dumtaxat specialiter et expresse motu simili derogamus, cæterisque contrariis quibuscumque. Dat. Romæ apud sanctum Petrum anno incarnationis Dominicæ millesimo quingentesimo vicesimo quarto, tertio nonas Aprilis pontificatus nostri anno primo.”

Nos vero attentius considerantes piam et sanctam mentem beatissimi domini nostri papæ antedicti ut in bulla prædicta continetur, quod nomen monasterii et dignitas prioratus sanctæ Frediswidæ ordinis sancti Augustini, necnon ordo hujusmodi cum omni ejusdem dependentia, per prædictum reverendum in Christo patrem supprimatur et extinguatur, ac canonicorum inibi degentium personæ ad alia loca sive monasteria ejusdem ordinis transferantur; etiam considerantes concessionem bullæ prædictæ per sanctissimum dominum nostrum antedictum non in aliam intentionem factam fuisse quam ut fructus, redditus, proventus, et bona monasterii sic suppressi in meliorem et commodiorem usum convertantur, et omnino cupientes ut tam pius sanctissimi domini nostri affectus suum plenum, integrum, et inviolabilem consequatur effectum, ex mero motu, gratia nostra speciali ac ex certa scientia nostra plenum et integrum assensum nostrum regium dedimus et concessimus, ac per præsentes damus et concedimus ut prædictus reverendissimus in Christo pater, virtute et vigore bullæ prædictæ et ex nostro pleno assensu, nomen monasterii et dignitatem prioratus sanctæ Frideswidæ ordinis sancti Augustini prædictæ, necnon ordinem hujusmodi, cum omni ejusdem dependentia, suppressere, extinguere, et canonicorum ibidem degentium personas ad alia monasteria sive loca ejusdem ordinis transferre possit et valeat, ad intentionem quod idem reverendissimus in Christo pater nomen Collegii Clericorum Secularium ibidem, de licentia et auctoritate nostris imponat et hujusmodi collegium inde institui faciat omnibus et singulis quoad institutionem collegii prædicti, necnon ad erectionem et foundationem ejusdem quæ in ea parte requiruntur auctoritate nostra concurrentibus.

Et ulterius sciatis, quod nos, de gratia nostra speciali, tam impetrationem prædictæ bullæ, quam etiam præsentationem, exhibitionem, acceptationem sive receptionem ejusdem et executionem approbamus et ratificamus, omnia grata, rata et firma, ac etiam ut juri nostræ coronæ et prærogativæ nostræ consona habentes et reputantes, quæcumque a quocumque, circa dictæ bullæ impetrationem, exhibitionem, acceptationem, executionem, aut usum, gesta, facta, executata, dicta seu quomodolibet procurata fuerint, declarantes nostræ intentionis esse ne quis justiciariorum escaetorum, ballivorum, vicecomitum, coronatorum, aut ministrorum nostrorum, hæredum aut successorum, seu quævis alia persona deinceps et imposterum, ullo quæsito colore nostræ prærogativæ aut coronæ nostræ, dictæ bullæ impetrationem, exhibitionem, acceptationem, executionem, aut usum ejusdem impugnare aut impedire præsumant, aut hujusmodi vel quocumque alio prætextu seu occasione forisfacturæ, pœnæ, aut commissi nomine, vel quavis alia ex causa, re, vel materia, aliquid nomine nostro, hæredum aut successorum nostrorum, aut alias petere, exigere, aut vendicare, licet idem monasterium de foundatione nostra sive alicujus progenitorum nostrorum, aut cujusvis alterius foundatione existat, eo quod expressa mentio de vero valore annuo, aut de certitudine præmissorum, sive aliquo alio valore vel eorum alicujus, aut aliis donis sive concessionibus, per nos aut aliquem progenitorum nostrorum, præfato reverendissimo domino Cardinali ante hæc tempora factis, in præsentibus minime facta existit, aut aliquo statuto, actu, ordinatione, aut provisione, et specialiter Statuto de terris et teneamentis ad manum mortuam non ponendis, et Statuto de provisionibus inde in contrarium factis, editis, ordinatis, sive provis, aut aliqua alia re, causa et materia quacumque in aliquo non obstantibus. Et quoniam animi id nostri intentionisque sit omnibus quibuscumque modis providere, ut concessionibus nostræ prædictæ, præfato reverendissimo in Christo patri factæ, adversus insidiantium, calumpniantium, tergiversantium et repugnantium conatus, astutias, et calliditates, omnesque objectiones, allegationes, et exceptiones, quacumque ex causa competentes, et per quemcumque deinceps proponendas, firmæ semper maneant et inconcussæ, suamque vim integram conservent et illibatam in jure judiciisque omnino optineant et admittantur, plenissimum denique et validissimum consequantur effectum. Volumus insuper et concedimus quod si præfata literæ nostræ, in aliqua parte earumdem, ratione omissionis, transpositionis, aut immutationis quarumcumque clausularum, sententiarum, verborum, literarum, diversave aut indebita nominum aut locorum nominatione, appellatione aut aliquos defectus in eisdem contigerit aliquo unquam tempore inveniri in futurum, sicque literæ hujusmodi in materia, forma, modo, ordine, scriptura, data, aut alio modo quocumque necesse habeant immutari, corrigi, aut reformari, deque novo fieri, conscribi, et sigillari, ex tunc cancellarius noster Angliæ, hæredum et successorum nostrorum qui pro tempore fuerit, harum literarum patentium virtute, mandato, et waranto, potestatem habeat et auctoritatem, ad petitionem, requisitionem, et prosecutionem prædicti reverendissimi in Christo patris, hæredum et successorum suorum aliorumque quorumcumque quos hæc nostra concessio quovismodo tanget, præsentes literas reformare, corrigere, addere, diminueri, detrahere, in melioremque efficaciorum et validiorem modum et formam, prout casus exiget, qui pro parte prædicti reverendissimi in Christo patris, hæredum et successorum suorum aliorumque quos hæc nostra concessio tanget, facere videbuntur et secundum eas judicare erga et contra nos, hæredes et successores nostros, prout melius sciri poterit et intelligi, non obstante aliqua omissione, defectu, negligentia, repugnantia sive contrarietate in eisdem; et insuper de uberiori gratia nostra et liberalitate ac munificentia, singulari affectione propensoque animo quem erga dictum reverendissimum in Christo patrem, ac etiam præfati collegii erectionem, fundationem et stabilimentum gerimus, necnon ob egregia ejus in nos, regnumque nostrum præstita officia, ac alias justas et rationabiles causas nos, animumque nostrum in hac parte moventes, prædicto reverendissimo in Christo patri, omnia et singula feoda, fines, et pecuniarum summas quascumque pro præmissis aut præmissorum aut alicujus eorundem occasione, nobis, hæredibus aut successoribus nostris debita sive debenda, et quæcumque a nobis, hæredibus et successoribus nostris aliisque quibuscumque, eorundem vel alicujus eorum prætextu, in cancellaria nostra, hanaperio, scaccario aut alibi peti, requiri, demandari aut exigi poterunt, libere, plene et integre dedimus et concessimus, damus et concedimus per præsentes, indeque prædictum reverendissimum in Christo patrem, hæredes et successores suos, ac alios quoscumque, quos hæc nostra concessio quovis modo tanget acquietamus et liberamus, quietos et liberos dimittimus per præsentes, nolentes quod prædictus reverendissimus in Christo pater hæredes et successores sui quicumque ea de causa molestentur, inquietentur, aut in aliquo graventur, sed quod cancellarius noster Angliæ, thesaurarius et barones scaccarii nostri, clericus hanaperii, ac cæteri officarii et ministri nostri quicumque, a prædictis feodorum, finium, et aliorum solvi debitorum aut consuetorum pro præmissis aut aliquo præmissorum, petitione, exactione, vel levatione, sint apud nos, hæredes et successores nostros, per has literas nostras penitus et totaliter acquietati et exonerati, absque aliquo alio brevi, mandato, sive waranto nostro, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, pro præmissis aut aliquo præmissorum proseguendo, fiendo, habendo, aut in hanaperio nostro sive cancellaria nostra aut aliquibus aliis curiis nostris aut alibi exhibendo. Volumusque et mandamus quod super hujusmodi nostris concessionibus præsentes literæ nostræ patentes aliæque deinceps corrigendæ et reformandæ, si quas tales fieri contigerint, fiant, expediantur, sigillantur, et tradantur prædicto reverendissimo in Christo patri, hæredibus, successoribus, executoribus, et assignatis suis, absque aliquo fine sive feodo magno vel parvo nobis in cancellaria nostra sive in hanaperio nostro seu alibi solvendo seu faciendo; eo quod expressa mentio, &c. NUM. XXXIX.

Rex archiepiscopis, episcopis, &c. salutem. Illam de bonis literis sinceræ scientiarum eruditione opinionem concepimus, quam etiam multa nobis, tùm audita, tùm visa, exempla confirmant atque adaugent, ut regno huic nostro omnibus quidem egregiis naturæ dotibus præter cætera florentissimo, non aliud ornamentum illustrius posse accedere arbitremur quàm ut optima ingenia, agresti juventutis ruditate deteresa, sanis doctrinis perpoliantur, et a teneris imbuantur, artesque illas a primordiis degustent, in illisque diutius enutriantur, quæ virtutis et probitatis sint effectrices.

Cum itaque reverendissimus in Christo pater, Thomas, miseratione divina, tituli Sanctæ Cecilie trans Tyberim sacrosanctæ Romanæ ecclesiæ presbyter cardinalis, Eborum archiepiscopus apostolicæ sedis legatus, necnon, felicis recordationis, Leonis nuper papæ decimi et Adriani papæ sexti, ac etiam sanctissimi domini nostri Clementis, divina providentia, hujus nominis papæ septimi moderni, dictæque sedis ad nos regnumque nostrum Angliæ ac omnes et singulas ipsius regni nostri provincias, civitates, terras, atque loca illi subjecta et alia illi adjacentia ad vitam suam, etiam de latere legatus, episcopus Dunelmensis, exemptique monasterii Sancti Albani commendatarius perpetuus, ipsiusque regni nostri Angliæ primas et cancellarius noster, qui commissam sibi a nobis rerum omnium summam fidelissime diligentissime et prudentissimè maximè reipublicæ bono et nostro, incredibiles interim labores perpessus administravit, qua est in patriam charitate et pietate non minoribus sumptibus etiam collegium auctoritate et consensu nostris in alma academia Oxoniæ, vulgo vocat' THE CARDINALL COLLEGE, literarum, eruditionis, et virtutum asylum, morum optimorum et Christianæ religionis propagandæ seminarium regno huic nostro ubere proculdubio futurum et fœcundum, erexerit, fundaverit, et dotaverit, commodissimam occasionem oblatam arbitramur, quam etiam negligere nullo pacto possumus, in qua animum nostrum tam in dictum collegium ob literarum amorem quàm etiam in dictum reverendissimum patrem ob tam egregia ejusdem in nos regnumque nostrum præstita officia, præter alias concessionem nostras antehac eidem reverendissimo in Christo patri dictoque collegio factas, amplissimâ etiam privilegiorum, libertatum, et immunitatum concessione, veluti clarissimo quodam testimonio posteris declaremus et attestemur; sciatis igitur quòd nos, de gratia nostra speciali, dedimus et concessimus, et hac nostra cartâ pro nobis et hæredibus nostris confirmavimus, dilectis nobis in Christo, decano et canonicis collegii Thomæ Wolsey cardinalis Eborum in alma academia sive universitate Oxoniensi, vulgariter nuncupato THE CARDINALL COLLEGE, et successoribus suis, quod ipsi et successores sui, ac firmarii, homines, servientes, et tenentes sui, integrè tenentes et non integre tenentes, residentes et non residentes, ac alii residentes quicumque, infra quæcumque dominia, terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones eis jam collata et de cætero conferenda, sint quieti et exonerati imperpetuum de omnimodis auxiliis ad primogenitos filios nostros hæredum, et successorum nostrorum milites faciendum, et ad primogenitas filias nostras hæredum et successorum nostrorum maritandum.

Dedimus etiam et concessimus præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis, quod nec ipsi, nec successores sui, ullo modo per nos, hæredes, et successores nostros, seu per metropolitanos regni nostri Angliæ, vel alios episcopos diocesis. seu ordinarios ejusdem regni nostri, aut alios quoscumque, fiant seu deputentur collectores alicujus decimæ sive partis decimæ seu contributionis cujuscumque nobis, hæredibus, vel successoribus nostris a domino summo pontifice per clerum regni nostri concedendarum, sed inde totaliter exonerentur; et quod nec ipsi, nec successores sui, firmarii, homines, servientes, et tenentes sui, residentes et non residentes, nec alii residentes prædicti, de cætero deputentur taxatores, assessores, sive collectores aliquorum auxiliorum, subsidiorum, contributionum, tallagiorum, aut quintarum decimarum, vel cujuscumque quotæ seu tallagii, aut aliquorum auxiliorum, ad primogenitos filios nostros, hæredum et successorum nostrorum, milites faciendum, seu ad primogenitas filias nostras, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum maritandum, aut alterius taxæ seu impositionis cujuscumque per communitatem regni nostri prædicti concedendæ; sed quod ipsi inde totaliter sint quieti et exonerati imperpetuum: et quod statim post exhibitionem sive demonstrationem præsentis cartæ nostræ, superinde factæ, sive irrotulamenti ejusdem, in quibuscumque curiis nostris hæredum et successorum nostrorum iidem decanus et canonici et successores sui, firmarii, homines, servientes, et tenentes sui, residentes et non residentes, et alii residentes prædicti, occasionibus prædictis, seu aliquæ earundem ulterius minime distringantur, sed ab eisdem curiis eâ occasione quieti et exonerati dimittuntur; et quod ipsi de hujusmodi collectionibus, taxationibus, et assessmentibus et qualibet earum omnino exonerentur, et processus quicumque in hac parte fiendus omnino cesset, absque aliquo brevi hæredum seu successorum nostrorum vel aliquo alio processu superinde prosequendo: ac etiam quòd prædicti decanus et canonici et successores sui furcas in solo suo dominiorum, terrarum, tenementorum, feodorum, et possessionum prædictorum, erigere, et judicium de malefactoribus quod ibidem deprehendi contigerit, juxta libertatem de Infangthef, fieri facere possint, sine occasione, vel impedimento nostri vel hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, justiciariorum, escaetorum, vicecomitum, aut aliorum ballivorum, seu ministrorum nostrorum quorumcumque; et quod præfati decanus et canonici et successores sui, in omnibus et singulis dominiis, maneriis, terris, tenementis, feodis, et possessionibus suis prædictis, habeant et faciant per senescallos et ballivos suos proprios, assisam et assaiam panis vini et cervisiæ et omnimodorum aliorum victualium, mensurarum, et ponderum quorumcumque, et omnium aliorum ad officium clerici mercati hospitii nostri, et hæredum et successorum nostrorum pertinentium, cum punitione eorumdem et quicquid ad officium illud pertinet faciendum et exercendum quotiens et quando-cumque opus fuerit et necesse, adeo plene sicut idem clericus mercati hospitii nostri et hæredum nostrorum aut successorum nostrorum, faceret vel facere deberet in præsentia nostra, hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, si præsens concessio nostra præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis minime facta fuisset: et quod idem decanus et canonici et successores sui habeant omnimoda amerciamenta, fines, et alia proficua inde provenientia, percipienda, levanda, per ipsos et ministros suos, absque impetitione nostri, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, clerici mercati, aut aliorum ministrorum nostrorum hæredum seu successorum nostrorum quorumcumque; ita quod prædictus clericus mercati hospitii nostri, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, non ingrediatur dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, seu possessiones prædicta, ad aliquid ibidem faciendum seu exercendum quod ad officium suum pertinet quovismodo: et quod præfati decanus et canonici et successores sui, ac firmarii, homines et tenentes sui, residentes et non residentes, et alii residentes, infra dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones prædictas, habeant communiam pasturæ ad omnia animalia sua (exceptis capris) in quibuscumque forestis nostris, hæredum et successorum nostrorum, eisdem dominiis, maneriis, terris, tenementis, feodis, et possessionibus vicinibus adjacentibus, tam in coopertis quam in discoopertis, tam in mense prohibito quam in quolibet alio tempore anni, cum libero ingressu et libero egressu, absque aliquo inde nobis hæredibus seu successoribus nostris reddendo, et absque calumpnia sive impedimento nostri hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, ac sine impedimento vel perturbatione justiciariorum, custodum, forestariorum, viridariorum, senescallorum, et regardorum, aut aliorum ministrorum nostrorum, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum quorumcumque; et, si fortè, (quod nolumus) dicti decanus seu canonici, eorum successores, aut hujusmodi firmarii, homines vel tenentes sui, residentes et non residentes, ac alii residentes quicumque supradicti infra aliquam forestarum nostrarum et hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, sive infra aliquam chasearum nostrarum, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, seu aliorum quorumcumque extra dicta dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones prædictorum decani et canonicorum, aut successorum suorum, aliquam transgressionem de viridi sive venatione fecerint, vel eorum aliquis fecerit, tunc volumus quod hujusmodi transgressio coram capitali justiciario de banco nostro, hæredum et successorum nostrorum, et non alibi audiatur, terminetur, et punietur: et quod dicti decanus et canonici et eorum successores, ac quivis alius vice et nomine suis, in omnibus et singulis dominiis, maneriis, terris, et boscis suis, venari et stabilias facere, ac omnimodam venationem inibi exercere, et quascumque feras capere et asportare licite valeant et impune imperpetuum; licet eadem dominia, maneria, terræ, et bosca fuerint aliquæ parcellæ seu parcella aliquarum forestarum sive chasearum nostrarum, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, aut aliquorum progenitorum nostrorum, vel aliorum quorumcumque, licet etiam dicta dominia, maneria, terræ, et bosca sint vel fuerint infra metas aliquarum forestarum nostrarum hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, vel infra metas aliquarum chasearum nostri, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum quorumcumque. Dedimus insuper et concessimus præfatis decano et canonicis, et successoribus suis, quod si aliquis natus alicujus infra dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, seu possessiones eis ad tunc collata, vel exnunc eis qualitercumque conferenda vel assignanda, manserit et terram ipsorum aliquam ibidem tenuerit, et fuerit infra prædicta dominia, terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones cum hominibus et tenentibus ipsorum de-cani et canonicorum vel successorum suorum per unum annum et unum diem, absque calumpnia domini sui ibidem notificata, deinceps hujusmodi natus non possit repeti nec repetentur a domino suo ullo modo, sed in eisdem dominiis, maneriis, terris, tenementis, feodis et possessionibus, cum tota sequela sua, quamdiu voluerint, permaneat, et eandem libertatem et privilegium habeat quæ haberet si in antiquo dominio nostro hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, vel in civitate nostra Londoniæ per unum annum et unum diem absque calumpnia domini sui permansisset.

Et ulterius de uberiori gratia nostra concessimus, pro nobis, hæredibus et successoribus nostris, præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis quod ipsi habeant et teneant imperpetuum omnia placita, sectas, querelas, et demanda, necnon actiones reales, personales, et mixtas quascumque infra dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones eis nunc collata vel sibi et successoribus exnunc conferenda; et quod habeant cognitionem omnium placitorum de transgressionibus, conventionibus, debitis, et contractibus quibuscumque infra eadem dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda et possessiones qualitercumque factis sive emergentibus, tam in præsentia nostra hæredum et successorum nostrorum, quam in absentia nostra hæredum et successorum nostrorum, cum omnibus proficuis de hujusmodi placitis, sectis, querelis, et demandis provenientibus, sine occasione vel impedimento nostri vel hæredum seu successorum aut justiciariorum nostrorum, vel hæredum seu successorum nostrorum quorumcumque, aut senescallorum vel marescallorum hospitii nostri, vel successorum seu escaetorum vicecomitum aut aliorum ballivorum seu ministrorum nostrorum quorumcumque; et quod iidem senescalli et marescalli de aliquibus cognitionibus placitorum de hujusmodi transgressionibus, conventionibus, debitis, aut contractis, infra dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones prædicti vel eorum aliquam parcellam factis seu emergentibus, se nullatenus intromittant, nec illorum aliquis intromittat; et quod iidem decanus et canonici et successores sui imperpetuum habeant cognitionem omnimodorum placitorum, assissarum novæ disseisinæ et mortis antecessorum de omnibus terris et tenementis infra dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones quæ dicti decanus et canonici jam habent vel ipsi seu successores sui exnunc sunt habituri, tam coram justiciariis nostris de utroque banco, justiciariis ad assisas capiendas assignatis, ac justiciariis itinerantibus, quam coram quibuscumque aliis justiciariis et militibus nostris, hæredum et successorum nostrorum, ad hujusmodi assisas capiendas arraiand. seu arraiand. coram eorum ballivo pro tempore existente, in curiis suis tenendis et capiendis, unà cum omnibus proficuis de hujusmodi assisis qualitercumque provenientibus, absque impetitione vel impedimento nostri, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, aut justiciariorum, escaetorum, vicecomitum, ballivorum, aut aliorum ministrorum nostri hæredum vel successorum nostrorum.

Concessimus insuper præfatis nunc decano et canonicis, quod ipsi et successores sui habeant potestatem et plenariam auctoritatem assignandi et constituendi, per commissiones suas separatim fiendas, in omnibus et singulis maneriis, terris, tenementis, feodis, et possessionibus suis sibi jam collatis, et de cætero conferendis, de tempore in tempus, quotiens opus viderit et necesse, justiciarios suos pacis, ac servientes artificum et laborantium, ad omnia et singula in dictis dominiis, maneriis, terris, tenementis, feodis, et possessionibus suis exercendi, faciendi, audiendi, et determinandi, quæ ad hujusmodi justiciarios quovismodo pertinent exercenda, facienda, audienda, et terminanda: et quod iidem justicarii, sic constituendi, vigore commissionum illarum, plenariam habeant potestatem faciendi, exercendi, et exequendi omnia et singula quæ ad hujusmodi justiciarios pertinent facienda, exercenda et exequenda: et quod nullus justiciarius nostri hæredum vel successorum nostrorum ad pacem infra dominia, maneria, terras, tenementa, feoda, possessiones, vel aliquam parcellam eorundem quovismodo ingrediatur, ad aliquod officium ibidem faciendum vel capiendum, nec in aliquibus ne-gotiis, rebus, materiis, vel causis emergentibus infra eadem seu aliquam parcellam eorundem aliquam cognitionem vel jurisdictionem habeant, nec aliquam se inde intromittant: et quod idem decanus et canonici et successores sui habeant omnia et singula fines, exitus, et amerciamenta coram præfatis justiciariis ipsorum decani et canonicorum et successorum suorum, per eosdem decanum et canonicos et successores suos ut prædicitur assignandis et constituendis, facienda, assidenda, forisfienda et adjudicanda; et quod benè liceat eisdem decano et canonicis et successoribus suis omnia hujusmodi fines, exitus, et amerciamenta, eis prætextu præsentis concessionis nostræ exnunc pertinentia, per ballivos et ministros suos colligere, levare, percipere, et se de seisina in eisdem ponere, prout officarii, ballivi, et ministri nostri, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, ea in manus nostras hæredum et successorum nostrorum seiscire possent vel deberent ad opus nostrum hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, si ea præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis prædictis per nos concessa non fuissent: et quod cancellarius noster Angliæ, nec thesaurarius, nec barones de scaccario nostro, hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, nec eorum aliqui vel aliquis faciant vel faciat aliquem processum versus hujusmodi justiciarios pacis, per præfatos nunc decanum et canonicos vel successores suos prædictos assignatos pro aliquibus extractibus de cessionibus suis in scaccarium prædictarum liberandis.

Dedimus etiam et concedimus præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis, quod nullus clericorum, scholarium, choristarum, seu servientium ipsorum decani et canonicorum, seu successorum suorum, aut quorumcumque artificum seu operariorum infra idem collegium jam existentium et operantium, vel de cætero ibi existere et operare contingentium, ad aliquod opus seu servitium nostri, seu hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, pro seu in hospitio vel operationibus nostris, hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, aut alibi, nec alicujus procerum vel magnatum regni nostri prædicti, aut aliunde per nos, hæredes seu successores nostros, aut aliquos ministros et officarios nostros, hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, aut aliorum quorumcumque contra assensum et voluntatem ipsorum decani et canonicorum vel successorum suorum, unquam de cætero capiatur, seu compellatur quovismodo, sed quod iidem decanus et canonici et successores sui, capellani, clerici, scholares, choristæ, servientes, artifices et operarii inde totaliter sint quieti, et quilibet eorum sit quietus imperpetuum.

Volumus insuper et concessimus, pro nobis, hæredibus et successoribus nostris, quod præsens carta nostra necnon irrotulamentum et quælibet particula ejusdem cartæ nostræ, per præfatos decanum et canonicos et successores suos, seu alium quemcumque, vice ac nomine eorum coram quibuscumque justiciariis nostris, vel hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, ac coram thesaurario et baronibus scaccarii nostri, hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, et coram baronibus ejusdem scaccarii nostri, hæredum seu successorum nostrorum, ac coram quibuscumque aliis justiciariis nostris, hæredum et successorum nostrorum, in quibuscumque curiis nostris et locis de recordo, ac etiam in quibuscumque aliis curiis et locis et eorum quolibet, per totum regnum nostrum prædictum, exhibita seu demonstrata statim et immediate super exhibitione seu demonstratione cartæ illius sive irrotulamenti omninò valeat et allocetur præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis, ut præmittitur, per nos concessæ.

Et nos, uberiores gratiam præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis fieri volentes, ne bona et catalla eorundem decani et canonicorum firmariorum hominum et tenentium suorum integre tenentium et non integre tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium quorumcumque tam de et in terris et tenementis quam de et in feodis et in possessionibus eisdem decano et canonicis tam ad nunc collatis quam exnunc eis et successoribus suis quibuscumque ullo modo conferendis per provisores emptores seu captos victualium aut aliarum rerum pro hospitio, usu, vel opere reginæ consortis nostræ, sive pro hospitio aut pro hospitiiis aliquorum filiorum nostrorum, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, seu aliquorum magnatum regni nostri Angliæ vel aliunde, sive aliarum quarumcumque personarum, cujuscumque præeminentiæ statûs seu conditionis fuerit, capiantur seu dissipentur, dictos decanum et canonicos et successores suos, ac firmarios, homines, tenentes suos integrè et non integrè, tenentes residentes et non residentes, et alios residentes prædictos, necnon eorum terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones supradictas eisdem decano et canonicis jam collata et imposterum eis vel successoribus suis conferenda, danda, vel assignanda, ac bona et catalla collegii illius seu prædictorum decani et canonicorum, firmariorum hominum et tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium prædictorum, ubicumque infra dictum regnum nostrum Angliæ existentium, in nostram protectionem suscepimus specialem; volentes, dantes, et concedentes quòd de bladis, fœnis, equis, bobus, vaccis, ovibus, agnellis, porcellis, pulletis, aut aliis victualibus quibuscumque, caretis, bigis, navibus, batellis, cariagiis, aut aliis bonis, catallis, seu rebus ipsius collegii seu prædictorum decani et canonicorum vel successorum suorum, seu firmariorum hominum et tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium prædictorum, per provisores, emptores, seu captores hujusmodi, aut alios ministros seu ballivos nostros, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, aut reginæ consortis nostræ, seu reginarum hæredum vel successorum, sive filiorum nostrorum, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, sive aliquorum magnatum, vel personarum prædictarum, contra voluntatem eorundem decani et canonicorum seu successorum suorum, aut firmariorum hominum seu tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium prædictorum, seu alicujus eorum, quicquam minime capiatur, abducatur, vel aliquid asportetur: et volumus ulterius et concessimus præfatis decano et canonicis et successoribus suis quòd, si hujusmodi emptores seu captores, vel eorum aliquis infra dicta terras, tenementa, feoda, et possessiones ipsorum decani et canonicorum sive successorum suorum aut firmariorum hominum vel tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium prædictorum, aut alibi infra quæcumque loca sive locum quemcumque infra dictum regnum nostrum Angliæ, tam infra libertates quam extra, ad aliquas providentiam seu providentias hujusmodi faciendas de bonis catallis ipsorum decani et canonicorum vel successorum suorum, aut firmariorum hominum vel tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium prædictorum, ingressi fuerint, vel ingressus fuerit, et hujusmodi res contra voluntatem, prædictorum decani et canonicorum vel successorum suorum, aut alicujus firmariorum hominum seu tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, seu aliorum residentium prædictorum in terris, tenementis, feodis, et possessionibus, aut in aliquibus aliis locis, vel alio loco quocumque in regnum nostrum prædictum ceperint, abduxerint, vel asportaverint, ceperit, abduxerit, vel asportaverit, quod tunc iidem provisores, emptores, sive captores, et eorum quilibet, pro hujusmodi ingressu, captione, abductione, seu asportatione victualium, rerum, et cæterorum præmissorum et eorum alicujus parcellæ, coram nobis in banco nostro vel coram justiciariis de communi banco nostro hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, ad sectam et electionem prædictorum decani et canonicorum, seu successorum suorum, firmariorum hominum vel tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium prædictorum, vel eorum alicujus, a quo vel a quibus victualia, res, seu cætera præmissa aut eorum aliqua parcella, sic capta, abducta, vel asportata fuerint vel fuerit, puniantur et puniatur: et quod processus in hac parte fiat versus ipsos provisores, emptores, et captores, et eorum quemlibet, per breve de transgressione vi et armis facta; proviso semper quod, post primum breve de captione retornatum, si iidem provisores, emptores, et captores non comparuerint, vel eorum aliquis non comparuerit, in hujusmodi secta statim in exigendum ponantur vel ponatur, et sic pro non apparentiis suis utlagentur: et quod literæ nostræ hæredum seu successorum nostrorum patentes de protectione, cum clausula volumus, aut cum clausula nolumus, hujusmodi provisoribus emptoribus seu captoribus, aut eorum alicui, in hujusmodi secta vel occasionibus minime valeant nec allocentur quovismodo, nec aliquod auxilium a nobis, hæredibus seu successoribus nostris, aut essoin, de servitio nostro, hæredum vel successorum nostrorum, aut aliquid aliud essoin, in hac parte habeant, gaudeant, seu optineant, licet hujusmodi literæ sibi per nos hæredes vel successores nostros concessæ et factæ fuerint, aut hujusmodi auxilium aut essoin, a nobis, hæredibus seu successoribus nostris, per ipsos calumpnietur, petatur, et impetretur, et si hujusmodi provisores, emptores, et captores, vel eorum aliquis, ad hujusmodi sectam et prosecutionem prædictorum decani et canonicorum seu successorum suorum, aut firmariorum hominum seu tenentium suorum, integrè tenentium et non integrè tenentium, residentium et non residentium, et aliorum residentium prædictorum, vel eorum aliquis, debitè convicti fuerint vel convictus fuerit, tunc reddant iidem provisores, emptores, et captores, et eorum quilibet reddat parti gravatæ dampna sua in triplo.

IN NORFOLK.

AST Dereham Monastery, according to Parkins's Continuation of Blomefield, was founded in the year 650, by Anna king of the East Angles, for Withburga, his youngest daughter, whom he made prioress.^a The History of Ely, however, in the Cotton library, informs us that she did not become a nun till after her father's death,^b which was in 654.^c Bishop Tanner, who, with Leland, ascribes the foundation of the monastery entirely to Withburga, conjectures that it did not take place till after the foundation of Ely by her elder sister Ethelreda in 673.^d

Withburga was buried in the church-yard of her monastery A.D. 743: fifty-five years after which, A.D. 798, her remains, being found uncorrupted, were removed into the church at Dereham;^e and thence, upon the destruction of the monastery by the Danes, in 974, translated to Ely, where her sisters had been buried.^f In 1106 her bones were again removed, with those of Etheldreda, Sexburga, and Ermenilda, into the new church of Ely by abbat Richard.^g

Withburga's obit was kept upon the 17th of March.

The memory of Withburga continued to be preserved at Dereham till a late period, in a chapel-gild-light; and more particularly by a famous well, which, as it is said, sprung up in the church-yard in the place where she was first buried. Bishop Tanner says this last is now corruptly called St. Winifred's well.^h

The gild, or fraternity of St. Withburga, in later times, according to Blomefield, had a strong brick house called the Guild-hall, where their feasts were kept, and other ceremonies performed. This gild was dissolved by King Henry the Eighth; and in the second year of King Edward the Sixth was granted to Thomas Wodehouse, of Waxham, Esq. and his heirs for ever. He, the next year, granted it to William Skarlett and William Atle, both of East Dereham, who, the same year, granted it to John Cane, clerk, of the same place, with all the appurtenances which it had before the dissolution, consisting of five tenements, twenty acres of land, and a rent charge of 2s. 2d. out of lands called the Headborough lands; all which were the maintenance of the fraternity belonging to the gild, and were originally given to pray for the souls of certain persons deceased, and for the souls of the faithful in general.

Reyner says, the monastery of East Dereham was annexed by Bishop Ethelwold in Edgar's time to the church of Ely, without giving his authority.ⁱ The Village of East Dereham was certainly added to the first endowment of Ely by King Edgar.^k

NUM. II.

[Chron. Joh. Brompton. Twysd. Script. x. col. 747.]

Post reges Sigebertum et Egnice cognatum suum successit in regno Estangliæ Anna filius Egnice: vir quidem bonus et bonæ sobolis pater. Nam iste Anna nobiles et sanctas habuit filias, sanctam videlicet Edelburgam, quam cum filia uxoris suæ Secrid ad monasterium de Brugg Deo serviendam destinavit, ubi dicta Edelburga, merito virtutum, Brugensis abbatissa facta est, et ibi in Domino quiescit. Aliam etiam habuit filiam, sanctam videlicet Sexburgam quam Christi-anissimo regi Canciæ Ercomberto nobilissime maritavit, de qua superius inter reges Canciæ plenius est notatum. Tertiam etiam habuit filiam, sanctam scilicet Etheldredam. Harum etiam soror, secundum quosdam, fuit sancta Withburga, quæ apud Derham in Northefolchia per longum tempus in ecclesia jacuit tumultata. Sed postea regnante glorioso rege Edgari Brithnotus primus abbas monasterii Eliensis de consensu ejusdem regis, et instigatione ac consilio beati Ethelwoldi, tunc temporis Wintoniensis ecclesiæ episcopi, illam virgineam glebam sanctæ Withburgæ integram et incorruptam repertam clamculo ab ecclesia de Derham cum suis hominibus et ministris ad hoc ibi adductis sub noctis silentio, populo illius loci ignorante, cum tumba abstulit qua jacebat, et tumbam precioso corpore infra illam contento vehiculo præparato impositam armatorum cuneis hinc inde munivit, et sic viginti miliaris terrestri via decursis, usque ad fluvium in villa quæ dicitur Branduna, cum illo cœlesti thesauro prospere pervenit, ubi navem cum preciosa præda dictus abbas et sui ingressi, remis et armamentis navalibus incumbunt. Et licet post modicum intervallum Derhamenses veritate rei gestæ deprehensa, illos cum multitudine armatorum velociter insequentes ripas dicti fluvii hinc inde occupabant, et in abbatem et suos obprobria et tela jacebant, Dei tamen adiutorio et virginis favore illæsi ab illis evadunt. Applicantes itaque ad insulam quæ dicitur Tidbritheseye, gloriosum Virginis corpus vehiculo simul cum tumba impositum ad Eliense monasterium, occurrente et plaudente ejusdem loci tam clero quam populo, monachis quoque obviam præcedentibus et festive canentibus deportarunt, ac ibidem cum veneratione qua decuit collocarunt.

De prima Fundatione Derehamensis Cænobii; et de Brithnodo, primo Eliensis Cænobii Abbate.

IDEM abbas transtulit corpus S. Wythburgæ, de Derham apud Ely; de cujus origine et integritate legitur, quod Withburga, adolescentior filiarum Annæ sublimiter est nata, et ad regnum cœleste consequendum, et juxta mare, cum suâ nutrice, in quodam vico paterni juris nutrienda tradebatur, Holkham vocitato, ubi processu temporis, in memoriam ipsius, ecclesia est constructa, quæ Anglicè Withburgstowe dicitur. Præfata autem virgo, audito patris sui interitu, ad sanctimoniam confugit professionem, ubi in umbra alarum Dei sperans, suaviter requievit. Sed indè, ubi nutrita fuit, recedens, quasi xx. miliaribus, apud Derham, in humilem locum paterni juris devenit, illic solitariè volens vivere, elegit ubi monasterium condere satagebat. Cumque Domino suo templum conderet, contigit ut nichil victualium, præter sutum panem haberet, quod operariis ædificii opponeret; ob quod ad Dei genitricem confugit, eamque querulis precibus, pro instanti urgere cepit nutrimento, cui inter preces paululum dormitanti, astitit virgo Maria, docens eam non sollicitari de victu corporali, nec cogitare de crastino: "Mitte," inquit, "diluculo puellas ministras ad proximum pontem silvestris fluvii, ibi observantibus illis diatim occurrent duæ feræ lactifluæ, quas tractabiliter mulgentes solacium victui vestro interim administrabunt." Sic ancilla Domini, cœlitûs edocta, mittit manè multrices ad pontem præmonstratum, qui ferè uno stadio distat à monasterio, quæ stans silva, grato irrigatur fluvio: undè continuò duæ assiliunt cervæ, quæ se familiariùs quàm domestica animalia, præbebant multuræ: has singillatim astantes, vel succedentes, mulgebant manus virgineæ, tantamque lactis ubertatem in vasa sua expressere, ut indriam plenam duo viri injecto per ansas vectæ, humeris ejus efferrent, et omnibus domi convivis hæc copia sufficeret, quæ supernæ pietatis beneficia, cum cotidiano usu, per aliquod tempus habundanter proficerent. Præpositus ipsius villæ, vir pravi ingenii, cepit tanta miracula, aut parvi pendere, aut irridere; dehinc livore, cupiditate, ac superbîâ, indignatione agitatus, adducens canibus, nitebatur insontes feras captare; contemptis scil. commodis, quæ dominicæ exhibebant familiæ; at illæ exacerbatae et absterritæ, procul in suas silvas aufugere. Villicus verò, non tam bestiis, quàm Dei domesticis gratuito noxius, suæ malivolentiæ sine dilatione pœnas solvit; nam eadem hora dum emissario equo feras insectatur fugaces, equus in obstantem sepem, urgentibus calcari-bus incurrit; sepiisque acuta sude transfixus ilia dum resiliendo tergiversaretur, sessor superbus supino capite excutitur, fractâque cervice exanimatur. Ablato autem lacte ferino, non defuit Dominus gregi suo, sed rediit qui defuerat victus tempore oportuno. Commendatis demùm pupillis suis æterno regi, de hoc seculo migravit xvi. kal. Aprilis, et in cimiterio ecclesiæ Deramensis sepelitur; et post annos ferè quinquaginta quinque sine corruptione corpus ejus inventum est, et in ecclesiâ, quam ipsa ibidem condiderat, translatum anno Domini dcccxcviii. ubi usque ad tempora regis Edgari servabatur; et usque ad annum Domini dccccclxxiv. et ita requievit in prædicta ecclesiâ clxxvi. annis. A. agitur Domini dccccclxxiv. Abbas Brithnodus, consensu regis Edgari, et episcopi Ethelwoldi, sanctam Withburgam de Derham in Ely fecit transferri, viii. id. Julii, et juxta sororos suas sepeliri, ibique requievit cxxxii. annis, hoc et usque ad annum Domini mcv. in quo quidem anno abbas Ricardus, in novum monasterium eam transtulit. De loco autem illo, in quo primò sepulta fuit, apud Derham, fons aquæ lucidissimus manat.

Abbey of St. Alban,

IN

HERTFORDSHIRE.

At a place called Holmhurst, near the ancient Roman city of Verulam, known after, in the Saxon times, by the name of Verlamceaster, or Watlingceaster, Offa king of Mercia, A.D. 793, founded a noble abbey for one hundred Benedictine monks, to the honour of St. Alban, the protomartyr among the first Christian Britons who suffered here.^a

To procure absolution for his sins, and more particularly for the murder of Ethelbert king of the East

^a See Tann. Notit. Mon. ST. ALBAN, as the protomartyr of Britain, deserves particular notice. The collections for his Life have been numerous. He was a native of Verulam, which, it need not be added, was for ages one of the strongest and most populous cities of Britain. In his youth he travelled to Rome, but, returning, settled as a citizen at his native place. Here, in the time of Diocletian, though himself a Pagan, he gave shelter to a certain priest, called by some writers Amphibalus, who sought by flight to escape the persecution of the Romans. Alban was soon converted by him, and, exchanging clothes with his guest, enabled him to complete his escape: presenting himself to the soldiers who sought his visitor, in Amphibalus's long robe, or caracalla. The magistrate before whom he was taken, finding himself unable to shake the constancy of Alban to his newly embraced faith, ordered him to be beheaded.

The following is Bede's account of his death. Hist. Eccl. Gent. Angl. lib. i. capp. 6, 7. "Interea Diocletianus in oriente, Maximianus Herculus in occidente, vastari ecclesias, affligi interficique Christianos, decimo post Neronem loco præceperunt; quæ persecutio omnibus fere ante actis diuturnior atque immanior fuit; nam per decem annos, incendiis ecclesiarum, proscriptionibus innocentum, cædibus martyrum incessabiliter acta est. Denique etiam Britanniam tum plurima confessionis Deo devotæ gloria sublimavit. Siquidem in ea passus est sanctus Albanus, de quo presbyter Fortunatus in laude Virginum, cum beatorum martyrum qui de toto orbe ad Dominum venirent mentionem faceret, ait: 'Albanum egregium fecunda Britannia profert.' Qui videlicet Albanus paganus adhuc, cum perfidorum principum mandata adversum Christianos sævirent, clericum quendam persecutores fugientem hospitio recepit: quem dum orationibus continuis ac vigiliis die noctuque studere conspiceret, subito divina gratia respectus exemplum fidei ac pietatis illius cœpit æmulari, ac salutaribus ejus exhortationibus paulatim edoctus, relictis idolatriæ tenebris Christianus integro ex corde factus est. Cumque præfatus clericus aliquot diebus apud eum hospitaretur, pervenit ad aures nefandi principis confessorem Christi cui necdum fuerat locus martyrii deputatus, penes Albanum latere. Unde statim jussit milites eum diligentius inquirere. Qui cum ad tugurium martyris pervenissent, mox se sanctus Albanus pro hospite ac magistro suo, ipsius habitu, id est caracalla qua vestiebatur indutus, militibus exhibuit, atque ad judicem vinctus perductus est.

"Contigit autem judicem ea hora qua ad eum Albanus adducebatur, aris assistere ac dæmonibus hostias offerre. Cumque vidisset Albanum, mox ira succensus nimia quod se ille ultro pro hospite quem susceperat militibus offerre ac discrimini dare præsumpsisset, ad simulacra dæmonum quibus adsistebat eum jussit pertrahi: quia rebellem, inquiens, ac sacrilegum celare quam militibus reddere maluisti, ut contemptor divum meritam blasphemiam suam pœnam lueret, quæcumque illi debebantur supplicia tu solvere habes, si a cultu nostræ religionis discedere tentas. At sanctus Albanus qui se ultro persecutoribus fidei Christianum esse prodiderat, nequaquam minas principis metuit; sed accinctus armis militiæ spiritualis, palam jussis illius parere nolle pronuntiabat. Tum judex: 'Cujus,' inquit, 'familiæ vel generis es?' Albanus respondit: 'Quid ad te pertinet

Angles, Offa is stated to have vowed the foundation of a monastery. Matthew Paris represents him to have been perplexed as to the spot upon which to fix his intended foundation. Nevertheless, being directed in a vision to raise out of the earth the body of the first British martyr, Alban, he, with divers friends and bishops, proceeded, on a certain day, to Verulam: the exact spot of Alban's interment, which had long been unknown, being pointed out by a supernatural light.

About a hundred years after the martyrdom of St. Alban, which happened about the end of the third or beginning of the fourth century, Germanus bishop of Auxerre (who, with Lupus bishop of Troyes, was sent to suppress the Pelagian heresy in Britain), A.D. 401, caused the grave in which the body of Alban had been buried, to be opened, and deposited therein close to the qua sim stirpe genitus? sed si veritatem religionis audire desideras, Christianum jam me esse, Christianisque officiis vacare cognosce.' Ait judex: 'Nomen tuum quæro, quod sine mora mihi insinua. Et ille: Albanus, inquit, a parentibus vocor, et Deum verum ac vivum qui universa creavit adoro semper et colo.' Tum judex, repletus iracundia, dixit: 'Si vis perennis vitæ felicitate perfrui, diis magnis sacrificare ne differas.' Albanus respondit: 'Sacrificia hæc quæ a vobis redduntur dæmonibus, nec auxiliari subjectis possunt, nec supplicantium sibi desideria vel vota complere. Quinimmo quicumque his sacrificia simulacris obtulerit, æternas inferni pœnas pro mercede recipiet.' His auditis judex nimio furore commotus, cædi sanctum Dei confessorem a tortoribus præcepit, autumans se verberibus, quam verbis non poterat, cordis ejus emollire constantiam. Qui cum tormentis afficeretur acerrimis, patienter hæc pro Domino, immo gaudenter ferebat. At ubi judex tormentis illum superari vel a cultu Christianæ religionis revocari non posse persensit, capite eum plecti jussit.

"Cumque ad mortem duceretur, pervenit ad flumen quod muro et harena ubi feriendus erat, meatu rapidissimo dividebatur: viditque ibi non parvam hominum multitudinem utriusque sexus, conditionis diversæ, et ætatis, quæ sine dubio, divinitatis instinctu ad obsequium beatissimi confessoris ac martyris vocabatur, et ita fluminis ipsius occupabat pontem ut intra vesperam transire vix posset. Denique cunctis pene egressis, judex sine obsequio in civitate substiterat. Igitur sanctus Albanus cui ardens inerat devotio mentis ad martyrium ocus pervenire, accessit ad torrentem, et dirigens ad cælum oculos, illico siccato alveo, vidit undam suis cecidisse ac viam dedisse vestigiis. Quod cum inter alios etiam ipse carnifex qui eum percussurus erat, vidisset, festinavit et ubi ad locum destinatum morti venerat occurrere: divino nimirum admonitus instinctu, projectoque ense quem strictum tenuerat, pedibus ejus advolvitur, multum desiderans ut cum martyre vel pro martyre quem percutere jubebatur, ipse potius mereretur percuti. Dum ergo is ex persecutore factus esset collega veritatis et fidei, ac jacente ferro esset inter carnifices justa cunctatio, montem cum turbis reverentissimus Dei confessor ascendit: qui opportune lætus, gratia decentissima, quingentis fere passibus ab harena situs est, variis herbarum floribus depictus, immo usquequaque vestitus, in quo nihil repente arduum, nihil præceps, nihil abruptum, quem lateribus longe lateque deductum in modum æquoris natura complanat, dignum videlicet eum, pro insita sibi specie venustatis, jam olim reddens qui beati martyris cruore dicaretur. In hujus ergo vertice sanctus Albanus dari sibi a Deo aquam rogavit, statimque incluso meatu ante pedes ejus fons perennis exortus est, ut omnes agnoscerent etiam torrentem martyri obsequium detulisse: neque enim fieri poterat ut in arduo montis cacumine martyr aquam quam in fluvio non reliquerat, peteret, si hoc opportunum esse non videret. Qui videlicet fluvius ministerio persoluto, devotione completa officii testimonium relinquens, reversus est ad naturam. Decollatus itaque martyr fortissimus ibidem accepit coronam vitæ quam repromisit Deus diligentibus se. Sed ille qui piis cervicibus impias intulit manus gaudere super mortuum non est permissus: namque oculi ejus in terram una cum beati martyris capite deciderunt. Decollatus est ibi tum etiam miles ille, qui antea superno nutu correptus sanctum Dei con-

body of the martyr, the relics of many saints, which he had brought over with him. To this very spot Offa was directed by the supernatural light; and, accordingly, the body of Alban was found deposited, together with some relics, in a coffin of wood, in the same situation in which they had been placed by Germanus.

The more minute details of Offa's discovery are given in the Appendix, from Matthew Paris's History.^a

For the fact of a church having been built upon the spot where Alban suffered, and that within a short period of the time of his martyrdom, we have the testimony of Bede, in the passage already quoted in a Note. To this spot, upon Offa's discovery, Humbert archbishop of Mercia and his attendant prelates removed the body of St. Alban. Offa himself is recorded to have placed round St. Alban's skull a circle of gold, with an inscription signifying his name and title: he also caused the chapel to be enriched with plates of gold and silver, and to be decorated with pictures, hangings, and other ornaments, till a structure of greater magnificence could be erected. This was in the year of our Lord 791.

The next step taken by Offa, was, to assemble together his nobles, prelates, and the chief personages of his kingdom, to advise on the further execution of his design: when it was determined that he should proceed in person to Rome, to solicit the approbation of the pope, and to procure the requisite privileges for his foundation. The king accordingly proceeded on his mission. He offered to Pope Adrian to maintain a college of English youths at his own expence; and confirmed the payment of the tax called Peter pence, an impost of one penny upon every house yielding thirty pence a year. Upon his return from Rome, Offa again assembled his nobles and prelates at Verulam; and, having obtained from the pope the canonization of Alban, determined on taking fresh steps toward the complete accomplishment of his design.

The chapel noticed by Bede, which had been built by the early converts to Christianity, appears to have been appropriated by Offa as the church of his new monastery: the officinal buildings, in addition, being completed by him within four or five years.^b

Having finished his monastery, he made a selection of monks to inhabit it from other religious houses, and especially from that of Bec in Normandy; placing them under an abbat, or superior, named WILLEGOD, one of the persons who had been present at the discovery of St. Alban's body; who was also of a noble family, and related to the king.

Offa granted to his new monastery most ample privileges, endowing it with numerous manors, among which was his manor and palace of Winslow in Buckinghamshire. The former, Matthew Paris assures us, was twenty miles in circumference, and he had procured for it an exemption from the payment of the Peter pence. He established his foundation for the perpetual maintenance of a hundred monks of the Benedictine order, and for the entertainment of all travellers who should seek relief within its precincts. Finding his dissolution approach, he offered his Charter of donation to the monastery upon the high altar of the church; soon after which, he retired to his palace at Offley in the county of Hertford, where he died, A. D. 796: being buried in a chapel on the banks of the river Ouse, near Bedford.

Abbat Willegod is stated to have died of grief within two months after Offa; principally on account of Egfrid, the son of Offa, refusing to let his father be buried at St. Alban's: although Egfrid is expressly named as an especial benefactor to the monastery, bestowing upon it ten manses in Thyrefeld, and five manses, "terram quinque manentium," in Pynesfeld.^c

EADRIC, a monk of the monastery, was unanimously elected abbat by the convent A. D. 796. Matthew Paris

fessorem ferire recusavit: de quo nimirum constat, quia etsi fonte baptismatis non est ablutus, sui tamen est sanguinis lavacro mundatus ac regni cœlestis dignus factus est ingressu. Tum judex tanta miraculorum cœlestium novitate percussus, cessari mox persecutione præcepit, honorem referre incipiens cœdi sanctorum, per quam eos opinabatur prius a Christianæ fidei posse devotione cessare. Passus est autem beatus Albanus die decimo kalendarum Juliarum, juxta civitatem Verolanium, quæ nunc a gente Anglorum Verlamacaestir sive Vætlingecaestir appellatur, ubi postea redeunte temporum Christianorum serenitate ecclesia est mirandi operis atque ejus martyrio condigna extracta. In quo videlicet loco usque ad hanc diem curatio infirmorum et frequentium operatio virtutum celebrari non desinit."

This martyrdom of St. Alban is supposed to have taken place sometime between the years 286 and 305. The precise year of Diocletian's reign, in which the persecution in Britain began, being unsettled.

The name of the soldier who refused to imbrue his hands in the blood of St. Alban, is stated by Capgrave to have been Heraclius.

The priest who converted St. Alban, whom Geoffrey of Monmouth and other writers call ST. AMPHIBALUS, fled to Redburn, three miles from St. Alban's, in Hertfordshire, where he is said to have been stoned to death. His reliques, with those of his companions in martyrdom, were affirmed to have been found at Redburn in 1178; whence they were afterwards translated to St. Alban's monastery. See the Cotton MS. Claud. E. iv.

Matthew Paris gives the following account of the translation of these reliques, in the year 1186:

"Anno Dominicæ incarnationis millesimo centesimo octogesimo sexto, ex præcepto domini Gwarini abbatis ecclesiæ sancti Albani, per subpriorem ejusdem ecclesiæ, et Adam cantorem, et Gilebertum et Baldwinum sacristas, et Rogerum de Hospitali, custodem reliquiarum sancti Amphibali sociorumque ejus, octavo kalendas Julii translatae sunt reliquiae prædictæ de locello in quo primum conditæ fuerant sub domino Simone abbate, in feretrum novum ad hoc specialiter adaptatum, et ad honorem eorumdem martyrorum, et decorem domus Dei, auro et argento arte exclusoria splendide adornatum; quod nimirum, feretrum medius quidem paries intersectat interius, et in ea parte cujus frons intrinsecus passionem S. Amphibali exprimit, repositæ sunt reliquiae ipsius martyris et trium sociorum ejusdem, (qui simul consepulti inventi sunt,) singulæ in singulis ligaturis. In reliqua vero parte, reliquiae sex reliquorum sociorum ejusdem, quorum sepultura seorsum inventæ sunt; singulæ in singulis ligaturis colligatæ; in locello autem millo qui præfatas reliquias continebat, aliquantula portio earundem reliquiarum remansit, simul cum multa numerositate corporalium venustorum, quæ ob sui reverentiam honestè ibi collocata sunt. Ille quoque locellus, cum alio consimili, in dextra parte majoris altaris in Presbyterio super murum collocatus est. In primo, sunt prædicta. In alio, pulvis et ossium particulæ minutissimæ (in quem pulverem, carnes sanctorum martyrum creditur fuisse resolutas, nam in eorum sepulchris cum ossibus inventus est) reponitur." Mat. Par. Vit. viginti trium Abb. p. 1042.

Archbishop Usher laid little stress on the existence of this saint Amphibalus, the name in Greek indicating itself to have been borrowed from the cloak or garment of St. Alban, called by our historians caracalla. Even in the work entitled "Britannia Sancta; or the Lives of the most celebrated British, English, Scottish, and Irish Saints," it is acknowledged that "the acts of St. Amphibalus's martyrdom are to be found in Capgrave, and others; but these, as they have no testimony from antiquity, are of small authority."

Such readers as may be desirous of searching more minutely into the history of St. Alban, are referred to the Acta Sanctorum of the Bollandists, Month of June, tom. iv. p. 146. See also Britannia Sancta, 4to. Lond. 1745, p. 374, and Butler's Lives of the Saints, edit. Dubl. 1780, vol. vi. p. 314. The Cotton manuscript already referred to in the mention of St. Amphibalus, contains numerous articles illustrative of the legendary history of St. Alban.

Walsingham notices two miracles, attributed to St. Alban at a late period:

A.D. 1344. "Eodem anno quædam puella quinquennis, apud molendinum de Bettlespole juxta Redburnam cadens in aquam, subito submersa est, et cum eodem tempore molendinum moleret, et rota vehementius per aquæ abundantis decursum volveretur, ejusdem puellæ corpus pertransivit rotam, sed quod credebatur sub rota contritum vel conquassatum, integrum permansit, et illæsum, saltem ab ipsius rotæ oppressione. Cumque plurimi occurrissent ad spectaculum, ut viderent matrem puellæ vehementius lugere, et compati natæ suæ, fundentes unanimiter orationem ad beatum prothomartyrem Albanum, et mensurantes corpus puellæ, idemque plicantes, quod mirum dictum est, cœpit puella reviviscere, et post modicum temporis perfectæ se vitæ redditam demonstrare." Tho. Walsingh. Hist. edit. 1574, p. 154.

A.D. 1389. "Eo tempore mulier quædam, Agnes nomine, de Londoniis, quam tristitia amentem effecerat, ita ut pene nulli qui solebat frequentare Londonias incognita foret ejus dementia, præ famositatem sui clamoris et operum: admonita erat per visum, sanctum adire Albanum Anglorum prothomartyrem, apud eum consecutura sanitatem et sensum. Quæ mox ut paruit visioni, perfecte pristinae est restituta saluti." Ibid. p. 374.

^c Matt. Parr. edit. 1684, pp. 990, 991. See his Charters, App. Numm. VII. VIII. Matthew Paris reads "terram quinque maneriorum." Mr. Clutterbuck, Hist. of Hertfordshire, vol. i. p. 8, says, "The true name of Offa's son and successor was Eggerht, not Egfride, as is evident from two very rare coins of that prince, which are preserved in the collection of the late Doctor William Hunter, at Glasgow."

calls him "regibus Offæ et filio ejus Egfrido sanguine propinquus, et fœdere dilectionis amicissimus."^a Of the acts of his abbacy no details are preserved.

VULSIG, or ULSINUS, the third abbat, was also of royal origin. Matthew Paris notices him as deviating far from the strict sobriety of his rank and office. He used vestments of silk; hunted; was dainty in his feeding; and courted the favour of the great. He drew some odium down also upon the convent, as well as himself, by the crowds of ladies of rank whom he invited to his table. "Vasa," the historian adds, "quæ rex Offa contulerat concupiscibilia, pallas, et monilia (quorum jactura erat irrestaurabilis) alienavit." He united his female relations in marriage to the nobles and great men, enriching them with grants at the expence of the abbey. Upon his death, which happened from excess of drinking, the members of the monastery obtained restitution of a great part of the wealth acquired from them by the abbat's relations: leaving the spoilers in a state of poverty.^b

WLNOTH, or WULNOTH, was the next abbat. From the ordinances which he made upon his election to the abbacy, he appears to have been sincere in endeavouring to reform the errors of his predecessor. With this view he removed the habitation of some nuns, who had been placed near the convent by Vulsig, to a more distant situation; and ordained certain strict rules, by which they were bound to the observance of appointed hours in the offices of devotion, their meals, and their repose. In process of time, however, he fell into the irregularities of Vulsig; and adopted similar caprices in altering the shape and colour of the monks' dresses.^c He kept hawks, dogs, and huntsmen; and, laying aside the monastic habit himself, he assumed the dress and manners of a sportsman. He likewise dilapidated the goods of the church with players: "mimis et inhonestis."^d

During the time of this abbat, A. D. 930, the Danes reaching St. Alban's in their ravages, broke open the repository which contained St. Alban's bones, and carried away some of them into their own country, where they deposited them in a house of black monks, and built a shrine expressly for their reception. But Matthew Paris adds, "Sed quia non placuit sancto ibi commorari, sed potius ubi sanguinem suum pro Christo fudit, suam procuravit repatriationem."

Having ruled the church eleven years, abbat Wlnoth was struck with palsy, which speedily put an end to his existence.^e

EADFRITH, or EADFRIDUS, the successor of Wlnoth, was another abbat of noble descent; principally remarkable for the elegance of his personal deportment. In his conduct he was vain and despicable. When preferred from the office of prior to be abbat, he threw off the austerity of the cloister, giving himself up to ease and revelry. "In camera assiduus, in claustris rarus, in choro nunquam apparere dignabatur. In tuendis ecclesiæ suæ possessionibus tepidus, in acquirendis pusillanimus." He purchased, however, at considerable expence, a cup much admired for its workmanship and elegance, which he dedicated to St. Alban, and ordained to hold the eucharist.^f

In this abbat's time, Ulpho the prior of the monastery, with Eadfrith's permission, rebuilt the chapel of St. Germanus; whither, having erected some additional buildings to it, and resigned his pastoral staff, Eadfrith himself retired, to pass the rest of his days in solitude.^g

The abbey was now destitute of a pastor for a whole year, during which time, a schism arising in the convent, the goods of the church were squandered: but the bishops interposing, the contest ceased and the monks chose

ULSIN, or ULSIG, for their abbat; a man remarkable for piety and regularity of life. The rise of the present town of St. Alban is almost entirely to be ascribed to him. He established a market in it, and also built the three churches of St. Stephen, St. Michael, and St. Peter, on the north, south, and west sides of the monastery. This was in the reign of Edred.

This abbat testified great regard to the memory of his predecessor, and caused his funeral obsequies to be solemnized with great splendour: burying him among the abbats of the monastery, and often causing mass to be celebrated in the house in which he had lived and died: not far from which he also caused a chapel to be built to the honour of St. Mary Magdalen.^h

At the time of his death, Ulsin is said by Matthew Paris to have been "plenus dierum."

ÆLFRIC, or ALFRIC, was the seventh abbat. He had been bred a monk in the abbey of Abingdon, under Æthelwold then abbat, and afterwards bishop of Winchester: and was made abbat of St. Alban's A.D. 969.ⁱ The most memorable of his acts was, that he gave the cup which Eadfrith had conferred upon the monastery, together with some other valuables, to the king, in exchange for the pool belonging to the royal palace at Kingsbury, called the Fish-pool; which, from its vicinity to the abbey, and the negligence of the persons employed in its management, had become a constant source of annoyance to the monks. In order to secure them from this inconvenience in future, he drained it of its waters, by cutting through the head, and converted great part of the land so drained into gardens.^k

Ælfric was in high repute for his learning. He drew up a Latin and Saxon glossary, one manuscript of which was printed at the end of Somner's Saxon dictionary.^l His translation into Saxon of some of the historical books of the Old Testament, together with a fragment of Judith, was printed at Oxford by Mr. Thwaites in 1698. He also drew up what are called his "Canons;" which are printed in the first volume of Spelman's Councils: and translated numerous homilies from the Latin fathers.

In 983, Ælfric went, at the request of Alphege bishop of Winchester, to regulate the monastery of Cerne in Dorsetshire. In 989, he succeeded Sigeric in the bishoprick of Wilton; and in 994, or 995, became archbishop of Canterbury. He died Nov. 15th, A.D. 1006.^m He was buried at Abingdon, where he first embraced the profession of a monk; whence his remains were afterwards transferred to Canterbury, in the reign of Canute. Ælfric's will has been already given in the Appendix to the account of Abingdon monastery, in which his legacies to the abbey of St. Alban are enumerated.ⁿ

EALDRED was the name of the next abbat. He is represented by Matthew Paris to have made a laborious and extensive search into the ruins of the city of Verulam: destroying the subterraneous ways and passages. Such tiles and bricks as he found whole, and such stones as appeared fit for building, he preserved, proposing, when his revenues would permit, to take down the old church of St. Alban, and build a new one. He had also stored up timber for the purpose: but was prevented by death from carrying his plans into execution.^o

EADMER, or EADMARUS, the ninth abbat, was a man of piety and learning. He increased the stores which had been prepared by his predecessor toward the rebuilding of the monastery; and also continued his researches among the ruins of the ancient city. In the progress of this latter work he discovered the foundations of an ancient palace, in a hollow of one of the walls of which a number of books and rolls were concealed; together with a book which had been singularly preserved from the ravages of time. It was written in letters of gold, bound in oaken boards, and fastened with silk strings: but the language was unknown. At length an aged priest, by name Unwona, discovered it to be written in the tongue which was in use among the ancient inhabitants of Verulam; and to be a History of the Life and Passion of St. Alban. The other works which were discovered were written in Latin: they related to the heathen worship of the ancient inhabitants of the city, and were consigned to the flames. The Life of St. Alban, translated into Latin, continued to be read in the monastery in the time of Matthew Paris, who informs us that, as soon as the translation was completed, the original manuscript mouldered into dust.^a Numerous urns, altars, vessels of glass, coins, and other remains, which the workmen discovered at Verulam, abbat Eadmer ordered to be destroyed. Having, like his predecessor Ealdred, employed several years in preparations for a new monastery, he died without fulfilling his intentions.^b

LEOFRIC, a man of considerable elegance both in person and manners, was the next abbat. He was the son of the earl of Kent, and had relinquished his inheritance in favour of a younger brother. He was afterwards, for his merit, chosen archbishop of Canterbury, but refused the primacy, affirming that his brother Alfric was more worthy of it.^c

In the time of this abbat, a famine prevailing throughout England, he expended the whole of the treasure which had been laid up for rebuilding the church, selling the pillars and stones which had been found, with other materials, and all the gold and silver plate belonging both to the church and to his own table, to relieve the poor; only reserving some jewels of great value, and some cameos, intended for the decoration of a shrine.

This dispersion of the treasures of the monastery caused much discontent in the convent; which was, however, overawed, partly by the authority, and partly by the powerful connections of the abbat.

Abbat Leofric wore costly garments, but black; and would receive no persons to be monks unless they were well born, or at least born in lawful wedlock. Notwithstanding his first refusal, he was finally exalted to the archbishoprick of Canterbury. He died A.D. 1006.

ÆLFRIC, or ALFRIC, the second of that name, brother of Leofric, was the next abbat. He had been chancellor to King Ethelred; and possessed the same generosity of temper, united to personal accomplishments, as his brother. While chanter of the monastery he wrote a Life of St. Alban, which was put to music. This abbat, in his own right, possessed the royal mansion at Kingsbury, with its demesnes, which he had purchased of King Ethelred during his chancellorship. He is said afterwards to have caused the mansion itself to be destroyed, with the exception of one small tower, which Canute, who then reigned, would not suffer to be taken down.^d Mr. Newcome erroneously supposed this tower to be what is now called the clock-house at St. Alban's; a structure certainly not older than the beginning of the fifteenth century.^e

This abbat lived in the reigns of Canute, Harold the First, Hardicanute, and Edward the Confessor, in the reign of the last of which sovereigns the Danes renewed their predatory incursions in the island. Abbat Ælfric, alarmed for the security of his monastery, caused the relics and shrine of St. Alban to be secreted beneath the altar of St. Nicholas, in one of the walls of the monastery; while, to do away suspicion, he sent to the abbat and convent of Ely, requesting permission to deposit the relics of the saint with them till peace should be restored, as their island, being encompassed by impassable marshes, was inaccessible to the public enemy: taking care, at the same time, to send them the relics only of a deceased monk, but, to cloak his deception, accompanied them with numerous ornaments of the church, and an old coat, pretended to be that of St. Amphibalus. Upon the failure of the great invasion projected by the Danes, in consequence of the death of their king, Ælfric demanded restitution of the relics from Ely, but was at first refused: till the abbat and convent there, fearing to be compelled to do justice, restored the chest, having introduced into it other bones in exchange for those which they considered to be the real relics of St. Alban. Ælfric, however, discovered to them, and proved by the testimony of twelve grave religious men, the manner in which he had retained the true relics of St. Alban within his monastery. Edward the Confessor, it is added, was highly incensed when informed of the great duplicity of the monks of Ely.^f

Abbat Ælfric purchased of the king, for a thousand marks, Oxonage and Adulfinton, by way of mortgage: and Northon, Upton, and Becchesworth, for ever, "perpetuo jure tenendas," for five hundred marks.^g

While meditating punishment for the monks of Ely abbat Ælfric died; and was succeeded by

LEOFSTAN, or LEFSTANUS, the twelfth abbat; also called Plumstan; the friend, confessor, and counsellor of King Edward and his queen Editha. He obtained for his monastery the estate called Stodham from Oswulph and his wife Adelitha; and the estates of Redburnham, Langele, Gbeneburga, and Thwareton, from Egelwine Niger and his wife Winefleda, with other donations, rents, and ornaments.^h

Abbat Leofstan, to render the approaches to the monastery safe and commodious to travellers, caused the woods which extended from the edge of the Chiltern, southward, between that part of the country and London, along the course of the Roman road called Watling-street, to be cut down; and, the more effectually to clear this tract from the depredations of robbers who had infested it, granted the manor of Flamsted to a valiant knight called Thurnot, and his fellow soldiers Waldef and Thurman: in compensation for which gift Thurnot gave privately to the abbat five ounces of gold, a palfrey, and a greyhound; covenanting to protect, by himself and his retinue, the western district from the incursions of robbers and beasts of prey, and, in case of war, to assist in protecting the church to the utmost of his power.

These stipulations were punctually complied with by Thurnot and his companions till the time of King William, when, upon their refusal of submission to the Norman yoke, they were deprived of Flamsted, which was given to Roger de Thoni.^a Abbat Leofstan died soon after King Edward the Confessor. His successor was

FREDERIC, or FREThERICUS, a relation of King Canute; who was elected A.D. 1066. In the turbulent times which immediately succeeded abbat Frederic's election, the woods between St. Alban's and London were again infested by robbers; whereupon he leased the manor of Aldenham to the abbat of Westminster for twenty years, upon condition that he should protect the roads in the neighbourhood of the place. At the expiration, however, of this period, for the purpose of keeping possession of a wood called Bruteite, or Prudeitti, the abbat of Westminster refused to surrender the manor so granted, and abbat Frederic was unable to dispossess him on account of his great interest at court.

Previous to the complete conquest of England by King William, abbat Frederic had given refuge, assistance, and countenance, to the refractory nobles. He caused the trees which grew on the road side to be cut down and laid across the way, in order to impede the Conqueror's march to Berkhamstead; and when, at a subsequent meeting, the Conqueror enquired the reason, he replied, that he had only done his duty, and that if all the ecclesiastics in the kingdom had performed theirs in like manner, it would not have been in the power of the Normans to advance so far. He was also a principal instrument in extorting an oath from the king at Berkhamstead, by which he swore upon the relics of the church, that he would observe and keep inviolate all the ancient laws of the realm, which his predecessors, and particularly King Edward, had established.^b Abbat Frederic himself administered the oath. When William, however, was more firmly fixed in his authority, he disregarded the engagements he had made; and abbat Frederic, fearing, from his opposition to the king, that he should be deprived of his dignity, fled to Ely, where he died after a few days' illness. King William kept the abbey in his hands for a considerable time, that he might enjoy its revenues during the vacancy; but at last gave it to

PAUL, a Norman, and relative of Archbishop Lanfranc, who had previously been a monk of Caen. Abbat Paul was preferred to this monastery on the 4th of the kalends of July, A. D. 1077.^c

It was during the time of this abbat that the General Survey of the kingdom was undertaken by the Conqueror, in which the following are the possessions of St. Alban's monastery recorded.

In Berkshire, four hides at Henret. In Hertfordshire, twenty hides at Henamestede, with pannage for a thousand hogs: six hides in Scenlai, with pannage for four hundred hogs: ten hides in Sandridge, with pannage for three hundred hogs: ten hides in Waldene: in the vill of St. Alban ten hides, with forty-six burgesses, the tolls and other rents of the town, amounting to eleven pounds thirteen shillings per year; beside which there was pannage for a thousand hogs, a park of deer, and a fish-pool: Codicote and Oxewiche in the hundred of Bradwatre, which had existed as two manors in the time of King Edward the Confessor, were rated as one in the Survey, paying geld for ten hides: in Nortone four hides: three hides in Escepehale: in Langelai five hides, with pannage for three hundred hogs: in Red-borne seven hides and one virgate, with pannage for three hundred hogs: in Absa three hides, with pannage for three hundred hogs: in Wenrige a hide and a half, with pannage for three hundred hogs: in Titebersth half a hide: in Redborne three virgates and a half more, with pannage for two hundred hogs: in Prichemareworde fifteen hides, with pannage for twelve hundred hogs: in Caissov twenty hides, with pannage for a thousand hogs: in Eldeham one hide, with pannage for a hundred hogs: in Nevham three hides and three virgates: in Hegæstanestone eight hides and three virgates: and in Benedis one hide. In Buckinghamshire, at Grenesberge five hides: in Estone ten hides: and in Weneslai fifteen hides. The total number of hides amounted to a hundred and seventy-two, beside ten virgates and a half. The produce of these lands in the time of King Edward the Confessor appears to have amounted to the annual sum of 263*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.*: and though in two or three manors it had been lessened, the gross income at the time of forming the Survey had increased to 278*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.*^d

Matthew Paris informs us that abbat Paul rebuilt the church and the other buildings of the monastery, all but the bake-house and mill-house, from the stones and tiles of Verulam and the materials of wood which his predecessors had collected; Archbishop Lanfranc supplying him, at the same time, with abundance of treasure.^e

Abbat Paul is represented to have been a man of piety and learning, rigid in his observance of the monastic rule, and temperate in reforming the irregularities which had crept into his convent. He is said to have introduced what are called the 'Constitutions of Lanfranc.' By his diligence and address he procured the restitution to his monastery of a wood called Eiwood, with the three small estates, "prædiola," of Tiwa, Aspa, and Cnicumb, which had been alienated from the church in the time of King Edward the Confessor. He also recovered the vill of Redburn, with the manor of Childewic.

In his time, also, the following possessions are recorded by Matthew Paris as having been added to the endowments of the monastery: two hides of land in Sepehal; three virgates in Potton; a carucate of land called Letinge; land in Talinton; three manses, with as many gardens, at Glaston in Rutlandshire; and the manor of Henreth; the churches of St. Benedict and All Saints in Cambridge; and some churches in London, the donation of one of which (the church of St. Alban Wood-street) he exchanged with the abbat of Westminster.^f

Beside these, there were given one church in Stamford, with eleven acres of land withoutside the town; the church of Glaston, with a carucate of land, which was afterwards assigned to the cell of St. Mary Belvoir; the tithes of Cundell, Ringeton, Roinges, Bretheham, Herlaga, Thamisford, Clifton, Huntleslege, Gertheham, Brunfeld, and Reedlag; two parts of the tithes of Sedinton and Bocton; the whole tithe of Trumpinton; two parts of the tithe of Wacerleia; and in Hertfordshire, two parts of the tithes of Esenden, Beiford, and Hartfordensbiri; together with the church of the Holy Trinity in Walingford, half the right of the church of St. Mary in the same place, and half a hide of land without the town. To the church of the Holy Trinity at Walingford abbat Paul afterwards sent some monks to form a cell. During abbat Paul's administration, also, Robert de Mumbray, or Mowbray, earl of Northumberland, placed certain monks in the church of St. Mary at Tynemouth. The cells of Belvoir, Hertford, and Binham, were also about this time conferred upon the church.

Many other estates, rents, and benefices, were also given, and subsequently lost, if we may believe the testimony of Matthew Paris: "Multa autem alia prædia, redditus, et beneficia, huic ecclesiæ, prudentia hujus abbatis Pauli, sunt collata, quæ quia scripta non sunt et propter hominum simplicitatem solo usu possessa, ablata sunt et à memoria hominum elapsa."

It was in the time of this abbat that a Scriptorium appears to have been first established at St. Alban's: one Robert, a Norman knight, bestowing two parts of the tithe of his demesne at Hatfield for this purpose; to which the tithes of Redburn were also appropriated.^a

The congregation of nuns, at this time resident in the monastery, he restrained to certain holy and decent rules, placing them in the almonry and its vicinity, and ordaining that they should be present at divine service both by night and day: further appointing them an orderly habit, viz. a black mantle, and other things suitable; regulating also their times of sleeping, watching, and exercise, as well as their diet.

In the monastery of the monks, also, when abbat Paul had completed the construction of the Offices, he introduced a system of reform in the monastic manners. He restrained the immoderate use of flesh meat, occasionally substituting herrings in the form which the Normans called karpie, or karenpie. He bestowed a silver basin upon the church, ordering a wax candle to be placed in it, to burn constantly before the high altar: and appointed three candlesticks of silver, gilt, to be placed before the same altar, with tapers in them, to be lighted at proper times: beside two silver candlesticks of exquisite workmanship, gilt, to be carried on prime festivals with tapers, before the body of St. Alban. He ordained that a lantern, with a light, should be carried about the choir at night by one of the monks, to rouse such of the brethren as were drowsy: and that a lantern of a larger size should be borne by persons in the act of doing penance. He also constructed a prison for the incorrigible. He increased the number of bells in the church tower; and decorated the recess beyond the high altar with painting.

Matthew Paris charges abbat Paul with losing, by his negligence, from the possessions of the monastery, the manor of Baston; and also with letting numerous lands belonging to the abbey to disadvantage. He likewise charges him with destroying the tombs of the abbats his predecessors, calling them rude and ignorant men: "vel contemnendo eos quia Anglicos, vel invadendo quia ferè omnes stirpe regali, vel magnatum præclaro sanguine fuerant procreati." He leased out to Peter de Valoniis, or Valoignes, for the term of his life, the wood of Northawe, for the annual rent of twenty-five shillings and two hawks; receiving also a hundred shillings "in gersoma," to the prejudice of the church. Matthew Paris further notices some minor instances of detriment to the church revenues.

Having governed the monastery commendably for sixteen years, abbat Paul died at Colewich, having been upon a pastoral visitation to the cell of Tynemouth, on the 3d of the ides of November, 1093, in the fifth year of William Rufus.^b

After his death, a contention appears to have arisen in the convent between the Norman and the English monks; advantage of which was so far taken by the king, that the abbey remained vacant in his hands four years, during which time its woods were cut down, and its revenues impoverished. In the fifth year of the vacancy, A.D. 1097,

RICHARD DE ALBINI, or ALBENEIO, a Norman of noble extraction, was appointed abbat: being honoured with the friendship not only of King William the Second, but of King Henry the First. Matthew Paris represents him to have been a man of singular address, surpassing all the abbats of England in eloquence: by the exercise of which accomplishment he is stated to have procured for his monastery the church of St. Mary Wymondham as a cell. The church of Hatfield Peverel, also, in Essex, with the church of Melebroc, or Millbrook, in Bedfordshire, were likewise appropriated in his time, for another cell.

Other grants to the church during his abbacy were, the manor of Tinghurst, with the church and tithes; the vill named Wilbaldestude; land to the value of thirty shillings in Wallingford; the manor of Estwale in Kent; and numerous parcels of lands and tithes in places of lesser note.

Matthew Paris, who enumerates the gifts of various kinds which he bestowed upon his monastery, also relates his miraculous recovery from a withered arm, by the assistance of St. Cuthbert.^c

The principal event of his time was the dedication of the new church which had been erected by abbat Paul; at the ceremonial of which, on the 5th of the kalends of June, A.D. 1115, King Henry the First, with his queen and principal nobles, accompanied by numerous churchmen, were present: the consecration being performed by Geoffrey archbishop of Rouen, Richard bishop of London, Ralph bishop of Durham, Robert bishop of Lincoln, Roger bishop of Salisbury, and many abbats: the king taking occasion at this time to bestow the manor of Bissopescote upon the monastery.^d

The historian, however, has recorded a few of abbat de Albin's failings. He is stated to have been the first abbat who subjected the monastery of St. Alban to the bishops of Lincoln, "ut sic monachos suos rigidius, ut dicitur, gubernaret:" his predecessors having professed obedience to the archbishops of Canterbury only. He is stated to have lost the manor of Tiwe, and the church of Flamsted, which had been a chapel belonging to the church of Redburn; and this, as was believed, by collusion, that he might make the better temporal provision for his friends. He granted the manor of Stanmore in fee-farm, for the annual sum of sixty shillings, to Serlo, the brother of Thurtin Dapifer, and his heirs: the land of Sopwelle to Robert, styled Cementarius, for eight shillings: Themislage, and Archimores, in fee-farm, for ten shillings a year, to Gospatric the son of Earl Gospatric, and his son Waldeve, for their lives: land in Karleb to William the chaplain of Wido de Bacloil, for an annual mark of silver: and land in Syret to Peter the butler of William earl of Moretaine.

Having ruled the monastery twenty-one years, abbat Richard de Albini died on the 17th of the kalends of June, A.D. 1119.^a He was buried in the chapel which he had himself dedicated to St. Cuthbert in consequence of the restoration of his withered arm. His epitaph is preserved in Weever's Funeral Monuments.^b

Geoffrey de Gorram, or Gorham, was the next abbat; of a good family in Normandy; elected by the unanimous consent of the monks. He came originally from Maine, at the invitation of abbat Richard, while a layman, to take upon him the charge of the school at St. Alban's; but not arriving in time, he found the school given to another. Upon this he read lectures at Dunstable, waiting till another vacancy should occur at St. Alban's. During his stay at Dunstable he invented what was then usually called a 'Miracle,' or Play of St. Katherine, for the performance of which he borrowed the choral copes from the sacrist of St. Alban's: but, on the night following the representation, the house in which he resided, together with his books, and the copes which had been borrowed, were burnt by an accidental fire. In atonement for his misfortune he assumed the religious habit in St. Alban's monastery; and this, Matthew Paris says, was the reason why he afterwards took such care, when abbat, to provide rich copes for the choir of his church.^c

The economical regulations which abbat Gorham framed for his monastery, together with his assignment of its revenues, are detailed in a note in the words of Matthew Paris.^d

Abbat Geoffrey purchased of King Henry the First land of the value of twenty shillings at Bissopescote, giving for the same, and its appurtenances, to the said king, a hundred grass oxen. There was also, in his time, given to this church a certain salt-pit at Vik, with the person managing it, and his land; one hide at Meindelton, with the tithe of the church of that town; and the hermitage of Modri, which had belonged to Ralph the anchorite, with its appurtenances. Be it also known that the said abbat translated the monks from Mulebroc to the aforesaid hermitage of Modri, and having erected a church and officinal buildings, caused them to live there regularly. It was in his time, likewise, that Emma de Bradeweia and her son Hugh quitted all claim in Bradewey to the monastery, in full convent, laying a knife upon the altar in token of their donation; abbat Geoffrey at the same time paying to them forty shillings.

Abbat Geoffrey built a large hall within the monastery, with a double roof, expressly for the entertainment of guests; near which he built a room called the queen's bed-chamber, because it was assigned for the queen, except whom it was not lawful for any woman to be lodged in the monastery. He also built another house like the hall, with a chapel towards the east, for an infirmary; the regulations of which will be found below.^e And a third hall, like the two former, for the use of a certain friend and relation of his at Westwick, who had been a benefactor to the church.

He also began a sumptuous shrine for the reception of St. Alban's body; but when he had expended upon it the sum of sixty pounds, a year of great scarcity inter-

Hanc autem donationem solemniter in capitulo recitavit, approbavit, et irrefragabiliter confirmavit. Statimque post capitulum, assumpto secum conventu, obtulit manibus junctis super majus altare, et omnes infractores terribiliter excommunicavit, vindictam beato martyri, cum lachrymis committendo. Hæc autem ut in vinum conventui et alias consolationes cederet munificentia, factum est ei ad commodum. Solebat enim ipse antehac, et omnes ejus successores [antecessores] quolibet festo præcipuo, vinum dare conventui, quæ consuetudo tunc cessavit ampliatio hoc beneficio.

vened, when he sold the materials and ornaments of which it was constructed for the relief of the poor.^a The next year, however, he was enabled, by the productiveness of the season, to recommence his labours; employing one Anketill, a monk of the monastery, who had been mint-master to the king of Denmark, upon the goldsmith's work. The principal material of the shrine was silver, ornamented with precious stones selected from the treasury of the monastery. One of these was so large that a man could not grasp it in his hand; it was said to help women in labour, and therefore was not fixed to the shrine, that it might more easily be carried where it was needed. Upon it was carved a figure, as of one in ragged clothes, holding a spear in one hand, with a snake winding itself up it, and in the other hand a boy bearing a buckler. This stone was given to the monastery by King Ethelred. The Cotton manuscript Nero D. vii. calls it an onyx.^b Upon the completion of the shrine, on the 4th of the nones of August in the 29th year of Henry the First, the bones of St. Alban were transferred from their ancient tomb to the new repository, in the presence of Alexander bishop of Lincoln, Walter abbat of Eynsham, who had formerly been prior of St. Alban's, Elias abbat of the church of the Holy Trinity at Rouen, and others.^c On this occasion no fewer than three hundred poor persons were entertained by the abbat in the court of the monastery.^d

Abbat Geoffrey de Gorham ordered six festivals in the year to be kept at St. Alban's with peculiar solemnity; these were the Ascension, St. Matthew, St. John Port-Latin, St. Giles, the Conception of the Virgin Mary, and St. Katherine. Matthew Paris presents us with a long list of his donations to the monastery, in the form of copes, ornaments, books, &c.:^e but nevertheless supplies us with the counterpart of his character in the enumeration of certain instances of negligence and misconduct. He perpetuated several contracts made to the prejudice of the monastery by his predecessor. He moreover twice rebuilt from the foundations the church of the Holy Trinity in the Wood, "de bosco," for nuns,^f which had been burnt; and endowed it not only with the tithes of the domain of Caisho, but with two parts of the tithe of the whole parish of Watford; and this without the consent of the convent. He also granted the wood of Northaw to Roger de Valoines; and the whole territory of Westwick, which appertained to the support of the monks table, and which had been granted for his life only to Humbald, to Hugh the son of Humbald, together with his (the abbat's) sister in marriage. Having ruled the monastery twenty-six years and some months, abbat Geoffrey died on the 5th of the kalends of March, A.D. 1146.^g

RALPH DE GUBIUM, or GOBION, was the next, and seventeenth abbat: elected after a short vacancy. While a layman he had acted as treasurer to Alexander bishop of Lincoln, by whose interest he was chosen a monk at St. Alban's. Even after he had taken upon him the monastic habit he remained in the service of the bishop, who promised, should he survive Geoffrey, that he would procure for him the abbacy. "Episcopi enim," Matthew Paris adds, "pro voluntate omnia in ecclesia sancti Albani ordinabant et disponebant, aliquando, contra honestatem et ejus utilitatem."

Abbat Gubium was a man of a literary turn, a lover and collector of books, and is said to have managed the affairs of his monastery with so much economy, that at the time of his death it was completely discharged of debt. He built the abbat's apartments adjoining the church, of solid workmanship. After which, going into France, he obtained from Pope Eugenius III., at Auxerre, a Charter of privileges. He appointed a procession to be made every week, in white, in his church, in commemoration of the Virgin Mary, at her altar. He also gave to the kitchen of the convent, for ever, the manor of Sepehale, which his predecessor Geoffrey had of his own authority granted to Adam the cellarer for two farms, that is 4*l.* 12*s.* This donation abbat Gubium confirmed in the chapter. Matthew Paris says, he deposed his prior Alquin wrongfully, who fled, on account of the abbat's implacable dislike, to Westminster, in which monastery he also held a monk's place, and where he afterwards became prior. In other respects, the historian informs us, abbat Gubium was not entirely blameless. He stripped the shrine of St. Alban, which his predecessor had constructed, of its rich plates of silver, to purchase the vill of Brantefeld for eighty marks. He likewise sold many of the gems or jewels of the monastery, at a time when the sale of the gold and silver vessels of his sideboard would have amply provided for the purchase. When Brantefeld was purchased, however, he gave it to the monastery, in the first instance for the completion of the shrine which he had despoiled, and afterwards for the repair of the church for ever.ⁱ

About the beginning of the fifth year of his abbacy, being seized with an incurable disorder, and sensible of the impossibility of his recovery, he resigned his office in favour of Robert de Gorham, the prior of the monastery, whose promotion he survived but twenty-nine days.^k

abbat of that name, received the benediction on the 14th of the kalends of July, A. D. 1151. Matthew Paris says, he was called the reformer of the liberties of St. Alban's church. He first assumed the monastic habit abroad; but, upon his uncle's elevation, obtained permission of the abbat under whose rule he lived to pay a visit to his relation. Pleased with the order and regularity of the convent of St. Alban, he solicited to become a member, and was received, after he had obtained letters dimissory from the abbat of his foreign convent. At St. Alban's he was made "secretarius," or, as Stevens calls him, sacrist, during his continuance in which office he superintended the repairs of the monastery, and covered the greater part of the roof of the church with lead. Not long after, he was chosen prior; and within two years abbat. At his first promotion to the latter dignity he gave to the church a cope of ten marks value, which, with the consent of the convent, he afterwards transferred to the church of St. Oswin at Tynemouth.

In the economical part of his government abbat Robert de Gorham appears to have been of great service to the interests of his monastery: nor was he wanting in liberality to persons beyond the precincts of his convent. He assisted Laurence abbat of Westminster, who was left destitute by the dilapidations of his predecessor, in a way that enabled him to support his rank and situation till the revenues of his monastery came round: in return for which abbat Gorham received ingratitude only: more particularly in the detention of the manor of Aldenham.

It was in the time of this abbat that a certain clerk named Nicholas Brekespere, born in a village belonging to the abbat named Langele, or Langley, (being negligent in his duty as a clergyman, but young, and of a handsome person,) sought to be admitted to the habit of the order; being examined, however, as to his qualifications, and found deficient, the abbat said to him in a civil manner, "Expecta, fili, et adhuc scholam exerce, ut aptior habearis." Out of countenance, and considering the delay as a refusal, the clerk went away to Paris, where, becoming diligent in his studies, he exceeded all his companions in learning. At length, being made a canon of St. Rufus near Valence, he was sent to Rome to transact some business of importance; repeating his visits a second and a third time, he was recommended by his abilities to the notice of the conclave, was elected Cardinal, and finally elevated to the popedom by the name of Adrian the Fourth.^a

Abbat Robert de Gorham purchased of Gilbert earl of Gloucester, at the price of eighty marks, the advowson of the church of Luiton, with all its appurtenances, which he gave to the cellarer of the Strangers, or Guests, with the church of Hocton, for the entertainment of guests, the rebuilding and repairing the houses of the abbey court, and the celebration of his anniversary.^b From King Stephen, also, he obtained the complete possession of the remaining property at Kingsbury, which had been unjustly held by certain officers of the king, of servile condition, to the annoyance of the monastery.^c

After the accession of King Henry the Second, and the elevation of Pope Adrian the Fourth, abbat Gorham sate out for Rome, taking with him from the king particular letters of recommendation in respect of his abbey. He found the pope at Benevento: but Adrian's recollection of the refusal he had endured when desirous of becoming a monk of St. Alban's prevented abbat Gorham, at first, from being received with the complacency he had expected. The account of the interview will be found in the Notes in the words of Matthew Paris. The pope, however, became in a short time both better pleased and reconciled: and, finally, abbat Gorham obtained from him for his monastery a grant of more extensive privileges than any other abbey had before received. St. Alban's became exempt from episcopal jurisdiction, as well in its cells as in the parent monastery; being subject to no ecclesiastical power but that of the pope himself.^d

Soon after abbat Gorham's return, a synod of lords spiritual and temporal was held at London, in which the Mitras etiam tres, et sandalia operis mirifici, quæ domina Christina priorissa de Markgate diligentissime fecerat. Et cum omnia serenissimo vultu intuitus est dominus papa, omnia acceptavit, sed non accepit, præter mitras et sandalia, quia admirabilis operis. Multum autem devotionem et urbanitatem ipsius commendavit, et jocose ait, 'Abnuo recipere munera tua, quia me aliquando ad alas religionis domus tuæ confugientem, et habitum Monasticum charitative postulantem, recipere renuisti.' Cui abbas: 'Domine, vos nequaquam potuimus recipere, voluntas enim Domini repugnavit, cujus prudentia vitam vestram direxit ad altiora.' Et respondit dominus papa, 'Eleganter et civiliter respondisti,' et complacuit ei responsionis verbum. Et addidit, 'Abbas charissime, audacter pete quod vis, non poterit beato Albano deesse suos Albanensis.' Tunc abbas in bonam spem erectus, circumspectus et prudens, de licentia domini papæ, omnia illa auri et argenti munera (quæ ferè ad duas marcas æstimabantur) cardinalibus et familiaribus domini papæ, jo-

Extollitur nomen ejus ad sidera, omnium adepto favore Romanorum. Cum igitur una dierum familiariter, et secreto colloquerentur dominus papa et abbas, intimavit abbas, quasi abortis lachrymis et singultibus sermonem prorumpentibus, varias oppressiones Lincolniensis episcopi, insidias, irruptiones, preces imperiosas, repulsas damnosas episcopaliū, etiam vilium personarum superbiam intollerabilem. Dominus igitur papa misertus et misertus, concessit ecclesiæ sancti Albani insigne privilegium, sic incipiens, 'Incomprehensibilis, &c.' In quo nos ab omni episcoporum subjectione, tam in corpore monasterii degentes, quàm in cellis seu in custodiis villarum habitantes, ita liberos effecit, et nullum episcopum (præter Romanorum Pontificem) in posterum habeamus. Et præter hoc, privilegia nobilia alia plura, aded ut non sit aliud cænobium in Anglia ipsi ecclesiæ sancti Albani in privilegiis comparabile. Et cum aliquandiu in curia cum domino papa moram protaxisset abbas, et familiare colloquium sæpe commiscerent, retulit abbas quasdam consuetudines hospitalis charitatis, cænobii sancti Albani: et quomodo per unam diætam competentem, ita ut omnibus tam pedes quam eques itinerantibus, nec minima nec magna indicetur; distat a Londoniis, ubi totius regni concursus est populorum. Et illac omnium aquilonarium meantium et remeantium, frequens hospitatio. Interseruit quoque, quasi occasionaliter abbas, qui ipse et episcopi prædicti Romam tendentes, cum ad monasteriorum sancti Benedicti super Liger. gratia hospitandi declinassent, abbas eis, tam procurationem quàm tectum, procaciter denegavit. Unde papa commotus, scripsit ejusdem ecclesiæ abbati, epistolam acrem, comminationem, et paternam correptionem continentem, sic incipientem: 'Si religiosæ professionis,' &c. Unde Abbas memoratus confusus, correptus, et correctus, statuta hospitalitatis cænobii sui, salubriter ampliavit; papalem metuens severitatem. Et intrans capitulum, eventus varios itineris et periculorum in mari et in terra, seriatim conventui enarravit: deinde clausulam laborum explanavit. Quomodo, scilicet, propositum suum ad plenum in omnibus foeliciter consummavit. Lætati sunt audientes, Deo sanctoque martyri gratias persolventes." Ibid. p. 1020.

archbishop of Canterbury, legate of the apostolic See, presided. The bishop of Lincoln, Robert de Querceto, or Du Chesne, finding that abbat Robert had procured his authority to be set aside, excused his attendance at the meeting.^a The dissension, however, between the bishop and the abbat continued, although the privileges granted by Adrian were confirmed by his successor, Pope Alexander the Third.^b At last, in the twelfth year of K. Henry the Second, in the presence of the king and a large assembly both of bishops and nobility, the whole affair was amicably adjusted; the abbat giving the bishop the farm of Tynhurst in Buckinghamshire, worth ten pounds, and the bishop renouncing his claim of superiority over the monastery.^c On the Easter-day following this adjustment, the abbat went in procession, for the first time, to mass, mitred, and in his other pontifical ornaments: thenceforward holding a synod of the clergy within the jurisdiction of his office, twice a year, mitred.^d

Matthew Paris gives an extended account of a dispute in abbat Robert de Gorham's time concerning the wood of Northaw. This wood had been granted by Paul, the fourteenth abbat, to Peter de Valoniis, or Valoines, the elder, for the term of his life: afterwards to Roger, the son of Peter de Valoines, by abbat Geoffrey: and to Peter, the grandson, by abbat Ralph: giving rise to a belief that, as the property had been possessed for three generations, it was held not by grant but by hereditary right. Peter, the grandson, falling sick, confessed to two monks of the monastery who were sent to visit him, that he held the land alone by the good will of the convent. Dying, however, before he had made the surrender of the property, his brother Robert claimed it as an inheritance; and was subsequently put into possession by authority. Finally, however, restitution was made to the abbat; and Robert de Valoines was compelled to make compensation for spoil and damage which he had wantonly made upon the estate.^e

Abbat Robert de Gorham had also a long and difficult contest with the earl of Arundel respecting the cell of Wimondham; in which he was at length victorious.^f

He appears to have encouraged the transcription of books for the abbey library. He repaired the shrine of St. Alban, and replaced the plates and ornaments of which it had been despoiled by abbat Ralph. He likewise rebuilt the chapter-house, the "regale locutorium" or king's parlour, the chapel of St. Nicholas, that part of the cloister opposite to the chapter-house, the lavatory, and a stable of considerable extent for the horses of the convent.^g

Having ruled the monastery fifteen years, four months, and a few days, he died on the 20th of the kalends of November, 1166; having received extreme unction from Laurence abbat of Westminster, who, with Gilbert Foliot bishop of London attended his funeral. He was buried in the chapter-house, at the feet of abbat Paul, who, according to the historian, was the first of the abbats of St. Alban's who wore the pontifical dress.^h

Upon his death the revenues of the monastery were confiscated by precept from the king's justiciary, the earl of Leicester; the debts of the house at that time amounting to six hundred and sixty marks.ⁱ

The king, who is said deeply to have lamented abbat Gorham's death, was immediately solicited for a licence to elect a successor, but kept the abbey vacant for more than four months. Being much importuned, however, he directed Gilbert bishop of London to go down to St. Alban's and have three persons nominated from whom he might choose an abbat. This was done: when

SIMON, the prior of the church,^k was constituted abbat Gorham's successor: a man of high repute both for moral character and learning: "Scripturarum et librorum amator specialis."^l He received the benediction, and was installed by the bishop of London on the day of his institution, 3 kal. June, 1167.

It was in the time of this abbat that the quarrel which had arisen between King Henry the Second and Archbishop Becket terminated in the death of the latter. Abbat Simon appears to have been the archbishop's intimate friend; and was sent by him to Henry the son of K. Henry the Second to try to negotiate a reconciliation. Matthew Paris has given a minute account of the interview between the abbat and the archbishop at Harrow.^m

Abbat Simon completed the shrine of St. Alban which had been so long constructing.ⁿ He procured the chapel of St. Cuthbert near the cloister, which had been built by abbat Richard, to be dedicated to that same St. Cuthbert and St. John Baptist by the bishop of Durham. He gave numerous rich cups and ornaments, also, for the service of the church: and is expressly mentioned constantly to have maintained two or three scribes in his own chamber, who were employed in copying Books.^o

In another part of his work, under the year 1178, while Simon was abbat, Matthew Paris has given us a long history of the supposed finding of the body of St. Amphibalus, whose relics were in that year translated to St. Alban's.^p

The faults laid to the charge of abbat Simon were, that at his death he left the abbey indebted above six hundred marks to the Jews, beside other debts amounting to two hundred marks; ^q and that, as had been usual with many of his predecessors, he bestowed too much of the property of the monastery upon his kindred.

Having governed the monastery fifteen years, abbat Simon died, A. D. 1188.^r

It is somewhat singular that the annals of Waverley and Ralph de Diceto should place the death of

abbat Simon in 1183;^a and the Annals of Winton as early as 1170.^b

GARINUS, or WARIN, the twentieth abbat, was descended of a family in moderate circumstances at Cambridge. Long before he took the monastic habit upon him, he was remarkable for the goodness of his life, a propensity to literature, and gracefulness of person. He became a monk of St. Alban's with his brother Matthew, and was soon after chosen Prior. On the death of abbat Simon, with the exception of the vote of William Martel the sacrist, he had the unanimous consent of the convent to his election.^c His brother Matthew, soon after, succeeded him in the office of prior.

The most remarkable circumstance recorded by Matthew Paris during the abbacy of Warin, was his resistance to the bishop of Lincoln's attempt, at the time King Henry the Second visited St. Alban's, again to subject the monastery to the jurisdiction of his see. The detail is too curious to be omitted. It is given in the Note in the words of Matthew Paris.^d The abbat's success on this occasion appears to have inspired him with greater confidence in the ruling of his monastery than he before possessed: and he in consequence framed some new ordinances for the regulation of the convent.^e One of the most remarkable of these related to a change in the mode of burial of the monks, by which he determined, that the bodies of those who died should no longer be interred in the mere grave, but placed in coffins of stone.

This abbat founded the Monastery or Hospital of St. Mary de Pratis, endowing it with a part of the ancient possessions of St. Alban's.

His translation of the relics of St. Amphibalus from the case in which they had been laid up by abbat Simon to a new and more sumptuous shrine, in the year 1186, has been already detailed.^f

Other acts of munificence are also mentioned of him by the historians of the monastery. When King Richard the First was detained a prisoner in Germany, and had demanded all the chalices in England to pay the ransom required of him, our abbat laid down two hundred marks to redeem those belonging to his church. He bestowed a chasuble upon his monastery of extraordinary value, of a purple colour, wrought with figures of birds and embroidered with pearls. Finding his end also drawing near, he bequeathed a hundred marks to his successor to renew the front of the Church.^g

Abbat Warin died on the 3d of the kalends of May, A.D. 1195.^h

JOHN DE CELLA was the next abbat. Newcome says, he was so called from the place of his birth, Merkgate Cell, not far from Studham in Bedfordshire; and therefore sometimes called John of Studham.ⁱ Matthew Paris, however, merely names Studham as his birthplace. The name de Cella was more probably obtained in later life from the cell of Walingford, over which he presided at the time he was chosen abbat of St. Alban's.

He is represented to have been a man of exemplary piety, and rigid in the observance of monastic discipline. In early life he had been a frequenter of the schools of Paris: retaining in more advanced life a high character for skill in grammar, poetry, and physic.^k Having taken upon him the religious habit, it was not long before he was chosen to preside over the cell already mentioned.

Matthew Paris says, that being, as is usual with scholars, unacquainted with the management of household affairs, abbat John de Cella, when at St. Alban's, gave himself up to study, contemplation, and continual prayer: preserving to himself the authority of a ruler, but in fact committing the management of the temporal concerns of the monastery within doors to Reymund his prior, and those without doors to Roger de Parc the cellarer. Relying on the advice and assistance of these two persons, he pulled down the front of the church, which had been composed of tiles strongly compacted in mortar. For the renewal of the work he brought together large quantities of materials, consisting of timber, stones, and columns; employing as the master-builder one Hugh de Goldclif, an excellent workman, but a knave.^l The hundred marks which had been bequeathed by his predecessor toward the new erection, and many more, were expended before the foundation was brought above the ground. Matthew Paris enlarges much upon the expensive and unnecessary ornaments with which Hugh de Goldclif decorated his work before he had raised it to half its intended height. The abbat himself at last grew weary of the undertaking. The walls being laid open in frosty weather, the stones, which were soft, mouldered away, and the building fell under its own weight. The workmen upon this withdrew; nor were they paid their wages. The abbat, however, did not despair: he now entrusted the work to one of the brethren of the monastery, named Gilbert de Eversolt, ordering one sheaf of corn to be contributed toward the work from every acre sown of the abbey estates. This tax (begun in the third year of abbat John de Cella's rule) was continued through the remainder of his life, about seventeen years, and for ten years of the abbacy of his successor. Upon the death of Gilbert de Eversholt, the care of the work devolved on another of the monks, named Gilbert de Sisseverne, who continued in the direction of it for about thirty years.

Abbat John de Cella finding the work to go on very slowly, and despairing of ever completing what he had begun, turned his thoughts to other objects of repair. He pulled down the old refectory, which was not only ruinous but dark, and rebuilt it in a handsomer

^c "In cujus electionem, totus conventus unanimiter consentit, præter dominum Gulielmum Martel sacristam, ad eandem dignitatem, secus quam deceret, aspirantem. Asserebat enim, quod idem Garinus (strabo fere) penitus visu privabatur: natalia trahens ex vulgaribus burgensibus, solis emolumentis denariorum, qualitercunque inhiantibus. Quos enim probrosè in propatulo, salinarios, appellavit. Præconizabat etiam eum cum fratre suo Mathæo, totum conventum miserabiliter conculcatum, si in abbatem eligeretur atque dispersum, nec audiret quisquam mutire contra eos. Nec omnino suam sententiam in posterum hæc fefellit opinio, sicut sequens sermo declarabit." Mat. Par. p. 1039.

^d "Contigit autem una dierum, quod dominus rex Henricus secundus venit ad sanctum Albanum hospitaturus; cui occurrens abbas ipsum cum omni gaudio et reverentia suscepit. Erat autem regi acceptissimus, et propter sui liberalitatem et dapsilitatem charissimus. Postulavit igitur in crastino rex, ut intrans capitulum fratres suos visitaret; fatebatur enim se esse confratrem conventus et monachum S. Albani. Et cum more suo demissa facie humiliter ingrederetur; sequebatur eum multorum series nobilium. Inter quos fuit proximior Lincolnensis episcopus, Walterus de Constantiis, citò posthac creatus in archiepiscopum Rothomagensis. Et cum sedisset rex in sede media, ubi moris est abbati sedere; inclinans hinc indeque, conventum salutavit, instanter deprecando, ut pro ipso et regina et liberis suis, necnon pro statu regni, Deum indefessis precibus postularent. Quod et conventus devotè concessit, et se multiplici merito hoc debere facere contestaba-

tur. Et ait Walterus Lincolnensis episcopus (qui juxta latus regis immediatè consedit sinistram, abbate verò a dextris proximò collato) 'Domine mi rex, derogatum est mihi in emancipatione hujus nobilis Abbatie: multum et enormiter mutilatur ecclesia Lincolnensis, mihi a vobis commissæ, in abscissione tam nobilis membri. Habeo arduam (ex permissione vestra) adversum Abbatem hunc movere quæstionem. Quicquid egerit prædecessor meus, qui simplex nimis fuit, et benignus circumventus; novit mundus, quod hæc ecclesia subjecta est Lincolnensi; et quod erratum est, expedit ut revocetur.' Abbas verò hæc audiens, collecta ad se manica manum denudatam exposuit; et ponens eam super genu regis, ait, 'Ecce pax mea,' ac si diceret Ecce testis et mediator pacificæ compositionis inter nos initæ et confirmatæ. Et Rex, 'Per oculos Dei, verum est: interfui Compositioni. Quid est quod attemptas machinando suscitare, domine Lincolnensis episcope? Credisne hæc facta fuisse sub capa? Ego et electissimi de regno interfui. Et quod super hoc factum est, scriptis irrefragabilibus roboratum est, et magnatum testimonio confirmatum. Stat sententia. Quicunque huic abbati et conventui adversabitur, et mihi adversari constituitur. Quid quæris? Tangere pupillam oculi?' Quibus verbis episcopus quasi fulgure percussus, obmutuit: nec est ausus postea (sicut nec jure potuit aut debuit) conceptam litem aliquatenus suscitare." Ibid. p. 1040.

form. This work he lived to complete; and not only finished it, but dined in it with his monks. He also pulled down and rebuilt the old dormitory and its offices.^a

It was during his time that Robert Fitzwalter, one of the most powerful barons of the realm, set up a claim to the wood of Northaw. The abbat, taking advice of his officers, resisted it, and finally overthrew Fitzwalter in a suit at law. The claim, however, was in a short time renewed. Fitzwalter procured a grant of the land from the monastery to himself to be forged, to which one William Pigun, a monk of the house, clandestinely affixed the abbey-seal. The forgery was discovered, and the monk punished;^b but the convent thought it most prudent to make a compromise with Fitzwalter, who, upon relinquishing his claim, and giving up the forged deed, received lands in Bissopescote belonging to the abbey, of the annual value of ten pounds, as an indemnity for the expences he had incurred.^c

The same Fitzwalter also assumed a claim to the patronage of the Cell of Binham, in Norfolk; the prior of which, one Thomas, a particular friend of his, had been removed from his situation. Fitzwalter moreover pretended that the removal could not be made without his consent; affecting to possess a grant of patronage from the parent abbey, which expressly stated "quod non licuit Abbati Priorem amovere inconsulto Patrono vel invito:" and assembling his adherents, he beset the cell so closely, that the monks who were resident in it, for a considerable time, could get nothing to drink but rain-water, and nothing to eat but bread made of bran. This outrage being made known to King John, he sent an armed force to Binham, swearing, as was his usual oath, 'by the feet of God,' that either he or Fitzwalter should be king of England. At this time the kingdom was under an interdict from Pope Innocent III. Fitzwalter fled, and escaped the effects of the king's resentment. At length, many years after, in the reign of Henry the Third, he died: but refused ever to restore the forged deed respecting Binham. Upon his death, however, Adam Fitz-William, his friend and fellow-soldier, having learned where he had hid the deed, gave it up to the abbey; presenting also to the altar of the church, in expiation of his own crime, as being privy to the transaction, a silver cup, gilt.^d

Abbat John enacted several useful statutes and ordinances for his monastery, the particulars of which may be seen at length in Matthew Paris. By one of these he enacted that there should not be above the number of a hundred monks at one time in the house.^e

During the time of the interdict, in which there was a general suspension of divine worship, King John sent his mandate to the abbat to renew the performance of the church service; which the Convent refusing, the king, in his rage, seized upon the abbey: appointing secular officers to the care of it, at the head of whom was one Robert London. The abbat, however, applying himself to the king, at length procured the restoration of his abbey for a fine of six hundred marks.

In the same year, Richard de Marisco, who had been appointed bishop of Durham, made a further demand upon the abbat, for the king, of five hundred marks. "Et sic compulsus est abbas," says Matthew Paris, "ipso anno, mille marcas regi Johanni, (semper hianti, semper exigenti) in maximum hujus ecclesiæ gravamen numerare."^f

Of the circumstances which attended the last hours of abbat John, the historian has given a full detail. Having caused himself to be assisted to the chapter-house, he there entreated pardon of the convent for all his transgressions, and for any wrongs he had done them. He next received the discipline from the convent: and was afterwards carried to the Infirmary, where, upon a stone used for the purpose, he received extreme unction and the Viaticum. After this, he exclaimed "Consummatum est:" and, kissing the members of the convent singly, he added, "Recedo a vobis irrediturus; vos me Deo commendastis, et ego vos Deo recomendo. Quod meum est complevi." He was then taken to his chamber: two days after which, when a friend enquired how he did, he answered,

"Non video purè, mihi nil sapit, audio durè, Deficit olfactus, sum segnis ad omnia factus."

He died on the day of St. Kenelm, king and martyr, A. D. 1214. Matthew Paris mentions as his chief faults, his practice of sending monks, who had been guilty of trifling or even no crimes, to banishment in distant cells; and his giving the sum of a hundred and forty marks of the church-treasure to one John de Hide, his kinsman. Of this last fault, however, the pope's legate, to whom he had been accused by some of the more turbulent monks, absolved him.^g

The king being at this time in Poictou, Robert de Brithewelle and William de Trumpinton, two brethren of the monastery, were sent to him to obtain his licence for a new election: but the king, it is said, knowing that during a vacancy the abbey must remain in his own hands, at first refused. On his return, however, to England, on the 14th of the kalends of November, he recommended for election

^f The conversation which passed at this time between the bishop and the abbat is worth preserving. Matthew Paris says, "Eodemque anno, cum esset Richardus de Marisco (qui non per electionem, sed per regem intrusus, in episcopatum Dunelmensem sublimatus est) summus regis Consiliarius, vir veneno Sathanæ deebriatus, et Rex utpote avarissimus thesauro indiguisset, et Abbatem armatis pulsasset precibus ut eum juvaret; et Abbas justissimas suæ impotentiae causas exposuisset, vocavit eum regia autoritate dictus Richardus. Qui, cum ad eum Abbas accessisset, ait Richardus 'Domine abbas, quo non major, ut bene novimus, in Anglia: in quo, et quanto, dominum nostrum et vestrum juvabis indigentem? Scimus quod das ei sexcentas marcas; sed pro liberatione abbatiae vestrae, quam justè occupavit. Sed nunc mera liberalitate ut grates recipias, eidem conferas postulantiquingentas.' Et cum Abbas super tanta exactione obstupisset, ait Richardus, 'Quid mussitas? Stat sententia. Scriptum sic est. Et quod scripsi, indelibiliter scripsi. Dico enim in amicitia; melius et civilius est tibi, dare quingentas marcas ut grates recipias, quàm ducentas vel trecentas, et ingratus.' Et repenti, quasi raptus, inde recessit, quamvis cum precibus revocaretur."

^b Matthew Paris gives the following account of this monk's fraud, punishment, and death:

"Perpendebat igitur abbas satis sagaciter, aliquem falsarium inter fratres latuisse, et falsam chartam in nocumentum ecclesiæ, fraudulenter confecisse. Revelante igitur ipso qui ait, 'Nichil opertum quod non reveletur,' compertus est dolus, et convictus est dolosus; ut de dolosomerito fieret dolorosus. Inflicta igitur non tantum propter scandalum condigna pœna, quasi exul et indignus ut amplius in domo præsenti quam polluit conversaretur, missus est ad cellam de Thinemua, pœnitentiam super commissio flagitio perpetuam peracturus. Sed ille miser nec miserabilis, Deo odibilis et hominibus, odium quoddam contra abbatem à multo tempore conceptum et inveteratum, adhuc reservavit in corde obstinato. Et hoc fuit illius odii seminarium. Iste Gulielmus Pigun quendam habuit nepotem, quam in villa sancti Albani scholas exercentem quæstu suo educavit; utpote bonæ indolis adolescentem et libenter addiscentem, qui postea apud Burgum receptus, in tantum virtutibus diatim profecit, ut prior in conventu fieri miretetur. Hic igitur Gulielmus petiit abbatem Johannem, ut ipsum Robertulum adhuc adolescentulum in monachum susciperet; qui quia impuber erat, nec adhuc tantæ ætatis ut esset idoneus et acceptabilis, et non penitus negans, distulit postulatum. Sed Gulielmus impatiens et superbus statim efficaciter procuravit, ut dictus Robertus nepos suus apud Burgum in monachum favorabiliter reciperetur. Unde sæpeditus semper extunc Gulielmus abbatem Johannem oderat, et prænotatam ultionis argutionem facilius machinabatur, et antiqui odii venenum adhuc apud Thinemue reservans, crebrò abbatem maledicens terribiliter imprecabatur. Sed omnes super caput proprium congestit maledictiones, sicut finalis ejus vitæ clausula comprobavit. Contigit enim una nocturnum, ut idem flebilis memoriæ Gulielmus, super sedile in secretiori dormitorio matutinarum oblitus sederet, referto ventre, potibus inebriatus, et cibariis ingurgitatus; inclinato capite igitur cœpit dormire, et dormitando strepitu stertere tædioso. Et sic de ebrietate in soporem, de sopore in mortem subitam gradatim transmigravit; fortè fri-of the monks who had been sent out to him; who was accordingly chosen, and installed upon the feast of St. Edmund the Martyr, A. D. 1214: receiving the benediction on St. Andrew's day following, from Eustace bishop of Ely.^a

Within a very short time after his election, abbat William began to shun the society of his brethren, associating with seculars and laymen only; disappointing the hopes of those who thought they had known him when they voted for his election. He had been the principal contriver, while a monk only, in procuring the convent seal to be affixed to an Instrument, intended to disable future abbats from sending away the monks of the monastery to remote cells: contrary, however, to the Charter so sealed, he banished several of the brethren who remonstrated with him upon his conduct, and, among them, Reimond, the prior, to Tinemouth.^b

Soon after this, A. D. 1215, upon the sentence of excommunication being pronounced by the pope against the barons who opposed King John, the king came to St. Alban's, where he laid his plans for the reduction of his adversaries.^c

In the next year Lewis the dauphin came to St. Alban's, requiring abbat William to do homage to him; which the abbat refused to do, unless first discharged from his homage to King John. Lewis, being enraged at this, threatened to burn both the abbey and the town; but Saier earl of Winchester interfering, the execution of the threat was delayed upon the payment of eighty marks: upon which Lewis returned to London.^d

The abbat, says Matthew Paris, was thus pillaged and infested on both sides. "Sustinuit igitur dum uni satisfaceret, alterius deprædationes, dum uni obsecundaret, alterius infestationes. Unde contigit, dum ut contigit, in alterutrum postea sermocinarentur, inter fratres secretiùs, juravit idem abbas Gulielmus, se centum equos uno anno in diversis partibus abbatie [perdidisse], quorum alii erant manni, alii vero runcini, alii summarii, alii varedarii, alii vero averii, sine aliis jacturis quarum non decet impræsentiarum facere mentionem."^e

The conduct of abbat William, when at Rome, attending the Lateran council, is also minutely detailed by Matthew Paris. He went there accompanied by two brethren of his house, Alexander de Appeltun and Roger Porretan: having likewise the abbat of Westminster for the companion of his journey. Upon his return, as was usual toward an abbat who had visited foreign parts, he was received by the convent with procession.^f

The civil war, however, even after abbat William's return from Rome, was very far from extinguished. The town and monastery of St. Alban were still pillaged and oppressed, sometimes by the barons and sometimes by the royal party.

Under the year 1217, in his Historia Major, Matthew Paris has given a minute account of the spoil committed at St. Alban's by one Falco, or Falcasius;^g whose violent death he also notices under the year 1226.^h

Upon the restoration of tranquillity in the reign of Henry the Third, abbat William visited the different cells of his monastery: receiving complaints against different priors, and removing several; but still using great moderation in his reform. The old prior of Tyne-mouth, who, with much difficulty, obtained leave to quit his dignity, was for the rest of his life maintained by our abbat as his counsellor, and constantly sate at his table.ⁱ

Matthew Paris is copious in his account of the buildings and repairs which abbat William undertook at St. Alban's when quieter times enabled him to carry them on. He completed the dormitory, and furnished it with beds of oak: put the roof of the ailes of the church into good repair: raised the steeple considerably higher, and covered it with lead: he finished, too, the building of the west front, covered it with lead, and furnished it with glass windows, which he also set up in other parts of the church. He likewise removed the shrine of St. Amphibalus from the spot where it was before placed, by the high altar, to a situation in the middle of the church; protecting it by an iron grating. Among the workmen he employed, he was fortunate in having a sacrist, one Walter de Colchester, who excelled in the arts both of painting and sculpture; and gave material assistance to the abbat in the decoration of his church.^k Other of this abbat's good deeds will be found enumerated in the extract given below from the Cotton manuscript Nero D. vii.^l in a more compact form than they are detailed by Matthew Paris.^m

It redounds much to the praise of this abbat, that, notwithstanding the difficult course which he had to steer at a time when the kingdom was torn by civil dissensions, he preserved the inward tranquillity of his house; and, in spite of the heavy exactions which were made upon him,ⁿ found means not only to devote Præterea crucem sancti Amphibali quæ diuturno tempore Londoniis latuit abscondita, et quæ in possessiones multorum, videlicet patrum in filios, transmigraverat, nobis prudenter adquisivit.

The verses given in this extract are said by Weever, p. 560, to have been insculped over the high altar of St. Cuthbert's chapel.

^m One anecdote, however, detailed by Matthew Paris in the time of this abbat, must not be forgotten. It appears that in 1228, an Armenian archbishop came into England to visit the shrines and reliques in our churches; who, being entertained with great ceremony at St. Alban's, was asked numerous questions relating to his country; and, among others, if he had ever seen or heard of the person named JOSEPH, who was present at our Lord's crucifixion and conversed with him, and who was still alive in confirmation of the Christian faith. The archbishop answered that the fact was true: and a knight of Antioch who was in his suite related numerous particulars of Joseph as known to his lord. It was hence that the story of "The Wandering Jew" first obtained credit in England. Hist. Maj. pp. 296, 297.

Twice during his time the church of St. Alban was near being destroyed by lightning.^a

In the early part of his History, Matthew Paris incidentally mentions the death of abbat William de Trumpington under the year 1233.^b In the lives of the Abbats of St. Alban's, however, he distinctly and correctly states him to have died on St. Matthew's day, 1235. He was buried on the 3d of the kalends of March, by the abbat of Waltham. Immediately after which, three of the brethren were sent to the king, to obtain his licence for choosing another abbat; and, that they might have the house quietly in their hands (besides escheats

^c Abbat William de Trumpington's body, it appears, having been laid out in the room in which he died, was stript and washed. Then, not all, but the elder and more discreet only of the brethren, with the sacrist's assistant, who was to perform the anatomical part, being present, the body had an incision made in it, from the throat to the lower parts; when the bowels were taken out, and laid in a vessel with salt, and decently buried in the church-yard, not far from St. Stephen's altar, with benedictions and singing of psalms; where afterwards a little marble tomb, "tumbula marmorea," was erected. The inner part of the body was washed with vinegar, and much salt strewed upon it, and then sewed up. This was done with great care, lest the body, which was to be kept three days or longer, should smell ill or give offence: and it was then so light and clean, and the face so full and ruddy, that it became an object of astonishment: so that many handled it, and even bore it on their shoulders as holy. The body was at length carried from the abbat's chamber, where he died, into the infirmary, and there clad in the pontifical robes, the mitre on his head, gloves on his hands, with the ring on his finger, and his staff under his right arm; sandals on his feet, and his hands knit together: "manibus cancellatis." Then the cover of the bier being taken off, the body was laid upon it, and carefully fastened with swathes, lest it should fall off when carried. Being brought forth to the door of the infirmary, and set down as other dead bodies, and in the same place, till such time as the usual collects were said for him, as for any other brother departed, with the Penitential psalms, and all other which were usually said.

Then the great bell being rung, the body was carried to the church, the convent following and singing as usual. Then, in the sight of the convent, the abbat's Seal was broken, with a hammer, upon one of the stone steps before the high altar; so as to deface the engraving as well of the figure as of the inscription. From that time there was singing of psalms both by day and night, and every day a solemn mass at the high altar. Thus the obsequies were performed daily: all who desired it being permitted to come into the presbytery in the day time to see the body. In the mean time plentiful alms were distributed. Henry abbat of Waltham, as has been already noticed, performed the service at the funeral.

^d Stevens, in his Continuation of the Monasticon, has given the Form of proceeding at the election of a new abbat, here laid down, in English. In the present edition of the Monasticon, it has been thought best to present the details in the original shape. They were planned, Matthew Paris assures us, by some of the discreetest and best lawyers of the time.

Matthew Paris is exceedingly minute, not only as to the particulars of abbat William's interment, but also in regard to the Election of his successor: this being the first election after the Lateran Council held by Pope Innocent III., in which it had been decreed, that the exempted abbats should be confirmed by the pope himself. The former he gives as the ceremonial usual at the funeral of an abbat of St. Alban's: the latter as the best received form for proceeding in an election. That they may occupy as small a space as possible, the one is abridged,^c and the other given necessarily in its details, in the original Latin, in the Notes.^d

Ideo non expectata præsentia mea, in dicto negotio, quod vestrum est exequamini. Valet.'

De progressu Electionis.

Congregatis igitur fratribus die statuto et præfixo; videlicet die Dominicæ; non potuimus pro solemnitate illius diei tractare de electione. Et cantavimus ea die de Dominica procrastinantes solemnitatem de Annunciatione faciendâ: unde nec in crastino, scilicet die lunæ, nequivimus tractare de tam arduo negotio, quod tanta et tam morosa deliberatione indiguit. Die igitur Martis, convenientibus in unum tam prioribus quam aliis, qui debuerunt et voluerunt commode in capitulo interesse; elegerunt solemniter Johannem de Hartfordia, priorem de Hertford, monachum suum professum, in pastorem animarum suarum; virum pium, et monachum ordinatum; qui domino regi præsentatus; ab eo favorabiliter dominica in ramis Palmarum (tum quia elegans et venerabilis extitit statura, tum quia audierat quod dapilis et civilis ac socialis fuerat, dum prior Hertfordiæ fuerat) est susceptus; et idcirco promptius, quia rex semper domum sancti Albani dilexerat: cui literas petitorias, a priore et conventu sub hac forma transmisimus.

Literæ missæ Domino Regi pro præsentatione Electi.

'Illustri domino suo et magnifico Henrico Dei gratia regi Angliæ. &c. devoti sui semper et humiles E. prior sancti Albani, et ejusdem loci conventus, cum omni humilitate et devotione, æternam in Domino salutem. Regiæ excellentiæ vestræ, dominum Johannem priorem de Hertfordia, virum idoneum et honestum, quem de benignitate et licentia vestra nobis concessa, in patrem nobis elegimus et Pastorem, præsentamus. Cum omni humilitate et devotione supplicantes, quatenus ex innata vobis benignitate, solitaque clementia erga nos et ecclesiam nostram concepta et habita, dictum Johannem electum nostrum, in gratiam recipiatis: vestrum eidem consilium, auxilium, et favorem, divinæ, si placet, intuitu pietatis impendentes. Valeat, &c.'

Scribit Dominus Rex, Domino Papæ, pro nobis in hoc negotio.

Dominus autem rex cum hoc audisset, et perpenderit progressum nostrum ordinatum et humilem, non tantum nobis suum favorem impertivit, et juvamen, imò domino papæ et amicis suis in curia Romana, pro nobis scripsit sic:

'Reverendo domino et patri et in Christo charissimo, Gregorio Dei gratia summo pontifici, Henricus eadem gratia rex Angliæ, &c. salutem: et tam devotam quam debitam in omnibus, tanto domino et patri reverentiam. Noverit sancta paternitas vestra, nos electioni factæ de fratre Johanne de Hertford monacho de sancto Albano, in abbatem sancti Albani, regium adhibuisse favorem et assensum. Et quia ad sedem apostolicam immediatè spectat electionis prædictæ confirmatio, hoc sanctæ paternitati vestræ duximus præsentium tenore significandum, devote supplicantes, quatenus eidem electioni munus confirmationis dignemini, si placet, favorabiliter impendere. Teste memetipso apud Abendon: primo die Aprilis: anno regni mei xix.'

Item, Literæ Domini Regis ad amicos suos in Curia Romana pro Electo.

'Venerabili in Christo patri et amico specialiter dilecto, I. Dei gratia GG. sanctæ prædis presbytero cardinali: Henricus Dei gratia

JOHN, the twenty-third abbat, the second of that name, was surnamed DE HERTFORD, from the place of his birth: in the Cell of which place he was first sacrist and afterwards prior, being promoted in both instances rex Angliæ, &c. Quoties ingruente necessitate nos contingit, pro nostris vel alienis negotiis apostolicæ sedis implorare subsidium, ad eorundem negotiorum expeditionem, vestra nobis necessaria est diligentia: quam in omnibus vestri gratia nobis recolimus subvenisse. Cùm igitur electioni factæ de fratre Johanne monacho S. Albani in abbatem ejusdem loci, regium adhibuerimus assensum, et favorem, et immediatè subjecta sit ecclesia S. Albani sanctæ Romanæ ecclesiæ: paternitati vestræ duximus attentè supplicandum, quatenus cum nuncii et procuratores dicti electi ad obtinendum à sede apostolica confirmationem dictæ electionis, ad curiam venerunt; ad assecutionem sui propositi in hac parte, vestra dignetur eis paternitas auxilio et consilio subvenire. Per quam subventionem, multiplicetur vobis gratia nostra, quam ex diversorum negotiorum promotione non dubitamus, eis vos comparasse. Testo me ipso, primo, &c.'

Injunctum est igitur duobus fratribus monachis hujus ecclesiæ videlicet domino Reginaldo de Bocking physico, et domino Nicholao de sancto Albano, et cuidam clerico nostro, magistro scilicet Galfrido de Langeleia, et curiam Romanam protinus adirent: et electionem ritè factum, impetrarent à sede apostolica confirmari: qui se precibus conventus commendantes, illicò perrexerunt. Et statutum est in capitulo quædam specialia fieri pro eisdem missarum et orationum suffragia. Et cum ad curiam Romanam (quæ tunc Perusii fuerat) pervenisset; ut promptiorem à domino papa gratiam obtinerent, pecuniæ quandam summam papalibus pedibus obtulerunt: quam statim gratanter receptum, jussit dominus papa cuidam fratri minori, thesaurario ab cubiculario suo, illam pecuniam in gazophilacium suum deportare. Et accumulatis illis denariis, aliis candidis esterlingis, noluit frater vel etiam forulum nuntiis resignare, nec dominus papa (quem civilem et dapsilem fore deceret) ad prandiolium invitare. Respectis igitur janitoribus et ministris papalibus, in muneribus (quia sic oportuit, cum patulis rictibus ipsis donis inhiarent) recesserunt, in crastinum (prout eis dictum erat) redituri. Et cùm tunc advenissent, ostendentes regios apices domino papæ, tum propter ipsos, tum propter serotinum xenium, (aliis etiam epistolis, quas secum amicis domini regis detulerant adminiculantibus) gratiam ab illa venali curia obtinuerunt. Respexerant enim amicos regis quibus ejus literas attulerant, donis uberrimis, qui solas literas steriles et infructuosas, sine muneribus concurrentibus parvi pendunt. Electione igitur confirmata, cum benedictione apostolica (quam satis comparaverant) gaudenter sunt reversi, nec unquam postea, ipsam curiam diligere aut commendare potuerunt.

Approbata verò quamplurimum fuit ab ipso domino papa et a cunctis fratribus cardinalibus (et maxime a domino Ottone, qui verba optima fecit pro domo sancti Albani) forma electionis et totius progressus negotii, admirantibus universis, quòd inter tot capita fuit tum indilata sententia, et consensus uniformis. Et addidit Otto memoratus coram papa, et cunctis assidentibus, 'Domine, semper religio, unitas, et concordia in illa domo vignerunt. Unde ab universis dictum est, quod non sine nutu Spiritus Sancti illud negotium fuerat prosecutum. Multitudinis enim credentium fuit cor unum, et anima una.' Et ut audientes non lateat, hæc est consuetudo eligendi abbatem, in ecclesia sancti Albani.

Consuetudo in Ecclesia Sancti Albani, eligendi Abbatem.

Confessores, scilicet, tres vel quatuor, jubentur districtè in virtute Spiritus Sancti (utpote qui cognoscit corda et renes singulorum) ut ipsi eligunt duodecim de conventu fratres electos, fideles, et peritos, ut ipsi vel de seipsis, vel de ipso conventu ecclesiæ, vel de cellis, unum idoneum eligant in abbatem. De ipsis (inquam) quia sic non consueverunt antiquitus, imo de aliis quàm seipsis, quod absurdum fuit et dissonum rationi. Et in hoc variata est antiqua consuetudo, et in melius commutata. Ut autem electio et labor tantæ deliberationis super hoc negotio, nullatenus irritus habeatur et inanis, literas habent de conventu penes se sigillo conventus roboratas, ut ipse conventus illum quem ipsi duodecim eligant in abbatem, sine contradictione aut difficultate unanimiter in pastorem suscipiant, et gratanter. Unde series negotii sic prosecuta, a summopontifice (ut præactum est) palam coram omnibus est commendata. Et facta examinatione auctoritate apostolica, illicò confirmata. Veruntamen quia de persona electi, domino papæ non constabat, dedit in mandatis Eliensi et Londoniensi episcopis, ut ritè facta examinatione ex persona electi, eundem in abbatem confirmatum benedicerent, plenè in omnem tam spiritualium quàm temporalium administrationem instituentes.

Cum autem redissent nuntii de curia, ostendebant literas domini papæ episcopis memoratis, qui electo scripserunt sub hac forma:

Literæ Episcoporum ad Electum.

'Hugo Dei gratia Elyensis, et Rogerus eadem gratia Londoniensis episcopi, Johanni de Hertford Electo sancti Albani salutem. Mandatum domini papæ suscepimus in hæc verba:

"Gregorius episcopus, &c. Hujus igitur auctoritate mandati nobis transmissi vobis mandamus, quod die lunæ proxima post festum sancti Laurentii, in ecclesia conventuali apud crucem Roisiæ compareatis coram nobis, parati examinationem subire, et electionis (Deo dante) confirmationem suscipere, secundum formam mandati apostolici.'

Quod et abbas sub omni fecit maturitate. Affirmabant utique tam episcopi memorati postquam audierant, quam nuntii nostri, quod prudenter processum est in hoc negotio. Et literas postulabant ad inspiciendum quas conventus sancti Albani domino papæ transmisit sub transcripto. Quas si quis inspicere desiderat, in hoc volumine, ubi scilicet pingitur Avicula, poterit invenire; cujus rubrica et titulus, talis est.

"Literæ missæ domino papæ de morte abbatis Gulielmi, de forma electionis alterius abbatis substituendi, jam electi; scilicet Johannis. Londoniensis vero episcopus, variis et arduis negotiis præpeditus, ne ad locum veniret memoratum, se excusavit: episcopo Elyensi sic scribens."*

Literæ excusatoriæ Episcopi Londoniensis.

'Venerabili fratri, et amico in Christo charissimo H. Dei gratia Elyensi episcopo R. divina miseratione London. ecclesiæ minister humilis salutem et sinceram in Domino charitatem. In negotio examinationis Electi sancti Albani et confirmationis ejusdem, vobis et nobis à domino papa commissio, variis præpediti negotiis, die lunæ proxima post festum sancti Laurentii, apud crucem Roisiæ et ecclesiæ conventuali interesse non possumus. Ideo non expectata præsentia nostra, quod vestrum est in dicto negotio exequamini. Valeat paternitas vestra, semper in Domino.'

Confirmatio Electi.

Confirmatus est igitur Electus facta examinatione, sub tali scripto: 'In nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Inquisitis secundum formam literarum domini papæ, quæ circa personam Johannis electi sancti Albani sunt inquirenda, tum per testes juratos, tum per propriæ personæ examinationem invenimus ipsum ad regimen dictæ ecclesiæ sufficientem. Unde electionem de ipso factam, auctoritate apostolica confirmamus.'

Quo facto, misit Elyensis conventui sancti Albani ad majorem certificationem literas, sub hac forma:

Literæ Elyensis Episcopi ad Conventum Sancti Albani.

'Hugo Dei gratia Elyensis episcopus, dilectis in Christo priori et conventui sancti Albani, salutem in Domino. Noverit discretio vestra, nos juxta formam mandati apostolici, electionem de fratre Johanne de Hertford in abbatem monasterii sancti Albani canonice celebratam, auctoritate apostolica confirmasse. Quocirca excellentiam vestram rogamus, quòd ob reverentiam sedis apostolicæ, dictum electum habentes commendatum, administrationem dictæ abbatiae eidem committatis. Valeat excellentia vestra semper in Domino.'

Scripsit insuper (domino rege acceptante) et palam publicavit, cartam istam confirmationis.

Charta Confirmationis.

'Omnibus Christi fidelibus literas has inspecturis vel audituris. Hugo Dei gratia Elyensis episcopus, salutem in Domino sempiternam. Noveritis quod cum nobis et venerabili fratri nostro London. episcopo commissum esset negotium a domino papa examinationis personæ fratris Johannis de Hertford electi in abbatem monasterii sancti Albani, et confirmationis ejusdem, episcopo Londoniensi in dicto negotio excusato literatoriè, nos electionem ipsius Johannis in hunc modum confirmamus. In nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Inquisitis secundum formam literarum domini papæ, quæ circa personam electi sancti Albani fratris Johannis sunt inquirenda, tum per testes juratos, tum per propriæ personæ examinationem, invenimus eum ad regimen dictæ abbatiae sufficientem. Unde electionem tanquam de persona idonea de ipso factam, auctoritate apostolica confirmamus. In cujus rei testimonium, hiis literis nostris patentibus sigillum nostrum duximus apponendum. Acta anno Domini m.cc.xxxv. die lunæ proxima post festum sancti Laurentii apud crucem Roisiæ.'

In crastino igitur, scilicet Nativitatis beatæ Virginis, in ecclesia sancti Albani ad majus altare in præsentia episcopi London. et totius conventus in choro existentis, idem episcopus eidem electo munus impendit benedictioni. Ubi apertæ sunt literæ inclusæ, et bullatæ domini papæ, quas oportuit electum in abbatem benedicendum, profitendo palam legere, sub hac forma:

'Ego Johannes monasterii sancti Albani abbas, ab hac hora in antea fidelis et obediens ero sancto Petro, sanctæque apostolicæ Romanæ ecclesiæ, et domino meo papæ Gregorio ejusque successoribus canonice intransitibus. Non ero in consilio, aut consensu, vel in facto, ut vitam perdant aut membrum, aut capiantur mala captionem. Consilium verò quod mihi credituri sunt per se aut per nuncios suos, sive per literas, ad eorum damnum mescientem nemini pandam. Papatum Romanum et regalem sancti Petri, adjutor eis ero ad retinendum et defendendum, salvo ordine meo, contra omnem hominem. Legatum apostolicæ sedis in eundo et redeundo, honorificè tractabo, et in suis necessitatibus adjuvabo. Vocatus ad synodum veniam, nisi præpeditus fuero canonica præpeditio. Apostolorum limina singulis trienniis visitabo, aut per me, aut per nuntium meum, nisi absolvar apostolica licentia. Possessiones verò ad monasterium meum spectantes, non vendam, neque donabo, neque impignorabo, neque de novo infeudabo, vel aliquo modo alienabo, inconsulto Romano pontifice: sic me Deus adjuvet, et hæc sancta Evangelia.'

Hæc cooperta fuerunt occulta et clausa sub bulla, donec staret pontificalibus ad altare redimitus, quando nullo modo poterat ab ista obligatione resilire. Et cum rogasset abbas ab episcopo Londoniensi Rogero quid Romæ faceret? Episcopus sicut jocundus extitit, jocosè respondit subridens, et ait, 'Amice ut offeras,' et veritas in verbo latitavit.

* Has literas reperiet lector in Hist. Maj. ad annum 1235, pag. 412, edit. 1684.

by the particular favour of abbat William de Trumpington. Matthew Paris represents him as a person of great mildness of character, handsome in his figure, and universally esteemed.^a The king's consent to his election was given on the first of April, 1235.^b

He was the first abbat who, against his will, submitted to the imposition of being obliged to go or send to Rome every three years.

The actions of this abbat are detailed in the Appendix, in the words of Matthew Paris.^c

Soon after his election, he gave a cope of crimson silk, embroidered, for the use of the choir; and a cup of silver, gilt, for the use of the refectory. He also built a hall for the entertainment of strangers, with numerous chambers adjoining. He recovered for his monastery the manor of Stanmore, which had been long alienated: building there a manor-house. Matthew Paris gives a full account of his dispute with Ralph Chanduit and Geoffrey de Childwick respecting a right of free warren. During the time of this abbat, the great tithes of the church of Norton were applied to the amelioration of the malt-liquor of the monks. The church of Eglinham, which had been given for the same purpose in abbat William's time, was now appropriated. Two parts of the church of Herteburne and the church of Hecstan-tune were also appropriated to the purposes of hospitality: and that of St. Michael at St. Alban's was given to the sacristary.

King Henry the Third appears to have paid two visits to St. Alban's monastery in 1244; staying three days each time. The first was on the feast of St. Barnabas; the last on that of St. Thomas, when he made an offering of a rich pall, or cloak, at the high altar, and three bracelets of gold at the shrine of St. Alban.^d

Among the events of greatest consequence to the abbey which took place during the government of John de Hertford, was the compromise made A. D. 1247, between him (in conjunction with the prior and convent of the cell of Tynemouth) and the bishop and chapter of Durham. The prior had refused obedience to the bishop, and pleaded exemption from his jurisdiction, by virtue of the immunity enjoyed by the parent abbey. The pope, however, in consequence of an application from the bishop, instituted a commission of inquiry, by which it was determined that the priors should be appointed by the abbey, and be removeable by its authority; but should be presented to the bishop for institution, and should swear canonical obedience.

The manor of Aldenham, also, of which the absolute possession had been by many former kings confirmed to this abbey, was in this abbat's time conveyed in perpetuity by a new grant to the abbat and convent of Westminster, and was for ever severed from this monastery.^e

Under the year 1251, Matthew Paris has recorded another of the journeys of King Henry the Third to St. Alban's:^f in which year the monastery was visited by Theobald prior of Hurley in Berkshire, and James the sub-prior of St. Augustine's church in Canterbury, who was also one of the pope's chaplains.^g Toward the close of the same year, the chamber of the queen, who was then staying in the abbey with her children, was struck by lightning.^h

In the following year, A.D. 1252, King Henry the Third came again to the monastery, accompanied by his son, prince Edward.ⁱ

In 1253, on the tenth of the kalends of November, the abbat and convent discharged a great debt, in which they had been bound to a Jew of London, one Elias, in behalf of a knight named Richard de Oxaie.^k

In 1255 King Henry the Third paid another visit to the monastery; and again in 1256.^l

Under the year 1257, Matthew Paris records that in repairing the east end of the church the relics of St.

Dominus Rex tenentibus de Sancto Albano.

'Henricus Dei gratia rex Angliæ, &c. militibus, liberis hominibus, et omnibus aliis tenentibus de abbacia de sancto Albano, salutem. Sciatis quod electioni factæ de fratre Johanne de Hertford in abbatem sancti Albani, assensum regium præbuimus et favorem. Et ideo vobis mandamus, quod eidem fratri Johanni tanquam domino vestro, in omnibus quæ ad prædictam abbatiam pertinent intendentes sitis et respondentes. In cujus rei testimonium, has literas nostri fieri fecimus patentes. Teste meipso apud Westmonasterium decimo octavo die Augusti, anno regni xii^{mo}.'

Abbas creatur.

Ex tunc igitur abbas plenarie constitutus, cepit homagia, et jura-menta, et fidelitates, omnium abbatie subditorum, installatus, et in omnibus abbas habitus et firmatus. Sed ut non lateat simpliciores qualiter se gessit dum electus esset, et qualiter in posterum se gerere debet electus, præsentibus duximus inserendum.

Qualiter se gerere debet Electus.

Postquam electores nominaverunt electum proprio nomine cum aliquo adjecto (ita quod unus electorum loquatur pro omnibus aliis electoribus) præstito assensu Prioris et totius conventus, surgat Electus: et accepta venia, supplicet omnibus ut orent pro eo quod Deus det illi sic Curam et Officium suscipere hoc, ut ad honorem Dei et ecclesiarum, et animarum suarum fiat salvationem. Facta autem oratione à priore quod sic fiat, ut in fine orationis respondente conventu Amen; incipiatur solemniter hymnus Te Deum laudamus. Et ducantur modeste et ordinate (assistente priore ei in uno latere, sub-priore in alio; cum aliis dignioribus ecclesiarum personis) propinquius in ecclesiam. Et præsentetur Deo et sancto martyri Albano, ad majus altare; pulsato classico, sonantibus calamis (quos burdones appellamus) cum orologio, accensisque cereis circa altare, et discooperto feretro; et toto corpore prostratus, Electus oret breviter sed præcordialiter, ut dignus tanto honore habeatur. Et tacta nola cui muta vel scilla est nomen; terminetur sonitus ille et totus tumultus: dicaturque ab omnibus Pater noster. Et Prior, 'Et ne nos: versiculus, 'Salvus fac servum tuum, Deus meus.' 'Mitte ei Domine auxilium de sancto.' 'Et de Sion tuere eum.' 'Dominus vobiscum, &c.' Oratio. 'Omnipotens sempiterne Deus, dirige hunc famulum in via salutis æternæ: ut te donante tibi placita cupiat, et tota virtute perficiat, per Dominum nostrum Jesum Christum filium tuum qui tecum vivit.' Et resp. in v. s. d. 'per Dominum vobiscum.' 'Et benedicamus Domino.' Deinde erigatse, etsine aliquo offendiculo aut mora, ducatur in cameram, videlicet prioris, quæ sua dum Electus est, debet appellari; donec in abbatem creatus, in suam magnam cameram secedat. Nec abscondatur aliquis clericus, sive dignus, sive indignus, vel alius, qui subito prorumpens postquam se erexerit Electus ab oratione (ut quandoque solet fieri) monachatum, vel necessariam vixerit (quasi in bonum auspiciis futuræ liberalitatis) exigat: cum sit illud contra honestatem, et regulam beati Benedicti dicentis, 'Probate spiritus si ex Deo sint.'

Ac si diceret, 'Nichil ex abrupto et sine providentia fiat et deliberatione. Nec inexpertus recipiatur in congregatione.'

Ex tunc poterit Electus providere sibi de sociis qui secum comorentur, quos bajulos dicimus; et nuntiis Romam destinandis; et invitare quos voluerit ad refectionem; sed tamen qui vocati sunt, de licentia prioris veniant; nec exeat quis eques, nisi de licentia prioris; exceptis suarum obedientiarum summis procuratoribus; videlicet summis cellerario, coquinario, camerario, infirmario, et sacrista.

Electus autem etsi fuerit unus de ultimis novitiis, in loco supremo illico statuatur. Et si fuerit de parte Prioris (quam nos chorum Priorisappellemus) transferetur ad partem chori abbatis: ubi supremus statuatur. Solus in refectorio prandeat supremus, habens vastellum, Priore prandente ad magnam mensam; quam Dais vulgariter appellamus. In processionibus, supremus ex parte abbatis procedet, ut alius senior; non in medio choralem ferens baculum, ut antiquitus temerè consuevit; ne forte in posterum cassatus retrocedat; et tunc cum rubore incipiat locum novissimum tenere. Sed hæc prætracta prælibantur. Mat. Par. edit. 1684, p. 1065-1070.

The words of the historian will be found below.^a In this year, also, King Henry the Third again visited St. Alban's:^b and toward the latter part of the year the queen came, accompanied by Eleanor the wife of Prince Edward, and numerous ladies of the court.^c

In 1258, a new arrangement appears to have been made between the abbat and convent respecting the table of the monks.^d In the same year we find the king accompanying the procession made with the relics of St. Alban within the monastery.^e

After having ruled near twenty-five years, abbat John de Hertford died A.D. 1260, on the day of St. Elphege. Such, at least, is the account given in the Cotton MS. Claud. E. iv. Matthew of Westminster places his death in 1263.^f

Among the ancient Charters presented a few years ago to the British Museum by Lord Frederick Campbell, is one from this abbat,^g respecting a grant for the support of a mass of the Virgin Mary in the church of St. Mary Hertford, A.D. 1258: appendant to which is his seal. On the front he is represented in the vestments of his office, mitred; his right hand held up in the act of benediction, his left holding the crozier. The inscription round it is unfortunately broken off. The reverse, or counter-seal, represents the martyrdom of St. Alban, a hand from heaven holding a crown over the saint's head; and round, this inscription, ✠ MARTIR OBIT VICTOR. PRIVATVR LVMI NE LICTOR. alluding to the legend already detailed in a former page.

Upon the death of John de Hertford,

ROGER DE NORTHONE, or NORTON, was chosen to succeed him; who, after the pope's confirmation had been received, was consecrated by the abbat of Waltham on the Sunday before the Nativity, A.D. 1263.

The first measures which he took, after his election to the abbacy, were, to recover some of the abbey estates, which had been unjustly held by Geoffrey de Childwick, their tenant and lessee. He was also engaged in resisting a claim which the Countess of Arundel, Isabella de Albini, asserted, to the right of appointing the prior of Wymondham, a cell belonging to this abbey, at every vacancy which might occur. The contest terminated in favour of the abbey, and the countess was obliged to withdraw her pretensions.^h

monastery, but afterwards relinquished his presumed right.ⁱ

Abbat Roger de Northone contributed considerably to increase the estates and privileges of the abbey. He obtained from King Henry III. a grant of a market and fair at Codicote; rebuilt the infirmary of the monastery, toward the expenses of which he himself contributed a hundred marks; gave many costly vests and ornaments to the church; and made some additions to the abbey library.^k Nevertheless, he was suspected of having secretly connived at the alienation of Stanmere and Horwode, both of which estates were claimed under ancient grants or leases, of which it was pretended that the abbey had broken the covenants, and that their right to them was forfeited by such violation. After ruling the monastery twenty-six years, he died of a paralytic affection on the feast of All Souls, A.D. 1290, and was buried before the great altar: the bishop of Ely performing the service at his funeral, which was attended by the prior of Waltham, and a great number of the regular and secular clergy.^l

JOHN DE BERKAMSTEDE, the next and twenty-fifth abbat of St. Alban's, was elected on the morrow of the Virgin Mary's Conception, A.D. 1290. He was the first abbat of St. Alban's who went personally to Rome for a confirmation of his election; having obtained which, he was installed upon St. Alban's day, A.D. 1291.

Edward the First, in the twenty-first year of his reign, directed the sheriff of Northumberland to order the abbat of St. Alban's to yield up to him the advowson of the priory of Tynemouth; but, upon the abbat's remonstrance, the king dropped his suit, and gave him a Charter of confirmation. The same king, also, by his Charter dated at Westminster on the 24th of January in the fourth year of his reign, granted that, since the abbey was immediately subject to the court of Rome, and exempt from all ecclesiastical and secular authority, the abbats should certify all excommunications into Chancery, which should be as effectual as the certificate of any bishop; and further granted that they should have episcopal power over all persons within their jurisdiction.^m

During the king's expedition into Scotland, the abbey of St. Alban's, according to ancient custom, appears to have maintained six men, armed and accoutred, during the king's pleasure.

Having ruled the monastery rather more than ten

^a "Contigit igitur eodem anno, ut propter quasdam hiantes rimas, de quibus timebatur, pars orientalis ecclesie beati Albani, de consilio abbatis et conventus, ut firma repararetur, in adventu Domini dissoluto tecto muri prosterneretur. Et dum lignonibus in pavimento cementariorum ministri insisterent, pertinnitum instrumentorum, et pedum strepitum perpendebant, aliquid ibi insolitum et incognitum latitare. Profundius igitur perscrutantes, invenerunt sub terra, sed non profunde, unam tumbam lapideam, satis eleganter compositam, in loco qui fuit inter altare sancti Oswini, ubi scilicet consuevit missa matutinalis celebrari, et altare sancti Ulstani; ubi quoque collocatum fuerat antiquum feretrum pictum et quaedam tumba marmorea cum columnis marmoreis. Quilocus et tumba, dicebatur vetus tumba sancti Albani. In ipso igitur mauseolo tumulabatur beatus Albanus, die qua decollatus est, ab amicis et parentibus suis et neophytis: occultè tamen et honorifice de nocte, propter metum paganorum. Ubi lux cœlestis descendit, et apparuerunt angeli descendentes et ascendentes, et canentes hunc hymnum: 'Albanus egregius martyr extat gloriosus.' In quo etiam mauseolo inventa est quaedam lamina plumbea, in qua secundum antiquorum consuetudinem, scriptus est hic titulus: 'In hoc mauseolo inventum est venerabile corpus sancti Albani protomartyris Anglorum.' Hoc evenit in octavis sancti Stephani, in præsentia domini episcopi Bangor. et domini abbatis Johannis, et domini Philippi de Cestria, principalis consilarii comitis Richardi, et quorundam nobilium de familia domini Willielmi de Valentia, fratris domini regis uterini, et totius conventus, et fidelium innumerablem, quibus solemniter hæc sunt nuntiata. Et concessit episcopus veniam quindecim dierum, omnibus ipsam inventionem præsentialiter venerantibus. Et cito post, dominus archiepiscopus Eboracensis illuc venerat causa orationis. years and a half, abbat John de Berkamstede died on the 14th of the kalends of November, 1301:^a being buried before the high altar on the 19th of the same month.^b

JOHN MARYNS, who had held the office of prior fourteen years, was unanimously chosen to succeed to the abbacy, on the 2d of January, 1302. He went to Rome to procure the confirmation of his election from the pope; on his return from whence he was installed on the Sunday after the feast of St. Bartholomew in the same year.^c

King Edward the Second, having just come to the crown, demanded of abbat Maryns, beside the military aid which had been paid by his predecessor, two carts furnished with horses. The abbat pleaded his poverty: the king, however, not satisfied with this excuse, came down to the abbey; on which occasion abbat Maryns, by the mediation of Piers Gaveston, tendered to the king a hundred marks of silver, which he received under the mask of seeming friendship. Edward, however, not long after, cut down a wood belonging to the monastery at Abbats Langley, called Westwode, in order to enlarge his royal demesne at Kings Langley: upon which the abbat remonstrated; but the king drove away the abbat's servants, and kept forcible possession.^d

Having governed the monastery six years and three quarters, finding himself feeble, and that his end was near approaching, he sent for the prior and elder brethren of the monastery to his chamber, and laid before them the state of the finances of his house, showing that thirteen hundred pounds were due to divers creditors, and a thousand marks to the king for the last vacancy, and that seventeen marks only remained in the treasury, which had a short time before been sent to him by the prior of Tynemouth.^e He also directed that a silver cup and a ring should be presented to the king after his decease: exhorting them also, in the choice of a successor, to elect a person devoid of pride, and one likely to be plain and honest in his dealings.^f

He died on the 7th of the kalends of March, 1308, and was buried by Richard de Hertford, abbat of Waltham, in the choir, before the high altar; where a marble tomb was erected to him, the epitaph on which he had himself prepared.

HUGH DE EVERESDONE, so called from a place of that name in the county of Cambridge, was the next abbat. During the time of his predecessor he had held the office of cellarer of the monastery. Walsingham, in his Continuation of the Lives of the Abbats, in the Cotton MS. Claud. E. iv. states his expences in obtaining the papal confirmation at more than a thousand pounds, exclusive of the sums given to the pope and cardinals under the name of first fruits.^g

Mr. Clutterbuck says, "During the early part of his government this abbat was engaged in many contentions, arising from the disobedience of the cells to his authority; and afterwards with the inhabitants of the town, who wished rather to be answerable to the king than to an inferior lord, and attempted a stratagem to absolve themselves from their allegiance to the abbat: they were under an obligation to grind their corn at the abbat's mills, which they now refused; and, in consequence of this refusal, a compulsory process was instituted against them. In the eighth year of Edward the Second, they exhibited a petition to that monarch, in which they alleged that they held their town of him in capite, and were accustomed, in the times of Edward the First and his ancestors, to give their attendance in parliament by two burgesses, whose names were enrolled in Chancery, in lieu of all services; and that, nevertheless, the sheriff of the county of Hertford, by the procurement of the abbat, had refused to summon the said burgesses; and prayed of the king a relief from these grievances. To this petition the king's council answered: 'Let the Rolls of Chancery be searched, that it may be ascertained whether the said burgesses were wont to attend parliament in the time of our ancestors or no, and let justice be done as the necessity of the case requires.' Afterwards, the king, in the eleventh year of his reign, directed a process to the abbat, commanding him to place all liberties and franchises upon the same footing as they were set forth in Domesday Book, and directed a brief to the treasurer and chamberlain of his Exchequer, requiring them to search that record, and to make report thereupon. It was apparent, from the words of that Survey, that the town of St. Alban's, from that time, formed part of the possessions of the abbey, and was held by the abbat in demesne: upon the further discussion, however, of this question, the abbat consented that the ancient bounds of the borough should be ascertained by twenty-four persons chosen for that purpose; and that all the inhabitants thereof should be burgesses, and have power to elect out of themselves two burgesses to serve in parliament, saving to the abbat all other franchises and rights appending to his church. The concession of these privileges served only to increase the insolence of the townsmen, who upon every occasion exulted with indecent joy at the victory they had obtained over this timid old abbat. The mortifying retrospect of concession, and the impoverished state of the revenues of the abbey, owing to the great expence incurred in building the lady-chapel, and the exactions of the king's favourites, Gaveston and Spencer, served to embitter his latter days; and his death, which happened in the year 1326, was as little regretted as his life had been respected."^h

Walsingham, in his printed History, p. 79, edit. 1574, gives the following account of King Edward the Second's visit to the monastery in 1313, during the abbacy of abbat Everesdon.

"Rex venit in vigilia palmarum ad sanctum Albanum, et obtulit beato martyri quandam crucem auream diversorum sanctorum reliquiis insertam, et lapidibus preciosis, commendans se et suos necessarios ejusdem sancti tutelæ, et precibus monachorum. Cumque suggestum fuisset ei, quod pater suus chorum sancti Albani renovasse proposuerat desiderium patris explere, gestiens contulit mox centum marcas argenti, et mœremium apud Dynesleyam querendum ad opus illud, jubens ut pecuniæ nullo modo parcerent, quin opus illud ad honorem Dei et beati Albani Anglorum prothomartyris irreprehensibiliter consummarent."

Newcome says, upon abbat Everesdon's death, was such as alarmed the officers. There was a debt of 5000*l.* to sundry creditors: pensioners who had a claim of 24*l.* 18*s.*: and corrodars to the amount of fifty-four or more: beside great waste of the woods, such as had never before been seen. And yet this abbat had received, for wood sold in his time, 7605*l.*; seven hundred pounds "de auxilio ex parte conventus;" from the priors of the cells, as aid, six thousand pounds; and a hundred pounds which the king, Edward of Carnarvon, had given to the convent, he usurped to himself. He had received in talliage of the tenants of the monastery, a thousand pounds; as aid "per vicarios territorii sancti Albani," a hundred pounds; for corrodies sold in the monastery, one thousand and seventy-seven pounds; and for corrodies sold in the cells, a thousand pounds.^a

For the better maintenance of his splendour and show, he is said to have first hit on the expedient of letting long leases, and taking fines for so doing.

To Andrew de Medeste he leased the manor of Combes in Sussex for the term of his life, "pro centum libris sterlingorum præ manibus receptis."

To Simon Ekote the manor of Pynfeld for sixteen years, receiving forty pounds for the first five years.

To William Legat the manor of Waldene for the term of ten years, taking fifty pounds for the first two years.

He leased the manor of Barnet, with rents in East Barnet, and the mill of Agate, for a term of ten years, receiving beforehand fifty marks.

To John Gavelok the manor of Caldecote for five years, taking forty pounds for the whole term: "pro tota firma."

The manor of Wyncelowe, with the market, rents, and a mill, for a hundred marks annually, receiving a hundred marks down.

The manor of Richard Alexander, in Langley, for a term of nine years, taking twenty pounds in hand for the first four years.

To John de Wyndrugge a meadow in Rykmeresworthe for thirty years, receiving twenty pounds in hand for the whole term.

The manor of Sandrugge for twenty years, taking a hundred and eighty pounds as a fine for the first ten years.

The mill of Sandrugge was also leased for twenty years, a fine of thirty pounds being paid for the first ten years.

The manor of Northawe he leased for six years, receiving sixty pounds.

For the church of Sonesclif he received forty marks for five years.

For the manor and mill of Codekote, a hundred pounds.

For the two mills at Norton, forty marks.

For the mill of Watford, twenty marks.

The amount of loss to the monastery by these payments was no less than six hundred and forty-seven pounds. He also gave away wood and timber to divers persons, to the value of nine hundred and thirty-six pounds.^b

RICHARD DE WALLINGFORD was elected abbat on the 30th of October, 1326. He derived his name from the place of his birth, Wallingford in Berkshire: being the son of a blacksmith of that town. Having lost his parents when scarcely ten years of age, the prior of Wallingford, William de Kirkeby, took compassion of his orphan situation, took him under his care, and finding him endowed with a good capacity, prepared him for the university of Oxford; where, having staid six years, he graduated in arts: after which, in the twenty-third year of his age, he became a monk at St. Alban's. But in three years time he returned again to the university, where he was appointed to lecture upon the sentences of Lombard. He afterwards, in his thirty-fifth year, again became resident at St. Alban's.^c

The forms of his election as abbat having been gone through, he set out upon his journey to receive the pope's confirmation: and found him at Avignon. His expences and donations on which expedition are stated to have been no less than 953*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.*^d The pope at first raised many obstacles to the confirmation; but finally consented to it upon the abbat guaranteeing the payment of an alleged debt from the monastery to the papal treasury of eight hundred and forty marks. Upon his return he received the temporalities of the monastery from the king, A.D. 1328.^e

From an expression in Mr. Newcome's account of this abbat, it should seem as if, after his return from Rome, a disease in one of his eyes had ended in the total privation of sight: whereas, from the words of his author, it appears that one eye only became dark.^f rest concerning the real relics of St. Alban having been tranferred to Ely. The following are Walsingham's own words:

"In crastino diei palmarum rex iter versus insulam Eliensem arripuit, ubi solemnitate Paschalem tenuit nobiliter et festive. Quo tempore, Elienses mentientes se corpus habere sancti Albani Anglorum prothomartyris, manifestissimè confutavit coram regni nobilibus et monachis dicti loci; jam cum ad alleviandum moram suam in monasterio oculis diversa subjiceret, phanaque videre vellet ibidem, tandem incidit menti ejus, ut videret quid esset contentum in feretro quod beati Albani vocat, in ecclesia memorata. Dixitque episcopo, qui tunc aderat Eliensi: scis, inquit, quod fratres mei apud sanctum Albanum corpus ejusdem martyris putant veraciter se habere, et in hoc loco dicunt monachi se dicti sancti corpus tenere: per animam, inquit, Dei, volo videre in quo loco reliquias sancti corporis debeo potissimum venerari. Cumque præsul verba regis Priori et fratribus retulisset, illi velut exangues effecti, quid responderent, quid facerent nesciebant, ex una parte timentes amittere tantum thesaurum, si verum esset quod apud eos foret, ex altera convincti de mendacio metuentes, quia hoc prædicaverant se habere. Nesciebant enim pro tunc quid in dicto feretro continebatur. Episcopus videns suorum consternationem, animavit eos, monens ut considerent, quia non ad auferendum tantum thesaurum, sed venerandum, rex aspectum reliquiarum requisivit. Ventum est igitur in ecclesiam, et feretrum solutum et apertum est per quendam monachum, Alanum de Walsingham dictum, qui postea proficientibus meritis Prior factus est illius ecclesiæ, qui et ipse peritus erat in opere aurifabrilis, et ideo ad solvendum feretrum tunc vocatus. Rex vero, cum vidisset cunctos clavos extractos, et feretrum patefaciendum, accessit et levavit operculum manu sua. Et ecce vident locellum illum a summo usque deorsum, quodam panno villosio ita occupatum, ut nihil posset aliud continere. In superiori vero parte vestimenti, conspiciunt cruoris coagula densè respersa, ita nova, ita recentia, quasi pridie fuissent effusa. Constat hanc vestem fuisse caracallam quam sanctus Albanus in conversione acceperat sancto Amphibalo magistro suo in signum religionis, in quo idem martyr sententiam subiit capitalem. Etfas est credere quod ad honorem sancti, divino miraculo sanguis ejus sic in hac veste servatus, sicut in pulvere sui sepulchri per multa sæcula legitur conservatus. Cujus pulveris missam in qua rubebat adhuc sanguis martyris, sanctus Germanus Altissiodorensis episcopus secum abstulit, et detulit ad natale secum Altissiodoro, capellam construens in honorem martyris memorati. Rex igitur et omnes assistentes, de tanto miraculo stupefacti, proni corruerunt in terram. Et facta est non parva hæsitatio quis accederet ad deponendum operculum et feretrum contingendum. Tandem rex ipse cæteris animosior, operculum detraxit ad locum suum, et tunc primò cognoverunt Elienses quid de sancto Albano haberent, quid non haberent, cum oculata fide cernerent in dicto feretro præter caracallam nihil omnino contineri. Rex vero hilarior effectus de rei comperita veritate, dedit illic dona varia, residuum temporis quo mansit ibidem ducens in summa lætitia, frequenter conferens de merito martyris Albani et gloria, et judicans non sine divina factum providentia ut in duobus locis tam celebribus specialis veneratio martyris haberetur. Et ait Eliensibus, gaudete de Dei munere, gaudete de tanti martyris meritis et sanctitate, quia si, prout dicitis, hic Deus per illum plura facit miracula ratione corporis illic sanctissimi quiescentis." "Hugo abbas vicesimus septimus dedit huic ecclesiæ integrum vestimentum de nobili panno albo decenter referto parvis rosis aureis, in quo in festis beatæ Virginis dompnus abbas posset honorifice celebrare. Et ecclesiam ex australi plaga in magna parte non sine magnis sumptibus reparavit, multas etiam possessiones ecclesiæ adquisivit, utpote Crokesle, Caldecote, et quædam alia. Optinuitque nobis a rege Edwardo Karnerivan licentiam acquirendi terras usque ad extentam centum librarum. Et dedit coquinæ conventus ten. in villa de sancto Albano quod olim fuerat Walteri Tubbe. Et ad opus infirmorum unum boscum de tribus acris juxta villam prædictam versus aquilonem sub bosco de Barnet situatum. E. iv. fol. 202 b, says, "Hiis ita gestis abbas secreto repatriandi petita licentia et optenta curiæ vafefecit et tandem post festum paschæ applicuit in Angliam, ac centesimo sexto die ab adventu suo ad curiam, venit manerium suum de Crokeslee, nondum aliquo de monasterio sciente de adventu suo. In quo manerio

This abbat instituted an examination into the state and condition of the revenues of the convent, and the proceedings of its officers, with the assistance of two notaries, Richard prior of Tynemouth and John de Sull-sull. The enquiries made, however, drew upon him the displeasure of the convent, and the monks conspired to rise against him, and depose him. The abbat, however, was not dismayed: but persisted in his scheme of government.^a

He also successfully defended the rights of his monastery from the encroachments of the inhabitants of the town, who not only still continued to dispute the right of the abbat to hold his courts, and to appoint civil officers, but also refused obedience to him in all spiritual matters: by his policy, however, he obtained from them a complete acknowledgment of his power, and a formal surrender of all the privileges which they had wrested from Hugh de Everesdon, with all their Charters and Records.^b

Exclusive of what related to the rights of the monastery, abbat Richard de Wallingford was by no means inattentive to the improvement of its buildings and estates. He repaired and new roofed a very large portion of the house: rebuilt several of the abbey mills: in one instance planted a croft with oaks: repaired the abbatial residence in London: and laid the first stone of a new cloister.^c He also obtained for the monastery the appropriation of the church of Appleton in Yorkshire.^d

One of the most remarkable of his donations to the monastery was an astronomical clock, which he is said to have named Albion.^e Representations of this abbat and his clock will be found among the illuminations of the Cotton manuscripts Claud. E. iv. and Nero D. vii. in both of which the leprosy with which he is said to have been afflicted in the latter part of his life is represented in his countenance.

In the sixth year of his government he grew weak and infirm, and found the necessity of proposing to the chapter of his convent the choice of a coadjutor, who was appointed in the person of Nicholas de Flamstede, the prior.

Abbat Richard de Wallingford died on the 10th of the kalends of June, 1334: and was interred on the Monday following in the presbytery, near his two immediate predecessors, by the abbat of Waltham.^f

The following inscription, still remaining round a defaced slab in the choir of St. Alban's,

"Richard gist ici Dieu de sa alme eit merci. Vous ke par ici passes Pater e Ave pur l'alme prierunt jours de pardun averunt"

is ascribed by Mr. Gough to abbat Wallingford.^g

^e Mr. Clutterbuck, in his Hist. of Hertfordshire, vol. i. p. 28, gives the following account of this clock from Leland's work de Scriptoribus Britannicis, in whose time it appears still to have continued to go. "Cum jam per amplas licebat fortunas, voluit illustri aliquo opere non modo ingenii, verum etiam eruditionis, ac artis excellentis, miraculum ostendere. Ergo talem horologii fabricam, magno labore, majore sumptu, arte vero maxima, compagit, qualem non habet tota Europa meâ opinionem secundum; sive quis cursum solis ac lunæ, seu fixa sidera notet, sive iterum maris incrementa ac decrementa." Richard of Wallingford also wrote a Treatise on this Clock, "Ne tam insignis machina vilesceret errore monachorum, aut incognito structuræ ordine silesceret." It does not appear, however, to have been finished in his time. Mr. Clutterbuck says it was completed in the time of abbat Thomas de la

MICHAEL DE MENTMORE, the next and twenty-ninth abbat, was elected within a few days of abbat Wallingford's death. He was named Mentmore from the place of his birth in the vale of Ailesbury.

He constructed the ceiling of the south wing of the church, which had been built anew, together with a part of the cloister; and furnished the convent with numerous books and vestments.^h

In 1341, he baptized Edmund the fifth son of King Edward the Third, who was born at Langley.ⁱ

In 1349, with no fewer than forty-seven of his monks, he fell a victim to a pestilential disorder which then raged. He himself died on Easter day that year.^k His epitaph is given, as follows, by Weever,^l but certainly with a false date.

"Hic jacet dominus Michael quondam abbas hujus monasterii bachalaureus in Theol. qui obiit pridie idus Aprilis ann. m.ccc.xlii."

Walsingham, in his Continuation of the Lives of the Abbats in the Cotton MS. Claud. E. iv. gives the following character of him. "Fuerat nempe in omni vita sua piissimus, compacientissimus, humillimus; et, ut de Moyse legitur, mansuetissimus: ita quod ante eum nunquam inter monachos repertus sit vir tantæ mansuetudinis et modestiæ, aut amator justitiæ et æquitatis. Flevisseque hactenus ejus obitum totius professionis, sed præcipue monasterii sui monachi si non Thomas ei in regimine successisset."

THOMAS DE LA MARE, the thirtieth abbat, had his election confirmed by the king on Nov. 22d, 1350.^m He was the son of Sir John de la Mare, and, both on his father's and his mother's side, was related to many great families. He was first admitted into the monastery in the time of abbat Hugh de Everesdon, who sent him to the cell of Wymondham in Norfolk, whence he afterwards was removed to the Priorate of the cell of Tynemouth.ⁿ

Upon his election as abbat of St. Alban's, he went to Rome, and received investiture from the pope.^o He was afterwards in great favour with King Edward the Third, who constituted him president of the General Chapter of Benedictines throughout England, in which capacity he made a visitation of some of the principal Houses of that order.^p

In 1350, the very year of his promotion, the king, in consideration that the abbat and convent had granted to him the advowson of Dachet, released to them by deed one pension of 5*l.* per annum, which they paid to the king's chaplains, because the king's progenitors were founders of the abbey.^q

Having ruled his monastery several years,^r abbat de la Mare conceived an intention of resigning the abbacy. He had at that time, as a prisoner in the abbey, John king of France, who had been made captive at the battle of Poitiers in 1356; and who was entertained by the abbat in a manner which denoted his humanity as well as his courtly style of living. Abbat de la Mare having made known his secret wish to his guest, the king of France applauded his resolution, and promised to write with his own hand to the pope to obtain his permission. The abbat's letter of supplication to the pope being afterwards communicated to King Edward the Third at Calais, that prince forbade any further steps to be taken, declaring that such a man as Thomas de la Mare could not be spared.

It was in this abbat's time that the insurrection which broke out in the fourth year of King Richard the Second, under Wat Tyler and Jack Straw, threatened immediate destruction to the abbey. A party of the rebels, aided and abetted by one William Gryndecobbe, who had been educated and had relations in the monastery, marched to the abbey, demanding liberty to hunt in the woods and fish in the waters belonging to the house, together with a renunciation of the rights which had been confirmed to the monastery in the time of abbat Wallingford. The inhabitants on most of the manors belonging to the abbey^a joined the rebels on this occasion. The death of Wat Tyler, however, put an end to these disturbances: and the insurrection having been quelled, the king issued a proclamation, commanding that all persons, whether bond or free, who owed any suit or service to the abbat and convent, should perform the same in the customary manner, under pain of forfeiture of all they had to lose, besides being subjected to further punishment. He also came in person to St. Alban's, with his chief justice, Sir Robert Tresilian, by whom fifteen or eighteen of the chief rioters were condemned to death.^b The king staying at this time in the abbey eight days.

Abbat de la Mare was more munificent, in the preparation of vestments, plate, and ornaments for his abbey, than any of his predecessors. He procured three mitres, which alone cost one hundred pounds.^c He rebuilt the great gate of the abbey which had been blown down by a high wind, with its chambers, prisons, and vaults, and covered it with lead: he partly, also, repaired, and partly rebuilt, the walls which surrounded the monastery.^d He gave two hundred pounds for the appropriation of the church of Appelton. He repaired and strengthened the walls of, as well as new roofed, the refectory: and built the water-gate, and the gate of the almonry, as well as the kitchen. The Cotton manuscript Nero D. vii. states his expenditure for the ornament of the church, "ad cultum Ecclesiæ," at no less than eleven hundred and sixty-seven pounds; his expenditure, "circa alia opera monasterii," at more than two thousand.

Our abbat was one of the persons who escaped the pestilence which raged in 1349. Having attained the age of eighty-one, however, his health was broken down in 1389 by the same disorder. After dragging on a miserable existence for the space of seven years, afflicted with ulcers, he gradually sunk into the grave, at the age of eighty-eight, Sept. 15th, 1396.

Weever has preserved the inscription on his tomb.

"Est Abbas Thomas tumultu præsentis reclusus Qui vitæ tempus sanctos expendit in usus."^e

^b The detail of the insurrection, as far as it concerned the abbey of St. Alban's, is given in an extended form in the Cotton MS. Claud. E. iv. For a more general account of the insurrection the reader is referred to Walsingham's Historia Brevis, published under Archbishop Parker's auspices in 1574, pp. 266-275, 282, 286, 290, 293-295.

^d Stevens says, Contin. vol. i. p. 261, "In the year 1357, 31 Edw. III., the king granted leave to the abbat and convent to inclose the abbey with a stone wall, and that they should hold two Fairs in the town of Watford every year; the one to continue for three days, the other for two."

A licence for a new election was obtained from the king on Sept. 18th, and on the 9th of October following the convent proceeded to the choice of an abbat: the election falling unanimously upon

JOHN DE LA MOOTE, at that time prior of the house. This abbat was a native of Syndlosham in Berkshire, where he was born of humble parentage. His first promotion in the monastery was that of chaplain to abbat de la Mare, by whom he was afterwards made cellerar. During the time of his celleranship, he constructed many buildings for the use of the monastery, and, amongst others, a handsome chamber for the abbat, contiguous to one of the wings of the church. He also rebuilt two parts of the cloister, with the library, and the chapel of St. Nicholas, and renewed many buildings belonging to the several farms and estates of the abbey. He rebuilt from the foundations the chancels of the parish churches of Sandridge and Greenbury,^f and new-roofed that of Norton; in which works he is supposed to have expended at least 2000*l.*^g

Newcome says it is probable that abbat John de la Moote did not make the accustomed journey to Rome for confirmation, as the same is not mentioned, and as it is recorded among the beneficial acts of his predecessor that he obtained from the court of Rome, in consideration of a yearly pension, permission for the new elected to receive the benediction from the hands of any bishop in England.^h

In the third year of this abbat's rule, the body of John duke of Lancaster rested at this monastery in its way to London for interment, Henry Beaufort (the son of the deceased by Catherine Swinford), then bishop of Lincoln, being admitted, under certain restrictions, to perform the exequies in person: promising, under seal, that in consequence of his access to the monastery, he would do nothing to derogate from, or injure, its rights.ⁱ

Abbat de la Moote is stated to have expended the sum of 360*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* in enlarging and beautifying the mansion-house of Tytenhangre, which had long been a favourite place of residence with the abbats; and which he left, at his death, but half finished. The expenditure of so large a sum on a private residence was considered by the monks not merely as unnecessary, but as a misemployment of the church revenues: in the midst of their remonstrances, however, death put an end to our abbat's career. Abbat de la Moote is stated to have died from a pleurisy, on the morrow of St. Simon and St. Jude, A. D. 1400;^k being buried, according to Weever, with the following epitaph:

"M. c. quater vint. quint. claudis heic membra Ioannis, Qui dignis laudibus veteranis occidit annis:
Intus confratres bene rexit, post fuit abbas Constans ut Josua, zelans legem ut Helias.
Simplicitas vitæ qua noscitur esse columbæ.
Simonis et Judæ, pie pastor, cras rapuit te.
Omnem patratum Christus purgando reatum,
Nobis sublatum te muneret his sociatum."^l

From an entry on the Patent Rolls, however, his death as abbat appears not to have been announced to the king before Nov. 14th, 1402:^m in which year, on Dec. 15th, the king's consent was given to the election of

WILLIAM HECHEWORTH, or HEYWORTH.ⁿ

Mr. Newcome and Mr. Clutterbuck, who speak of this abbat as enjoying his office from 1401 to 1421, say that "nothing is recorded of him but that he was highly

Stevens says, "JOHN MOOT was the next that was preferred to the government of this church, whom King Richard favoured; for he, by his Charter dated at Westminster, February, 1397, in the twentieth year of his reign, after reciting, Whereas the abbat was immediately subject to the pope, and by the pope's bull they may elect their abbat, paying twenty marks yearly to the pope's collector in England; the king confirmed this bull, so as under the seal of the convent they certified the king of the death of every abbat, and prayed leave to choose a new one: he pardoned their offence in procuring the apostolical letters without leave, and granted the rent of twenty marks per annum to the pope." Contin. of Monast. vol. i. p. 262.

esteemed for his piety and good conduct." But the Cotton manuscript Nero D. vii. enumerates various services which he performed for his monastery, as well in repairs as presents. He completed the cloister which had been begun by his predecessor while prior: he also finished the mansion at Tyttenhamre; and the manuscript adds, "fecitque esse manerium tale quale infra regnum non invenitur honestius, saltem pro abbatis hospitacione." He likewise completed the mansion at Oxford in Gloucester College for the reception of scholars from the abbey; and renewed much of the buildings, both at the abbat's Inn in London, and in his Lodgings in the monastery. His donations of rich vestments, it is further added, were continued to the abbey even after his removal to the see of Litchfield.^a

On the fifth of August, 1420, 8 Hen. V. the king's licence was obtained for the election of a new abbat at St. Alban's, in consequence of abbat Hecheworth, or Heyworth's, consecration to the see of Litchfield.^b The spiritualities of the bishoprick were restored to him on Nov. 20th following. He attended the council of Basil in 1434: and died on the third of the ides of March, 1446.^c

On the promotion of Hecheworth, the election for abbat fell on

JOHN DE WHETHAMSTEDE, who received the temporalities from the king Oct. 23, 1420.^d

^a The following is the account of this abbat as given in the manuscript, fol. 25.

"Willielmus abbas monasterii hujus tricesimus secundus, vir fuit suis in temporibus tam Deo dilectus quam hominibus, propterque causas varias nomen in perpetua benedictione apud posteros suos habens. Primo videlicet, quia ex fratribus assumptus, et pro fratribus in hiis quæ sunt ad Deum constitutus multum provide politiceque se rexit, dividendo unicuique in utroque suo regimine prout illis opuserat. Secundo, quia pastor effectus, et pastoris baculum in manu sua in gregis tuicionem deferens, pastoraliter satis in pos fugaverat a caulis, ovesque quæsierat diligenter errantes ac inventas rursus reduxit in humeris suis. Tertio, quia vineam temporalis possessionis in custodiam suscipiens contra vulpes illos qui eam nitebantur demoliri per injurias, pro maceria se opposuit exclusitque illos omnes ac dictam vineam tutissime defensavit. In specie contra tenentes villæ de Barnet, qui ad instar vulpium de quibus scriptura meminit caudas habebant ligatas in invicem, ignemque litis multum grandem accenderant, ad demoliendum sive ad destruendum servilem tenuram suam insurrexit, satis sapienter ex adverso; docuitque eos, per virtutem regiæ commissionis ad audiendum et terminandum potentiam habentis, quam sit stultum et inutile contra juris titulum stimulumque justitiæ calcitrare. Quarto, quia dispensator factus bonorum ecclesiæ non minus fideliter quam prudenter ea in ipsis ornatum et reparationem variam legitur expendisse. Nam ad ornatum ecclesiæ vestimentum unum integrum cum tribus cappis de pano aureo rubeo falconibus intexto suis legitur in temporibus effecisse. Item sex cappas de panno aureo coloris viridis qui pannus apud Lombardos vocatur imperialis. Item unum pastorem baculum deauratum per totum. Et circa hæc omnia expendisse fertur centum libras et ultra. Item Claustrum per prædecessorem suum abbatem Johannem quintum tempore quo prior fuerat semivoltatum voltavit in integrum fecitque hinc inde opus esse consimile per totum. Item manerium suum de Tyttenhamre per eundem etiam prædecessorem suum in fundo et in muris solemniter inchoatum duxit finaliter ad perfectum, fecitque esse manerium tale quale infra regnum non invenitur honestius saltem pro abbatis hospitacione. Item mansum pro scholaribus apud Oxoniam per immediatum itaque suum prædecessorem inchoatum per prius usque ad perfectum perduxerat, fecitque esse mansum tale quale infra totum collegium Gloucestræ non invenitur sibi sollennius esse. Item in hospitio suo apud Londoniam parloram suam renovavit decentius satis, domumque quæ abinde tendit usque ad mansum custodis renovaverat totaliter a fundamentis. Item cameram suam inferiorem infra monasterium, vetustam prius et quasi desolatam, innovavit in variis ut puta in celatura, camino, et fenestris, fierique fecit pro ea in lecto et aliis satis decentes perornationes. Item pro garderoba duas renovari fecit pelves argenteas quæ scuta habent sancti Albani anemelatas in suis fundis. Item ciphos totidem argenteos deauratos cum cooperculis ad serviendum in mensa personis accedere cum contigerit magis honestis. Et quia tam fideliter bona ecclesiæ dispensaverat tamque prudenter in tempore tritici mensuram populo indigenti ministrabat, ideo super excelsiorem constituit eum Dominus familiaris, transtulitque eum de sede hujus cænobialis ecclesiæ usque ad cathedralem ecclesiam Lichfeldensem, ubi præsul et pastor factus et super plebem rector constitutus, sic juxta doctrinam prophetæ evellere studuit, et destruere, dissipare, et disperdere, ædificare vero et complantare quod modo cum prophetis, cum sanctisque aliis Dei cælestis meretur sortem habere et hæreditatem in perpetuas æternitates. Præsul et prælatus ideo præ cæteris magis signanter commemorandus, quia postquam recessit a primævæ sponsæ amplexibus, et nupsit alteri dignitatis excelsioris, ipsam primævam non deseruit, immo coluit amplius ardentiusque dilexit. Nam postquam ab hac recessit ecclesia nonnulla in libris, cappis, auro, et vestimentis eidem conferebat donaria, de quibus in laudem perpetuam nominis ipsius fit alibi in registro magis plana inscriptio declaratioque specialis."

^b Pat. 8 Hen. V.

This learned man, who was twice abbat of the monastery, assumed the name of Whethamstede from the village of his birth, not far from St. Alban's: but his family name was Bostock.^e He was first a monk of the priory of Tynmouth in Northumberland, which has been already mentioned as a cell of St. Alban's; then, at Gloucester;^f he afterwards was prior of Gloucester College at Oxford:^g was ordained priest at St. Paul's by Bishop Braybroke Sept. 20th, 1382;^h and was afterwards promoted to the priorate of Tynmouth, in which capacity he assisted at the election of John Moot to be abbat of St. Alban's in 1396, and again, in 1401, at the election of William Hecheworth, or Heyworth, his immediate predecessor.ⁱ

He went as proctor for the Benedictine order in England to the councils of Pavia and Sienna in 1423 and 1424; being in the latter year D.D. and rector of Cornard Parva in Suffolk.^k

In the manuscript memoir of this abbat, during his first administration, given in the Cotton MS. Nero D. vii.^l we have the following enumeration of his good deeds.

He expended more than forty pounds in the painting and decoration of the lady-chapel:^m in the construction and ornamenting of a new chapel in the church, overagainst St. Alban's shrine, more than seventy-four pounds: on a new reading-desk of wood, for the Gospel, ^e Kennett, Diptycha Eccl. Anglic. Bishop Heyworth will hereafter be noticed as a benefactor to the monastery of Burton upon Trent. Mr. Gough says, that "by his will dated July 12th, 1442, proved July 3, 1447, he directed his body to be buried either in the cathedral of Litchfield, or the monastery of St. Alban's;" but in which he was buried he could not find. ^e The pedigree of John Bostock, abbat of St. Alban's, is given in the Harl. MS. cxxxix. fol. 97; whence it appears that his grandfather was a Cheshire man, that his father was Hugh Bostok, or Bostock, of Wheathamsted in the county of Hertford, and his mother, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Makery, lord of Makery End in the same county.

Leland and Bishop Tanner call him Johannes Frumentarius. See also Bale, Cent. viii. p. 584. Pits, an. 1440, p. 630. Voss. de Historicis Lat. lib. iii. In one instance, in the Register of his abbacy in the library of the Royal Society he is called Johannes de Loco Frumenti. Once, also, in the Cotton MS. Nero D. vii. he is called Johannes Frumentalis.

^f This is given on the authority of Pits, but is probably a mistake for Gloucester college, or hall, at Oxford, next mentioned.

^g The foundation of Gloucester college, or hall, (now Worcester college) Oxford, in 1283, has been already noticed in vol. i. p. 533. It was originally appropriated to thirteen monks, who were chosen from the monastery of St. Peter Gloucester: but other monasteries of the Benedictines afterwards partook of the benefits of the foundation. The abbey which sent monks hither, besides St. Peter Gloucester, were St. Alban's, Glastonbury, Tavistock, Burton, Chertsey, Coventry, Evesham, Eynsham, St. Edmundsbury, Winchcombe, Abbotsbury, Michelney, Malmesbury, Rochester, Norwich, Stokes, St. Neot's, and others. The several habitations of the students were distinguished by arms and rebuses cut in stone over the respective doors, some of which are still visible on the old buildings. The completion of that for the residence of students from St. Alban's monastery has been just noticed in the account of abbat Hecheworth. The arms of St. Alban's abbey, together with those of Tavistock, Burton, and Chertsey, were placed over the outer gate: by which monasteries, in all probability, the gateway had been renewed. Compare Newcome, Hist. St. Alban's, pp. 307, 308. Chalmers, Hist. Coll. and Halls of Oxford, vol. ii. pp. 428, 429.

They likewise occur as ornaments at the corners of both the illuminations of his portrait in the Cotton MS. Claud. D. VII. in the initial letters of the two memoirs relating to him.

Weever having noticed various other inscriptions put up by abbat Whethamstede, says: "After this manner did he adorne, new build, and enrich both his church and abbey; and in all his new buildings or repairings hee caused the pictures of a lambe and an eagle to be thereupon drawne or depicted with these verses following; which you may reade upon the rooffe or top of the quire in the abbey church at this day.

Among the regulations which he made in his monastery, we find the appointment of Our Lady's mass to be performed with the organ, together with a perpetual salary to the singers. He first instituted a common chest in the monastery, endowing it well himself as a stock in cases of necessity.^h He also instituted the office of master of the works, with an endowment ade-

and adds, "In a chappell there which he much enlarged, he caused to be painted upon the walls the similitudes of all the saints of his own Christian name of John: with his owne picture, which seemingly thus prayed, Tyttenhanger House, to which King Henry the Eighth and his queen removed with their retinue in 1528, during the continuance of the sweating sickness in London, was conveyed, after the dissolution of St. Alban's monastery, A. D. 1547, to Sir Thomas Pope. The windows of the chapel of this mansion were still further enriched by Sir Thomas with painted glass brought hither from the choir of St. Alban's abbey. This ancient and stately mansion, however, was entirely pulled down, and a new one erected in its place, about 1654, by Sir Henry Blount, the famous traveller. See Warton's Life of Sir Thomas Pope, edit. 1780, pp. 169, 170.

^e Weever says, that in some of the books which Whethamstede gave to this library, he wrote these verses:

"Fratribus Oxoniæ datur in munus liber iste, Per patrem pecorum prothomartyris Angligenorum:
Quem si quis rapiat ad partem sive reponat:
Vel Judæ laqueum, vel furcas sentiat; Amen."

and in others:

"Discior ut docti fieret nova regia plebi Culta magisque deæ datur hic liber ara Minervæ,
His qui diis dictis libant holocausta ministris.
Et cirre bibulam sitiunt præ nectare lympham, Estque librique loci, idem dator, actor et unus."

Ibid. pp. 565, 566.

^f Weever says, in the principal window of this chapel, under the pictures of the Crucifix, the Virgin Mary, and St. John Baptist, "he caused these deprecatory rimes to be put in the glasse.

"Mors medecina necis; via vitæ; pax populatus; Sis spes prompta precis; lex curæ, laus monachatus."

"Matris mæsticia; mors prolis; vulnera quina, Sint mea letitia, fati pulsante ruina."

"Virginis imbutor, fidei fortissimæ tutor, Nominis ut reputor, feror omnis oro secutor."

^g A more particular account of some of these expenses, transcribed from abbat Whethamstede's Register, now preserved in the library of the Royal Society, will be found in the Appendix of Instruments, Num. XXXVIII. Of the Register itself, which also extends to abbat Ramryge's time, an account will be given presently.

quate to the construction of new buildings as well as repairs.^a He augmented the pay of the several priests in the society to 6s. 8d. in three portions.

In different suits for the rights of his abbey, enumerated in the manuscript, he expended above two hundred and forty pounds.

In several treaties for the defence or enlargement of the privileges of the monastery he expended more than forty-six pounds.^b

In purchases of different kinds he expended above fifteen hundred pounds: among these, beside seven manors, and numerous parcels of land, tenements, and messuages, were two quarries at Totenho in Bedfordshire, one of which cost twelve, the other eight pounds. These quarries abbat Whethamstede assigned exclusively for the buildings of the abbey.^c

On the advowson of Beaulieu Priory, and changing the vicarage there into a rectory, and in augmenting the pensions of the scholars studying at Oxford by 13s. 4d. each, he expended above seventy-nine pounds.

He advanced the yearly value of the several manors and parks belonging to the monastery, and increased the rents both in the town of St. Alban's and in London.^d

Finally, by his interest with Humphrey duke of Gloucester, although it cost him above eighty-two pounds, he got the Charter of the abbey renewed, and so enlarged, that no monastery in the kingdom had the like, nor any church such a franchise.^e

Many donations of lands, Mr. Clutterbuck observes, had of late years been made to this monastery, but were rendered null and void by the statute of Mortmain. Whethamstede, whose mind was always intent upon augmenting the revenues of his monastery, found means by a subtle contrivance to possess himself of these bequests, first suffering them to be seized by the king's escheator, and afterwards begging them as a donation from the crown, through the interest of his friend and patron the duke of Gloucester.^f In this manner, in the eighteenth year of his government, he procured royal grants of several manors, the expences of which will be found detailed in the Appendix:^g and in order to secure himself from the charge of irregularity in these proceedings, procured a pardon to be granted to him, in general terms, by the parliament then sitting.

The Harleian manuscript num. 3775 contains a Latin detail, probably drawn up by abbat Whethamstede himself, respecting the successful effort of the abbat of Westminster to establish his precedence over the abbat of St. Alban's in parliament.

Abbat Whethamstede, it appears, being summoned to parliament, found himself much mortified and degraded, as he thought, in seeing the abbat of Westminster take a seat above him; but learning that Westminster had long usage to plead, he forebore to make any claim, but ordered it to be registered, how and in what manner the abbat of St. Alban, who had been dignified with precedence, and styled the first abbat in place and honour, had lost this preeminence. And it was after this manner: in the reign of Richard II., who was a great fosterer and promoter of the abbey of Westminster, the parliament then sitting, John Moot, at that time abbat of St. Alban, took his proper seat, that is the first and uppermost. The abbat of Westminster coming in late, made an attempt to sit in that place, but was hindered by Moot: and this attempt was repeated many times after, and as often repulsed by Moot: and the abbat of Westminster took another seat. But, one day, Moot being absent, and his place supplied by his Prior, the abbat of Westminster came, and a great dispute arose; the abbat claiming, and the prior defending. Henry earl of Northumberland, to whom the dispute was referred, said that abbat Thomas de la Mare (who died in 1396), having been absent for ten years by reason of infirmity, had lost all right, and that others had sate above him 'ad libitum.' The prior appealed to the lords who had seen these things ten years before; and these were the Duke of Buckingham, the Lord Scroope, and William of Wykeham. These lords, unwilling to offend the king by determining against the abbat of Westminster, referred it to his majesty, with a request that he would save harmless all the rights, privileges, and immunities of his ancient and royal monastery of St. Alban. The king decreed that the two abbats should take the uppermost seat alternately, day by day. But the abbat of St. Alban being often absent

"Item, idem abbas suis in temporibus traducisive transferri fecit in vulgare nostrum Vitam sancti Albani martyris in modo quæ transferendi posuit hujusmodi ordinem, quod pronunc nullicubi infra regnum sit vita ea acceptior ad legendum. by reason of distance, and the abbat of Westminster being near at hand, he took the advantage, and seated himself at pleasure; and William Hecheworth, or Hayworth, who succeeded Moot, contenting himself with a consciousness of having most learning, never asserted his ancient right, nor moved the question further.^a

After Whethamstede had ruled over the abbey about twenty years, he began to think of resigning his office upon the pretext of ill health: he was sensible that he was the object of envy, and foresaw that his great friend at court, the protector, Humphrey duke of Gloucester, was declining in popularity, and would probably lose much of his present power. Having signified his intention, he was entreated by his brethren to recall it; but, continuing inflexible in this resolution, he executed a deed to that effect on the 26th of November, 1440.^b Two days after, on Nov. 28th, the king's licence was obtained for a new election:^c when

JOHN STOKES, then prior of Wallingford, was chosen to succeed him; being the thirty-fourth abbat.

Of the history of this abbat we know but little. He is said to have suffered the possessions of the abbey to be wasted by inferior inmates. Still, however, he is stated in the Cotton MS. Nero D. vii. to have used some exertions, although they afterwards proved fruitless, in defence of the abbey rights.^d The principal event of his time was the death, and interment in the abbey, of Humphrey duke of Gloucester, who has been already mentioned as the friend and patron of the monastery in the time of abbat Whethamstede. Mr. Gough, in his work on 'Sepulchral Monuments in Great Britain,'^e considers the duke's tomb, still remaining at St. Alban's, to have been erected by abbat Whethamstede: but the following passage in the Cotton manuscript just quoted in the account of abbat Stoke must be allowed to transfer the credit of erecting it to him. "Et quemadmodum pro jure et libertate suæ ecclesiæ viriliter sæpius se opposuit: sic etiam Dei ad honorem et decorem ipsius vicibus variis quamplura fabricari fecit. Nam dum sospes superstesque fuerat illud lapideum tabernaculum quod pronunc erigitur super domini ducis Gloucestricæ sarcophagum fabricari faciebat."^f

Abbat Stoke died in 1451. The remains of the brass figure which formerly adorned his tomb is engraved by Mr. Gough.^g Round the ledge of the stone containing it, on the north side of the presbytery, are the following lines:

"Vir crucis et Christi tumulo jacet insitus isti Carcere de tristi salvetur sanguine Christi.

Nam conanti cupientique comite Oxoniæ, vi et vigore ejusdam talliæ, perquirere sibi manerium de Gorham, ipsumque ad dominium a quo exierat iterum revocare, adeo viriliter se opposuit, adeoque prudenter pro saluacione ipsius laboravit, ut tandem per tractatus medium, et per tricentiarum marcarum pretium relaxationem sufficientem obtinuit; sicque ipsum manerium monasterio pro perpetuo securavit. Cuidam etiam juveni prætendenti se hæredem esse terrarum de Harpissfeld, et placitum suscitanti tam potenter restitit ut suum dimitteret placitum nec ulterius morte præventus jus aut clameum in ipsis vendicaret. Cum Thoma insuper Charleton milite pro manerio de Burston grandem habuit conflictum et sumptuosum, attamen quia miles fuerat multum litigiosus, multaque dominatione suffultus, nequaquam eum plene potuit pacificare in temporibus suis. Præterea apud dominum regem pro retencione quorundam jocalium et ornamentorum quæ dominus dux Gloucestricæ temporibus sui prædecessoris ecclesiæ donaverat et sub scripto sigillato confirmarat, tam oportunas ac etiam importunas egit instancias ut tandem rex per viam recompensationis ampliaret libertatem ecclesiæ, concederetque inter cætera quod nec senescallus marchesiæ, nec clericus mercati haberet imposterum dictam ingredi libertatem, aut infra illam aliquam potestatem exercere." On three labels issuing from the abbat's mouth are the following lines:

"Celica regna bone mⁱ dentur quaeso patrone.
Penas compesce, requiem da, virgula Jesse.
Me precor, Amphibale, salvens ad sidera sume."

At the feet of the abbat were the following lines, now preserved only in Weever:

"Hic iacet oblitus Stoke stans velut ardua quercus Semper in adversis perstitit intrepidus.
Wallingford prior hic gregis hujus pastor et abbas, Donet ei requiem celsa Dei pietas."ⁱ

Upon the death of abbat Stoke, several persons were proposed to succeed him: among whom were William Albon the prior, and William Wallingford, who had served the offices of bursar, cellarer, and forester, and was then archdeacon. The king's licence to elect a new abbat was obtained on Dec. 23, 1451,^k when the 17th of January following was fixed upon for the election. Newcome has given the list of persons who were then present in the chapter, at which William Albon, the prior, proposed, and the convent unanimously agreed in, the re-election of

JOHN DE WHETHAMSTEDE. The new abbat, it appears, went to London, to be presented to the king, and to swear fealty: but a question arose, in the king's presence, whether the taking of this oath was necessary. Those in the negative opinion said, that the second nuptial bed was not blessed as the first: those in the affirmative said, that the benediction of the abbat, which always followed the oath, could not be given without the oath. On this the elect referred the question to the doctors of the Court of Arches: when their books determined that the benediction needed not to be repeated. Upon this Whethamstede retired to his country-house, where the abbats used to live in the time of the vacation; and, when the day of his installation came, he rode on horseback, and came to the west door of the church, where he was received with procession, and led to the choir: and there he returned thanks.^a

Upon inquiring into the state of the finances of the abbey, he found that many valuable presents which had been bestowed upon the monastery by the duke of Gloucester had never been received: and he experienced the further mortification of seeing them irrecoverably pass away to the king's new foundations at Eton and Cambridge. As a compensation, however, for the loss of these valuables, the reigning monarch, King Henry the Sixth, had ordered a Charter of Privileges to be prepared for his signature. The execution of this deed having been delayed for a considerable time, Whethamstede, upon one of the king's progresses to the abbey, took occasion to urge the completion of his intention, in which he succeeded; and obtained for his convent the confirmation and ratification of two Charters which had been before granted by this prince; the one to Whethamstede, dated from his mansion at Kenyngton, in the 18th, the other to John Stoke, the thirty-fourth abbat, at Westminster, in the 26th year of his reign. He had also expected to find that, under the rule of his predecessor, who had lived during a time of fertility, the revenues of the abbey would have been augmented; but, to his great surprize, he found that there was no money in the treasury, and little corn in the granary, for the support of the convent the ensuing year: upon careful examination, however, of the accompts, it appeared that the rents had been regularly paid, and either must have been purloined, or the disbursements must have greatly exceeded the receipts: and though he did not succeed in recovering the whole amount of the sums which had been converted to improper uses, he gained sufficient to rescue the convent from the danger of immediate want.^b nastery, Mr. Clutterbuck observes, combined with the civil commotions of the state, which now began to be divided by the contentions of the houses of York and Lancaster, conspired to render the second period of this abbat's government both difficult and dangerous. In this fatal quarrel, the first blow was struck at St. Alban's in the year 1455, in the battle between Richard duke of York and King Henry the Sixth.^c The particulars of this battle need hardly to be repeated here: it was carried on in the streets of St. Alban's, and ended in the discomfiture of the royal army. King Henry himself, wounded in the neck by an arrow, and deserted by his friends, sought shelter in a cottage, where he was found by the Duke of York, and conducted to the abbey.

At the intercession of Whethamstede, the bodies of the Duke of Somerset, the Earl of Northumberland, and the Lord Clifford, who had fallen in this battle on the king's side, were interred in the chapel of the Virgin Mary within the abbey. The abbat's own account of this interment, with his address upon the occasion to the Duke of York, will be found in the Note,^d as printed by Hearne in what is called Whethamstede's Chronicle.

Upon this occasion the monastery escaped without injury; which is supposed to have been owing to the king's not having taken up his abode there the night before the battle; which he probably would have done, had not the exigency of the occasion required his immediate presence at the place where his standard was pitched.^e

About this time, Mr. Clutterbuck adds, Whethamstede is reported to have treated with William Halle of Shitlington in the county of Bedford, gent. for the manor of Garston in Watford, and to have purchased the manor of Aygnell in the parish of Redburn.^f

In 1459, King Henry the Sixth passed his Easter at the abbey: ordering his best robe to be delivered to the prior at his departure.^g

* The following is the interesting account of this visit given in Whethamstede's Chronicle:

"Finito plenius anno septimo, elapsoque pene anni sequentis termino primo, prope illud tempus, quo in asino veniebat dominus Jhesus Jerusalem, ad celebrandum ibidem Pascha cum discipulis suis, venit etiam dominus noster rex ad monasterium, ad manducandum ibidem agnellam paschalem cum ducibus et comitibus, cum baronibus et mi-

The next year was rendered still more memorable by the second battle of St. Alban's, which was fought on Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 17th, 1460-1, between Margaret of Anjou, and the Yorkists under the command of the earl of Warwick.^a The queen was victorious, and, with the king and Prince Edward, retired at first to the abbey.^b

In 1461, immediately after the accession of Edward the Fourth to the throne, abbat Whethamstede procured a confirmation to the abbey of the priory of Pembroke and its dependencies, originally given to the monastery, as has been already mentioned, by the duke of Gloucester:^c and, in the ensuing year, he presented a petition to the king upon the impoverished state of the abbey, which he represented as having decreased in power and dignity through the distractions of the times; in consideration of which the king granted a new Charter of Privileges, litibus, cum aliisque variis nobilibus ac familiaribus suis. Quo manducato, et Paschali tempore pene peracto, proposuit iter arripere versus Londonias, ad communicandum ibidem cum regni prælatis et proceribus, super ambassata mittenda in Ytaliā, ad quoddam grande Concilium, ibidem in urbe Mantuæ per dominum apostolicum in proximo celebrandum. Priusquam tamen à monasterio recederet, jussit custodi suarum robarum, ut togam suam optimam, qua tantummodo die unico tempore Paschali usus fuerat, traderet priori protunc præsentem, ac etiam liberaret. De qua jussione thesaurarius regni audiens, et ipsam solam dominum Regem statui suo competentem habere intelligens, convenit protinus cum priore, redemptionemque faciens pro quinquaginta marcis, retinuit, vix rege consentiente, ipsam in pace in usum illius. Adveniente utique die sui recessus, instantique hora, qua in proximo equum erat ascensurus, accessit ad suam præsentiam prior monasterii dictus, quia protunc abbas, propter languorem et senium, fuerat absens, genuflectensque in terram, eas, quas scivit aut valuit, egit sibi gratias, pro universis et singulis beneficiis, per ipsum monasterio impensis, et rogavit humiliter, de gratiosa benevolentia continuationis. Ad hæc rex. 'Prior, pauca hucusque egimus. Attamen, si, per gratiam Dei misericordis, continget nos dies habere paulisper longiores, addemus et superaddemus, talemque benevolentiam ostendemus vobis, quod tam causam habebitis, quam etiam materiam ad orandum specialiter magis pro nobis.' Et hiis dictis, recessit de camera ad Feretrum, de feretro vero ad ostium ecclesiæ quod respicit occidentem, ibique equum ascendens, et priorem se sequentem respiciens, jussit, ut, quam cito commode poterat, ad civitatem Londoniarum iter suum dirigeret, recepturus ibidem illam pecuniæ summam, quæ pro toga redempta debita ecclesiæ suæ erat. Pergente igitur priore, opportunitate capta, ad civitatem, et perveniente ad regis præsentiam, mox, eo viso, jussit rex summam dictam afferri in medium, ut videret, ne fraus feret, aut dolus in solutione ejusdem. Qua in medium allata, et per ipsum dominum regem narrative numerata, mox princeps gratiosus ipsam priori tradidit, jussitque ut in usum exponeret ecclesiæ, ac de ornatu cultiori provideret. Jussit etiam, ut, de avisamento sani sapidi que concilli, varentum conciperet sufficiens, directum suo wardrobeario ad providendum de panno aureo magis pretioso, vocato vulgariter crimesyne thisswe, ad faciendum inde cappam, casulam, et duas tuniculas, una cum apparatu sufficienti, tam desubtus quam etiam supra, pro majori prothomartiris altari, et ut conceptum celeriori modo, quo sciverat, ad suam regiam præsentiam apportaret. Quo concepto ac etiam apportato, mox calamo sive penna sumpta, ipsum protinus consignavit, statimque post consignmentem tradi garderobario suo jussit. Et hoc facto, vocavit ad se Priorem, et dixit: 'Prior, quanquam hæc pauca fuerint et paucissima, nullaque retributione spirituali multum digna, attamen, quia intendimus posterius ad hæc alia adicere ulterius, desideramus, ut velit abbas vester et conventus concedere nobis rem unam, ad observandum videlicet, post nostrum decessum, diem annalem obitarium nostrum, et nobis de et super illorum concessione certiorare per scripturam.' Rediens prior ad monasterium, et aperiens suo patri regium in ista parte desiderium, mox ipse, de unanimi assensu, consensu, et voluntate totius conventus, certioravit suum sanctum desiderium, una cum aliquali uberiori adjectione, cum summa promptitudine complacendi fuisse concessum, ac ulterius pro majori robore concessionis et observationis, redactum fuisse in scriptis, per hunc, qui hic subsequitur modum.

'Christianissimo, illustrissimoque principi, domino Henrico sexto, Dei gratia, regi Angliæ et Franciæ, ac domino Hiberniæ, sui Capellani infimi, humillimique oratores ac assidui, Johannes abbas et conventus monasterii sancti Albani, ea suffragiorum obsequia, quæ per temporalia sic conducunt, quod demum perducant ad æterna. Princeps illustris et insignis, sancta quamvis fuerit cogitatio et salutaris, pro hiis omnibus exorare in genere, qui cum pietate dormitionem acceperant, et inter vocatos multos in numero electorum supponuntur esse, longe tamen nobis sanctior est meditatio, magisque salubris, pro illis omnibus invocare in specie, qui dudum in humanis egerant, nobis magis amicales fuerant, amicitioris largitionisque dragmas in tipicam nostram Jerusalem intulere. Hii etenim sic juste et religiose de futura cogitabant naturæ mortalis resurrectione, quod nec vanum videbatur eis fuisse nec superfluum orare pro mortuis, imo id medium credebant esse aptissimum, ad impetrandum optimam repositam gratiam, ac etiam ad reddendum Deum pium magis ac propitium peccatis eorum. In hac igitur tam sancta meditatione, tamque salubri, cupientes per nos precum hostias pro omnibus hiis, sic nobis amicantibus, immolari, et præcipue pro vobis, Christianissime Princeps, qui dragmas nedum auri et argenti in nostram dudum intulistis Jerusalem, in non parvum ditionem exigui templi nostri, quinimo ulterius, quasi quotidie inferre studetis ornatus wherein the civil power which had before been exercised by the abbats was more precisely defined, and much increased and enlarged.^d

During his second abbacy, also, he built, at his own charge, a chapel on the north side of the church, which was consecrated to St. Andrew the Apostle.^e

Abbat Whethamstede died Jan. 20th, 1464. His tomb, a simple elegant chapel, still remaining, on the south side of the high altar at St. Alban's, is engraved in Mr. Gough's Sepulchral Monuments, vol. ii. pl. lxxviii. It is adorned with numerous shields of arms, among which are those of the abbey, and his own coat, a chevron between three ears of wheat: with the inscription, Valles habundabunt, twice repeated in front. His figure in brass, in pontificalibus, was formerly upon a blue slab beneath the canopy. Over him, painted on the wall, is this epitaph:

vestimentorum varios, nonnullosque apparatus pro ecclesia alios adeo sumptuosos, quod vix alicubi in fralimite totius hujus regni inveniuntur ipsis meliores: de consensu nostro unanimi, assensu expresso, voluntateque concordī, concedimus Christianissimæ illustrissimæque celsitudini vestræ, primo, quantum de Dei misericordia confisi concedere poterimus, munus, quamquam exilimum, apud nos tamen ditissimum, in nostra possessione maxime pretiosum, munus videlicet nostræ fraternationis spiritualis, per participationem precum omnium et suffragiorum, in missis, horis, vesperis, et matutinis; in vigiliis, jejuniis, elemosinis, et disciplinis; in inclinationibus, prostrationibus, et genuflectionibus; in cæterisque omnibus et singulis devotionibus spiritualibus, quæ inter nos, sive de die sive per noctem fiunt, seu fieri solent, juxta ritum et consuetudinem nostræ monasticæ religionis; in omnibus ad Dei honorem, et, ut mediis illorum et instanciis, omnes actiones vestras regias, sic summi regis clementia aspirando præveniat, sicque præveniēdo prosequatur et gubernet, quod cuncta vestra operatio per ipsum incipiat, inceptaque cum ipso, finem optatum sumat. Et super hæc ulterius pacem, tam ab infra quam ad extra, quam etiam hinc inde et circumquaque, vestris concedat temporibus, dummodo reges et principes, omnesque terræ judices habebunt laudare regem regum, exaltareque ulterius nomen ejus solius usque in sempiternum. Concedimus etiam secundo eidem celsitudini regiæ vestræ Collectam: "Deus, in cujus manu corda sunt regum, &c." dicendum quotidie, durante prosperanteque in Domino vita vestra naturali, quam dierum longitudine prooptamus adimpleri, apud altaria missæ majoris, missæ Mariæ virginis, et missæ Albani Anglorum prothomartiris, per fratres limitatos sive intabulatos pro celebratione earundum. Post vestrum vero decessum, quem optamus ac etiam desideramus fore felicem, Collectam, "Incline Domina aurem tuam," &c. continuandam simili modo ab hac hora inantea usque in sempiternum. Ad finem illum et intentum, quod et si nequaquam mediis aut meritis personarum celebrantium, vi tamen, vigore, et virtute misterii illius, quod inesse fertur in missis, dignetur immensa clementia Domini salvatoris vestris regiis visceribus hujusmodi affectum devotionis infundere, ut ipsum in omnibus, et super omnia, diligentes, promissiones suas, quæ omne desiderium superant, consequi finaliter valeatis. Concedimus insuper tertio, quomodo, omni anno, in die sacræ cænæ Dominicæ, in qua solent pauperes, pro elemosina habenda, ad monasterium convenire, introducemus, sive introduci faciemus, inter cæteros sex viros pauperiores, ad sedendum in nostro claustrum, et recipiendum, tam in pane et pecuniis, quam etiam in aliis variis usitatibus, quemadmodum alii magis egentes pro nobilioribus illustrioribusque nostris benefactoribus solent recipere, ad orandum in specie pro prospero, imo prosperrimo statu vestro, dum continget vestram regiam celsitudinem humanitussuperesce. Post vestrum vero decessum, quem prout adhuc, iterum flexis optamus genibus fore felicissimum, ad orandum, ac etiam deprecandum, pro salute vestræ animæ, pro ipsiusque requie æterna, ac perpetua cum Domino prosperatione. Concedimus adhuc ulterius, et ex superabundanti magis, quarto omni anno post vestrum decessum, per gratiam Dei illius, qui dat dies et annos diutius differendum, adveniente die obitario vestro, servare, observare, et conservare diem illum non inferiori solennitate in officiis et obsequiis, in cereorum luminaribus, in campanarum compulsionibus, in cæterisque aliis usitatibus, quam solemus servare et concelebrare anniversaria illustrissimorum progenitorum vestrorum, Henrici secundi, Edwardi secundi, et divæ memoriæ Henrici quinti patris vestri. Sicque servare, celebrare, et continuare promittimus nos, ac etiam obligamus, post vestrum decessum omne per ævum, in sæcula sæculorum. Amen. In quarum omnium concessionum planum expressumque testimonium, in fidemque plenam ac plenariam, ad perfectam perpetuamque observantiam omnium præmissorum aut per nos, aut successores nostros, nos Johannes Abbas antedictus et Conventus apposimus huic scripto, tam Sigillum mei Johannis abbatis, quam sigillum etiam commune totius conventualis nostræ congregationis. Dat in domo nostra capitulari, die decimo quinto mensis Maii, anno a Dominico natalitio millesimo quadringentesimo quinquagesimo nono, et dicti domini regis Henrici sexti anno tricesimo septimo." ^d This Charter having been recently printed by Mr. Clutterbuck in the first volume of his History of Hertfordshire, it has been thought unnecessary to repeat it in the Appendix to the present Account. Two of the smaller Charters, however, have been selected from the body of it. See Numm. XIV. XV.

^e MS. Cotton. Nero, D. vii. fol. 42.

"J. de Loco Frumentario
Qui jacet hic? frater ille Johannes, nomina magna Cui Whethamstede parvula villa dedit.
Triticæ in tumultu signant quoque nomen aristæ.
Vitam res claræ non monumenta notant." ^a

Mr. Gough says, "Beside the books which Whethamstede caused to be transcribed or collected for the library of his abbey, he added a great many of his own composition. The principal one was intituled 'Granarium,' in five volumes, a kind of theological common-place book; as his 'Propinarium,' in two volumes, was of general learning; his 'Pabularium,' and 'Palearium,' in two volumes, of the poets; and his 'Proverbiarium,' of proverbs. A detail of his proceedings against his successor, Stokes, and several poetical narrations of the events of his time, such as Cade's insurrection, the battles of Ferrybridge, Wakefield, St. Alban's, &c.; abstracts of his Granarium for the duchess of Gloucester and Bedford; memoirs of his own life and presidencies, in which are interwoven many public transactions; statutes of his house; the lives of Saints Alban and Amphibalus; besides a variety of theological and poetical pieces, and a number of letters." ^b

The following is the character of Whethamstede given by Warton in his History of English Poetry, when speaking of Humphrey duke of Gloucester:

"John Wethamstede, a learned abbat of St. Alban's, and a lover of scholars, but accused by his monks for neglecting their affairs, while he was too deeply engaged in studious employments and in procuring transcripts of useful books, notwithstanding his unwearied assiduity in beautifying and enriching their monastery, was in high favour with this munificent prince. The duke was fond of visiting this monastery, and employed abbat Whethamstede to collect valuable books for him. Some of Whethamstede's tracts, manuscript copies of which often occur in our libraries, are dedicated to the duke; ^c who presented many of them, particularly a fine copy of Whethamstede's Granarium, an immense work, which Leland calls ingens volumen, to the new library." ^d In another passage of his work Mr. Warton says, "About the year 1430, Wethamstede, the learned and liberal abbat of St. Alban's, being desirous of familiarising the history of his patron saint to the monks of his convent, employed Lydgate, as it should seem, then a monk of Bury, to translate the Latin legend of his life in English rhymes. The chronicler who records a part of this anecdote seems to consider Lydgate's translation as a matter of mere manual mechanism; for he adds that Whethamstede paid for the translation, the writing, and illuminations, one hundred shillings. It was placed before the altar of the saint, which Whethamstede afterwards adorned with much magnificence, in the abbey church." ^e

Upon the death of Whethamstede,

WILLIAM ALBON, or ALBOIN, was elected to succeed him, to whom the temporalities of the monastery were restored March 3d, 1464-5. ^f Stevens, who calls him William ALBAN, says he was elected on Jan. 31st, and that he received his name from having been born in the town of St. Alban's. He is stated to have furnished the church of his monastery with vestments, books, and ornaments, to the value of six hundred marks; and to have purchased lands and tenements in Park, Sandrige, Redburne, Watford, and St. Alban's, to the annual amount of a hundred marks. He built apartments, also, for the cellarer and the bursar of the monastery. ^g

Mr. Clutterbuck says, "In the year 1473, at the general chapter of the Benedictine order holden at Northampton, he was appointed to visit the monastery of Glastonbury; and the abbat of Ensham that of St. Alban's." ^h He died July 1st, 1476.

Upon Albion's death, the usual certificate having been sent to the king, and licence for a fresh election having been obtained, the choice of the convent fell upon

WILLIAM WALLINGFORD, at that time prior; to whom the temporalities of the monastery were restored on August 10th. The following appears to have been the oath which he took upon his election:

"I shall faithful be and true, and faith and truth shall bere to you my sovereigne lord, and to your heires kings of England of lyfe and lymne, and of erthly worship fer to lif and to dye agenst alle pepell, and diligently I shall be attendant unto your nedis and businesse, after my wyt and power, and your counsell I shall keepe, and layne, and truly I shall knowlach, and doe the services due of the temperaltees of my abby of St. Albone, which I claime to hold of you soveren lord, and the which ye aeve and yeld me, and to you and to your commandements, in that that to me apperteyneth and belongeth for my temperaltees, I shall be obey. So God help me and his saints."

During the time of this abbat, the art of printing, which had been brought into England a few years before by William Caxton, was introduced into the monastery; ⁱ and appears to have been practised here from 1480 to 1486. ^k

In 1480, also, the general chapter of Benedictines

^a Weever, Fun. Mon. p. 567, says the following epitaph was made to his memory by one of the monks:

"Contegit iste lapis venerabilis ossa Johannis Whethamstede, abbas hic qui fuit ejus in annis:
Ter doctus, doctos et amans, et eis miseratus,
Nec fraudes patiens curarum presbyteratus.
In lubricos Phinees, in adulteriisque Johannes Extitit; ymo Petrus in omnes symonianos.
Insuper in laceris domibus mansisque vetustis,
Sic reparator erat, sic reparando novabat;
Quod sibi præteritus non sit compar pater ullus,
Sive coequalis; manet impar rebus in istis.

Pro dilectoris anima tui dulciter ora
Albani sancti conventus qualibet hora."

^k Dibdin, in his account of Caxton's life, Typogr. Antiq. vol. i. p. civ. says, "Sir Henry Chauncy, whimsically enough, calls the printer who first exercised the art here by the name of INSOMUCH; from no better authority, it would seem, than because the first three words of the prologue to the St. Alban's Chronicle of 1483 are as follow—'In so myche'! That he was a monk appears very probable in Herbert's judgment; and that he was 'sometime a schoolmaster' is expressly stated by Wynkyn de Worde in the colophon to his edition of the St. Alban's Chronicle of 1497. Bale and Pits make vague mention of 'a certain schoolmaster, or reader of history, in the monastery of St. Alban's, who had collected materials for a history of England, but died before he had compiled the same; which papers,' says Herbert, 'coming into Mr. Caxton's hands, he is said from them to have printed the English Chronicle which goes under his name.' The whole of this is considered to be erroneous; and we must make up our minds, I fear, to rest satisfied with the uncertain deductions which have hitherto attended the investigation of the history of early printing at St. Alban's. Bagford, who was never at a loss for a conjecture, thinks that 'the schoolmaster at St. Alban's learnt the art of printing of Caxton.' Oldys has gravely admitted this conjecture; and adds, from Lewis, that 'it is observed of the books printed at this press, and particularly of this last (The Book of Hunting and Hawking by Juliana Barnes, or Berners, printed in 1486), that they are printed with a letter much resembling that used by Mr. Caxton in his first works. From whence (continues Lewis) it has been supposed that he and this learned collector of foreign history, &c. were acquainted, and that Mr.

at Northampton appointed our abbat to visit all the monasteries in the diocese of Lincoln; but he deputed two of the brethren, William Hardwyk, B.D., and John Maynard, to go in his stead.^a

Wallingford is represented to have been extremely prudent in the management of the revenues of his abbey, and to have been resolute in the defence of its rights; having successfully resisted some claims of Archbishop Bouchier, which, upon an appeal to the court of Rome, were decided in the abbat's favour.^b

The Cotton manuscript Nero D. vii. enumerates his labours for the advantage of the monastery in three divisions. First, when he was archdeacon; secondly, when prior; and thirdly, when abbat.^c The high altar, which Mr. Clutterbuck properly describes as the noblest piece of architecture which the abbey has to boast of, was erected by abbat William Wallingford, at the expence of eleven hundred marks. He finished the chapter-house, at the expence of a thousand marks. He had, moreover, paid a sum no smaller than 1830*l.* for debts incurred by his predecessor. He built, also, at the expence of a hundred pounds, a small chapel near the altar, on the south side, in which he constructed his tomb, with his effigies in marble: in which, after his death, which happened Aug. 8th, 1484, he was buried, with this inscription:

"Gulielmus quartus, opus hoc laudabile cujus Exstitit, hic pausat: Christus sibi præmia reddat."^d

Abbat Wallingford was succeeded by THOMAS RAMRYGE, the thirty-seventh abbat; whose election, for reasons unknown, did not take place till 1492.

Caxton taught him his art of printing, and furnished him with a press and types to print at St. Alban's.

"To this remark of Lewis it may be replied, that the earliest books printed by Caxton, from the year 1471 to 1480, do not resemble, in their types, the publications at St. Alban's. The type of Caxton's Chronicle of 1480 has somewhat of a resemblance to that of the St. Alban's books; and may possibly be considered a different species of the same genus, although the former is much more correct and elegant in its character. A peculiarity in some of the St. Alban's books is the intermixture of red with black ink, which is not observable in any of those printed by Caxton; and the St. Alban's Chronicle of 1483 exhibits a rude species of cuts let into the letter-press in a manner never practised by our typographer. In other respects the early specimens of St. Alban's printing are among the rudest exhibitions of the typographic art in the fifteenth century. As to the loan of types from Caxton's office—how could our printer, as early as the year 1480, when he had but just commenced his career at Westminster, contrive to lend this 'schoolmaster' a press and fount of letters?"

It is Mr. Dibdin's opinion, and the conclusion seems rational, that Caxton, Lettou and Machlinia, the St. Alban's printer, and a few others, all imported from the Low Countries their own particular founts of letters.

The following works are noticed by Herbert, in his edition of the Typographical Antiquities, as printed at St. Alban's:

1. Rhetorica nova fratris Laurentii Gulielmi de Saona, sm. 4to. 1480.

2. Alberti Liber modorum significandi, &c. 8vo. 1480.

3. Exempla Sacre Scripturæ ex utroque Testamento, 8vo. 1480.

4. In Aristotelis Physica, lib. viii. 8vo. 1481.

5. The St. Alban's Chronicle, folio, 1483.

6. The Book of St. Alban's, ascribed to Juliana Barnes, or Berners, who is called abbess of Sopwell, near St. Alban's, folio, 1486.

The first four of the above articles are stated in each to have been printed "apud villam Sancti Albani:" the two last have the arms of the abbey for a device. See Herb. edit. of Ames, vol. iii. p. 1430.

^c The following particulars relating to him are confessedly from the pen of abbat Ramryge, his successor:

"Primum quidem cum hujus venerabilis monasterii archidiaconus exstaret, ad Dei cultum et sanctæ religionis reverentiam, juvenes religiosos vicelicet in numero decem, suis propriis sumptibus et magnis impensis eduxit atque educavit. Verum etiam plurima et honorabilia nova ædificia in plerisque locis nostri monasterii, ut puta librariam, pistrinumque ex lapidibus sumptuose erexit. Præterea unum calicem auratum et sumptuosum cum duabus quoque phialis dedit, vitriationemque, picturationem, diversisque in hujus ecclesiæ locis fieri curavit. Cujus etiam bonitas et liberalitas plurimas domos monasterii et multa caduca loca in pristinum reparavit. Cæterum multa alia preciosissima ornamenta huic monasterio contulit pannos auro exornatos optimos optulit. Ex hujusmodi pannis, cappas, tunicas, dalmaticas, optimis artificiis factas hic hodie cum magno Dei honore tenemus, quibus profecto nulla in Anglia monasterium meliores possidet. Quod si quispiam tantarum verum valorem nosce cupiat summa est ix. C. lxxx. marc.

"Deinde, postquam factus est prior simul et coquinarius, persolvit pro coquinarii officio, tunc graviter indebitato, ccc. et lx. libras monetæ Angliæ. Item solvit diversis pro reparacionibus firmarum et domorum,

Mr. Newcome conjectures it might be from the king's displeasure on finding Catesby, the abbey's great seneschall, among the traitors at Bosworth.^e

Abbat Ramryge wrote a book "De Gestis Abbatum, Monachorum, et Benefactorum Sancti Albani Monasterii," about the year 1496.^f

Of the events of his life we have no record; nor is any thing known of the exact time of his death. His monument, on the north side of the choir, facing abbat Whethamstede's tomb, exceeds most of the monuments in St. Alban's church for splendour.

THOMAS WULCY, or WOLSEY, better known by the name of CARDINAL WOLSEY, was the next abbat: being allowed to hold his abbacy 'in commendam' with the archbishoprick of York, and numerous other preferments.^g

Newcome says, "When Wolsey took this abbey in commendam, it was such a breach of the canon law, and such an invasion of that rule and government in which abbeys had been holden, that it amazed all sober-minded persons who revered the ancient constitution of abbeys; and seemed to portend some fatal blow to that order of the clergy." Abbeys and conventual institutions required a personal attendance, and the constant presence of the ruler; which was not always the case in secular preferments. Newcome adds, "it doth not appear that he ever came down even to take possession; nor, indeed, is there the least tittle of record remaining, to shew what was done during his commendanship, which lasted till his downfall; nor who was his prior; or what material events then affected this house."^h

^g Fiddes, in his Life of Cardinal Wolsey, edit. fol. Lond. 1726, p. 162, says, under the year 1518: "Cardinal Wolsey had not only the temporalities of Bath and Wells conferred on him this year, whereof he was perpetual Commendatory, but he had liberty of holding it with the abbey of St. Alban's, though the precise time when he was made abbat of that place does not appear." Browne Willis, in a letter to Mr. Fiddes, ibid. says, "When he came first into the abbacy of St. Alban's I never could exactly find. It is plain he succeeded abbat Thomas Ramrige, who was alive in the year 1514, and possessed of the abbacy, but when Ramrige died I could never discover. I should judge Wolsey to come in the year 1516, by some circumstances, tho' it is plain he had not the temporalities of it vested in him till the 7th of December 1521, as the patents shew."

^h Hist. St. Alban's, pp. 424, 425. The Cotton MS. Titus B. i. fol. 80, gives leges at Oxford and Ipswich, is supposed to have obtained St. Alban's that he might be assisted by its revenue in carrying on his new foundations.

In 1524, he obtained a bull from Pope Clement the Seventh, and the king's permission to suppress twenty-one monasteries; and, in the year 1528, a bull for the suppression of ten more, among which were the priory of Wallingford in Berkshire, and the hospital of St. Mary de Pratis, or de Pree, two cells to St. Alban's: the revenues of which were applied toward the building of his colleges.

In the month of October, 1529, Wolsey was convicted on the statute of Præmunire, and all his property was forfeited to the king.

Among the articles exhibited against the cardinal, two or three relate to St. Alban's.

"23. Also the said lord cardinal, not regarding your laws nor justice, of his extort power hath put out divers and many farmers of his lands, and also patentees of the archbishoprick of York, and of the bishoprick of Winchester, and of the abbey of St. ALBAN'S which had good and sufficient grant thereof by your laws."

"36. Also where it hath been accustom'd that your purveyors for your honourable houshold have had yearly out of your town and liberty of St. Alban's three or four hundred quarters of wheat; truth it is, that since the lord cardinal had the room of abbot, your said purveyors cou'd not be suffer'd by him and his offecers to take any wheat within the said town or liberties."

"39. Also, on a time, your grace being at St. Alban's, according to the ancient custom us'd within your verge, your clerk of the mercat doing his office, did present unto your officers of your most honourable houshold the prices of all manner victuals, within the precinct of the verge. And 'twas commanded by your said officers to set up the said prices both on the gates of your honourable houshold, and also within the market-place in the town of St. Alban's, as of ancient custom it hath been used. And the lord cardinal, hearing the same, presumptuously, and not like a subject, caus'd the aforesaid prices, which were seal'd with your grace's seal, accustomably us'd for the same, to be taken off, and pull'd down in the said market place where they were set up, and in the same places set up his own prices seal'd with his seal, and wou'd if it had not been letted, in semblable manner have us'd your seal standing upon your gates: and also wou'd of his presumptuous mind have openly set in the stocks within your said town your clerk of your market: by which presumption and usurpation your grace may perceive, that in his heart he hath reputed himself to be equal with your majesty."^a

In the succeeding year, however, Wolsey was pardoned by the king, and suffered to keep this abbacy with the archbishoprick of York.^b He died Nov. 29th, 1530.

ROBERT CATTON, prior of Norwich, was the next abbat. In his time the art of printing was again revived at St. Alban's; and was practised within the precincts of the abbey, by one John Hertforde, Hereford, or Herford.^c Newcome and Clutterbuck say he continued to preside till 1538, when he died. From the instrument, however, by which the temporalities of the monastery were restored to his successor, it is evident he must have been first deprived.^d A letter to Lord Cromwell from Thomas Legh and William Petre, two of the visitors of the abbey, dated the 10th of December, and no doubt in 1537, details the firmness of Catton's conduct.^e

RICHARD BOREMAN, alias STEVENAGE, or DE STEVENACHE, B. D. prior of the church, was Catton's successor, and the last and fortieth abbat. His appointment is supposed to have been made solely with a view to the surrender of the monastery; which he resigned into the hands of Sir Thomas Pope, Mr. William Cavendish, and Dr. William Petre, Dec. 5th, 31 Hen. VIII.^f The king, by his Charter, dated the 14th of the same month, assigning to him the yearly pension of 266*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for the term of his life, or till he should present him to one or more benefices, or other promotions of the same yearly value.^g

Queen Mary, it appears, just before her death, meditated the re-establishment of the monastery, and the re-appointment of Richard Boreman, alias Stevenage, as the abbat.^h

The revenues of this monastery were valued, 26

^c This press appears to have existed here from 1534 to 1538 only; when Hertforde removed to Aldersgate-street London. The only work known to have been printed at St. Alban's in 1534 was 'The Lyfe and Passion of Saint Alban,' which had the following colophon: "Here endeth the glorious lyfe and passyon of saint Albon prothomartyr of Englande, and also the lyfe and passyon of saynt Amphybell which conuerted saynt Albon to the fayth of Christe: whose lyues were translated out of Frenche and Laten in to Englishe, by John Lydgate monke of Bury, and now lately put in print, at request of Robert Catton, abbot of the exempte monastery of saynt Albon. ^h Cole, in one of his manuscripts, vol. xxxii. fol. 141 b, has preserved the following from a loose paper in the hand-writing of the celebrated Elias Ashmole, dated 26 Aug. 1668. It has also been printed in the Antiquarian Repertory.

"Mr. Robert Shrimpton of St. Alban's was four times mayor: he died about sixty years since, aged 103 years. He lived when the abbey of St. Alban's flourished, before the destruction, and remembred most things relating to the buildings of the abbey, to the regiment of the house, the ceremonies in the church, and grand processions: of all which he would often discourse in his life time. Among others, that in the great hall there was an ascent of fifteen steps to the abbat's table, to which the monks brought up the service in plate, and staying at every fifth step (which was a landing place), on every of which they sung a short hymn. The abbat usually sat alone in the middle of the table; and when any nobleman or ambassador, or strangers of eminent quality, came thither, they sat at his table, towards the ends thereof. After the monks had waited awhile on the abbat they sat down at two other tables, placed on the sides of the hall, and had their service brought up by the novices, who, when the monks had dyned, sat down to their own dinner.

"This Mr. Shrimpton remembers, that when the news came to St. Alban's of Qu. Mary's death, the then abbat, for grief, took his chamber, and died in a fortnight.

"He also remembers the hollow image erected near St. Alban's

Hen. VIII. according to Dugdale, at 2102*l.* 7*s.* 1*½d.*: according to Speed at 2510*l.* 6*s.* 1*½d.*^a

The greatest part of the site of the monastic buildings here was granted by King Henry the Eighth to Sir Richard Lee, Knt. The conventual church, however, which was excepted, was subsequently granted by King Edward the Sixth (by the Charter whereby the Borough was incorporated) to the inhabitants, to serve for a parish church, in lieu of the demolished church of St. Andrew, for the sum of 400*l.*^b

The CONVENTUAL SEAL of St. Alban's was delivered to the king's commissioners at the time the monastery was surrendered. It is still preserved among the curiosities in the British Museum. It is of ivory, of an oval form, and bears the representation of St. Alban seated, holding in his hand a palm-branch. Round is this legend, SIGILLVM . SCI . ALBANI . ANGLORV . P'TOMARTIRIS. This seal is mentioned by Walsingham as of high antiquity. He further states it to have adhered miraculously to the Instrument which the townspeople extorted from abbat De la Mere in the time of King Richard the Second. "Paruit idcirco abbas petitioni presentii villanorum, et juxta vota eorum scriptum obligatorium sub forma premissa (apposito Sigillo proprio et Sigillo conventus) confecit et tradidit manibus eorundem. Ipsi autem in hiis omnibus non tamquam subditi, sed velut Domini, in camera Abbatis, in capella, in peniticio, pro libito deambulabant, et interfuerunt scripturæ ipsi, dictantes hoc quod scribendum fuerat, et sigillationi curiosius intendentes: nam pro tunc Sigilla Abbatis et Conventus ibidem fuerunt. Unde mirabile illud contigit cum Charta de libertate Villæ vel Villanorum sigillari debuisset, quod cum omni cautela et diligentia cera apposita a scientibus sigillo communi fuisset, in quo vetustissimo opere imago gloriosi prothomartyris Britanorum Albani figuratur tenens in manu palmam, nulla potuit arte per tres vices avelli vel removeri, de sigillo, prænosticans proculdubio martyrem nolle eos fore dominos, sed velle dominari ut hactenus super eos."^c shrine, wherein one being placed to govern the wyres, the eyes would move, and head nodd, according as he liked or disliked the offering, and that being young, he had many times crept into the hollow part thereof.

"In the grand processions through the town, where the image of St. Alban was carried, it was usually borne by two monks; and after it had been sat down awhile at the market-cross, and the monks assaying it to take it up agayn, they pretended they could not stir it; and then the abbat coming, and laying his crozier upon the image, and saying these words, 'Arise, arise, St. Alban, and get thee home to thy sanctuary,' it then forthwith yielded to be borne by the monks.

"In the abbey was a large room, having beds set on either side, for the receipt of strangers and pilgrims, where they had lodging and diett for three days without question made whence they came, or whither they went: but after that time they stayed not, without rendering an account of both."

On this Mr. Cole observes, that Richard Stevenage, or Boreman, the last abbat, who was alive in Queen Mary's time, was certainly designed by her, had she carried her intention of restoring the abbey into execution, to have been rechosen as the head. Her death, however, put an end to the design. Probably, he adds, the abbat might reside in the town, or part of the abbey, in hope of its restoration. On what relates to the hollow image, he remarks, these were the political lies of that age, to amuse the people, and blacken the monks, that the rapacity of hungry courtiers might be satisfied.

^d The following notice respecting Matthew Paris from the Cotton MS. Nero D. vii. will not be deemed irrelevant, more especially as he was a benefactor to the monastery.

"Matheus Parisiensis religiosus monachus, incomparabilis cronographus, et pictor peroptimus, deputatus est per dompnum papam Innocentium ad regendum Holmense monasterium in Norwagia spectans ad regimen archipresulis Nidrosiensis, cujus religio emarcuerat, fama viluerat, bona dissipata fuerant, ipsius loci desidia monachorum. Cujus religionem refluere fecit, famam suam sanctitate extulit, possessiones prudenter auxit, adeo ut nulli monasterio regionis illius inferior putaretur. Ex post discedens cum benedictione cunctorum et ad istud monasterium rediens, contulit Deo et sancto Albano duas pelves argenteas ad ministrandum sabbatis ad mandatum. Of the REGISTERS of St. Alban's monastery formerly existing, two were burnt in the fire of the Cottonian library, A. D. 1731, marked Tiberius E. vi. and Otho D. iii. The former of these, a small folio, originally consisted of two hundred and ninety-four leaves. Its remains, much burnt, are still preserved in a case in the British Museum. The manuscript Otho D. iii. another small folio, consisted of two hundred and fifty-seven leaves; but is now reduced to a crust.

Of the registers and manuscripts still remaining the following will be found the most important:

1. MS. Cotton. Julius D. iii. "Registrum Chartarum Monasterii S. Albani, de terris et prædiis, eorundemque donationibus, confirmationibus," &c. A small quarto.^f

2. MS. Cotton. Claud. D. i. a miscellaneous volume, on vellum, principally relating to the first abbacy of abbat Whethamstede.^g

3. MS. Cotton. Claud. E. iv. a volume of the larger folio size, on vellum; miscellaneous in its contents, but very ample on the lives and actions of the abbats. A syllabus of the contents as they relate to St. Alban's will be found in the Note.^h

4. MS. Cotton. Nero D. i. a manuscript not dissimilar to the preceding one in general appearance. It in quibus quam excellens in doctrinis et pictura fuerit, satis claret. Contulit insuper unam cuppam argenteam deauratam planam refectorio, ponderis quatuor marcarum et sex denariorum." fol. 51.

^e Lelandi Collect. edit. Lond. 1770, tom. iv. p. 163. He adds, "Radulphus, monachus S. Albani scripsit Vitam S. Albani, et Amphibali, carmine heroico. De hoc Radulpho Johannes Frumentarius, abbas S. Albani, inter illustres viros mentionem fecit."

^f The early Charters in this manuscript relate principally to small grants of land and dismissions of tenements, first, in the different streets of St. Alban's town, as in Kyrk-street, or Church, street, Birke-street, Haliwell-street, Dagenhale-street, Fish-pool-street, Salipahat or Salipath-street, Kingsbury-street, Bunegate or Bonegate street, Halwell bridge, Vicus Fullonum or Fuller's-street, and St. Stephen atte Hanedestreet, fol. 1 to 61. Then similar grants and dismissions are given in the places following: Bradewey, fol. 65. Cestresham, fol. 121. Chalfunte, fol. 80. Cumpstone, fol. 67. Herpesfeld, fol. 76 b. Hextonne, fol. 110. Isehamstude, fol. 75 b. Northawe, fol. 84 b. Saldeford in Redburn, fol. 106 b. Reydon, fol. 72. Rikmersworthe, fol. 100. Rugge, fol. 74. Suthmere, fol. 68. Thebrugge, fol. 64, 78 b. Waldene Regis, fol. 70 b. Watforde, fol. 88. Wavenden, fol. 70. And Woburne, fol. 123 b. The manuscript seems to have been written in the time of King Richard II. At the end of the Register, we have "Vita B. Albani per Robertum de Dunstaple monachum S. Albani, anno 1150, versibus elegiacis, decantata," with two or three other tracts which have no relation to St. Alban's.

^g This manuscript contains:

1. Epistolæ venerabilis patris Johannis Whethamstede abbatis quas ipse misit aliis scripsitque pro diversis temporibus suæ prælationis, fol. 1.

2. Acta Johannis sexti abbatis, per Johannem Agmundishamensem monachum sancti Albani per singulos annos ipsius regiminis, fol. 33.

3. Rentale domus sive hospitalis S. Juliani juxta S. Albanum; renovatum anno 22 Hen. VII. fol. 169.

4. Rentale de terris et tenementis adquisitis per Thomam Ramryge, abbatem monasterii S. Albani eodem anno renovatum, fol. 170.

The first leaf of this manuscript is ornamented with gold and colours. At the two upper corners are Whethamstede's devices: the lamb and the eagle. The former having on a label the words "Ecce agnus Dei:" the latter, "In principio erat verbum." At the lower corners are the arms of the abbey, and of the kingdom of Mercia, similar to the shields so described by Mr. Gough on Whethamstede's monument.

^h At the beginning of this volume are Thomas de Elmham's Annals from Brute to the time of Henry the Fourth. The remainder, with was one of those from which Matthew Paris's History was edited by Watts.^a

6. The "Liber Memorandorum" compiled by order

16. Chartæ Johannis abbatis sancti Albani, Innocentii papæ, aliaque parvi momenti, fol. 196 b.

^b From this manuscript, which was presented to Sir Robert Cotton by the great Lord Bacon in 1623, copious extracts have been already made in the Notes.

It opens with a brief list of the royal benefactors to the monastery, from the time of Offa to King Richard II. followed by notices of the popes from whom privileges had been obtained; and short memoirs of the different abbats from Willegod to abbat Ramryge. The names and donations of bishops, nobles, and persons of inferior rank, to the monastery, are registered at folios 86, 89, 92, &c.

At fol. 49, are the "Nomina Priorum hujus ecclesiæ." These were, Ulfus, "hic fecit capellam Sancti Germani;" Simon; Bernardus; Hamelinus; Godefridus; Ongorantus; Walterus; Ricardus; Fulco; Radulphus; Alquinus; Laurentius; Robertus; Garinus; Mathias; Acharius; Reymundus; Walterus; Johannes; Rogerus; Engerrannus; Petrus; Astillus; Johannes Bolum; Robertus Norton; Nicholaus Flamstede; Thomas Rysbur; Adam de Qwytenham; Johannes Moot.

In subsequent pages, we have "Nomina monachorum hujus domus qui alibi facti sunt prælati," fol. 50 b. "Nomina monachorum sacerdotum nostræ professionis sicut per Menses obierunt," fol. 52. "Nomina diaconorum nostræ professionis," fol. 65 b. "Nomina subdiaconorum," fol. 66 b. "Nomina accolitorum omnium mensium," fol. 67. "Nomina monachorum de Coventre omnium ordinum," fol. 69 b. "Nomina Monachorum sive Religiosorum aliorum locorum," fol. 71 b. And a very large portion of the manuscript is occupied by entries of admission of persons who sought the fraternity of the convent, up to the year 1463.

The greater part of this manuscript was compiled by Thomas Walsingham, the historian, and finished in 1380. The writer of it was William de Wylum: the illuminator, for it is filled in almost every page with portraits, was one Alan Strayler. "Alanus Strayler circa depictionem præsentis libri plurimum laboravit, et tres solidos et iiij^{or}. denarios sibi debitos pro coloribus condonavit.

"Nomen pictoris Alanus Strailer habetur, Qui, sine fine, choris cœlestibus associetur." fol. 108.

At folio 81 b, we have

"Nomina monachorum in monasterio nostro viventium tempore compilationis hujus libri videlicet anno Domini millesimo ccc^{mo}. octogesimo.

At the first compilation of the manuscript numerous blank pages appear to have been left, which allowed room for later entries: and these have been written by different hands, in different parts, without any attention to chronological arrangement. The illuminations and portraits in the earlier part of the book, by Alan Strayler, are somewhat monotonous, both in design and execution: but the illuminations, of a larger size, of the abbats Heyworth, Whethamstede, Stoke, Alboin, Wallingford, and Ramryge, deserve a better character, together with the beautiful illumination of King Henry the Sixth at folio 73, and of an abbat without a name at folio 81.

A Manuscript very similar to the one described in this note is preserved in the collection at C. C. C. Cambr. Num. VII. at the end of Thos. Walsingham's History. A minute account of it will be found, with copies of some of the illuminations, in MS. Cole, Brit. Mus. vol. XLII. p. 153-179.

^a The following is the title given to this MS. by Humphrey Wanley in the Harleian catalogue. "Codex chartaceus in folio, quem circa annum 40 R. R. Edw. III. confici sive compingi jussit, ut videtur Johannes Moot prior monasterii de sancto Albano; exinde Liber Memorandorum domini Johannis Moot prioris, coquinarii, refectorarii, infirmarii, et elemosynarii hujus monasterii nuncupatus. In quo scilicet, quamplurima scripta ad illa munera spectantia inrotulantur, non solum temporibus R. Edwardi III. et ejusdem Johannis; sed successorum suorum, usque ad regna R. R. Edwardi IV. et Henrici VII."

^b This Begister Book contains a hundred and ninety-five folios. It was compiled for the use of the elemosinary or almoner of the abbey, and contains an account of every thing belonging to the said office from the latter part of the reign of Edw. III. to 16 Ric. II.; to which, at the beginning, hath been added a long process between the abbey of St. Alban's and William Cheselden, rector of Hortpoole, about tithes, A.D. 1428, which contains fifty-one folios, not numbered. Then follows a very exact table of the contents of this Register (in twenty-eight folios, not numbered), which gives an account of lands, tithes, &c. belonging to the abbey of St. Alban's in the following places: viz.

St. Alban's,	Horpole,
Berkhamstead,	Kenebelle,
Bretenham,	Lobenham,
Boxbury,	Middilton Keynes,
Cuffeley,	Rothying,
Eversden,	Kyngulton, and
Gritton,	Tytenhangre.

At the beginning is the following memorandum of the handwriting of Bishop Kennett:

"Cartularium Elemosinariæ Mon. S^{ti}. Albani olim in custodia antecessoris mei Thomæ Dove Episcopi de Burgo S. Petri, gratissimum mihi munus dedit Henric. Dove de Upton Armiger die XXI. Aug. A.D. 1722. Wh. de Burgo S. Petri Ep^{us}."

Then on the first folio, a fresh title, "Evidentiæ de universis terris et tenementis per laborem et industriam venerabilis patris magistri Johannis Whethamstede perquisitæ."

The titles of the lands, different Instruments being occasionally included under each, are,

1. Newland, fol. 1.
2. Squilers, Boterwike, & Legatt, fol. 3.
3. Harpesfeld, fol. 7.
4. Licentia ad mortizandum manerium de Burston, 16 Hen. VI. fol. 10.

16. Horpole, fol. 24.
17. Fundatio cellæ de Bello Loco, fol. 31.

Num. 3. This manuscript, contained in a hundred and ninety-three leaves of vellum, is written very much in conformity with the Cottonian MS. Claud. D. I. except that as that contains the Annals of Whethamstede's first abbacy, from 1421 to 1440, this contains the Annals of his second government, from 1451 to 1462. The first leaf is illuminated in a manner somewhat similar to the Cotton MS. having the lamb and eagle, the arms ascribed to the kingdom of Mercia, and those of the abbey, at the corners, with the addition of a small illumination of the abbat seated among his monks, in the initial letter M.

It begins,

"Hic Prelaturæ Whethamstede pauca secunda

^b The following will be found a correct enumeration of the contents of this manuscript. The articles marked with an asterisk will be found in the Appendix of Instruments. Those marked with a dagger have been printed by Hearne in "Johannis de Whethamstede Chronicon."
1. Processus sub brevibus super modo et forma quibus Johannes dictus fuit iterum post resignationem in patrem et pastorem istius ecclesiæ reelectus, fol. i.
 2. Acta anni primi abbatis Johannis octavi, fol. 6 b.

On a blank leaf at the beginning, in a hand later than the book itself, is written,

"Blakeney Robertus capellanus domini Thomæ.

Sancta Trinitas, unus Deus, miserere nobis."

Below is the figure of a ram, with the word ryge upon a collar round its neck, and over its back a mitre.

On another leaf, at the end, are the words

"Dompnus Robertus Blakeney monachus sancti Albani."

Hence it seems to have been improperly termed by Mr. Newcome ^a "Registrum Roberti Blakeney," as if this man, who lived considerably later than Whethamstede, had been the compiler.^b

10. Among Dr. Rawlinson's manuscripts in the Bodleian library at Oxford, is a Register of Presentations to the churches belonging to St. Alban's abbey, from 1458 to 1488. A folio volume, on vellum.

One or two articles of minor importance may also be here noticed.

Cole, in his manuscript Collections, now in the British Museum, vol. xxxii. p. 221, gives a minute Account, with extracts, of the Court Rolls of the manor of Crokesley, in the parish of Rickmersworth in Hertfordshire, formerly appropriated to the office of cellerar of the abbey of St. Alban. These Rolls were written on forty-six skins or sheets of fine vellum, and were brought down from 41 Hen. III., A. D. 1256, to the end of the reign of Henry Vth, with one Roll of the 23d Hen. VIII., A. D. 1531. They were formerly in Mr. Cole's own possession. From an entry in one of his volumes it appears to have been his intention to have given the originals to Caius college in Cambridge, the manor of Crokesley having been bestowed on Dr. Caius by Queen Elizabeth. They were, however, deposited by his will in the same collection with the rest of his manuscripts.^a

^a From these Rolls, in another volume of his Collections, Mr. Cole has extracted the names, with the dates of occurrence, of the various cellerars, or lords of the manor, in whose names the courts baron were held. They were

Walter de Wylum, A. D. 1265.

J. de Scelford, A. D. 1268. Of this person, as cellerar, Mr. Cole is uncertain.

John de Marynes, A. D. 1280 to 1287. Abbat in 1301.

R. Hakford, A. D. 1287 and 1289.

Luke Bovindon, A. D. 1290 to 1295.

John Stevenach, A. D. 1298 to 1302.

Hugh Eversdon, A. D. 1303 to 1308; when he was elected abbat.

William Barbur, A. D. 1308.

Richard de Tewyng, A. D. 1313.

John Hurle, A. D. 1314 to 1316.

Nicholas Flamstede, A. D. 1316 to 1319.

Richard Stoppesle, A. D. 1320 and 1321.

William Heron, A. D. 1322.

Robert Saunford, A. D. 1323, and again in 1326.

John Kilsul, A. D. 1325.

Robert Chestan, A. D. 1377 to 1395.

Robert Botheby, A. D. 1395 to 1398.

William Heyworth, A. D. 1398 to 1400. Abbat in 1401: and afterwards bishop of Litchfield and Coventry.

John Blebury, or Belebury, A. D. 1401 to 1408. In 1410 and 1411, and again in 1419, 7 Hen. V. In 1408 brother Simon Wyndesore was joined with him in his office.

The Harleian manuscript, Num. 28, is an Indenture quadripartite made between King Henry the Seventh, the abbat and convent of Westminster, the abbat and convent of St. Alban, and the mayor and commonalty of London, concerning the holding of a solemn anniversary in the church of St. Alban for ever, and praying there for the king, the royal family, and the realm. Dated 20th November, 20 Hen. VII. On vellum. The king's arms and badges are illuminated at the beginning.^a

The CONVENTUAL, now the PARISH CHURCH of the Borough of St. Alban, consists of a nave, with two ailes, two transepts, a space between the nave and choir separated from the former by a screen and called the baptistery, a choir with two ailes, a presbytery, and a Lady chapel. A massive tower, resting upon four arches, rises from the intersection of the nave and transepts; the battlements and spire being of a later date than the lower portion of the tower.

The length of the whole church from east to west is six hundred feet, whereof, from the west door to the high altar, are four hundred and eleven feet. From thence, including the chapel of the shrine, to the east end of the Lady chapel, is a hundred and eighty-nine feet. The breadth of the transept is nearly thirty-two feet; its extreme length a hundred and seventy-four: of the nave, with its ailes, seventy-four feet and a half. Hawksmoor's plan, taken in 1721, makes its length five hundred and fifty feet; the height of the nave sixty-five feet; of the ailes thirty; of the tower a hundred and forty-four feet.^b

The dates of different parts of the building have been already incidentally noticed in the Lives of the various abbats.

The transepts and tower, with the upper half of the north aisle of the nave, are of the Norman style, and were built by abbat Paul in the reign of Henry the First.^c The western arches of the nave, with its south aisle, and the west porch, are ascribable to the time of Edward the First, and were probably built by abbat Roger de Norton.

The ceilings of both transepts are boarded, and painted in squares, with the Arms of benefactors supported by angels and J. H. C. alternately. The ceiling of the nave is painted in the same squares, but flowered, and on the flowers are lions, and in the centre J. H. C.

Simon Wyndesore occurs as cellerar alone, in 1409.

Michael Cheyne, A.D. 1413 to 1422.

Robert Blakeney, A.D. 1531 to 1533, and again in 1537.

Thomas Whetamstede, A.D. 1533 to 1536.

43 A. 27. Clementis papæ confirmatio transactionis inter Lincoln. eccl. et eccl. S. Albani.

43 A. 36. Gregorii IX. papæ privilegium priori mon. S. Albani, archidiacono de S. Albano Linc. dioc. de archid. Glovernix et ecclesia de Stan.

The choir is of the time of Henry the Third: and is also ceiled with wood.

Abbat Hugh de Everesdon has been already noticed as the builder of the Lady chapel.

This part of the structure received much embellishment from abbat Whetamstede, whose cognizances, with his arms, the ears of wheat, are sprinkled over numerous portions of the fabric.

The tower, the two transepts, and part of the nave, are built of Roman tiles from the ruins of ancient Verulam: the remaining parts of the structure of free stone, brought from the quarries of Totternhoe in Bedfordshire.

The principal entrance to the church is at the west end of the nave. This part, called the front, was the work of abbat John de Cella, in the reign of King John.

At the end of the south transept is a curious and very ancient part of the old cloister. Some of the rich arches of the south and east cloister remain against the walls of the church, but their area has long been turned up and left waste. The cloisters were a hundred and twenty-nine feet long, and twenty-one feet broad.

Almost all the monastic buildings appear to have been situated on the south and south-west side of the church. Of these the gate-house, erected in the time of King Richard the Second, is the principal remain. The upper part is still used as the prison of the borough, as it formerly was of the monastery. A correspondent gate toward the river was pulled down in 1722.

The extent of the abbey court-yard may still be traced from the fragments of walls which formed its enclosure.

The Arms of St. Alban's abbey, Az. a Cross Saltire Or. are still used by the corporation as the arms of the borough.^d

The CELLS and HOSPITALS subordinate to the monastery of St. Alban were, the Priories of BEAULIEU in Bedfordshire; BELVOIR in Lincolnshire; BINHAM in Norfolk; HATFIELD PEVEREL in Essex; HERTFORD, and REDBURN, in Hertfordshire; TYNEMOUTH in Northumberland; WALLINGFORD in Berkshire; and WYMONDHAM in Norfolk: the Nunneries of MERKYATE in Caddington in Bedfordshire; and SOPEWELL, near St. Alban's: with the Hospitals of ST. JULIAN, and ST. MARY DE PRATIS, or PREE. Mr. Clutterbuck adds to the List of Cells the Chapel of ST. GERMANUS.

^b See Mr. Gough's Account of the Abbey of St. Alban, illustrative of the Plans, Elevations, and Sections of that Building, published by the Society of Antiquaries, fol. Lond. 1813, pp. 2, 3.

^c Mr. Clutterbuck says, "It has been remarked by Dr. Ducarel that the inside of the transepts of this church very much resemble those of the abbey church of St. Stephen at Caen, in Normandy, built by William the Conqueror A.D. 1064, having the same kind of little arched work near the top; from which it seems probable that, as Paul was a Norman by birth, and had himself been bred up in the abbey of Caen, he should have adopted the same style of architecture in the construction of this church, which he is expressly said by Matthew Paris to have rebuilt. [Math. Westm. in an. ccc.xiii.]

INTEREA Dioclesianus in oriente, Maximianus Herculeus in occidente, vastari ecclesias, affligi, interficique Christianos, decimo post Neronem loco, praeceperunt. At ubi turbo persecutionis, elapsis decem annis, conquievit, progressi in publicum fideles Christi, qui se tempore discriminis silvis remotis, locis desertis, abditivè speluncis occuluerant, sanctorum ecclesias ad solum usque destructas renovant, basilicas sanctorum martyrum fundant, construunt, et perficiunt, ac veluti victricia signa propalant, dies festos celebrant, sacra faciunt.

Hoc denique tempore, basilica in honore beati Albani construitur, Anglorum prothomartyris, Beda in historiarum lib. i. cap. 7, taliter referente. Passus est beatus Albanus, die decimo kalend. Juliarum juxta civitatem Verolanium, quæ nunc à gente Anglorum, Warlamcestria, vel Watlingecestria appellatur, ubi postea temporum Christianorum serenitate, ecclesia est mirandi operis, atque ejus martyrio condigna, fabricata x. scilicet annis post passionem ejus elapsis. In quo videlicet loco usque in hodiernum diem curatio infirmorum, et frequentium operatio virtutum non desinit celebrari. Quod autem civitas memorata nomine censetur bifario, hæc ratio. Ab alveo enim quæ Warlame dicitur, et ad orientalem civitatis plagam defluit, Warlancestria: à via autem regia, quæ Watlingestreete nuncupatur, et ad partem civitatis jacet orientalem, Watlingecestria nominatur. Pax quoque in Brittanorum ecclesiis, usque in tempora Arianæ vesaniæ permansit illibata.

[Will. Malmesb. 166 a.]

PAGUS Bedefordensis continet abbatiam sancti Albani. Is non mercenarius nec futilis martyr habet laudatores et testes martyrii præcipuos, Bedam et Fortunatum, quorum copiae si vellem aliquid adjicere, tale esset ac si cuperem mari aquas infundere. Corpus sanctissimum, quod diu in terræ pulvere jacuerat, rex Offa in scrinio collocatum erexit in lumen, basilica pulcherrimi operis, et monachorum numerositate honoravit. Nec res est in ambiguo eum Bathoniæ consistentem admonitum somnio, cumque illuc iter ageret, essetque vir proximo lucis in modum ingentis faculæ supra locum sepulchri, et noctu et interdum descendens animatum indicio. Id cœnobium nunquam omnino ruinæ patuit, sed nostra ætate per Paulum abbatem, agente Lanfranco archiepiscopo, in summum auspiciū religionis evasit.

[Lelandi Collectan. vol. iii. p. 72.]

ANNO Domini dcccxciii. Offa rex Merciorum potentissimus, angelica admonitus visione, et cœlestis lucis ad modum faculæ super sepulchrum gloriosi prothomartyris Anglorum Albani emissæ, de loco humili et populo incognito sublata, in locellum ex auro et argento, et lapidibus pretiosis fabricatum, pii martyris reposuit pignora, et ecclesiam in honorem ipsius, quæ barbarorum incursu fuerat destructa, reparavit, et monachos ut ad sancti corpus deservirent, instituit, et Romam pergens à papa Adriano canonizationem martyris prædicti, et monasterii confirmationem, privilegiis specialibus impetravit.

Fuerat namque locus ille tempore adventus Anglorum in Britanniam, sicut cætera loca Britanniae penitus destructa, et solo tenus complanata. Acta sunt hæc à passione beati martyris anno dvn. ab adventu Anglorum in Britanniam anno cccxliii. indictione prima, kalendis Augusti.

[Hist. Aurea Joh. Tinemuthen. MS. in Bibl. Bodleiana, cap. 126.]

ANNO dcclv. Offa rex Angliæ, &c. monasterium sancti Albani fundavit, impetravitque à pontifice Romano, ut ecclesia beati Albani Romescot ab omni Hertfordensi provincia, in qua sita est ecclesia, fideliter colligeret, et collectum in usus proprios retineret. Unde sicut à rege jura regalia, ita abbas loci jura habet pontificalia.

[Ibid. cap. 223.]

ANNO dcclxxxvii. Rithulphus archiepiscopus Doberbornensis basilicam sancti Albani à fundamentis inchoans, miro opere de cocto latere circa hæc tempora consummavit.

[Ibid. cap. 103.]

ANNO autem Domini mlxx. in Angliam Lanfrancus intravit, et quarto kal. Sept. in archiepiscopum consecratus est.

Lanfrancus instauravit, et possessionibus ditavit monasterium sancti Albani, restituit in pristinum statum, in quo posuit abbatem Paulum Cadomensem monachum.

[Chron. MS. Johan. Bever, in Biblioth. Deuvesiana, fol. 38 b.]

ANNO mcliii. eodem anno, defuncto papa Anastasio successit Nicholaus, Albanensis episcopus, et vocatus est Adrianus, &c. Hic ecclesiam sancti Albani insignivit privilegiis, ut sicut beatus Albanus prothomartyr est Angliæ, ita et ejus abbas inter omnes Angliæ abbates primus sit ordine et dignitate.

NUM. II.

[Ex Vita Offæ Secundi, à Mat. Paris. edit. 1684, p. 983.]

REX autem Offa magnificus et piissimus, post mortem uxoris suæ reginæ, videlicet Quendridæ, vitam cœlibem ducens, salubribus monitis et doctrinis sanctorum Humberti archiepiscopi et Unwonæ episcopi, et aliorum (quos justos noverat et prudentes) diligenter intendebat, et eorum consilio, cum filio suo Egfrido regebatur. Pacis enim undique tranquillitate congaudebant. Una autem dierum, suscitato sermone devoto supra dicto, quo rex Offa à multis retroactis temporis Deo tenebatur astrictus, cujus executionem regina Quendrida jam defuncta, nequiter retardando impediverat, trahens ab alto rex suspiria, viris memoratis, et aliis magnatibus sibi specialibus, ait, Deo tamen fundens orationem. 'O Deus, qui me ab omnium hostium insidiis et impugnationibus, necnon et a conjugis meæ laqueis misericorditer ac potenter liberasti, da mihi condignè tibi famulando, gratam rependere vicissitudinem. Oro Domine Jesu Christe, cognitor secretorum, et præsage futuro-rum, ut mihi famulo tuo manifestè concedas certificari, de cœnobio tibi te propitio, constituendo; de quo fundando votivo affectu me nosti strictius obligatum. De loco insuper, et cuinam sancto tuo sit intitulandum, per angelum veritatis flagito certius edoceri.' Et conversus rex ad circumsedentes, aborti lachrymis, et conjunctis manibus, ait, 'Hoc quoque patres ac fratres charissimi, qui Deo sic volente nunc præsentes estis, ora devotius, quatenus sincera mente, totaque devotione, Deum omnipotentem deprecemini, ut ad beneplacitum suum honorem et gloriam, ad effectum meum perducatur desiderium.' Et cum omnes gaudentes hoc concessissent, intravit archiepiscopus Humbertus cum Unwona episcopo, et aliis quos advocaverunt clericis, in oratorium quod prope erat, super hoc propensius oraturus. Et præmisso hymno, 'Veni Creator Spiritus,' oraverunt devotissimè, ut dominus justum regis desiderium ad effectum duceret gloriosum. Et cum prolixius orassent, ecce lux emissa cœlitus totam cellulam illam in qua erant, a summo tecti fastigio usque ad pavementum perlustravit. In qua favor Dei manifestè significabatur. Unde rex illud regale manerium in quo hæc evenerunt, viz. Wineslave, cum pertinentiis, illi cœnobio quod adhuc fundaturus erat rex, regali contulit munificentia, tali munere locum subarrando, quem adhuc penitus ignoravit.

De Revelatione Angelica facta Regi Merciorum Offæ; de Inventione Sancti Albani Anglorum Prothomartyris.

Post hos verò dies non multos, rex Merciorum Offa potentissimus, cum in urbe Bathonia residens, post diei laborem, noctis quietem in strato regio caperet, angelo nuntiante, divino est admonitus oraculo, ut sanctum Dei Anglorum sive Britonum Prothomartyrem Albanum, de terra levaret, et reliquias ejus in scrinio dignius collocaret. Rex vero divinis illico studens obtemperare præceptis, accito Humberto Merciorum archiepiscopo (cujus sedes apud Lichfield, ut prædictum, nuper ab eodem rege fuerat constituta,) divinam ei voluntatem indicat de præmissis. Tunc archiepiscopus sæpeditus, assumptis continuò secum Ceolwolfo Lindesiensi et Unwona Legrecestrensi episcopis, suis suffraganeis, cum innumera utriusque sexus, et diversæ ætatis multitudine, regi die sibi statuta, apud Verolanium occurrerunt. Rex vero dum illuc iter expediret, lucis radium, in modum ingentis faculæ cœlitus emissum, super locum sepulchri quasi fulminare conspexit. Hoc quoque divino miraculo manifestè ab omnibus aspectu, gaudentes tali indicio extiterunt de visionis veritate effecti certiores. Tunc populo in jejuniis et orationibus sanctificato, antistites sacri sacerdotalibus infulis adornati, affore sibi beati martyris auxilium flagitabant. Fuerat namque locus, et memoria martyris post adventum sancti Germani Antissiodorensis episcopi, qui cum beato Lupo, Cecrasinæ urbis episcopo, ad extirpandam hæresim Pelagianam in Britanniam venerant, annis circiter trecentis et quadraginta quatuor, omninò deleta. Sed tantum in codicibus historiarum, et relatu senum, cum paucis vestigiis repræsentata. Siquidem gens pagana Saxonum, Jutorum, et Anglorum, Britonibus expulsis, sibi insulam subjugaverant. Qui agros cum horreis feraliter depopulantes, ignem in civitates, oppida, et pagos succenderunt: ecclesias solo tenus complantes, prælatos quoque membratim detruncantes, omnem pene Britannicam insulam a mari usque ad mare, hostili exterminio, velut in desertum redegerunt. Hac itaque tempestate, ecclesia beati Anglorum prothomartyris Albani, quam Beda in Anglorum historia miro tabulatu lapideo scripsit fuisse constructam, inter cæteras regionis ecclesias funditus est subversa. Unde et sepulchrum ejus, quod in adventu sancti Germani, et ante à passione martyris usque ad illius patriæ desolationem, ab omnibus notum propter antiquæ famæ celebritatem et miraculorum frequentitum, ab omnibus fuerat adoratum compatriotis, et honoratum universis, tempore quo Offæ regi invictissimo angelico fuerat ministerio revelatum. Locus autem sepulchri et loci distincti cognitio penitus delebatur.

Manifestiūs Inventionis Indicium.

FACTA igitur, ut diximus, oratione a clero et populo, cum eleemosyna et jejuniis, terram percutiunt, et passim martyris sepulturam offendunt. Nec fuit necesse locum diu quærere, quem divina clementia dignata est cœlesti lumine revelare. Martyris igitur corpus, astante Offa rege Christianissimo, in theca lignea (in qua prius a Christi fidelibus propter barbarorum sævitiam fuerat tempore discriminis occultatum) reperiunt, cum ipsis sacris omnium apostolorum diversorumque martyrum reliquiis quas ibi dudum sanctus deposuerat Germanus, intercessione beati martyris, de Pelagianis triumphans. Movit hæc inventio tam clerum quam populum universum ad lachrymas. Et ob hoc maximè, quòd fidem fecit dominus de sanctorum patrum reliquiis ibidem cum corpore martyris, prout legimus, depositis. Quas ut pium est credere, voluit dominus quasi ad solatium ejusdem martyris, corpori diu soli fuisse associatus. Roboravit insuper fidem regis, et ejus fidelium, divinum testimonium: cum apud Wineslave lux, cum miri odoris fragrantia, cellam præsulorum orantium illuminavit. Et regis propositum certius solidavit. Plus tamen cæteris omnium corda erexit, radius igneus ab æthere missus super locum, et indies descendens, et solare sicut et lunare lumen adaugens, regem cum suis sodalibus, quasi stella Magorum dux 'donec staret supra domum ubi erat puer Christus,' ad locum perduxit, memoratis reliquiis insignitum. Ut verè dici possit, testimonia tua Christe credibilia facta sunt nimis, et idcirco domum tuam Domine, tali loco fundandam, decet sanctitudo in longitudine dierum, hoc est, in sempiternum.

De Testimoniis Miraculorum, in conspectu Populi ibidem celebratorum.

QUEM utique thesaurum, super aurum et topazion pretiosum, sub cespite diu absconditum, et jam divinitus inventum, archiepiscopus Humbertus cum suis coepiscopis et clericis, astante rege, reverenter levantes de sepulchro, præcedente solemnī processione, in hymnis et laudum præconiis, transtulerunt in quandam ecclesiam ibidem extra urbem Verolanium, a Neophytis in honorem beati martyris constructam. Ubi martyr percussus, sanguinem suum fudit pro Christo; quam persecutores quia parvulam, ejecto locello corpus suum continente, diruere dedignabuntur.

Ibidem igitur in eodem locello, reliquiis ordinatè depositis, et pallis involutis et cranio aureo circulo à rege circumdato; in quo scriptum fuit, 'HOC EST CAPUT SANCTI ALBANI ANGLORUM PROTHOMARTYRIS,' missa solemniter celebratur. Et interim miracula æterna recordatione digna ibidem celebrantur, in conspectu regis, et antistitum, et omnium illic existentium. Nam mortui ad vitam revocantur, semineces ad sospitatem restaurantur, leprosi mundantur, paralytici solidantur, febricitantes curantur, contracti eriguntur; muti, surdi, cæci, et ar-reptitii, imo omnes languidi et se malè habentes, malorum remedia recipiunt. Quæ Dei beneficia, usque in hodiernum diem fieri non desistunt; sine ea, quæ pluris est, animarum salute, quæ eodem loco devotis largiter impertitur.

REX igitur Offa christianissimus locellum memoratum laminis aureis et argenteis, gemmisque pretiosis, de thesauro suo munificè sumptis, decenter adornari, et ecclesiam ipsius, in qua, ut jam dictum est, corpus collocabatur, picturis, aulæis, et aliis ornamentis, donec amplior multis ditanda possessionibus, et honoribus ædificaretur, jussit decorari. Acta autem sunt hæc, a passione sæpediti martyris, anno quingentesimo septimo, ab adventu Anglorum in Britanniam, trecentesimo quadragesimo quarto, indictione prima, kalendis Augusti.

Ut Rex Offa Romam pergens, pratum emerit peregrinis.

MERITO autem, ut præactum est, vitam coelibem agenti, victoriosissimo regi Offæ, angelo cœlitus destinato, et invento Anglorum protomartyre Albano, cœlesti indicio crevit, sub dierum brevitate, per totam regionem honor Martyris et reverentia. Eodem quoque mense, rex ibidem provinciale statuit concilium cum archiepiscopo Humberto suisque suffraganeis et primatibus suis universis, cum tractarent diligenter et efficaciter de conventu monachorum in loco illo congregando, atque cœnobia constituendo, et magnifice ac regaliter privilegiando; ubi protomartyris regni sui, imò totius Britanniae vel Angliæ, reliquias invenit, et quem locum suo sanguine consecravit. Placet omnibus pium regis propositum, eique episcoporum consulit prudentia, ut auctoritate Romani pontificis, (et si alias hoc factum fuerit, quod non iterari inutiliter dicitur, quod non scitur perpetratum) canonizetur simul, et privilegietur Monasterium, in honorem martyris noviter construendum. Et hæc omnia ut digniorem et firmiorem sortiantur effectum, consilium virorum sanctorum et discretorum suscipit et exaudit: ut per legatos solemnes à latere regis destinatos, aut potius in propria persona, rex ipse super his, cum curia tractet Romana diligenter.

De prosecutione pii propositi Regis piissimi Offæ.

Transfretat Rex Romam profecturus.

PRÆPARATIS igitur, edicto regio, navibus, cum navium armanentis, rex puppes ascendit; et sinuatis velis, prospero cursu in quodam portu maris in Flandria applicuit, desiderato. Veniensque ad quoddam oppidum ubi quoddam erat monasteriolum, hospitandi gratia illuc divertit. Ubi jumentis suis pabula non inveniens, miratur valde, quum locus ille pratorum copia conspicitur abundare. Quærit ergo rex, cujus sint prata illa? Responsum accipit, quod dominos plures haberent, qui jubentur omnes ante regem comparere. Convenit igitur eos de venditione pratorum illorum. At ipsi responderunt, dicentes, se nolle prata sua vendere, cum auro et argento satis abundassent; nec habebant propter egestatem necesse, alicui, præcipue transeunti, sua vel prata vel rura vendere. Quos cum audisset rex divitiis omnimodis abundare, ait rex magnificus et munificus: 'Credo quod non sic abundetis, quin non possitis amplius abundare. Nos prata vestra comparabimus non secundum eorum æstimationem, sed juxta vestram. Nec erit ulla difficultas de pretio, licet nulla sit propriatio in contrahendo.' Ipsi vero considerantes regis licet piissimi potentiam, et quod si vellet, parvo nutu posset eos obruisse, responderunt se velle voluntati suæ obsecundare, si tot millia ipsis vellet numerare: et nominaverunt tot millia, quot credebant regem nullo modo, licet prodigalissimus esset et inæstimabiliter abundaret, illis velle numerare; quia prata sua vendere non curabant.

Ut Rex Offa Romam perveniens, Cænobium beati Albani privilegiaverit.

DINUMERATA denique pro distractione pratorum pecunia, a loco rex progreditur, et Romam tandem perveniens, optata apostolorum limina contingit, et diversorum loca sanctorum percurrit: demum Adriano summo pontifici sui causam adventus explicans, et de loco, simul et beato Albano canonizando et magnificando, cœnobiaque constituendo, devotè preces porrigens, petitioni suæ Romanam de facili curiam inclinavit; præsertim cum martyris inventio cœlitus mortalibus sit declarata. Adaugebat quoque omnium devotionem, quod non cuilibet de populo, sed tanto talique regi, tam magni martyris sui pignora Dominus revelavit. De monasterio igitur conventuali, videlicet cœnobiali, dignè ac celeriter constituendo, et ab omni episcoporum subjectione emancipando, papam et totam curiam consulit cum effectu.

Colloquium efficax Regis Offæ cum Papa.

CUMQUE inclytus rex Offa eleganter perorasset, Romanus pontifex humiliter ac favorabiliter inclinato capite, sic respondit: 'O regum christianissime, fili Offa, devotionem tuam circa regni tui prothomartyrem non mediocriter commendamus. Nec nos, quamvis remotos, latet vestra strenuitas vel sincera sanctitas. Verè coelibem vitam agentibus, meritò mittendus fuit angelus, cum castitati cognata sit puritas angelica, et cum favorabilis sit persona tua, favorabilior est causa quam proponis in medio, et labor tuæ peregrinationis acceptus est altissimo. De monasterio vero construendo et privilegiando petitioni tuæ assensum præbemus gratissimum; injungentes tibi in tuorum remissionem peccatorum ut prosperè ac foeliciter rediens, cum Dei et mea benedictione in terram ac regnum tuum, consilio episcoporum et optimatum tuorum, quas volueris possessiones sive libertates beati Albani Anglorum prothomartyris cœnobia conferas. Et tuo privilegio inde facto, nos originale tuum privilegio nostro inviolabili gratanter roborabimus et confirmabimus consequenter; et monasterium illud in specialem Romanæ ecclesiæ filiam adoptabimus, et nostro tantum illud apostolatui subjicientes, ab omni nocivo cujuslibet mortalium impetu, specialiter mediante episcopo sive archiepiscopo, protegemus.'

De Denario Sancti Petri.

HIS igitur auditis rex, quid dignè tantæ benignitati compenset secum studiose pertractat. Tandem divina inspirante gratia, consilium invenit salubre, et in die crastina, scholam Anglorum qui tunc Romæ floruit ingressus, dedit ibi ex regali munificentia ad sustentationem gentis regni sui illuc venientis singulos argenteos, de familiis singulis, omnibus in posterum diebus, singulis annis. Quibus, videlicet, sors tantum contulit extra domos in pascuis, ut triginta argenteorum precium excederet. Hoc autem per totam suam ditionem teneri in perpetuum constituit; excepta tota terra sancti Albani, suo monasterio conferenda, prout postea collata privilegia protestantur. Ut illo denario, a generali contributione sic excepto, et dicto monasterio sic collato, memoria donatoris indelibiliter perpetuetur. Et hoc tali largitate obtinuit et conditione, ut de regno Angliæ nullus publicè pœnitens pro executione sibi injunctæ pœnitentiæ subiret exilium.

Redit Offa Rex et fundat Cænobium.

CELEBRATA igitur donatione prædicta, et de peccatis omnibus (præcipuè tamen de præliorum multorum commissione) facta confessione, et pro prædicta cœnobia foundatione accepta pœnitentia, cum benedictione devota summi pontificis Rex ad propria prosperè remeavit.

Constituto Cænobio ordinatur ibidem Abbas cum Conventu.

TUNC congregato apud Verolanium episcoporum et optimatum suorum consilio Rex, unanimi omnium consensu et benevola voluntate, beato Albano amplas contulit terras et possessiones innumeras: considerans, quod ibidem eleemosynaris vigeret hospitalitas. Nam ibidem patet via ab aquilone venientibus et ab austro redeuntibus communis, et strato generaliter dicta Watlinge strata. Et pium ei videbatur, ut omnes interme-antes, ibidem pium ex suis eleemosynis, domicilium invenirent. Locum igitur memoratum cœnobio addic-tum, libertatum multiplici insignivit privilegio. Monachorum quoque conventum, ex domibus ordinatè religi-onis (maximè tamen ex domo Becci in Neustria) ad tumbam congregavit, et abbatem eis nomine Willegodum, quod interpretatur 'volens bonum.' Verè enim vir bonæ fuit voluntatis, et de stirpe regia oriundus, regique Offæ consanguinitate propinquus. Qui cum inventioni dicti martyris interfuisset, viso cœlesti luminis radio, qui eo inveniando et levando de terra comparuit, et ipso eodem martyre invento et levato, quasi suo perfuncto officio disparuit: statim se monachum habitum religionis assumpturum, Deoque et tam digno martyri omnibus vitæ suæ ministraturum, unde licenter antici-pata narratione, post inventionem memoratam, statim rex ecclesiam cœpit ædificare; ponens primum lapidem in fundamento, dicens: 'In honore Dei omnipotentis, Patris, Filii, et Spiritus Sancti, et martyris sui Albani, totius terræ meæ protomartyris.' Et addens, ait, junctis manibus, flexis genibus, lachrymisque profusis:

Oratio christianissimi Regis Offæ super opus suum.

'DOMINE Jesu Christe tibi hanc tuam domum, et tibi martyr Albane, et tibi Willegode, commendo fide-liter custodiendam. Cujus omnes adversarii, vel per-turbatores, vel spiritualibus diminutores, maledicantur.
Omnes quoque benefactores, præmia recipiant sempiterna.' Willegodo autem jam monacho, rex thesauri contulit abundantiam, et præfecit fabricæ ecclesiasticæ præceptorem. Et omnia ei jura regalia et libertates concessit. Et hoc fecit rex providus, antequam iter arriperet transalpinum: ignorans quid Deus de vita sua ordinaverat. Sed postquam rediit cum prosperitate hæc omnia solemniter renovavit et confirmavit. Et sæpedictum Willegodum, præsentibus filio suo Egfrido universorum hærede, Humberto quoque Lichfeldensi archi-episcopo, cum aliis multis episcopis et terræ optimatibus, præfecit in abbatem, quem fidelissimum in conservatione regni filio suo et ipsi commissi, dum Romam pergeret, certissimè expertus fuerat. Et conventum ex ordinatissimis domibus electum, ut præactum est, ordi-navit et instituit. Et ædificia omnia (præterquam pristinum quod invenit de veteribus ædificiis Paganorum pridem factum) sumptibus propriis construxit. Et in eadem ecclesia, rex christianissimus Offa, vices agens yconomi^a et custodis specialis, vitam per aliquot annos continuavit. Et una dierum, jussit afferri cartas, et omnia instrumenta data et adquisita, super majus altare offerens reposuit.

De amplitudine Dominationis regni Regis Offæ.

DOMINABATUR rex Offa magnus in viginti tribus provinciis quas Angli Shiras appellant. Ex his omnibus provinciis, dedit rex præfatus Offa denarium beati Petri.
Eo tamen retento et collato post receptionem, beato Albano, per totam ejusdem martyris terram, et idcirco beati Petri denarius appellatur, quia sæpedictus rex Offa die sancti Petri qui dicitur ad Vincula, ipsum mar-tyrem, ipso die meruit cœlitus invenire, et ipsum annum redditum, ipso die Romanæ ecclesiæ pro redemptione animæ suæ contulit ad sustentationem, videlicet, scholæ memoratæ, propter Anglorum rudium et illuc peregrin-antium, eruditionem. Festivitas tamen Inventionis sancti Albani, in crastino festivitatis inventionis ejusdem celebratur, ne sancti Petri celebritas, detrimentum aut diminutionem patiat.

De possessionibus ab Offa Rege, Monasterio sancti Albani collatis.

DEDIT præterea immortalis memoriæ rex Offa potentissimus, beato Anglorum protomartyri Albano, villam suam dominicam quæ viginti fermè miliaris a Verolamio distat, et Wineslawe nuncupatur, ut prætactum est, et tantundem per circuitum, sicut usque hodie scripta regis protestantur ab eo, et in ecclesia memorata reservantur. Quæ tanta libertate privilegiata refulget, ut ab apostolica consuetudine et redditu qui Romscot dicitur Anglicè, denarius sancti Petri Latinè (unde satis prædictum est) cum neque rex, neque archiepiscopus, vel episcopus, vel prior, aut quilibet de regno vel in regno, ab illius solutione sit immunis, ipsa quidem ecclesia, quæ basilica sancti Petri dicitur, sola quieta

est. In presbyteros autem et laicos totius possessionis suæ, abbas vel archidiaconus monachus, sub ipso constitutus, jus pontificale exercet, ita ut nulli archiepiscopo, vel episcopo, vel legato, nisi summo tantum pontifici, sub-jectionem impendant.

Hoc quoque sciendum est, quod Offa rex magnificus, tempore quo beati Petri vicario, Romanæ urbis pontifici, redditum statutum, id est Romscot, de regno suo concessit: ipse a pontifice Romano impetravit, ut ecclesia beati Albani Anglorum protomartyris, eundem redditum ab omni Hertfordensi provincia (in qua sita est ecclesia sæpedicta) fideliter colligeret, et collectum, in usus proprios retineret. Unde et ipsa ecclesia, sicut a rege omnia jura regalia, ita habet abbas loci illius qui pro tempore fuerit pontificalia ornamenta, et in quantum licet alicui abbati habere pontificalem dignitatem, prout tam nova quàm vetera instrumenta, inde obtenta, mani-festè protestantur.

NUM. III.

NOMINA BENEFACTORUM.

[MS. Cotton. Nero D. VII. fol. 3 b.]

GLORIOSUS Rex OFFA Merciorum tenens gubernacula, corpore beati Albani patroni nostri de terra levato, fundavit istud monasterium, possessionibusque ac multis libertatibus ditavit magnifice. Ac non multo post Romanam petiit corporaliter, ut sicut temporalibus et regalibus dignitatibus hoc monasterium ditavit in Anglia: ita illud nobilitaret privilegiis impetratis a sede apostolica. Et quia repperit dominum papam, videlicet Adrianum primum, sibi favorabilem, exultavit spiritus ejus in Deo prosperatore mesuæ. Contulit ergo ad honorem Dei et beati Petri Denarium qui dicitur sancti Petri his diebus, de maxima parte regni sui ad sustentandum scholam peregrinorum Angliæ vel aliarum nationum illuc confluentium. Ubi hii qui vel orationis gratia, vel expediendorum negotiorum causa venerant, audirent, et addiscerent linguam quam non noverant. Censum vero totum provenientem ex terris quas sancto Albano contulerat, eidem martyri assignavit, ut cunctis temporibus, die sancti Petri quæ dicitur Ad Vincula solveretur. Hæc autem sunt nomina locorum quæ rex Offa contulit huic loco: Edelmuntuna, Wyttleseiae, Caegesho, Berethund, Rykemaesworth, Bacheworthe, Crokeleye, Michelfeld, Brithewelle, Watford, Ottmeb, Bisseie, Merdele, Haldenham, Syret, Enefelde, Stanmer, Henamstede, Wineslawe, Biscopescote, Cedendone, Mildentone, et aliarum villarum, scilicet Byrstone et Wyncelfeld, ut patet per cartam Ethelredi regis.

EGFRIDUS Rex, gloriosi regis Offæ filius, patrisans patris, augens beneficia, contulit ecclesiæ sancti Albani, primo anno regni sui, terram quinque manerium in loco dicto Pynesfeld cum terminis suis antiquis, et manerium de Sanderugge, et Tyrefeld, cartasque patris sui benigne cum sua serena concessione confirmavit pro confirmatione regni sui et sua prosperitate, necnon pro salute paternæ suæque animæ, et antecessorum suorum, ecclesiam suam per omnia salubriter protegendo.

ETHELREDUS Rex cartas et dona prædecessorum suorum nobis datas innovavit, et renovando confirmavit, domum istam pro viribus protegendo. Dedit etiam unum lapidem pretiosum martyri pretioso, quem Onicem vulgariter appellamus qui dicitur multum conferre parturientibus.

HENRICUS PRIMUS, filius Conquestoris, frater Wil-lielmi Rufi, istud monasterium dilexit specialiter et promovit, privilegia renovando, et pro amore beati martyris protegendo, augendo etiam possessiones ecclesiæ liberaliter. Nam contulit huic ecclesiæ tempore dedicationis ejusdem, cui dedicationi ipsemet interesse curavit, rus quod Bissopescote Anglice nominatur.

STEPHANUS Rex ad petitionem abbatis Roberti, et ob honorem Albani martiris gloriosi permisit dirui castrum de Kyngesbery, ubi antiquis temporibus latebant quidam regales nequam homines abbatiae nimis infesti et damnosi, dicentes se regis esse fideles, et custodes pacis patriæ, cum potius pacem et patriam perturbarent.

Rex HENRICUS SECUNDUS favorem beati martiris meruit immortalem, eo quod in controversia mota inter nos et episcopum Lincolnensem nobis se præbuit favorabilem, cujus etiam industria tanta lis est sopita. Qui insuper unam cuppam nobilissimam beato Albano devote donavit, in qua posset reponi honorifice corpus Christi.

HENRICUS TERTIUS, hujus domus protector constantissimus, plures pallas quas vulgo baldekynos dicimus beato Albano optulit quam omnes prædecessores sui reges. Decoravit etiam ecclesiam duabus capis preciosissimis, quarum una Vineam his diebus, altera Paradisus, eo quod in ea ejectio Adæ de Paradiso nobiliter opere plumario figuratur.

COMES RICARDUS, frater Henrici regis, duos huic ecclesiæ contulit baldekynos.

EDWARDUS PRIMUS a conquestu optulit ad majus altare unum pannum sericum et alium ad altare sancti Amphibali, et feretro unam imaginem magnam argenteam deauratam.

EDWARDUS KARNERIVAN, cui dominus nostris temporibus specialiter benedixit ut inter sanctos merito numeretur, istud monasterium semper protexit regali potentia, et donis multiplicibus decoravit. Revera contulit monasterio crucem auream cum lapidibus pretiosis, et diversorum sanctorum reliquiis, et meremium ad reparationem chori cum centum libris argenti, atque refectorio unam cupam magnam argenteam et auratam.

EDWARDUS DE WYNDLESHORES, rex cunctis regibus pietatis et clementiæ præconiis præferendus, præsentis monasterii protector extitit et amator, et suum patrocinium nobis efficaciter semper impendit.

EDWARDUS Princeps Walliæ, domini Edwardi de Wyndleshores regis primogenitus, nos protexit brachio fortitudinis, et specialis amator monasterii et monachorum extitit, ac donis pluribus et jocalibus tam ecclesiam quam feretrum martyris adornavit.

RICARDUS SECUNDUS a conquestu, filius Edwardi principis, vestigia patris sequens, optulit feretro monile aureum, et ad ornamentum ecclesiæ duos pannos aureos, quorum opus ad modum vineæ consurgendo botros et ramos dilatat decentissime locis debitis et opportunis. Et dedit conventui c. solidos. Dedit insuper ad reparationem portæ de Tynemuth quingentas libras.

JOHANNES Dux Lancastriæ pro anima dominæ Blanche uxoris suæ, cujus corpus hic pernoctavit, contulit huic ecclesiæ duos pannos aureos. Hic specialis amator hujus loci. Abbati multotiens dedit vina, et cellæ nostræ de Tynemuth contulit c. libras.

Nomina Reginarum.

[Ibid. fol. 7.]

MATILDIS Regina dedit nobis Bewyk et Lilleburne.

EMMA. ALIENORA. MARGARETA. ALIENORA. MARGARETA. ISABELLA. PHILIPPA obtulit unum pannum aureum pretiosum.

Domina JOHANNA Principissa magnis oblationibus sepius martirem honoravit, inter quas nobile monile aureum ei dedit; et pro caritate Conventui centum solidos assignavit.

ADRIANUS PRIMUS quem adivit corporaliter Offa rex ut istud cœnobium privilegiaret, istam ecclesiam in specialem filiam adoptavit, et non solum fecit liberam, sed et ingenuam, in tantum ut nulli mortalium sive episcopo sive archiepiscopo nisi soli Romanæ ecclesiæ subderetur.

ALEXANDER Papa contulit nobis privilegia de processionibus de comitatu Hertfordiæ, et de monialibus benedicendis, et de unaquaque caruca Hertfordensis provinciæ obolum unum feria sexta post Ascensionem Dominicam, et nummum unum in secunda festivitate sancti Albani de unaquaque caruca, ut perpetuis temporibus persolvantur. Item aliud indulisit privilegium, ut sententia cujuslibet episcopi in monachos sancti Albani promulgata irrita habeatur. Et ne ullus episcopus excommunicet monachos sancti Albani vel interdicat. Et ne aliquis episcopus parochianos suos prohibeat a communione monachorum sancti Albani. Et de clericis tonsurandis. Et de pontificalibus ornamentis ubique gestandis.

CALIXTUS Papa festivitatem sancti Albani per totam Angliam constituit celebrari, et ab ipso vigiliarum die usque ad ejusdem solennitatis octavas devote ad ecclesiam venientibus de injuncta sibi peccatorum suorum enitentia, duodecim dierum tribuit indulgentiam.

CELESTINUS corroboravit universa quæ illustris memoriæ reges Offa et Egfridus, et Ethelredus necnon et Henricus, aut alii fideles de suo jure nostro monasterio contulerunt, aut in futurum concessione fidelium, sive oblatione poterimus adipisci.

GREGORIUS privilegia prædecessorum suorum ratificavit, et illibata manere decrevit imperpetuum, honorem et devotionem beatissimo patrono nostro Albano Anglorum prothomartyri in omni vita sua exhibens specialem.

CLEMENS Papa statuit ut Abbas sancti Albani primus sit inter Abbates Angliæ, et quod licet nobis celebrare divina in Interdicto generali, etiam pulsatis tintinnabulis; et quod licet Priori sancti Albani, abbatia vacante, cum consilio capituli priores cellarum amovere; et quod licet abbati sententiam excommunicationis ferre in omnes malefactores suos; et quod licet abbati vestimenta sacerdotalia benedicere, et obventiones ecclesiarum in usus proprios convertere. Item aliud contulit privilegium ne abbas vel aliquis monachorum sancti Albani teneatur respondere ammonitione non præmissa a domino papa; et quod nemini de subjectis suis regularibus vel sæcularibus liceat ab abbatis judicio appellare. Item quod licet nobis cantare 'Gloria in excelsis' ab Adventu usque ad Nativitatem Domini, et a septuagesima usque ad Pascham in præcipuis festivitibus.

URBANUS indulisit ut abbas Garinus absolveret ordinatos suos a suspensio episcopo, tam sæculares clericos quam religiosos, et plura alia concessit privilegia huic loco quæ istic inserere longum foret. Erat nempe cultor beati Albani devotissimus, et ideo præsentis monasterii peculiaris amator.

LUCIUS Papa concessit privilegium quod non licet in cellis nostris abbatem constituere, et de capellis vel oratoriis non construendis in parochia hujus ecclesiæ, et antiquitus concessa privilegia a suis prædecessoribus renovavit.

ADRIANUS Papa, de sancti Albani territorio oriundus,^a pontificalia ornamenta concessit abbati et plura privilegia de libertatibus hujus ecclesiæ. Et ut memoria ejus semper haberetur in ecclesia nostra, dedit monasterio reliquias de Legione Thebea, propter quod statutum est ut eorum festivitas ampliaretur, et xij. lectiones propriæque legenda de eis in hac ecclesia legeretur. Dedit etiam insigne pallium, quod dominus imperator sibi miserat, et sandalia pretiosa, et annulum pretiosissimum, necnon capam unam choralem, unde jam fit casula quæ nomen Adriani retinet his diebus. Insuper et refectorio dedit unum ciphum murreum, in cujus fundo scribitur nomen ejus.

HONORIUS Papa TERTIUS hoc modo scripsit archiepiscopis, episcopis, et aliis ecclesiarum prælatis. 'Per apostolica scripta mandamus præcipiendo quatinus jura ecclesiæ sancti Albani ita sollicitè protegere et conservare curetis sicut tenemini jura Romanæ Ecclesiæ conservare.

INNOCENTIUS Papa TERTIUS scripsit archiepiscopis, episcopis, et aliis ecclesiarum prælatis, pro privilegiis ecclesiæ sancti Albani conservandis.

EUGENIUS Papa TERTIUS monasterium istud sub beati Petri et sua protectione suscepit, et nominatim omnes possessiones nostras antiquas et novas auctoritate apostolica confirmavit.

INNOCENTIUS QUARTUS dedit privilegium de exemptione abbatis, prioris, præcentoris, archidiaconi sancti Albani a cognitione causarum; et quod abbas potest dispensare cum monachis suis non observantibus statuta Gregorii papæ.

GREGORIUS NONUS confirmavit huic monasterio possessionem ecclesiæ de Eglingeham.

ANASTASIUS Papa confirmavit nobis possessionem ecclesiæ de Lutona.

BENEDICTUS Papa concessit in quinquennium benefactoribus claustris nostri indulgentiæ centum dies.

Summa privilegiorum quæ isti et alii Papæ contulerunt huic monasterio se extendit ad octies viginti et duodecim.

[Ibid. fol. 86.]

ETHELRICUS episcopus Dorkceastræ dedit Deo et sancto Albano villam quæ dicitur Cirstiwa, Cyncumba, Tywa.

LANFRANCUS archiepiscopus, ecclesiæ istius ruinæ condolens, caritative contulit ad opus ejusdem ecclesiæ mille marcas, terramque de Redburna injuste ablatam restituit cameræ monachorum. Insuper optulit sancto Albano calicem aureum de tribus marcis, quatuor capas, dalmaticam unam, et tunicam, et tria magna candelabra deargentata, et duo argentea de triginta marcis. In obitu vero suo centum libras sancto Albano legavit, ex quibus tamen habuimus quinquaginta.

ROBERTUS Lincolniensis episcopus reddidit sancto Albano Cyncumbam, quam injuste perdiderat idem martyr, et in obitu suo dedit nobis quadraginta sex libras.

ODO Baiocensis episcopus, ad instantiam Pauli abbatis dedit sancto Albano tres hidas terræ ad Apse cum silva quæ vocatur Eywode, pro quibus abbas ei promisit viginti libras; sed ipse eas pro anima sua misericorditer pardonavit. Reddidit etiam villam quæ Tywa vocatur, violentia quorundam alienatam injuste ab ecclesia sancti Albani; et statuit ut deserviret victui monachorum.

RICARDUS DE BURY episcopus Dunelmensis multos et varios libros nobiles dedit nobis, quorum numerum si quem scire delectat, ad armariola quæ in ecclesia habentur recurrat.

Dompnus THOMAS DE HATFELD episcopus Dunelmensis semper se favorabilem in causis hujus ecclesiæ exhibens multociens nostra commoda parturivit, et tandem ejus precibus et ob præclara merita frater effectus nostri capituli totius assensu conventus, annum assecutus est post fata officium mortuorum. Qui etiam die quo suscepit nostri capituli beneficium, dedit conventui cyphum suum murreum quem Wesheyl nostris temporibus appellamus. In extremis vero positus, legavit monasterio c. marcas.

Dominus THOMAS DE ARUNDELL, episcopus Elyensis, fructuosus amator hujus loci contulit ad opus refectorii quatuor trabes magnas.

Episcopus Elyensis HENRICUS dedit unam pallam.

Episcopus Bathoniensis WILLIELMUS dedit unam pallam.

JOHANNES episcopus Ardfertensis, præter libros quamplures utiles quos huic monasterio contulit, dedit unam petram nobilem aerii coloris, distinctam albis maculis, quæ dicitur vulgariter Serpentina, quæ etiam fertur multum valere lunaticis, cujus forma est fere quadra, et circumligatur argento, in cujus margine plures reliquiæ continentur. Anno Domini m.ccc.lxxxvii^o. WILLIELMUS BURCOTE, rector ecclesiæ de Waltham Parva, dedit conventui librum Catholicon, et totum Corpus Juris Civilis. Et legavit cuilibet de conventu xl^d. Et condonavit abbati et conventui centum libras argenti illis præstitas pro impetratione novorum privilegiorum in Romana curia, sed ut omnes et singuli qui successive perpetuis temporibus in abbates hujus monasterii cum vacare contigerit consensu conventus electi fuerint, eo ipso absque alia confirmatione sint veri abbates et pro talibus censeantur.

Dominus JOHANNES RODLAND, cum JOHANNES DE WHYTEWELLE quondam senescallo libertatis sancti Albani, dedit monasterio l. libras, et præstitit domino Johanni abbati septingentas marcas ad perquisitionem prædii de Goram. Et condonavit eidem abbati octoginta marcas quas recepisset de firma dicti manerii, si in manu sua illud prout potuit tenuisset usque ad finem octo annorum, videlicet quolibet anno x. marcas quas incremento poterat recepisse de prædio memorato; nempe cum habuisset illud ad firmam annis octo ex emptione de comitissa Oxoniæ, et recepisset inde annis singulis quadraginta libras. Postquam dictus abbas adquisivit dictum manerium permisit abbati habere profectus prædii pro quinquaginta marcis annuis, ut prædicitur, octo annis quibus in manu sua tenuisset locum præfatum. Item distribuit in conventu xx^{li}. Videlicet cuilibet fratri dimid. marc. Tandem moriens legavit conventui c^s. qui inter fratres distributi fuere.

Anno Domini millesimo quadringentesimo vicesimo nono Domina MARGARETA, Ducissa Clarenciæ, in vigilia Translationis sancti Benedicti, dedit duo turribula argentea venustioris formæ et optime deaurata ad valorem ut creditur quadraginta marcarum. Prædicta etiam domina, post modicum temporis intervallum, desiderans ampliare cultum domus Domini quem dilexerat, contulit eidem unum apparatus integrum pro summo altari, cujus campus aureus regum ymages continet, cum historia duplici decentius illustratus. Obtulit etiam unum vestimentum integrum cum tribus capis choralibus de panno Tyssewys vulgariter nuncupato, in quibus auri pretiosa nobilitas, gemmarum pulchritudo, et curiosa manus artificis stuporem quendam inspectantium oculis representant. Hujus nempe apparatus pretiosi et vestimentorum venustas præcipua, sic divitiarum splendore, cuncta hujus ecclesiæ ornamenta superat et excellit ut ipsorum comparatione perlucida merities in occasum vertitur, et quæ solebant præcipua fulgere claritate secundas eclipsata vendicant dignitates.

Albani vj^s. et viij^d. Et ad pavementationem deambulatorii in oriolum, vj^s. viij^d.

Anno gratiæ millesimo cccc.xvij^o. in vigilia palmarum Elizabeth Beauchamp mulier nobilis et devota recepta fuit in sororem nostri capituli quæ contulit ea hora monasterio quandam togam pretiosissimam aurotextam duplicatam cum panno de velveto rubeo resperso rosis aureis quæ quondam fuit indumentum regis Henrici a conquestu quinti dum regaliter equitaret per Londonias pridie ante coronationem suam. Item dedit et aliam gownam de viridi velveto auro texto unde fieri posset integrum vestimentum quæ similiter fuit ejusdem regis. Item dedit unam telam longissimam de rubeo velveto ad ornandum majus altare quam Rex sibi contulerat. Item aliam telam de nobili panno serico viridi de damasco auro textam ad gratiam intuentium nobis dedit. Et sciendum quod de ornamentis et pannis pretiosis quos Elizabeth prænomina nobis contulit fiunt plures capæ nobiles atque pulchræ ad numerum x. caparum. Anno revoluta supradicta devota mulier in festo Paschæ dedit ecclesiæ nostræ quoddam nobilissimum vestimentum de rubeo panno aureo, sc. magni altaris superius et inferius apparatus, cum casula, tunica, dalmatica, et tribus capis unius sectæ nobilissimæ aurifrigiatis, atque quatuor albis cum apparatu ad valorum c^{li}.

REGNANTE Domino nostro Jesu Christo in perpe-

tuum. Decet igitur ut regalis benignitas omnipotentis Dei et sanctorum martyrum quantum valeat honori provideat. Quia honor Dei, et pia in sanctis ejus devotio, stabilitas est regni terreni, et prosperitas longevæ vitæ, et indubitata æternæ mercedis retributio. Unde ego Offa rex Merciorum, cum Egfrido filio meo, et omni consensu synodali, pro remedio et salute animarum nostrarum, terram quinquaginta mansionum in locis infra dictis, id est, ubi dicitur Aetcaegesho, mansiones xxxiiij. Ondaet, Heanhamstede vj. mansiones, et Stanmere x. mansiones, cum segetibus, pratis, pascuis, et silvis, et omnibus rebus mobilibus vel fixis ad ea prænominata loca ritè pertinentibus, Domino meo Jesu Christo, et S. Albano martyri, cuius reliquias, in spem prosperitatis præsentis et futuræ beatitudinis, divina ostendit nobis gratia, in jus monasteriale tradens donabo; quatinus perpetuo jure præfata terra, sancti martyris Albani ecclesiæ deserviat. Et per magnum omnipotentis Dei nomen et terribile ejus judicium adjuro, imo et impero, quod nullus supervenientibus temporibus, seu rex, seu episcopus, aut aliqua magna vel parva persona, aliquid de his meis donis quæ Deo et sancto martyri ejus dedicavero, immutare, seu auferre, seu imminuere presumptuosè audeat; nec aliquam molestiam aut ecclesiæ aut silvis ad eam pertinentibus inferre præsumat, sed sit libera omnino ab omni tributo, et necessitate, seu regis, seu episcopi, ducis, judicum, comitum, exactorum etiam, et operum quæ indici solent, necnon et expeditionis, et omni edicto publico, perpetuò eam libertate donabo. Sed obsecro quatinus studeant supervenientes reges auxiliare, defendere, et curam illius ecclesiæ habere in omni bonitate, sicut et ego habeo: ut sit illis et regno eorum benedictio et protectio à domino Deo et sancto ejus martyre in perpetuum. Si autem quisquam loci hujus curam non habuerit, vel eum malitiosè tractaverit, sciat et sentiat sancti martyris se ipsum benedictione privari, et rationem ante tribunal Christi redditurum. Hoc verò monasterium, cum his præfatis terris, Willigoda presbiter habeat et regat dies suos, et monachicam in eo vitam vivat, doceat, et quantum valeat, erigat. Post dies autem illius, eligant sibi fratres, cum concilio illius episcopi qui super eos erit, si habent dignum et monachicæ vitæ eruditum, ex semetipsis quem voluerint. Si autem, quod non opto, acciderit quod ibi dignus nequeat inveniri, prævideat ille episcopus, cum consilio fratrum, qui illud monasterium dignè secundum regulam monachicæ vitæ gubernare sciat et velit.

Jam jamque, iterum iterumque, in nomine Domini, præcipio et adjuro, quatinus eo loco regula sancti Benedicti abbatis doceatur et exerceatur, quantum possibile est, perpetuo jure. Etsi ipsa elemosina oret ad Dominum pro faciente, tamen obsecro ut assiduæ intercessionibus pro anima mea, et amicorum meorum, canonicis horis semper in ea ammoneantur ecclesia: quatinus omnipotentis Dei clementia, quæ tale thesaurum temporibus meis, gentibus et populis Anglorum aperire dignata est; mihi quoque æternum cœlis thesaurum cum sanctis suis donare dignetur. Scripta est hæc cartula anno Dominicæ incarnationis dcccxiij. indictione iij. anno verò Offani regis Merciorum xxxiiij. in loco celebri qui dicitur Celchyth, præsentem synodali conventu, testibusque infra nominatis confirmata. Item aliud Munimentum ab eodem Rege Offa.

REGNANTE in perpetuum Deo et Domino nostro Jesu Christo. Licet per totum ubique mundum beatorum martyrum, qui suum pro Christo sanguinem fuderunt, merita divinæ laudis exultatione celebranda sunt, eorumque Dei auxilio exempla gloriosa sequenda; præcipuè nobis tamen beatissimi Albani, qui sub hac Britanniae insula gloriosus martyrio effulsit, memoria, pia semper intentione, et sedula sollicitudine observanda est. Unde ego Offa gratia Dei rex Merciorum, cum filio meo Ecgfrido, pro amore omnipotentis Dei et hujus sancti intercessionem, terram xxx. manentium in locis quorum sub inseruntur nomina, Domino meo Jesu Christo ad ecclesiam sancti Albani, ubi ipse tyro primus in passione victima effectus est, jure perpetuo perdonabo. Eòque delectabilius hanc donationem perficio, quia superna protectio tam nobilem temporibus nostris thesaurum qui diu fuit clausus et hujus terræ indigenis abditus, revelare dignata est. Hæc itaque sunt supradictarum vocabula terrarum, æt Uuineshauue xij. manentium cum terminis suis, æt Scelfdune, sive Baldinicotum, trium manentium, quorum scilicet trium manentium termini sunt hii, Suanaburna, Heortmere, Stret, Wealebroc. Item verò x. manentium ubi dicitur Scuccanhlaue, vel Fentuun cum silva quæ cognominatur Horwudu, cum terminis suis; æt Lygetune, v. manentium; quam videlicet terram Alhmundus abbas, expeditionem subterfugiens, mihi reconciliationis gratia dabat.

Hoc quoque, consentientibus episcopis meis et abbatibus, ducibus, ac principibus sub invocatione sanctæ Trinitatis et individue Unitatis donando præcipio, quatinus tota terra illa sit libera ab omni tributo, et necessitate, seu regis, seu episcopi, ducis, judicis, exactorum, et operum quæ indici solent; neque emendationem pontium, neque fossam adversum inimicos faciendam.

Totum omne præfatæ terræ stipendium et exactio ad supradicti martyris tumbam insolubiliter persolvatur. Et si fortè quis intra ejusdem ecclesiæ potestatem, aut extra, cum episcopo seu abbate communis inveniatur, bello, furto, vel fornicatione, aut alio quolibet simili reatu astrictus; semper ea pars pœnæ et emendationis quæ regi vel episcopo debetur, ad beati Albani monasterium inviolato semper fœdere reddatur. Credo enim et veraciter confido, quod hæc munificentia non solum mihi meisque, sed etiam universis Anglorum populis sublimiter proficiat, quia pro ejus amore ille miles intrepidus meruit coronari, qui totius mundi pericula passus est suo sanguine expiare. OMNIPOTENTIA divinæ majestatis ineffabiliter universa gubernante. Licet regaliū dignitatum decreta, et antiqua priorum temporum privilegia, permanente integritatis signaculo fixa jugiter ac firma perseverent; attamen, quia plerumque tempestates, et turbines sæculi, fragilem humanæ vitæ cursum pulsantes contra superna Dominicæ sanctionis jura illidunt; idcirco stili officio renovanda et chartarum suffragijs sunt roboranda, ne forte successura posterorum progenies, ignorato præcedentium patrum chirographo, inextricabilem horrendi barathri voraginem incurrat; nec inde libera exire queat, donec (juxta veritatis sententiam) cuncta usque ad novissimum quadrantem debita plenissime reddat. Quapropter ego Ethelredus totius Albionis, cæterarumque gentium in circuitu persistentium, munificente superno largitore, Basileus, incertum futurorum temporum considerans eventum, cunctisque succedentibus desiderans esse consultum; et ut ipse in tremendo magni judicij die, sanctorum patrocinij suffragantibus hæreditatis supernæ cohæres effici merear; Deo omnipotenti et sancto Albano gentis Anglorum protomartyri, Christoque servienti monachorum familiæ celebri in loco qui Etweathingaceastre nuncupatur vocabulo, octo mansarum portionem duobus in locis aquæ dimensione sitam; quatuor videlicet Etbirstane, similiter et quatuor Et-wincelfelda, cum novem præfatæ civitatis habitaculis, quæ patria lingua Hagan appellari solet, octoque jugeribus Westvicam, ad idem monasterium æque pertinentibus, devota mente secundum pristinum renovando restituo et restituendo, in nomine Domini nostri Jesu Christi præcipio, ut nullius altioris aut inferioris dignitatis persona, aut in nostris sive successorum nostrorum temporibus, hanc quam præfatus sum portionem, de prædicta sancti martyris ecclesia, auferre vel minuere qualibet occasione præsumat; sed hoc meæ renovationis inviolabili jugiter permanente, et contra omnia æmulatorum machinamenta prævalente chirographo; prædictum monasterium ab omni mundanæ servitutis jugo, sicut continetur in veteri chartula, quam Offa rex Merciorum dictitando composuit, et fecit esse privilegium ob monimentum omnium succedentium regum de omnibus rebus quas Deo tradidit, et sancto martyri Albano, pro remedio animæ suæ. Idcirco ego tali provocatus exemplo, renovare cupiens statuo, ut quæcunque prædictus rex decrevit, inconcussa et firma perpetualiter perdurent. Carta ejusdem Ethelredi Regis de sex Cassatis in Fleamstede et Verulamio, Monasterio Sti. Albani concessis.

CUM nos in extrema pene hujus vitæ margine cernamus sistere, et ultima quæque senescentis mundi pericula, indesinenter luere; admonemur per hoc patenter parvipendere fugitivam atque caducam hujus temporis pompam, et ad immarcessibilem æternæ beatitudinis per bonorum operum exhibitionem tendere palmam; et quicquid utilitatis nostris fuerit Dei mirifica allubesciente clementia statutum temporibus, hoc apicum notis inserere chartis, ne hoc ipsum (quod absit) a subsequentibus causa ignorantiae annullari ullo modo queat, et nostra tunc merces minoretur. Quapropter ego Ethelredus sceptrigera ditione Anglis, cæterisque sistentium in circuitu gentibus, voce, habitu, morumque varietate distantibus rex subthronizatus, ob meæ remedium animulæ, et ob stabilimentum regni cœlitus mihimet concessi; atque etiam ob maximæ pecuniæ pretium mihimet pro hoc ipso collato, condono ad sancti et eximij hujus patriæ protomartyris Albani cœnobium, quandam juris mei portiunculam; cassatas equidem senas, binis in locis semotas; unam scilicet, ubi ab accolis usitato nomine dicitur Fleamstede, et quinque ubi noto vocitamine ob olim castellum jam pene dirutum, Ausonica lingua dicebatur Verulamium, quod nos vulgariter dicimus Wetlingaceaster; ubi et ipse sanctissimus Christi agonista, varia pro fide Christi sustulit tormentorum cruciamenta. Hoc sagaciter meo revolvens animo, justius fore multo, locum in quo passus est, suo æternaliter mancipari cœnobio almifico, quam diutius fisco regali, vel cuilibet terreno audacter subjacere negotio. Decens est enim, ut locum quem suo sacratissimo agonizans pro Christo aspersit et sacravit cruore, ad ipsum perpetualiter revertatur locum, ubi et ipse martyrio expleto, capite truncato, bravium cœleste, et immarcessibilis vitæ meruit coronam. Hoc nempe meæ dapsilitatis emolumentum libens sub æternali libertate liberum concedo; sicut abavus prædecessor meus, Offa scilicet rex inclitus, omnia quæ ipse ad ipsum cœnobium contulit, libertate ditavit. Eadem inquam libertate non solum hanc possessionunculam liberam libens statuo, sed etiam quicquid a meipso, vel a qualibet persona majori sive minori ab heri et nudiustertius, et exin usque ad terminum istius transitorij regni, vitæque labantis extrema datum fuerit, ad supradicti martyris tumbam, sub hac libertatis et renovationis chartula, æternali libertate permaneat liberum. Et ne forte quis præsentium, vel magis futurorum ambiget, quæ sit illa libertas, qua ipsum cœnobium rex benevolus Offa ditavit, et egomet nunc confirmando renovavi, dicam plane, quia omnimodis cuncta illius monasterij possessio, nullis est obnoxia fisci; scilicet, nec expeditionis, nec pontis, et arcis ædificamine, nec juris regalis fragmine, nec furis apprehensione, et ut omnia simul comprehendam, nil debet exsolvi vel regis præposito, vel episcopi, vel ducis, vel ullius hominis; sed omne debitum exsolvant jugiter, qua in ipsa possessione fuerint, ad prædicti martyris mausoleum; secundum quod ordinaverit abbas, qui ipso præfuerit cœnobio. Notum etiam vobis cupio fore, quantum pretium pro hoc ipso, abbas ipsius cœnobij nomine Leofricus, mihimet contulit, quando illud grave vectigal Danis exsolvebamus, præstitit mihi nempe ducentas libras auri et argenti, ex appensione Danorum, et pro fœnore ipsius pretii accepit a me villam quæ dicitur Eadulfinctun, quinquaginta quinque mansas habens, et has etiam sex mansas. Et nunc gratanter ipse mihimet mente benevola reddit prædictas quinquaginta quinque mansas, et contentus est in ipsis sex mansis, pro ducentis libris. Ideoque hanc libertatis et renovationis schedulam facilius adeptus est. Permaneat itaque prædicta possessio, cum omnibus utensilibus ad se rite pertinentibus, sub prædictæ libertatis chirographo, voti compos. Et quisquis nostræ hoc liberalitatis donum augmentare mente maluerit jucunda, sentiet se donis per hoc locupletari divinis; si autem (quod absit) uspiam quis barbarico attactus instinctu, mente hoc subdola machinatus fuerit adnullare, vel quippiam in pejus quam constituimus transvertere, sua pro audacia, a cœtu in hac vita anathematizatus fidelium, et in tremendo Dei examine astantibus cœlorum agminibus, hominumque turmis, necnon et horrendis erebi vernulis, palam cunctis damnetur cum hædis, averni cruciamenta sine fine luiturus, ni ante obitum condigne emendaverit.

[Ibid. p. 1155.]

IN nomine Domini nostri Jesu Christi, ego Wulf in primis concedo pro anima mea, et Deo et sancto Albano terram quæ vocatur Eastun, cum omnibus ad se pertinentibus, sicuti eam habui a rege, cum consensu illius, videlicet Edwardi regis, et illam terram similiter et Oxawycam, sanctæ ecclesiae Albani martyris, ubi et ego jacere volo; et unum de melioribus meis vestimentis, quæ ego habeo, et unum calicem, et unum missalem, et unum dorsale, et pallam tunicam meliorem, quæ fuit Godgivæ. Alterum vero ad monasterium Ramsige; et quatuor marcas argenti ad ecclesiam sancti Petri, Romæ; et quatuor ad missas cantandas pro anima mea; et quatuor ad principales ecclesias hujus terræ; atque sodalibus meis quatuor marcas auri, et omnes terras meas, quas ego dimitto, præter illas duas quas Deo et sancto Albano concessi. Et concedo Dagfino marcam auri, et Efino duas marcas argenti, et unum equum; et Ethelrico ministro duas marcas; et Edwardo unum equum; et singulis hominibus meis, qui terras non habent, singulos equos. Et si adhuc de auro vel argento aliquid superest, ille plus habeat, qui plus pro anima mea facere voluerit; et xxx. de mancipijs meis, libertatem pro anima mea habeant.

[Ibid. p. 1156.]

Ego Ethelgive aperio domino meo regi, et reginæ dominæ meæ, et omnibus amicis meis, quomodo testamentum meum dispono. Id est, imprimis, domino meo regi xxx. mancusas auri, et duos equos, et omnes canes meos; et dominæ meæ reginæ xxx. mancusas auri, et terram Westwicam; et sancto Albano terram quæ vocatur Gatesdene, eo tenore ut fruantur ea fratres communiter; et xxx. mancusas auri, et xxx. boves, xx. de Getesdene, et x. de Acersce, et xx. vaccas, x. de Getesdene et x. de Acersce; et ccl. oves, et gregem porcorum, et subuleum cum ipsis; et duos ciphos argenteos, et duo cornua, et unum librum, et unam cortinam, et unum bancale, concedo cum consensu domini mei regis. Et illam terram apud Longaforde, Elfnoto dies suos; eo tenore, ut singulis annis det ad Hiccam pastum trium dierum; et post dies suos supradictam terram. Et Leofwino nepoti meo unam hidam apud Cliftune, et illam dimidiam quam Winemannus habuit; Elfwoldus terram Mundene dies suos habeat, eo tenore quod dabit annis singulis, in quadragesima ad Braheingum sex modios de brais, et ad hoc farinam et pisces, et tantundem ad Wellingum, et ad singula monasteria quatuor porcos ad festivitatem sancti Martini, et post obitum suum, medietatem terræ supradictæ apud Braheingum, et medietatem ad Wellingum. Et Leoffinus habeat Standune, et post ipsum Ifoldus, et post mortem amborum, sanctus Albanus prædictam terram habeat, pro suis animabus dominorumque suorum. Et Leoffius terram Offanlege, et omne quod liber docet, et terram Cingungum, ad porcos sibi nutriendos, eo tenore, ut annis singulis pro firma de istis duabus villis, omnem congregationem sancti Albani tribus diebus pascat, aut pro firma dabit, hoc quod ego testificata sum testimonio optimatum domini mei. Et terram apud Weodune, et pro illa similiter faciat quod testificata sum. Et terram Offanlege dabit filio suo, si de desponsata muliere filium habet; sin autem, dabitur sancto Albano, præter illam ubi Tatulwus sedet, et Ethelferdus et Ethelswith; illa dabitur filiæ dominæ suæ Elfine, si adhuc vivit; si non, tota sancto Albano reddatur. Et Alfwoldus medietatem terræ apud Lundoniam habeat; et filius ejus Elfhead medietatem; et dabitur Leofrune terra Watford; et apud Weotune duos homines, et octo boves, &c.

INSTITUTA quæ pius pastor dominus Gwarinus abbas ad utilitatem et pacem sui conventus instituit, corde retinenda et scripto commendanda sunt, ne malitia invidentium quandoque infringantur, seu oblivioni perpetuæ tradantur, inter cætera namque pietatis opera, quæ ad incrementa bonorum operum suorum; hoc pro utilitate et petitione totius conventus adjecit, ut fratres qui in æstate post meridiem ex antiquo minuere solebant, concessit tam in æstate quam hyeme ante prandium semper sanguinem minuant; in æstate statim post fratrum refectionem, et gratiarum actionem in locutorio hospitum divertant, seu in alio quolibet loco sibi deputato, cura cum ipsis existente, qui propter ordinis disciplinam, hora illa cum eis remaneat, ibi simul omnes convenient, licentiamque habeant loquendi (cum omni tamen gravitate) quamdiu servitores comederint. Et hoc semper provideant, ut simul omnes in dormitorium ingrediantur, priusquam ad excitandos fratres signum pulsetur. Ipso die, ad completorium in supradicto loco convenient, ibique loquantur quamdiu hospitali visum fuerit, aut hora permiserit, non tamen ultra pyretegium, hora loquendi proteletur. Super hoc adjecit, ut a completorio, die secunda ex consuetudine semper remaneant, qui quondam ex gratia remanere solebant, ut in præcedenti die absque licentia, atque in supradicto loco, simul omnes convenient, scilicet in locutorio hospitum. Et si festivitas principalis, seu obitus cujuslibet fratris (cujus corpus præsens fuerit) supervenerit, ut supradicta indulgentia remanendi teneri non potuerit, in nocte altera recompensetur.

Ad matutinas, nocte prima minutionis ex antiquo chorum ingredi non solebant, nocte vero secunda semper intrare, nos itaque petitione totius conventus super hoc addidimus, ac pietatis intuitu indulsumus, ut nec nocte secunda ad matutinas chorum ingrediantur nisi festivitas principalis seu duplex supervenerit. Die vero tertio, ad omnes horas canonicas chorum ingredientur. Et quotiescunque in die jejunii ante conventum comederint, a nona remaneant, et post refectionem, licentiam habeant locutorium hospitum ingredi, ibique spacientur, dum conventus in refectorio discubuerit, ab octavis Nativitatis beatæ Mariæ, omni hieme usque ad caput quadragesimæ, post tertiam semper manducant, et à sexta ex concessione nostra remaneant, qui quondam ad sextam convenire solebant, quia cum molestia comedebant, quicquid viscebantur propter horæ brevitatem. Sacrista has horas sic temperet, ne aliquis eorum ipsius negligentia, contristetur, ut ad missam majorem cum omni gravitate, absque molestia simul omnes convenire possint, in hyeme enim volumus ut ad missam majorem simul omnes convenient, et qui vitio suo deerit, solus sustineat quod me-ruerit, et innoxii absolvantur. In quadragesima usque ad nonam jejunare solebant, et ad missam majorem cibum sumere, post missam, ad vespervas soliti erant convenire. Sed quia sæpiùs conqueri solebant propter horæ brevitatem quia jejunantibus breve erat spatium; nos itaque considerantes brevitatem spatii, pietatis intuitu indulimus, ut ab hac hora vespertina semper remaneant, cura cum ipsis remanente, qui cum ipsis manducet, et cum ipsis remaneat; abstinente conventu ab esu piscium, cura qui cum minutis comederit, ab abstinentia absolvatur, licentiamque habeat comedendi, quicquid ei Dominus donaverit. Post refectionem, de refectorio statim exeant, quibus egressis ad monasterium divertant, quoad conventus in refectorio introgressus fuerit. Discumbentibus illis, sanguine minuti licentiam habeant hospitum ingredi locutorium, ibique loquantur, quoad conventus ad mensam discubuerit. Quod si aliquis eorum quoad cimbalum percussus fuerit in refectorio remanserit, locutorium cum cæteris non ingrediatur, sed solus in ecclesia remaneat, silentiumque teneat dum cæteri loquentur. Et quia abusus fuerit indulgentia sibi concessa, improbitatis suæ solus sustineat pœnam, innoxii absolutis.

INTER cætera quæ venerabilis pater dominus Guarinus abbas provida dispensatione instituit, fratribus infirmis compatiens misericordiæ manum porrexit, ne defectu auxilii, morte immatura ad extrema vitæ producerentur; quia inhumanum esse arbitrabatur, ut de una substantia quibus æqua suppeteret successio, alii abundanter affluerunt, alii vero paupertatis ingemiscerent incommodis. Ea propter assensu totius conventus, et gratiarum instituit actione, ut si quis fratrum ita infirmitate laboraverit, ut morbo ingravescente infirmitatis suæ necessitate compulsus infirmariam ingredi, magister infirmariæ ea quæ infirmo ejusque infirmitati fuerint necessaria, procurabit. Scilicet medicum et medicamina, electuaria, atque pigmenta, et cætera quæ juxta morbum apta didicerit, ne defectu ipsius, ulli sit necesse quicquam ab alio aliquo exigere. Ad hoc enim altare beati Petri apostoli, quod situm est in villa beati Albani à parte orientali, deputavit; ne aliquis eorum qui pro tempore præfatæ obedientiæ procurator extiterit, quasi impossibilitate se valeat excusare.

Memorandum, quod actum est super hoc, die sanctorum Cosmæ et Damiani, anno gratiæ M.CC.LIII. Hoc beneficio privati sumus, tempore Johannis secundi abbatis qui anno suæ prælationis, xvii. vicariam in eadem ecclesia instituit sicut in ecclesia sancti Michaelis de Kingsbury, nihil nobis pro recompensatione relinquens.

Item pium Institutum pro anima Galfridi Abbatis.

STATUTUM est insuper ab eodem abbate Guarino, et a toto conventu, ut omni anno, à secretario ecclesiæ nostræ in die sanctæ Katerinæ, pro anima Galfridi abbatis pauperes centum reficiantur pane et cervisia, et uno ferculo. Et exceptis hiis centum, cæteris qui superfuerint panis summa unius frumenti præparetur, et unusquisque saltem dimidium unius panis acciperet, ne penitus vacui recederent, et spe fraudati præconcepta.

De Misericordia ejusdem.

Hic quoque primò permisit aliquibus fratribus, in quibus per maciem et pallorem, debilitatem perpenderat manifestam, (quibus videbatur inconueniens esse et conscientiae læsionem, intrare infirmariam, quia quamvis macilenti essent vel pallidi, vel etiam debiles, non sibi infirmi videbantur) ut seorsum, scilicet in oriole carnem comederent: et hoc fiebat abbate compellente, et in virtute obedientiæ præcipiente. Tunc vero temporis, nullus in infirmaria carnes comedit, nisi in morbi gravitate, et propter restaurationem, et meliorati, juxta regulam penitus abstinebant, nec quis carnes comedit, nisi per Infirmary in veriloquio affirmante, quod sic oportuit, licentiatus.

De Redburna.

ITEM ad Redburnam aliquos fratrum transmisit recreandos, ne identitas, in claustro in eis qui pusillanimes erant, accidiam parturiret. Et (quod priùs nullo modo permittebatur) carnes comedere permisit debilibus, ita scilicet, ut regularem cibum ministris darent, pro carnis commutatione.

De Sotularibus.

Hii quoque Sotulares corrigiatis, pro ocreis de cute quam vulgus Bazan appellat, commutavit; tum ut ad divinum officium expeditius properarent, nec unius alium in processionibus intricatum illaquearet; tum propter munditiam et honestatem fratrum, quos decet manus, (et maxime circa altare) habere mundissimas. Priore tamen rotunditate, anteriore, et per totum amplitudine, ad indicium pristinae humilitatis, remanente.

Hii quoque præter misericordiam prædictam minutis impensam, quæ [qui] solebant non brachia habere exerta, et post prandium; jussit ut subbrachiales per quas brachia protraherent, haberent aperturas. Neque enim proinde observantiæ regularis, fiebat transgressio, quam regula sancti Benedicti votiva, præcipit et hortatur.

De Somno Meridiano in Æstate.

Huius adhuc adjecit, ut omni æstate in die jejunii, post refectionem eant dormitum more meridiano.

Hæ sunt Indulgentiæ quas fecit Abbas Guarinus Conventui suo, et hæc ejus Statuta; quæ quicumque infringere attemptavit, anathemate condemnatur.

ITEM, Ut opus majori cum devotione et reverentia celebretur, de hiis qui præter instituta sancti patris nostri Benedicti in conventu psallere consuevimus, multa nobis non sine commendabili ac pia consideratione relaxavit. Atque discretionis sica in omnibus superflua resecans, irregularia hoc modo abbreviavit; ut videlicet omni tempore privatis diebus, tam in diurnis quàm in nocturnis horis, ad preces tantummodo 'Miserere mei Deus,' &c. dicatur. Similiter ad preces uno semper ordine dicantur, id est, 'Ego dixi Domine miserere mei.' In festis vero et in profestis diebus, omnes horas (exceptis Prima et Completorio) per Magistram Collectam, quam tempus et hora exegerint, terminari instituit. In Quadragesima tamen dicatur Collecta ad Vespervas, privatis diebus, quæ dicantur ad majorem missam super populum. Psalmos verò familiares, qui confusè dicebantur (quandoque diffusè), sub hoc semper ordine psallere instituit; hoc est, 'Deus in adjutorium,' 'Ad te levavi,' 'De profundis,' et 'Voce mea,' cum tempus exegerit. In Quadragesima tamen privatis diebus hiis adjiciatur, 'Levavi oculos meos.' Et in festis, 'Inclina Domine,' pro Psalmis 'prostatis.' Illos vero triginta Psalmos quos a festivitate Omnium Sanctorum usque ad Pascha, privatis diebus ante 'Matutinas,' non psallendo, sed quibusdam balbutientibus, quibusdam verò præ tedio dormitantibus, transcurrere consuevimus, in duo divisit; atque a medietate eorundem Psalmorum nos absolvit. At quia in conventu omnino debet (secundum præceptum, vel saltem consilium, beati Benedicti) oratio brevis esse, et pura nisi ex devotione protendatur. 'Deus auribus nostris,' cum sequentibus Psalmis (quia ab re dicebantur) abrenunciavimus, et in eorum loco, sub tempore et hora qua dicebantur, septem Psalmos poenitentiales substituimus. Et quia onerosa nobis erat historia illa de Inventione beati Stephani sociorumque ejusdem, ab ea nos absolvit, et pro ea communem historiam de Confessoribus psallere instituit. Ita tamen ut dicatur quartum responsorium de sancto Stephano; hoc videlicet, 'Positis genibus;' et octavum 'Patefactæ sunt;' et duodecimum, 'Ecce jam.' Cætera omnia dicantur, sicut in festivitate plurimorum confessorum. Concessit etiam idem abbas Guarinus, ut sine froccis in claustro radendi temporibus, et radant pariter et radantur.

[Autogr. Cart. Harl. Antiq. 43 A. 24.]

ALEXANDER episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilecto filio Roberto abbati monasterii sancti Albani, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Ea quæ compositione seu concordia, mediante rationabili providentia, statuuntur, in sua debent stabilitate consistere; et ne alicujus temeritate in posterum valeant immutari, apostolicæ sedis ea convenit auctoritate muniri. Ea propter, dilecte fili Roberte, tuis postulationibus grato concurrentes assensu, compositionem, quæ inter Lincolnensem ecclesiam et monasterium beati Albani super processionibus de Hertford scira, de quibus inter utramque ecclesiam controversia fuerat, sicut in instrumento exinde facto continetur, utriusque partis assensu rationabiliter facto est, tibi et per te ecclesiæ tuæ auctoritate apostolica confirmamus, et præsentis scripti patrocinio communimus. Statuentes ut nulli omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ confirmationis infringere vel et aliquatenus contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit indignationem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat. Anagn. xj. kal. Febr.

Clementis Papæ III. Privilegium de non appellando a judicio Abbatis nisi ad Romanam Curiam vel Legatum Cardinalem.

[Cart. Harl. Antiq. 43 A. 26.]

CLEMENS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Garino abbati et fratribus sancti Albani, salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Quia monasterium vestrum, nullo mediante, ad jus et proprietatem beati Petri spectare dinoscitur, et tam in capite quam in membris omnimodam optinet libertatem, providere volumus sicut de ratione tenemur, ne jura sua alicujus temeritate vel astutia minuantur, vel sub provisione nostra possint aliquatenus deperire. Cum autem occasione negotiorum inter homines vestros, laicos, monachos, et clericos emergentium, multa in æquitatis prejudicium committantur: quidam in tantam audaciam attemptant prorum-pere, quod ad eludendum justitiam vestram vocem appellationis, cum vestri monasterii juris sint in causis, ad archiepiscopos vel episcopos, et alios ecclesiarum prælatos emittunt, ut vestrum judicium declinantes, justitiam in vestra præsentia non exhibeant, aut suscipiant de offensis. Volentes itaque ad jus monasterii vestri benigne respicere, ac libertatem ipsius propensius conservare, auctoritate præsentium inhibemus, ne hominibus vestris, monachis vel clericis, sive laicis, vobis episcopali jure subjectis, per appellationem a vestro judicio, nisi ad Romanam Ecclesiam vel Cardinalem Legatum interpositam, liceat declinare. Si vero ad alium pro quacunque causa duxerint appellandum, licitum sit tibi fili abbas, et successoribus tuis in eos quod jus voluerit exercere. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc paginam nostræ concessionis et constitutionis infringere, vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit, indignationem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat Lateran. xiiij. kal. Celestini Papæ III. Epistola de Exactione ad Opus Terræ Hierosolymitanæ non facienda.

[Cart. Antiq. Harl. 43 A. 28.]

CELESTINUS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis abbati et conventui sancti Albani salutem et apostolicam benedictionem. Cum vobis et aliis ecclesiarum prælatis per apostolica scripta miserimus ut ad subventionem terræ Hierosolymitanæ auxilium præberetis; vos sicut accepimus, commonitionibus nostris inducti, decimam partem reddituum ecclesiæ vestræ, ac cellarum ac hominum vestrorum tam pio operi deputastis, de quo caritatem vestram in Domino commendamus tam ratum quam gratum habemus laudabile propositum vestrum, auctoritate præsentium sub interminatione anathematis districtius inhibentes ne aliqua ecclesiastica sæcularisve persona vos vel ecclesiam vestram hujus tam piæ et necessariæ actionis prætextu ad id vel simile compellere in posterum audeat; nec vos aut ecclesiam vestram vel cellas quomodolibet molestare; ne quod absit aliquando inviti subire cogamus quod mera liberalitate et pietatis intuitu nescimini inchoasse. Nulli ergo omnino hominum liceat hanc nostram paginam inhibitionis infringere vel ei ausu temerario contraire. Si quis autem hoc attemptare præsumpserit indignationem omnipotentis Dei et beatorum Petri et Pauli apostolorum ejus se noverit incursurum. Dat. Lateran. ij. non. NUM. XXI.

HONORIUS episcopus servus servorum Dei, dilectis filiis Willielmo abbati monasterii sancti Albani ejusque fratribus tam præsentibus quam futuris regularem vitam professis in perpetuum. Religiosam vitam eligentibus apostolicum convenit adesse præsidium, ne fortè cujuslibet temeritatis incursus, aut eos à proposito revocet, aut robur, quod absit, sacræ religionis infringatur. Ea propter, dilecti in Domino filii, ob reverentiam beati Albani gloriosi Anglorum prothomartyris, cujus sacratissimum corpus in loco vestro requiescere dinoscitur, prædecessorum nostrorum felicis memoriæ Calixti, Celestini, Eugenii, Adriani, Alexandri, Lucii, Clementis et Celestini tercii, Romanorum pontificum vestigiis inhærentes, vestris justis postulationibus elementer annuimus, et monasterium ipsum in quo divino vacatis obsequio, quod ad jus beati Petri specialiter spectare dinoscitur, cum adjacentibus cellis et ecclesiis et omnibus eidem monasterio pertinentibus, sub beati Petri et nostra protectione suscipimus et præsentis scripti privilegio communimus, statuantes, ut universa quæ illustris memoriæ Offa videlicet, et filius ejus Egfridus, Edredus, Willielmus, et Henricus, Ricardus, Johannes, Anglorum reges, aut alii fideles de suo jure vestro monasterio contulerunt, quæcumque etiam ipsum monasterium in præsentiarum justè ac canonicè possidet, aut in futurum, concessionem pontificum, largitionem regum vel principum, oblationem fidelium, seu aliis justis modis præstante Domino poterit adipisci, firma vobis vestrisque successoribus et illibata permaneant, in quibus hæc propriis duximus exprimenda vocabulis: videlicet, monasterium ipsum beati Albani cum villa tota, ecclesiam beati Petri, ecclesiam quoque beati Stephani, at ecclesias de Kyngesbyri, et de Watford, de Richemareswithe, de Langeleya, de Rethburne, de Cudicote, de Waldene, de Hecstone-stun, de Northuna, de Neuham, de Estuna, de Barnet, de Scepeale, de Thinhirll, de Brantefeld, de Stanmere, cum eisdem villis et omnibus earum pertinentiis. Ad susceptionem hospitum, ecclesiam de Podesgrave, et ecclesiam de Lutune cum ecclesia de Hochtune et cum tota terra quam Willielmus camerarius tenuit in ^asoca Lutunie, et in villa de Hochtune et in Hertwell et in Badelesdune et in Podesgrave et cum omnibus terris et decimis et quibuscunque rebus ad eas pertinentibus, sicut regis Henrici carta testatur. Ad coquinam monachorum, ecclesiam Omnium Sanctorum in Suberia cum capella de Berindune et adjacente terra, et ecclesiam de Lethewrtha cum capella de Burgaleya. Ecclesiam etiam de Wanlingetune et ecclesiam de Bigrave. Ad sustentationem pauperum, ecclesiam de Heveresdune, et ecclesiam de Kenebella cum adjacente terra; et ecclesiam de Wengrave cum decima de Heswa et de Ryngetune, et decimam de Roynge. Terram quoque quam Willielmus filius Gaufridi dedit, scilicet unam hidam in Hethburne in sartis de Wydehale, et unam virgatam in nemore ejusdem Wydehale, sicut donatoris carta confirmat. Ad cameram monachorum, ecclesiam de Thirefeld. Ad sacristam, ecclesiam de Dachat, et ex dono Hamonis in villa de Chalfunte unam virgatam terræ et dimidiam, et unam asartum cum libera pastura pecudum et porcorum. In Eboracisira ecclesiam de Hapeltunc cum ecclesia Haymundesby et omnibus earum pertinentiis. Præterea ecclesiam de Tynemuhe, cellam de Bynham, cellam de Wymundham, cellam de Walinford, cellam de Beuwer, cellam de Hertford, cellam de Bello Loco, cellam de Hethfeld, cum omnibus omnium earum pertinentiis, dignitatibus, ac liberis consuetudinibus, necnon et alias ecclesias, decimas, villas, terras, aquas, prata, pascua, silvas, redditus etiam et omnia eidem monasterio vel cellis ejus pertinentia, sicut in privilegiis pontificum, regum vel aliorum scriptis fidelium continentur. Quicquid præterea dignitatis, libertatis et competentis ecclesiæ ac monasterio consuetudinis per regum vel aliorum fidelium scripta loco eidem et cellis ejus collatum est, nos quoque hujus scripti nostri robore confirmamus, et videlicet ecclesias sancti Albani et cellæ ejus et omnia ad eas pertinentia libera sint ab omni tributo sive regis seu episcopi sive comitis, vicecomitis, ducis, judicis et exactoris et omnibus operibus quæ indici^b vel emendatione pontium, castellorum, parcorum.

Omnia etiam pontificalia jura cellarum sancti Albani et ecclesiarum ejus sub ejusdem abbatis dispositione atque arbitrio permaneant. Crisma verò, oleum sanctum, consecrationes altarium seu basilicarum, benedictiones abbatum, monachorum seu clericorum ordinationes, à quocunque malueritis catholico suscipiatis antistite, qui nimirum vestra fultus auctoritate quod postulatus fuerit indulgeat, nec quod petieritis audeat denegare. Obeunte vero te nunc ejusdem loci abbate, vel tuorum quolibet successorum, nullus ibi qualibet subreptionis astutia seu violentia præponatur. Sed liceat vobis communi consilio conventus vel partis consilii sanioris, secundum Dei timorem et beati Benedicti regulam, absque ullius contradictione abbatem eligere, qui in susceptione benedictionis suæ cunctis in posterum diebus soli Romanæ ecclesiæ professionem obedientiæ debeat exhibere. Cui etiam abbati licitum sit, sicut à prædecessoribus nostris vobis concessum est, personam de suis fratribus quam maluerit honestam, ydoneam et maturam constituere, quæ curam animarum sub eo gerat et archidiaconi officium in omnibus impleat. Verum, ne per hujus dignitatis prærogativam abbas prædicti monasterii aliquo tempore faciliorem fortassis ad episcopatum habeat accessum, apostolica auctoritate interdiximus, ne unquam in monasterio beati Albani sedes episcopalis constituatur, ne occasione ista quandoque monachi dispositioni subjaceant clericorum et claustralium quies turbetur, necnon et regularis observantiæ disciplina simul cum substantia monasterii minuat; sed cunctis in posterum diebus ecclesia sancti Albani non episcopum sed abbatem à quo regatur habeat, qui ob reverentiam ejusdem pretiosi martyris pontificalis dignitatis, in quantum abbati concedi fas est, debeat optinere, videlicet ut sicut pontificalia habet jura, ita et pontificalia habeat ornamenta, mitram scilicet, cirotecas, anulum, et sandalia, tunica quoque et dalmatica in celebrationibus missarum utatur, quæ liceat ei non tantum in propria ecclesia et in cellis vestris sed et in omnibus ecclesiis ad quas rogatus accesserit in festis diebus gestare, benedictionem dare, vestimenta sacerdotalia benedicere, clericos suos tonsare, et in sortem dominicam assumere, sanctimoniales suas benedicere. Et sicut beatus Albanus Anglorum prothomartyr esse dignoscitur: ita et abbas monasterii ipsius inter abbates Angliæ primus omni tempore dignitatis ordine habeatur. Ita tamen quod nunquam hac occasione infra claustra monasterii abbas ipse præsumat uti cappa clericali, vel seculari aliquo indumento, sed monastici habitus reverentiam in omnibus diligenter observet et formam religionis prætere intuentium oculis comprobetur.

In ponendis vero vel removendis prioribus cellarum vel monachis, nullus omnino clericus sive laicus se obiciat, sed abbas qui pro tempore fuerit ponendi vel removendi eos, ubi oportunitas fuerit, absque alicujus contradictione liberam habeat facultatem, quatinus tam priores quam monachi in abbatum suorum semper potestate permaneant, et ita per omnia liberi sint ubilibet habitantes ab episcoporum subjectione, ac si in corpore monasterii morarentur, in quos nulla omnino persona præter Romanum pontificem vel legatum cardinalem à nostro latere destinatum excommunicationis seu interdicti sententiam audeat promulgare. Quod si quispiam alius aliquo tempore attemptare præsumperit, ejus in hac parte factum omnino viribus careat et penitus irritum habeatur. Prohibemus quoque, ut nullus episcopus sive archiepiscopus in vestro cœnobio vel adjacentibus ecclesiis in quibus ejusdem monasterii abbas jus pontificale habere dinoscitur, missas publicas vel conventum sive sinodum celebrare, cathedram collocare, processionem sollempnem facere aut exigere, regem coronare seu aliquod episcopale officium in aliqua cellarum suarum excercere vel hospitium exigere præsumat. Universaliter statuentes, ut quicumque episcopi, archiepiscopi, vel eorum clerici aut ministri super ipsum monasterium, vel super cellas et prædictas parochiales ecclesias nullam aliquatenus potestatem habeant, nec earum presbyteros vel clericos quoscumque sive laicos, sed nec abbatem priores vel monachos ad sinodum suum vel capitulum convocare, vel ab officio divino suspendere, seu aliquod in eos vel minimum jus excercere, et parochianos suos à communione illorum prohibere præsumant, sed omnia pontificalia eorum jura et quæcumque ecclesiæ sancti Albani fuerint abbatis solummodo ejusdem monasterii potestati liberè tractanda subiaceant. Nolumus enim ut alicui nisi tantum Romano pontifici debeant in aliquo respondere. Nec monasterii vestri abbas vel monachi seu cellarumstrarum ubilibet positarum fratres pro qualibet interdictione vel excommunicatione, etiamsi commune interdictum terræ fuerit, divinatorum officiorum suspensionem patiantur. Sed tam abbas et monachi ipsi quam et famuli eorum et qui se monasticæ professioni devoverunt, clausis ecclesiarum januis, non admissis excommunicatis et interdictis, non pulsatis tintinabulis, humiliori voce divina celebrent et sepulturæ eis debita peragant. Liceat quoque vobis quancumque vos manifeste gravari senseritis, ad remedium appellationis confugere, etiamsi in causa quæ contra vos agitur appellatio sit remota. Post factam verò appellationem, nemini liceat in vos sententiam dare, vel aliquid innovare, seu vos aut possessiones vestras ausu temerario perturbare. Ad hæc sancimus, ne quis fratres vestros, post factam in monasterio vestro professionem, absque abbatis licentia, suscipere audeat vel retinere. Inhibemus insuper, ut nulli omnino hominum liceat in cellis vestris absque assensu vestro abbatem aliquando constituere. Ecclesiæ autem in quibus jura pontificalia non habetis, sive capellæ vestræ, et cimiteria, libera sint et ab omni exactione immunia præter episcopi consuetam potestatem et justitiam in presbyteros si adversus sui ordinis offenderint dignitatem. In quibus etiam ecclesiis vel capellis liceat nobis seu fratribus vestris presbyteros eligere, ita tamen quod ab episcopis vel episcoporum vicariis animarum curam absque venalitate suscipiant. Quibus nimirum presbyteris cum tantum assignaveritis unde victus et vestitus necessaria possint honestè percipere, quicquid residuum fuerit liceat vobis in usus proprios convertere. Si qui præterea fidelium monasterio vestro aut cellis ad ipsum pertinentibus ecclesiam aut possessionem aliquam seu beneficium pietatis intuitu conferre voluerit, nullus omnino audeat impedire. Adicientes etiam auctoritate apostolica prohibemus, ut nullus minister de cætero, dapifer videlicet, vel pincerna, camerarius, dispensator, janitor, seu per manum regis, vel alicujus principis, violentiam, vobis invitis in vestro monasterio vel in locis ad ipsum pertinentibus ordinetur. Antiquas quoque consuetudines et redditus monasterio vestro debitos, scilicet in sexta feria post Ascensionem Dominicam, de unaquaque caruca Her[t]fordensis comitatus obulum unum et in eadem die sive ebdomada Pentecostes ex toto comitatu processionem sollempnem. In secunda verò sollempnitate beati Albani, de unaquaque caruca nummum unum, itemque eodem die de unaquaque domo totius terræ sancti Albani nummum unum vobis auctoritate apostolica confirmamus, et perpetuis temporibus inviolabiliter præcipimus observari. Decernimus ergo ut nulli hominum liceat supradictum monasterium temerè perturbare, aut ejus possessiones auferre, vel ablatas retinere, minuere, sive quibuslibet vexationibus fatigare, sed illibata omnia et integra observentur, eorum pro quorum gubernatione et sustentatione concessa sunt usibus omnimodis profutura; salva in omnibus apostolicæ sedis auctoritate. Ad indicium autem hujus à sede apostolica perceptæ libertatis, unam unciam auri nobis nostrisque successoribus annis singulis persolvitis. Si qua igitur in futurum ecclesiastica secularisve persona hanc nostræ constitutionis paginam sciens contra eam temerè venire temptaverit, secundò terciòve commonita, nisi præsumptionem suam congrua satisfactione correxerit, potestatis honorisque sui dignitate careat, reamque se divino judicio existere de perpetrata iniquitate cognoscat, et à sacratissimo corpore ac sanguine Dei et Domini redemptoris nostri Jesu Christi aliena fiat, atque in extremo examine districtæ subiaceat ultioni. Cunctis autem eidem loco sua jura servantibus fiat pax Domini nostri Jesu Christi, quatinus et hîc fructum bonæ actionis percipiant, et apud districtum judicem præmia æternæ pacis inveniant. Amen.

[Mat. Par. Vit. Albani Abbatum, p. 1061.]

UNIVERSIS sanctæ matris ecclesiæ filiis, ad quos præsens scriptum pervenerit. Richardus Dei permissione Sarisbiriensis ecclesiæ minister humilis, et Willielmus et Richardus, ejusdem permissione de Westmonasterio et de Waltham abbates, salutem in Domino. Noverit universitas vestra, quòd cum inter episcopum Lincolnensem Hugonem secundum, ex una parte, et Willielmum abbatem et conventum sancti Albani ex altera, coram diversis iudicibus auctoritate literarum domini papæ Honorii tertii, super diversis petitionibus quæs-tiones mutuae verterentur. Videlicet, coram me Sarisbiriensi episcopo et conjudicibus meis, super ordinatione Vicariæ Ecclesiæ de Luituna. Item coram nobis Westmonasterii et Waltham abbatibus, et priore sanctæ Trinitatis London. super subjectione cellarum de Beauvoir, de Hertfort, et de Bello Loco, et super taxatione ecclesiæ de Luituna, et super custodia ejusdem cum vacaret: et super appropriatione omnium ecclesiarum in quibus jura pontificalia non habent abbates sancti Albani: et assignatione vicariarum in eisdem, necnon et custodiis earundem ecclesiarum et vicariarum cum eas vacare contingeret. Item coram abbate de Sibeton et conjudicibus suis, super portione quam dicti abbates et conventus tenent in proprios usus in ecclesia de Luituna. Tandem recepta die pacis inter eos reformandæ, post mutuum tractatum (nobis mediantibus inter eos) amicabiliter habitum, episcopus Lincoln. per literas capituli sui de rato speciales ad componendum, et abbas sancti Albani per literas capituli sui de rato similiter speciales ad componendum procuratores constitui, super omnibus præmissis petitionibus et quærelis, ad reformandum amicabiliter pacem inter eos et eorum ecclesias, pro se et pro capitulis suis simpliciter et absolute, nostræ se subjecerunt ordinationi, promittentes solemniter coram nobis et multis aliis in verbo Dei, quod nostræ starent in hac parte irrefragabiliter ordinationi. Nos igitur Deum habentes præ oculis, et utriusque ecclesiæ prospicientes in posterum paci et tranquillitati, pacem inter eos amicabilem providimus et ordinavimus in hunc modum. Scilicet de vicaria ecclesiæ de Luituna (cujus occasione super cæteris mota est controversia) sic erit. Quod in ecclesia de Luituna perpetua ordinetur vicaria. Ita scilicet, quod qui pro tempore erit vicarius, habebit nomine perpetuæ vicariæ, omnes obventiones, et omnes minutas decimas ecclesiæ de Luituna et omnium capellarum ad eam pertinentium; et omnia alia ad eandem ecclesiam et capellas pertinentia, cum manso competenti, exceptis garbis, et terra ad ecclesiam et ad capellas pertinente; et inde Vicarii sustinebunt omnia onera ecclesiæ parochialia, synodalia, archidiaconalia, ordinaria et consuetu, sicut vicarii. Vicarii autem in ecclesia de Luituna successivè instituendi, præsentabuntur episcopo Lincolnensi et successoribus suis, ab abbate et conventu sancti Albani, vel a conventu vacante abbatia. Episcopus vero et successores sui, idoneos viros sibi præsentatos, sine moræ dispendio et sine difficultate admittere tenentur. Habebit autem episcopus et successores sui, plenam jurisdictionem in ecclesia de Luituna, et custodiam ejusdem vicariæ cum vacaverit.

De aliis vero Ecclesiis quas abbas et monachi sancti Albani ad proprios usus petebant, et assignatione vicariarum et custodiis utrarumque, quas idem abbas et monachi sibi similiter vendicabant, ita erit. Quod episcopus Lincolnensis et ejus successores, per hanc ordinationem nostram erunt in perpetuum sine lite ab alterutra parte movenda, in eo statu, quo idem episcopus fuit ante litem motam.

De Cellis autem ita erit. Cùm in eisdem substituendus fuerit Prior, ab abbate et conventu, providebitur præsentandus episcopo Lincolnensi et suis successoribus, suscepturus ab eodem et successoribus suis, sine difficultate et sine moræ dispendio administrationem spiritualium. Videlicet ecclesiarum parochialium, pensionum, decimarum, et si qua sunt similia. Ratione quorum, faciat dicto episcopo et ejus successoribus canonicam obedientiam cum reverentia et honore, sicut suo episcopo diocesano exhibendis.

Statuimus tamen, quod salva sit abbati et ejus successoribus cura animarum in monachis apud cellas suas per episcopatum Lincolnensem commorantibus. Salva etiam sit eidem, et successoribus suis, plena potestas ponendi monachos in Cellis, et inde amovendi, et eorum excessus, in hiis quæ ad ordinem et regularem observantiam pertinent, corrigendi. Ipsos etiam priores sub forma præscripta admissos, sine contradictione aliqua liceat abbati et successoribus suis revocare, prout viderint expedire. Ordinamus etiam, ut omnes lites et omnes quærelæ super præmissis omnibus motæ, in perpetuum conquiescant, et nulla rescripta super præmissis impetrata, vel in posterum impetranda, contra istam ordina-tionem vires habeant vel effectum. Et in hujus rei robur et testimonium, tam nos quam prædictus episcopus et capitulum Lincoln. abbas prædictus et conventus sancti Albani, in præsentis Scripto sigilla nostra apposuimus. Acta, Capitulo Westmonasteriensi, anno ab incarnatione Domini m.cc.xix.

Gesta Abbatis Johannis de Hertford.

[Mat. Par. Vit. Abb. S. Albani, edit. 1684, p. 1070.]

ISTE Johannes secundus abbas, prior quandoque de Hertford et inde oriundus; præter opinionem omnium nutu Dei sublimatus in abbatem: primò invitatus et dolens, Romanorum jugum subiit servitutis: ut scilicet, de triennio in triennium, vel per se, vel per alium limina adiret apostolorum, sicut in subdola professione ejusdem continetur; in magnum ecclesiæ damnum et gravamen, et insatiabilis Romanæ curiæ emolumentum voluntarium et injuriosum. Primus quidem fuit in abbatem creatus post concilium Lateranense generale sub papa Innocentio quarto celebratum: in quo illud continetur cum aliis gravaminibus in ecclesia sancti Albani (quæ à foundatione sui primitivâ, libera et ingenua legitur extitisse), præjudicium, et si fas est dicere, injuriam et jacturam.

Iste quoque abbas in novitate sua, multis exactionibus fatigabatur et expensis: sed præ omnibus Romanorum oppressionibus novis et inauditis cepit molestari. Et quòd obstantibus antiquis privilegiis (quæ non sine magna sanctorum patrum injuria et contemptu cassantur et spernuntur) non permissa est tam celebris ecclesiæ suis libertatibus gratulari. In cujus rei triste præsagium, paulò ante ejusdem abbatis creationem; et citò post (scilicet infra triennium) bis supra ecclesiam beati Albani visum est fulgur usque ad incendium cecidisse: quod se meminit nullus prævidisse, nec audivit evenisse. Et sicut non prodest sanctorum inniti privilegiis aut indulgentiis, sic non obstitit fulguri impressio papalis cerea, in qua Agnus Dei figuratur; quæ in summitate turris nostræ collocatur: quæ ut dicitur, contra tales procellas abigendas virtutem habet et potestatem.

Similiter in triste prognosticum temporibus nostris evenit, quòd eucharistia cum vasis impreiabilibus suis aureis et argenteis gemmatis; bis furto flagitiosissimo sublata est.

Iste abbas Johannes in principio creationis suæ, dedit unam capam choralem, de rubeo examito bene aurifrigiatam: et unam cuppam argenteam deauratam, pretiosam valde, tam opere quam materie: quam etiam refectorio assignavit. Item unam nobilissimam aulam ad opus hospitum construxit: cui adjacent thalami plures.

Una nobilissima picta, cum conclavibus et camino, et atrio et subaula: quæ palatium regium (quia duplex est et criptata) dici potest. Adjacet atrium nobilissimum in introitu: quod porticus vel Oriolum appellatur. Et plures thalami speciosi valde, cum suis conclavibus et caminis, ad hospites honorificè suscipiendos. Aula enim quæ prius in eodem loco construebatur, ruinosa fuerat et muris depulsis et veternis; tenebrosa et deformis. Insuper scindulis et lateribus tecta ac resarta aulam autem novam (de qua impræsentiarum loquimur) cum suis capellis et appenditiis, fecit iste optimè plumbo cooperiri.

Insuper fecit eam cum thalamo sibi collateralis, decenissime per manum domini Ricardi monachi nostri artificis optimi, pingi, et delitiose redimiri. Item unam nobilem domum longam valde ac lapideam, tegulis coopertam; cum tribus caminis construxit abbas memoratus ex opposito magnæ portæ: ex cujus visu et objectu tota curia venustatur. Ista domus quia duplicem habet aream, in superiori sui parte ministris abbatis liberioribus; et pars inferior, lardario aptissimè deputatur.

licèt potentissimos invenisset adversarios, usque ad expositionem mille et amplius marcarum, viriliter decertavit: quæ adjudicata nobis fuit coram justiciariis apud Hertfordiam. Hostiles, insuper, plurimorum potentum sustinuit oppressiones. Maxime tamen Radulphi Chaindui II. quæ præmatura morte (ipsomet in extremis protestante) martyris Albani manifestam sensit ultionis animadversionem; et Galfridi de Childewike, cujus persecutiones tanto gravius sustinuit, quantò magis homagii vinculo tenebatur obligatus abbati memorato.

Iste ut ecclesiam sancti Albani (cujus defensor esse debuerat et protector) plus gravaret, sororem Johannis Mansell, domini regis specialis consiliarii et clerici, sibi matrimonio copulavit. Quo præbente cornua et defensionem militi memorato, tot sustinuit abbas damna et diversa gravamina, cum injuriis diversimodis; ut speciales tractatus exigenter et diffusos. Sed ut paucis plurima perstringamus.

Hic Galfridus de Childewike ex defensione dicti Johannis animatus et armatus, ministros domini sui abbatis et baculavit, et baculari procuravit. Et frequenter equum residens pretiosum armatus, suis complicitibus concomitantibus, ipsos canibus suis venaticis, et arcubus; sagittis, et retibus probris lacessitos, violenter in nostra warennâ (ubi nil juris habuit) et stratis regiis, fracta regis pace violenter spoliavit. Nec quicquam juris vel ultionis, assistente memorato Johanne regis lateribus et conciliis, potuimus obtinere. Quinimò metus et persuasio ipsius Johannis, omnium justiciariorum et placitantium advocatorum (quos Banci Narratores vulgariter appellamus) ora penitus obturavit. Ita ut multotiens oportuit dominum Willielmum tunc cellerarium (virum scilicet circumspectum et facundum), suum sermonem et querellam in persona propria coram justiciariis, imò etiam coram rege et barnagio, proponere; et protestati sunt Justiciarii secretiùs in aure dicti domini Willielmi, instillantes, quòd duo tunc temporis in regno dominabantur, scilicet, comes Richardus et Johannes Mansell, contra quos non audebant sententiare.

Contigit igitur ut idem Galfridus de Childewike, una dierum obvium habuit quendam ministrum domini abbatis, in itinere quod ducit de domo archidiaconi de Bedeford usque ad sanctum Albanum: ferentem venationem quam proxenio idem serviens nomine Johannes, ex parte archidiaconi, afferebat. Et protervè irruiet dictus Galfridus in eundem; asserens ipsum esse latronem, et domini regis proditorem; et quod ipsam venationem in ejusdem domini regis foresta et defensa, latrocinialiter sustulerat. Quod et ipse qui fuerat deprivata domini regis familia, et unus de suis marescallis, æquanimiter non poterat tolerare. Expulso igitur post hujusmodi probra de equo suo Johanne, abstulit ab eodem xenium quod ferebat, et equum: addens comminationes cum maledictis. Unde ab ipso abbate et toto conventu, et omnibus capellanis terræ sancti Albani, et a memorato archidiacono et universis capellanis archidiaconatus sui, solemniter in genere est excommunicatus. Et iterum ab abbate et toto conventu, ad stationem in processione solemni, candelis accensis, pulsato classico, stolis super feretrum et crucem, et omnium colla fratrum apposis. Ita scilicet, ut quicumque illud enorme factum, vel alia in præjudicium vel dedecus sancti Albani, et ejus ecclesiæ vel abbatis et conventus, facere attemptaverit; anathematis vinculo innodaretur.

Insuper sæpedictus Galfridus miles, pro tam enormi facto et pacis regiæ læsione, appellatus est de pace infracta per famulum abbatis Johannem læsum, et suis catallis spoliatus: et secundum legem terræ, per breve regis (defensore suo Johanne Mansell vel nescio, vel invito) attachiatus. Sed postea mitigato precibus multiplicatis abbate, illos laqueos mortiferi periculi, per astutiam memorati Johannis Mansell, ipse Galfridus evasit. Rex enim pro ipso, et omnes ferè curiæ primates, præcordialiter intercesserunt. Consilio igitur inito, ne fortè ex consensu de irregularitate accusaremur, dimissimus noxam appellationis. Postea verò illius inmemor beneficii et fidei suæ, procurante sæpedicto Johanne Mansell; adquisivit chartam a rege, contra nostras antiquas chartas et libertates usitatas; ut scilicet in terra sua warren-nam obtineret. Contra etiam chartam Regis tunc viventis; pro qua dedimus eidem regi non minimam pecuniam. Sed nos (ut jus expostulavit), nostram ut consuevimus exercuimus libertatem in ipsa warennæ: quam suam ipse Galfridus dixit, et per chartam regis concessam (licet infra limites et ambitum nostræ warennæ) appropriatam sibi, unde mota ante regem querela, tandem sententiant ipso rege, et stimulante episcopo Saresbiriensi Willielmo, abbas iniquo jure exagitatus, in misericordiam regis est præcipitatus. Dixit enim rex (factum avaritiæ palliando) quod si per chartam suam concessisset alicui de suis manerium alicujus magnatum suorum, etiam injuste, manifestè, non liceret illi magnati vero domino, ingredi manerium illud, donec super hoc discuteretur in curia. Inò priùs ipsum regem convenire, et declarato jure suo, in manerium suum securius introire. Et huic iniquæ sententiæ, perhibuit episcopus testimonium, suam super hoc vulnerans conscientiam. Quia si hoc staret, liceret regi cujuslibet dominum introire violenter; quacunque simulata occasione: et nisi verus dominus sufficeret, tanti invasoris injurias propulsare, miserabiliter exheredaretur. Et hæc omnia machinabatur Galfridus de Childewike; Johanne Mansell regis consiliario, fomenta ministrante.

Cæterum dictus Galfridus cum de terra de Neuburi contentio moveretur, et multa pecunia cum immensis laboribus pro jure nostro obtinendo effunderetur; et emeretur terra de plano à vero domino et possessore, ita ut chartas suas liberaremus à Judæis, ipse fraudibus et cavillationibus (quas longum foret enumerare) ad hoc nos induxit, quod terram illam ipsi dimisimus, remanente firma pistrina. Insuper retinuit juvenis conradium, quod pro terræ possessione concessimus, in hujus ecclesiæ damnum inæstimabile. Non enim dies vitæ juvenis possumus limitare.

Tandem nos (quia sæpedictus Johannes venerat ad domum sancti Albani, et ejus efficax erat præsentia et vigil diligentia; et quia consideravimus quòd nequivimus à pari contendere, et damnosa nimis nobis lis ventilata, diebus quotidie malignantibus extitisset) pacem admisimus fatigati; et sic ad horam quievit tempestas.

Simili quoque modo Radulphus Chenduit (de quo prædictum est) cœpit ab eodem abbate legem (videlicet sacramentum) in propria persona abbatis; in magnum ejus dedecus, et honoris læsionem. Sed ipse (ut dictum est) Radulphus, operum suorum morte repentina fractum reportavit. De ejus obitu, quia in præmissis plenè non explanatur; lectorem hujus paginæ sine falsitatis admixtione, duximus certificandum.

Cum enim injuriis injurias multotiens accumulasset, tandem quendam monachum nostrum (abbatis bajulum, Radulphum, nomine, de Dunham), nequiter percussisset armatus, equum pretiosum coopertum insidens, et armatorum multorum agmine stipatus, discurrens et fugans eum suis cauib; et venatoribus, juxta curiam nostram, scilicet apud Derefold; quod quidem abbas et conventus, intueri potuerat et audire. Et super hoc districte conveniretur, una dierum in palatio regio Westmonasterii cachinnans ait derisorie: 'Tantum me excommunicaverunt monachi sancti Albani, quòd impugnatum et dilatatum vix me capit equitanti sella mea.' Erat utique plethoricus, robustus, et corpore toto quasi taurus, in virtute roboris sui campaginatus. Hic igitur in tali superbia, cum vix ad domum suam (quæ per minimam dietam distat a Londoniis) pervenisset, cœpit graviter infirmari, usque ad alta mortis suspiria. Vocato igitur cum summa festinatione amico suo specialissimo, abbate scilicet de Messedene (qui ad ipsum equo raptus velocissimo anhelus pervenerat ante diem) constitutus est testamenti sui executor, quod condere non valuit ut decuerat. Moriens tamen misericordiam à beato Albano, et a fratribus quos quomodolibet læserat, sibi misericorditer impendi devotus, veniam postulavit, et ipsis de bonis suis ad plenum satisfieri flagitavit. Quod cum abbas memoratus se facturum spondit, spiritum quem trahebat idem Radulphus exhalavit. Nos igitur à testamenti executoribus, qualem pro temporis articulo, suscepimus de commissis satisfactionem. Cætera novit judex supremus, quem nihil latet cavillosum.

HORUM igitur patienter sustinuit abbas Johannes, ad cumulum suorum meritorum, maximas persecutiones, damna, et contumelias, quæ ad duorum millium marcarum jacturam computantur. Libertates tamen conservavit illasas, et statum sustinuit consuetæ dapsilitatis interius, et exterius, et hospitalitatis.

De Ecclesia de Nortona.

Hujus quoque tempore abbatis, collata est nobis ecclesia de Nortona, (et eam resignavit gratuita devotione Laurentius clericus, rector ejusdem) ad emendationem cervisiæ nostræ, et ad præbendam hospitibus dandam, supra id quod consuevit abbas distribuere, augmentandum.

De Ecclesia de Eglinham.

ITEM ecclesia de Eglinham, quam dudum contulerat nobis Richardus de Marisco episcopus Dunelmensis ad meliorationem cervisiæ nostræ tempore Willielmi abbatis, tempore hujus abbatis Johannis, nobis in proprios usus cessit, quæ valet . . .

De Ecclesia de Herteburne.

Et ecclesiam de Herteburne nobis ejus tempore contulit episcopus Dunelmensis Walterus, salva vicaria consistente in tertia parte dictæ ecclesiæ. Cujus duæ partes æstimantur, per portiones assignatas, ad septies viginti marcas et tresdecim, ad incrementum hospitalitatis, et maxime ad præbendam hospitum, ut nulli denegetur portio sufficiens, et copiosa.

De Ecclesia de Hecstantune.

ITEM iste abbas Johannes ecclesiam de Hecstantune, quam prædecessor ejus abbas Willielmus in proprios usus adquisivit, ad anniversarium suum faciendum assignavit, per sacristæ administrationem, et abbatis Gulielmi, quam et fecit dedicari ab episcopo Bangorensi anno Domini MCC.LIV.

Ecclesiam tamen de Northunc, ad præbendam inveniendam deputatam (ut prædictum est) retinuit in manu sua. Pro dictis autem duabus ecclesiis (scilicet de Eglinham et Herteburne) obtulit Prior de Thynemua (eo præsentem et audiente qui hoc scripsit) ducentas marcas, et quadraginta marcas annuatim. Hæc etiam frequenter mihi hoc scribenti, prior dictus recitavit.

De Ecclesia Sancti Michaelis.

ITEM hujus abbatis tempore, cessit nobis in usus proprios ecclesia sancti Michaelis, quæ est in villa sancti Albani, et ejusdem abbatis et conventus assensu, assignata est usibus sacristariæ, quæ exilis erat.

De Domibus quæ sunt Londoniis.

ADQUISIVIT etiam nobis unum messuagium, cum quibusdam domibus ruinosis Londoniis, conjunctim vicinum domibus, quas ibidem prædecessor suus abbas Gulielmus comparavit, ubi nobiles domos de novo construxit, et reditum suscitavit.

De Terra et de Domo quæ fuit Johannis Astmur.

ITEM terram et domos quæ fuerunt Johannis Astmur, nobis comparavit. Pro quarum concessione, abbas vitæ suæ necessaria eidem Johanni per chartam concessit famulatu.

De Molendinorum Reparatione.

ISTE insuper abbas Johannes omnia molendina abbatiæ (quia propter hoc quod diu ante ad firmam di-mittebantur, dissipata fuerunt) optimè de materie quercina reparavit, cum domiciliis ad eadem pertinentibus. Et quia rivulus qui aquatico molendino nostro, quod juxta braseriam construitur, deseruit, tum propter arundinetum qui aquam ebibit, tum propter ariditates aestivales desiccativas, officio totius curiæ non suffecit, imo oportuit multuram ultra septem miliaria quærere, quod damnosum fuerat et probrosum. Idem abbas Johannes unum molendinum optimum ad equos, juxta dictam braseriam construxit. In quorum molendinorum repARATIONE et constructione, plùs quam centum libras creditur exposuisse.

De Cervisiæ melioratione.

ABBAS insuper memoratus Johannes, cervisiam nostram (quæ tam in damnum nostrum quàm opprobrium, debilis extitit) supra modum, apponendo in augmentum ejusdem circiter mille summas bladi ad cervisiam apti (scilicet hordei et avenæ commixtorum, quod Bresia vulgariter appellatur) benignè emendavit.

Quod non fuit dissipator bonorum pro Parentibus.

IDEM insuper abbas Johannes (quod nulli, vel paucis prædecessorum suorum, veraciter potest ascribi) pro carnale dilectione vel familiaritate parentum, affinium suorum vel compatriotarum, possessiones vel bona ecclesiæ suæ, nunquam dissipavit; à tempore dico suæ creationis usque in annum suæ prælationis vicesimum. Quo, scilicet, hæc pagina a fratre Matthæo scripta est Parisiensi, qui de futuris non præsumit diffinire.

Bulla Clementis Sexti Papæ pro Confirmatione Thomæ Abbatis Sti. Albani.

[Fæd. et Convent. vol. v. p. 662, A.D. 1349, an. 23 Edw. III. ex autogr.]

CLEMENS episcopus, servus servorum Dei, carissimo in Christo filio Edwardo regi Angliæ illustri salutem et apostolicam benedictionem.

Divinæ retributionis præmium, et præconium humanæ laudis acquiritur, si personis ecclesiasticis, et hijs præcipue quæ sunt dignitatis titulo insignitæ, condignus honor impenditur, et favor necessarius exhibetur.

Nuper siquidem monasterio sancti Albani, ad Romanam ecclesiam nullo medio pertinente, ordinis sancti Benedicti, Lincolnensi diocese, per obitum quondam Michaelis abbatis ejusdem monasterii, qui in partibus illis decessit, abbatis regimine destituto, dilecti filij, conventus dicti manasterij, vocatis omnibus qui debuerunt, voluerunt, et potuerunt commode interesse, die ad eligendum præfixa, ut moris est, convenientes in unum ac deliberantes in hujusmodi electionis negotio per viam procedere compromissi, tandem in novem de dicto conventu, viz. in dilectos filios, Thomam abbatem dicti monasterij sancti Albani, tunc de Tynemutha, Willielmum de Belvero, Henricum de Wymundham, et Adam de Bello Loco, priores prioratum, per monachos dicti monasterij solitorum gubernari, ejusdem ordinis, et Dunelmensis, Norwicensis, et prædictæ Lincolnensis diocesis, Thomam archidiaconum, Johannem cellerarium, Rogerum de Belvero, Waltherum de Canville, et Adam de Wittenham, monachos dicti monasterii compromittere curaverunt, eisque providendi ea vice dicto monasterio de uno ex seipsis, vel alia de gremio ipsorum conventus, assumendo in abbatem dicti monasterii, unanimiter concesserunt plenam et liberam potestatem.

Ita (videlicet) quod, postquam dicti compromissarii, vel major pars eorum, concordēs existerent de persona taliter assumenda, unus eorum, de voluntate et mandato aliorum compromissorum suorum, vice sua et eorundem compromissariorum suorum et conventus nomine, personam ipsam in abbatem dicti monasterij eligeret in communi, ipsamque electionem clero et populo solenniter publicaret, promittentes illum in eorum abbaten recipere et habere, quem unus ex dictis compromissariis juxta formam prædictam, duceret eligendum; dictique compromissarii, hujusmodi potestate recepta, secedentes in partem, post varios tractatus, ac maturam et diligentem deliberationem, super hijs habitos inter eos, in dictum Thomam abbatem, in sacerdotio constitutum et ætate legitima, ac de legitimo matrimonio procreatum, direxerunt concorditer et unanimiter vota sua.

Et subsequenter dictus Thomas archidiaconus, vice sua et de mandato et nomine dictorum aliorum compromissariorum suorum ibidem præsentium, in præsentia conventus prædictorum, præfatum Thomam abbatem elegit in abbatem monasterij prælibati, et electionem hujusmodi, a dictis conventu concorditer acceptatam, clero et populo solenniter publicavit, idemque Thomas, post consensum eidem electioni, ad instantiam dictorum conventus, a dicto Thoma legitime præstitum, dictus Thomas ad sedem apostolicam personaliter accessit, et tam per se ipsum, quam dicti conventus per eorum procuratores ydoneos, ab eis propterea ad nos specialiter designatos, confirmari per nos electionem præfatam, ipsius nobis præsentato decreto, humiliter postularunt, in his omnibus statutis a jure temporibus observatis.

Nos igitur electionem præfatam, dictique Thomæ personæ merita, per venerabilem fratrem Tayllarandum, episcopum Albanensem, et dilectos filios nostros, Stephanum tituli sanctorum Johannis et Pauli presbyterum, ac Gulielmum sanctæ Mariæ in Cosmedin diaconum, cardinales, examinari fecimus diligenter, et facta nobis ab eisdem, episcopo et cardinalibus, super hijs, relatione plenaria et fidei, quia invenimus electionem eandem de dicto Thoma, persona ydonea, cui de literarum scientia, honestate morum et vitæ, spiritualium providentia, et temporalium circumspectione, aliisque virtutum meritis fide digna apud nos testimonia perhibentur, canonicè celebratam, eam de fratrum nostrorum consilio auctoritate apostolica confirmavimus, eundemque Thomam dicto monasterio sancti Albani præfecimus in abbatem; curam et administrationem illius sibi tam in spiritualibus, quam in temporalibus, plenarie committendo, firma spe, fiduciaque conceptis, quod præfatum monasterium per suæ diligentiae studium, suamque industriam circumspectam, gratia sibi suffragante divina, salutis et prosperitatis suscipiet incrementa.

Cum itaque, carissime fili, sit virtutis opus Dei ministros digno favore prosequi, et eos verbis et operibus pro regis æterni gloria venerari, serenitatem regionem rogamus, et hortamur attente, quatinus eundem abbatem in commisso sibi monasterio habens pro nostra, et dictæ sedis reverentia propensius commendata, ipsum Thomam tui favoris auxilio prosequaris; ita quod idem abbas, celsitudinis tuæ fultus auxilio, in commisso sibi monasterii antefati regimine possit, Deo propitio, prosperari, ac tibi exinde a Deo perennis vitæ premium, et a nobis condigna proveniat actio gratiarum.

NUM. XXXVI.

[Fæd. et Convent. vol. viii. p. 138, A.D. 1400. A. I. H. iv. Claus. 1 H. iv. p. 2, m. 19.]

REX dilecto sibi in Christo, abbati de sancto Albano, salutem.

Satis informati estis qualiter inimici nostri Franciæ, et alii sibi adhærentes, facinora sua erga nos et ligeos nostros, licet indirecte, de die in diem circumquaque ostendentes, cum magna classe navium, cum maxima multitudine armatorum et bellatorum, supra mare congregati, diversas villas super costeris regni nostri Angliæ invadere, ac nos et regnum nostrum prædictum, necnon populum nostrum per terram, et per mare destruere, et ecclesiam Anglicanam subvertere, cum omnibus viribus intendunt et proponunt ;

Per quod, volentes salvationi dicti regni, et populorum nostrorum, ac ecclesiæ sanctæ, contra malitiam ipsorum inimicorum, operante altissimo, providere, per diversas commissiones assignavimus certos fideles nostros, in singulis comitatibus regni nostri prædicti, ad arraiandum, et arraiari et armari faciendum, omnes homines defensabiles (videlicet) quemlibet eorum juxta statum et facultates suas, et eos arraiatos et munitos, in arraiatione hujusmodi teneri faciendum, sic quod semper prompti sint et parati, ad proficiscendum in defensionem regni nostri prædicti, ubi, ac quotiens, et quando ex hostium incursibus periculum immineat, aut necesse aliqual advertentes.

Vobis, in fide et dilectione quibus nobis tenemini, firmiter injungimus et mandamus, quatinus, consideratis gravibus dampnis et periculis imminentibus, per aggressus inimicorum nostrorum prædictorum, vosmet ipsos, ac omnes priores, religiosos, et alias personas ecclesiasticas quascunque vestræ jurisdictionis exemptæ, quacunque dilatione postposita, armari et arraiari, et armis competentibus (videlicet) quemlibet eorum juxta statum, possessiones et facultates vestras muniri, et eos in millenis, centenis, et vintenis poni faciatis.

Ita quod vos prompti sitis et parati ad mandatum nostrum, ipsique priores, religiosi, et aliæ personæ ecclesiasticæ prompti sint et parati ad mandatum vestrum, ad proficiscendum, una cum alijs fidelibus nostris, contra dictos inimicos nostros, infra dictum regnum nostrum, ad ipsos cum Dei adjutorio debellandum, expugnandum, et destruendum, et ad eorum malitiam et proterviam propulsandum et conterendum ;

Teste rege apud Westmonasterium vicesimo primo die Aprilis.

Hic est inter cætera in memoria habendum perpetua, quomodo abbas iste qui bona dicta suo tempore legitur perquisisse, ea omnia sumptibus suis propriis perquesierat, a nulloque vivente altero, confratre, convivino, vel extraneo unum denarium unquam in subsidium recipiebat. Est etiam ulterius non magis commemoratione quam admiratione dignum, quod pro hiis omnibus bonis perquisitis nunquam boscum ultra solitum vendidit, nunquam corrodium alicui concessit, nunquam ad prædium posuit in plegium, aut minimum jocale monasterii impignoravit; ymo solius ipsius succurrente gratia qui nos aspirando pervenit adjuvandoque pro se in omni intentione recta de bursa sua propria et industria, pro hiis omnibus bonis plene et integre persolvit plenarieque et integraliter, ac ita ut scriberent se quietos singulis venditoribus satisfecit. Sibi igitur sit laus si gloria si actio gratiarum, et nunc et semper et per infinita sæcula sæculorum Amen.

Carta Licentiationis Regiæ super donatione Manerii de Penbroke in Partibus Southwalliæ, Domino Duci Gloucestriæ concessæ.

[MS. Coll. Armor. Norf. Press. Num. III. fol. 17 b.]

HENRICUS Dei gratia rex Angliæ et Franciæ et dominus Hiberniæ. Omnibus, ad quos præsentis litteræ pervenerint, salutem. Sciatis, quod nos, de gratia nostra speciali, absque fine, seu feodo, inde ad opus nostrum solvendo, concessimus et licentiam dedimus, pro nobis, et hæredibus nostris, quantum in nobis est, carissimo avunculo nostro, Humfrido de Lancastre, duci Gloucestriæ, quod ipse, ad Dei laudem, et ad divina servicia pro salubri statu suo, ac Alianoræ consortis suæ, quam diu vixerint, et pro animabus suis cum ab hac luce migraverint, juxta ordinationem dicti avunculi nostri, in hac parte faciendam, in ecclesia conventuali abbathiæ sancti Albani, quæ de fundatione inclitorum progenitorum nostrorum, quondam regum Angliæ, et nostro patronatu existit, imperpetuum celebrandum, dare possit et assignare dilectis nobis in Christo, abbati et conventui loci prædicti, prioratum de Penbroke alienigenum in partibus Southwalliæ, cum omnibus suis juribus et pertinentiis. Habendum et tenendum prioratum prædictum, una cum omnibus terris, tenementis, redditibus, servitiis, fructibus, proficuis, exitibus, decimis, oblationibus, reventionibus, annuitatibus, pensionibus, porcionibus, apportis, rebus, juribus, et privilegiis spiritualibus et temporalibus possessionibus, homagiis, fidelitatibus, releviis, feodis militum, perquisitionibus, advocacionibus ecclesiarum, vicariarum, capellarum, et hospitalium, franchesiis, libertatibus, reversionibus, molendinis, curiis, letis, visibus franciplegiorum, escaetis, wardis, maritagiis, boscis, warennis, forisfacturis, moris, mariscis, piscariis, pratis, pascuis, pasturis, wayfes, strayes, infangthief, outefangthief, anno, die et vasto, catallis felonum, et fugitivorum, et utlagatorum, et felonum de se, deodandis, et omnibus aliis proficuis et commoditatibus, dicto prioratui aliquo modo pertinentibus sive spectantibus, adeo plene et integre, sicut nos ea haberemus seu habere deberemus, si ea in manu nostra teneremus, eisdem abbati et conventui et successoribus suis imperpetuum, ad divina in dicta ecclesia sancti Albani, pro statu et animabus prædictis, juxta ordinationem prædictam imperpetuum celebranda. Et eisdem abbati et conventui, quod ipsi prioratum prædictum, cum omnibus præmissis et singulis suis juribus et pertinentiis prædictis, recipere possint et tenere, sibi et successoribus suis prædictis in forma prædicta imperpetuum, sicut prædictum est, tenore præsentium similiter licentiam dedimus specialem, statuto de terris et tenementis ad manum mortuam non ponendis edito, non obstante. Nolentes, quod dictus avunculus noster, hæredes, assignati, aut executores sui, aut præfati abbas et conventus, seu successores sui prædicti, ratione statuti prædicti, aut aliorum præmissorum, per nos vel hæredes nostros, justiciarios, escaetores, vicecomites, aut alios ballivos seu ministros nostros, vel hæredum nostrorum, quoscumque inde occasionentur, molestentur, in aliquo seu graventur. In cujus rei testimonium has litteras nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste meipso apud Westmonasterium, septimo die Junii, anno regni nostri decimo nono.

Archiepiscopi Cant. Monitio Abbati Sancti Albani directa.

[Ex Reg. Morton, fol. 22 b. Wilkins. Concil. Magn. Brit. vol. iii. p. 632.]

JOHANNES, permissione divina Cantuariensis archiepiscopus, totius Angliæ primas, et apostolicæ sedis legatus, visitor, inquisitor, reformator, ac iudex, a sede apostolica sub forma inferius annotata sufficienter et legitime deputatus, Willielmo, abbati monasterii sancti Albani, ad Romanam ecclesiam, ut dicitur, nullo medio pertinentis, ordinis sancti Benedicti Lincolniensis dioceseos, salutem. Literas commissionis sanctissimi in Christo patris et domini nostri, domini Innocentii, divina providentia papæ octavi, sub plumbo, more Romanæ curiæ, bullatas, nuper nobis directas, cum ea qua de cuit reverentia recipimus, tenorem, qui sequitur, in se continentes: 'Innocentius episcopus, servus servorum Dei,' &c.^a Nos vero Johannes, archiepiscopus, visitor, reformator, inquisitor, et iudex antedictus, ob reverentiam sedis apostolicæ, onus executionis dictæ commissionis in nos assumpsimus, ac juxta et secundum omnem vim, formam, et effectum ejusdem procedendum fore decrevimus. Et quia fama publica referente, et multorum crebris fide dignorum relationibus ad nostrum pervenit auditum, quod tu abbas antedictus a diu fuisti, et es de et super simonia, usura, bonorum, rerum, et possessionum dicti monasterii dilapidatione et consumptione, nonnullisque aliis enormibus criminibus et excessibus infrascriptis notatus, diffamatus, ac in regimine curaque et administratione bonorum spiritualium et temporalium dicti monasterii adeo remissus, negligens, et prodigus, quod in dicto monasterio sancti Albani, quod ex pia devotione celebris memoriæ illustrissimorum principum, olim regum Angliæ, serenissimi domini nostri regis moderni nobilissimorum progenitorum, ut ibi vera vigeret religio, et nomen altissimi, ad cujus gloriam et honorem institutum fuerat, debite laudaretur, fundatum et dotatum extitit, et ubi superioribus diebus regularis observantia in magna habebatur veneratione, hospitalitasque diligentissime servabatur; non modico tamen tempore, quo tu eidem monasterio præfuisti, te, ac nonnullis ex commonachis et confratribus tuis ibidem, quorum sanguis, tuam ut timetur, ob negligentiam per districtum iudicem de manu tua requiretur, religiose vivendi modum et normam relaxantibus, ac seposito suavi contemplationis jugo, regularis observantia, hospitalitas, elemosynæ, aliaque pietatis officia ab olim inibi exerceri et ministrari solita, decreverunt, et tuis culpa, incuria, negligentia, et facto indies magis atque magis decrescunt et subtrahuntur; per quod etiam pia fundatorum vota defraudantur, pristinaque vivendi norma relicta, non pauca ex dictis commonachis et confratribus tuis, unde non mediocriter dolendum est, se in reprobum sensum dantes, Dei timore postposito, lascivam vitam duntaxat ducunt, et quod dictu horrendum est, persæpe loca sacra, etiam ipsi Dei templa, monialium stupro, et sanguinis et seminis effusione profanare non verentur; tuque inter alia gravia, enormia, et facinorosa crimina, super quibus reus extitisti, et extas notatus atque diffamatus, quandam mulierum conjugatam, nuncupatam Elenam Germyn, quæ dudum a viro suo perperam divertebat, et alii viro tempore non modico in adulterinis adhæsit amplexibus, in sororem et monialem domus sive prioratus de Pray, tuæ jurisdictionis ut prætendis, primitus admisisti, ipsamque de post priorissam præfecisti ibidem, eo non obstante, quod dictus vir suus tunc vixit, et adhuc vivit; ac dominus Thomas Sudbury, commonachus tuus, ad eam, tanquam mœchus ad mœcham, in domo sive prioratu de Pray prædicto, quasi publice, notorie, et impune a diu accessit, et accedit, prout nonnulli ex tuis confratribus et commonachis ad eam et alias ibidem et alibi, tanquam ad publica prostibula sive lupanaria, accessum continuum impune habuerunt, et habent: quodque non tantum in ipsa domo de Pray, verum etiam in domo monialium de Sapwell, quam insuper tuæ jurisdictionis esse contendis, priorissas et præsidentes pro tuæ libito voluntatis totiens immutas, dumque bonas et religiosas mulieres in utroque loco deponis, ac malas et nonnunquam vitiatas assumis ibidem ad culmen dignitatis; adjicitur religio, virtus negligitur, et tot expensæ fiunt supervacuae, quod ex præmissis aliisque factis enormibus et damnatis per quosdam confratres tuos, quos in locos hujuscemodi præesse, regere, et sub nomine custodum, cum tales non sint, imo fures, et notorie criminosi, bona eorundem prioratuum dispensare, quin verius dissipare, et consumere, fecisti et deputasti; loca illa olim satis religiosa, modo quasi profana et infamia redduntur, et reputantur; tuisque et tuorum factis hujuscemodi adeo depauperantur, quod ad nihilum pene reducta videntur. Et similiter fecisti in nonnullis aliis monachorum cellis, quas dicis tibi subjeci in monasterio etiam ipso gloriosi protomartyris Albani, dudum celebri; bona communia, res et jocalia dilapidasti, ac nemora, sylvas, boscum et subboscum ejusdem, necnon quasi omnes quercus et alias grossas arbores ad valorem octo millium marcarum, et ultra, sine differentia prosterni et vendi fecisti; et alienasti, ac confratres ac commonachi tui, quorum quidam ad omnia mala mundi, ut dicitur, sunt dediti, dum cultu divino quasi penitus neglecto, isti scorta et meretrices infra monasterii septa et extra, quasi publice et continue sibi prostituunt; alii promotionis et honoris ambitiosi, ut tuæ cupedini pro honoribus et promotionibus hujuscemodi quanquam simoniacæ et damnabiliter obtinendis et adipiscendis satisfaciant, calices, et alia jocalia ecclesiæ, etiam quandoque feretra sancti Albani infixæ ausu sacrilego effodiunt et furantur; quos tu potius scienter defendis, quam aut punis aut offendis, et si qui ex tuis commonachis boni sint, et religiose vivant, ac virtute et consilio polleant, illos protinus deprimis et odio habere soles; sicque capite languente cætera putrida et infecta membra adeo insolescunt et abundant vitiis quasi manifestis, quod fama celebris illius monasterii pervertitur in infamiam, ac sancta religio ibidem ferme periit interius, et res exteriores, tam mobiles quam immobiles, notorie tendunt in desolationem, in divinæ majestatis offensam, religionis opprobrium, malumque exemplum, et scandalum plurimorum; unde correctionis et reformationis officio plurimum indigere dignosceris, prout sic indiget dictum monasterium, ac multi ex tuis commonachis et confratribus degentibus in eodem; pro quibus omnibus reformandis novis clamoribus indies pulsamur, et solliciti efficimur. Volentes igitur dicto sanctissimo domino nostro papæ, prout nobis incumbit, humiliter obedire, et suum mandatum apostolicum nobis in hac parte directum adimplere, te Willielmum, abbatem prædictum, quem jam paulo ante ejusdem sanctissimi domini nostri papæ auctoritate et mandato, ut nonnulla præmissorum enormia reformare debuisses, personaliter et charitative monuimus; ea tamen reformare hactenus distulisti, et neglexisti, eadem auctoritate nobis in hac parte commissa juxta ei secundum omnem vim, formam, et effectum literarum præinsertarum peremptorie monemus, tibi que mandamus, quatenus teipsum ac commonachos et confratres tuos infra septa dicti monasterii degentes, necnon de Pray et Sapwell prioratuum priorissas, custodes et moniales infra triginta, alios vero priores, monachos, et confratres tuos in locis prioratibus, et cellis remotioribus, tibi subjectis degentes, infra sexaginta dierum spatium, post traditionem præsentium tibi, si liber ad te patuerit accessus, aut post earundem affixionem in valvis ecclesiæ conventualis dicti monasterii, seu notificationem alias tibi legitime factam supra præmissis omnibus et singulis, cum effectum corrigas et reformes; necnon ad veram normam et regulam ordinis tui juxta illius laudabilia ordinationes et instituta, omni exceptione et dilatione cessantibus, reducas, seu reduci facias, necnon ab alienatione et distractione rerum et jocalium monasterii antedicti, præsertim boscorum, arborum, et nemorum venditione de cætero omnino desistas, et abstineas. Quod si præmissa infra dictum terminum juxta nostrum, imo verius apostolicæ sedis, mandatum facere contempseris, nos secundum vim, tenorem, et effectum literarum apostolicarum prædictarum, ac secundum nobis traditam formam in eisdem procedere volumus, et post lapsum dictorum triginta dierum, ad sæpedictum monasterium personaliter visitare intendimus; vel si nos alias tunc occupari contigerit, per alios, quos ad id duxerimus eligendos, visitari faciemus; ac omnia et singula, quæ ibidem tam in capite, quam in membris, ac spiritualibus et temporalibus reformationis et correctionibus ministerio indigere reperientur; prout nobis, sive per nos deputandis, secundum Deum et canonicas sanctiones, atque regularia dicti ordinis instituta expedire videbitur, reformare, corrigere, et emendare, auctoritate apostolica nobis commissa, procurabimus, ulteriusque, si res exegerit, procedere ibidem intendimus, etiam ad majora et graviora facienda et exequenda, quæ in præfatis literis apostolicis nobis directis plenius describuntur, et per easdem nobis commissa fuit. Utque tua obedientia vel contemptus nobis in hac parte constare et innotescere possit, quid in præmissis feceris, ac quibus modo, et forma juxta mandatum nostrum, quin verius apostolicum, tuam personam ac personas et mores confratrum et commonachorum tuorum, necnon de Pray et Sapwell prioratum, ac aliorum tibi subjacentium interim reformare, easque ad veram normam et regulam ordinis tui juxta illius laudabilia ordinationes et instituta reducere, reducive facere curaveris, et studueris, seu qualiter alias te habueris, nos in fine dictorum triginta, quatenus monasterium sancti Albani præscripti, ac de Pray et Sapwell domos, sive prioratus, necnon tuam personam, et cæteras quascunque tam in eodem monasterio sancti Albani, quam in dictis domibus, sive prioratibus de Pray et Sapwell degentes concernit; quatenus vero alia loca remotiora, sive cellas tibi subjecta, et personas degentes in eisdem concernit, sexaginta dierum distincte et aperte, ac debite et cum effectum certifies per tuas literas patentes, harum seriem continentes, una cum præsentibus auctentice sigillatas. Et ulterius decernimus, quia difficile foret præfatas literas apostolicas, more Romanæ curiæ bullatas, quas sanas et integras, ac omni sinistra suspicione carentes vidimus, et inspeximus, ad singula quæque loca, ad quæ expediens foret, deferre, quod præsentem transumptum literarum apostolicarum hujusmodi manu notarii publici inferius annotati subscripto, et signato, et nostri sigilli appensione munito, eadem fides ubilibet adhibeatur, quæ dictis literis apostolicis adhiberetur, si essent exhibitæ vel ostensæ. In quorum omnium et singulorum præmissorum fidem et testimonium præsentem literas sive præsentem publicum transumpti instrumentum signo et subscriptione notarii publici subscripti, una cum nostri sigilli appensione jussimus et fecimus communiri. Acta sunt hæc omnia et singula, prout supra scribuntur et recitantur in quadam alba camera præfati reverendissimi in Christo patris et domini, domini Johannis, Dei gratia Cantuariensis archiepiscopi, infra manerium suum de Lamethith, Winton. dioceseos, situatum, anno Dom. m.cccc.xc. indictione octava, pontificatus præfati sanctissimi in Christo patris et domini nostri, domini Innocentii, divina providentia papæ octavi antescripti, anno sexto, mensis vero Julii die quinta; præsentibus tunc ibidem venerabilibus viris magistris Thoma Maddes, in sacra theologia bacalario, et Johanne Rompayne, capellano Norwicens. ac Bathon. et Wellen. dioc. testibus ad præmissa vocatis, specialiter et rogatis.

^a Vid. Innocentii VIII. Bullam pro reformatione Monasteriorum et Locorum exemptorum, ex Reg. Morton. fol. 21 a, in Wilkins. Concil. tom. iii. p. 630. dat. Romæ, prid. non. Martii, 1489.

The Visitors, at the time of the Dissolution, to Lord Cromwell, respecting St. Alban's Monastery.

[MS. Cotton. Cleop. E. iv. fol. 43.]

PLEASE it your lordship to be advertised, At our comyng to Sainct Albons on Thursdaye last we beganne a Visitacion amongs the moonks, th'abbot being than in London. And because we wolde the more fully knowe the hole state of all things, taried the lenger in thexamination of theym. And upon Friedaye last we sent a monicion for the abbot to appere before us, who came hether on Saturday bifore none, whome we have likewise as fully examined upon all things as we might. And allthough aswell by the examinacion of the moonks as by confession of Thabbot hymself, ther doth appere confessed and fully proved juste cause of deprivacion against thabbot not only for breking of the kings injunctions, but also for manifest dilapidacion, making of shiftes, negligent administracion, and sundry other causes, yet, by what meanes we know not, in all communications or motions made concernyng any surrendre he sheweth hymself so stiff, that as he saith, he woll rather choyse to begge his bredde all the dayes of his lif than consent to any surrender. We have everich of us severally, and also all togethers communed with hym, and used all such motions as we thought might moste further that purpose, but he contynueth allweys one man, and waxeth hourelly more obstinate, and lesse conformable. Whether he so doo upon trust and confidence of any frendeshipp we know not. The premisses we thought our bounden duetie to signifie unto your lordeshippe, moste humbly beseching the same that we maye by Mr. Doctor Layton knowe the kings highnes further pleasure by you, whether we shall contynewe in this processe of deprivacion agenst hym, and so deprive hym according to thordre of justice, without lenger delaye, which doon the House willbe in suche debt that we thinke no man will take the office of Abbot here upon hym, except any doo it only for that purpose to surrendre the same to the King's hands. And by thies meanes we thinke this thing maye most easely and with leste speche be brought to the king's highnes purpose. Or els whether we shall staye in our processe at this tyme, and appoynte some longer daye to here the sentence of deprivacion, leaving hym, in the meane tyme in utter desperacion of any favour, which weye maye also be occasion that he whan it shall appere unto hym that he shalbe deprived, will perchaunce sue to have his surrender taken because he wolde be assured of somme lyving. The premisses we referre to the kings highnes pleasor, which knownen by your lordeship we shall with all our possible diligence confourme ourselves to accomplishe the same, and in the mene tyme travaill with the moonks to knowe howe many of theym maye be induced to this purpose. Thus Almighty God have your lordeship in his blessed keping. From Sainct Albons the xth. of December.

Benedictine Abbey and Cathedral of Bath,

IN SOMERSETSHIRE.

THE Monastery of BATH was first founded as a NUNNERY, by Osric, king or sub-regulus of the Wiccii, A. D. 676;^a who bestowed upon

BERTANA, the first Abbess, the lands of a hundred tenants, "manentes," as the Charter says, "ad construendum monasterium sanctarum Virginum."^b

Another Charter, granted to this monastery by Vighardus, with the consent of Wlpher king of Mercia, some time after the year 680, mentions

BERNGUIDI as the name of another abbess, to whom forty "manentes" were granted, in a place named Slepi.^c

FULIBURS is noticed as the name of a third abbess in the Account of the Church published by the Society of Antiquaries.

The nunnery having been destroyed by the Danes, King Offa is said, about the year 775, to have rebuilt the church, dedicating it, if it was not before dedicated, to St. Peter, and placing in it SECULAR CANONS.^d

WULFGAR is noticed as presiding over the monastery under this establishment. His name occurs in a grant from King Edwy of thirty manses at Dyddenham, in 956:^e and again in another grant of ten manses at Ford, A. D. 957.^f

King Edgar, about the year 970, removed the Secular Canons, and fixed in their room an ABBAT and CONVENT of BENEDICTINE MONKS.^g

Æscwig occurs as abbat A. D. 965, in a grant from King Edgar, and again in a Charter from the same king, A. D. 970.^h Nevertheless,

ELFEGUS, or ELPHEGE, afterwards archbishop of Canterbury, is usually spoken of as the first abbat upon Edgar's foundation.ⁱ Brompton, the historian, says, "Ille Elphegus post monasticum habitum apud Derherst susceptum, apud Bathoniam anachoritice vixit, et monachos ibidem postmodum congregavit. Quibus, amplissima mansione constructa, idoneum præpositum, ut ipse orationibus vacaret, assignavit, ubi quidam eorum corruptelam, ut fieri solet in magno collegio, contraxerunt."^k Under Athelstan, we find him succeeding St. Birstan in the bishoprick of Wilton;^l whence, in 984, he was translated, on the death of Ethelwold, to Winchester;^m and thence, according to Ralph de Diceto, in 1004,ⁿ but as Simeon of Durham says, in 1006, to Canterbury.^o Stevens, in his Continuation of the Monasticon, says, that Stigand was the second Abbat of Bath, and successor to Elphege; Collinson says, Sewold was his successor, who presided in the time of King Edward the Confessor.^p An entry in Domesday, however, which will presently be noticed, names

VLWARD as abbat, of whom we have no other mention.

STIGAND next succeeded, a friend and favourite of William the Conqueror, who took him into Normandy when he visited that duchy;^q where Stigand soon after died:^r an event which made room for the succession of

WLFWOLD and ÆLFSIG, who, according to Mr. Warner, held the abbey as first and second abbats towards the conclusion of the Conqueror's reign. During the joint presidency of these persons, the Lease given in the Appendix, Num. VI., was granted; and during that of Ælfsig alone, subsequently, the Manumissions in Num. VII.^s

During the time of Ælfsig, or Alsus, as he is sometimes called, the Domesday survey of the abbey property was taken; whence it appears, that, in Somersetshire, the church had twenty-four burgesses belonging

^a Bede mentions this Osric in his account of Hilda and her monastery of Streaneshalch. Hist. Eccl. lib. iv. ca. 23, edit. Smith, p. 168.

In Gloucestershire, in the hundred of Langley the church of Bath held five hides in Alvestone, with a proportionate quantity of wood and meadow: with five hides in Escetone in the hundred of Pucklechurch, a mill, and six acres of meadow. The revenue of the different lands enumerated, amounted in the time of King Edward the Confessor to 47*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* It had risen, in the Conqueror's time, to 71*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*^a

Abbat Ælfsig died in 1087.^b

In 1088, in the rebellion in favour of Robert eldest son of the Conqueror, Geoffrey bishop of Coutance and Robert de Mowbray appear to have destroyed Bath, and with it the abbey church.^c

About this time it was ordained, for the honour and dignity of the church, that certain bishops sees should be removed from small towns to places of greater note; amongst which the see of Wells was removed to Bath.^d John de Villula, or, as he is sometimes called, of Tours, bishop of Wells, was authorized to effect the change by a Charter from King William Rufus, dated the 6th of the kalends of February, A. D. 1090.^e King William Rufus also granted to Bishop John the City of Bath, with its mint and other rights, in augmentation of the see.^f

Henry the First extended the privileges of the Charter relating to the city, granted by William Rufus; and, in addition to the donations which it contained, gave to the bishop and his successors the hidage, or danegeld, exacted of the borough, after the rate of the twenty hides at which it had been assessed from the reign of King Edward the Confessor, together with all pleas, and other judicial rights and privileges.^g

Lichfeldensis ergo transiit in Cestriam quæ olim civitas Legionum dicebatur. Selegensis in Cicestriam,—Scireburnensis in Saresberiam, Dorcestrensis in Lincoliam, et nuper Wellensis in BATHONIAM."

^e Num. IX.

^f Num. X. Dugdale, in the former edition of the Monasticon, gave this as a Charter of King William the First. Hearne, 'Chartæ et Notæ ad Priorat. Bathon. spectantes,' Ad. de Dornrh. tom. i. p. 282, says, "Anno M^o XI. Willelmus rex totam civitatem Bathoniæ Johanni episcopo, ad augmentationem pontificalis sedis suæ, dedit. Integra charta exhibetur in Monastici tomo primo, p. 185. Perperam autem Willelmo primo ascribitur; iste etenim, anno antea quam Johannes episcopatum Wellensem adeptus esset, tempora sua compleverat. Dugdaliū forsā fefellit Malmesburiensis, qui res Wellenses minus caute prodens, Johannem de Villula, vivente adhuc Willelmo patre seniore, transferre thronum in Bathoniam animo intendisse narrat." De Gestis Pontificum, lib. ii. p. 254.

In 1106, Bishop John conferred the city, with its appurtenances, and a variety of lands and tenements in its neighbourhood, on the monastery of St. Peter, appointing the same to be governed by a PRIOR instead of an Abbat, and reserving to himself, and his successors in the see, the patronage of the monastery.^h It is evident from his Charter that he had already begun the rebuilding of the church, which he is said to have finished upon a costly and extensive scale. Warner says, the bishop further added to the convenience of his monastery, by building two new baths within its precincts,ⁱ and finished his labours with constructing a noble palace for his own residence on the west side of it.^k

The munificence of John de Villula towards the new foundation excited other devotees to assist in its endowment. Walcinus de Douay gave to God and the church of St. Peter and Bishop John and the ministers of the same church, the church of Bath Hampton, with half a hide of land, and all the tithes of that manor. By the same Charter, Ramarus his brother, and Gerard his steward, conjointly, gave to the same grantees a hide of land called Foxcumbe; and Gerard, separately, gave the church of Brocton, with one virgate of land; to which the wife of Walcinus, in concert with her sons, added half the tithe of Carey, the church of Brigg, or Bridgwater; and the wife of Gerard the chaplain, sixty shillings and a missal. About the same time, by the increasing bounty of King Henry the First, the abbey acquired the rich manor of Dogmersfield in Hampshire; and settled, by a curious accord,^l a matter of disputed property with William Hose, or Hosat, lord of the manor of Bath-Easton.^m

Bishop John de Villula died December 29th, 1123.ⁿ The particulars of his life, as bishop, will be hereafter given in the Account of the Monastery of Wells. He was buried in the middle of the choir of the church of Bath, where his tomb remained till after the dissolution of religious houses.

Soon after the death of John de Villula, July 29th, 1137, the city and church of Bath were again destroyed by fire. Robert, a monk of Lewes, who had but just obtained the bishoprick, however, not only rebuilt and enlarged the church, but endowed it with the manor of Southstoke, a mill there, and twenty measures of salt yearly. Archbishop Theobald confirmed this grant in 1140, together with several other donations before given to the monastery; five hides at Weston; the village of Combe; the whole tithe of the city of Bath, and of Lyncomb; the tithe of the vines of Lyncomb; the church of Forde; the church of Eston; and two virgates of land at Cedre and Evercrit.^o

PRIORS OF BATH.

JOHN is the first who occurs prior of Bath, in the time of John de Villula and King Henry the First. He occurs again 2 non. April, 1122.^p ⁱ "One of these baths," Warner adds, "called the abbat's bath, John dedicated to the use of the publick; the other was appropriated to the prior. The king's bath supplied the former with water; the latter was fed by a spring of its own. They continued to serve the purposes for which they were constructed till the middle of the sixteenth century. An attempt was made in the early part of the eighteenth century to recover the prior's bath spring; an adventurer, named William Swallow, having been induced to search, in consequence of the following passage in the particular of the priory estate, made just before the sale of it in the year 1614: 'There is a bath in Hadnetts tenement which was for the prior's private use, but it is now filled up with rubble, and covered with earth, and of no use; but there be many of the town that do remember when it was of great use, for there is as hot a spring in it as in any of the baths, and a little charge will repair it to its former virtue and fit for use.' The adventurer, however, did not succeed, and the spring remains concealed to this time."

BENEDICT occurs prior in 1151.^a

PETER was constituted prior about 1159. He is stated in Willis, by an evident mistake, to have been the first who held the office.^b He occurs again in 1175.^c A grant made by him, the autograph of which is still preserved, gives to the monks of Margam in Glamorganshire certain lands, situated at Kineverdesham, belonging to the monastery of Bath.^d

HUGH occurs prior in the time of Bishop Reginald, about the year 1190.^e

WALTER, sub-prior of Hide monastery, was the next prior of Bath: though he could not have succeeded so early as 1178, as Mr. Warner supposes. After governing the monastery some years, he entered himself a Carthusian monk, but afterwards returned again to Bath, and to his government. He died at Wherwell in Hampshire, May 31st, 1198.^f

ROBERT occurs prior of Bath in the month of September, 1198.^g It was during his priorate that King John, who, in the reign of his brother Richard, had founded a Benedictine priory at Waterford, and another at Cork, in Ireland, annexed both to the monastery of Bath.^h After his accession to the throne, Mr. Warner adds, King John still continued his favours to this religious house; and, in the fifth year of his reign, granted to the church of St. Peter and St. Paul (for such was the name it had now assumed), the prior and the monks serving God in the same, his Berton, or Barton, a farm lying to the north-west, a short distance from the walls of the city, with an exempt and separate jurisdiction, in consideration of two payments at the exchequer of ten pounds each.ⁱ At the same time he emancipated the monks from the payment of toll at Bristol, and united the dean and canons of Wells with them in the enjoyment of many important privileges; such as having toll, theam, and infangentliel, on all their property; together with the two ordeals of water and fire, and the privilege of execution, exempting them from all sects and suits, or attendance at the different courts, both general and local; and from all juries, assizes, &c.^k This was followed by a dissolution of the union which had taken place, soon after 1192, through the interest of Savaric bishop of Bath and Wells, between the abbey of Glastonbury and the monastery of Bath;^l the bishop transferring his episcopal seat to the former monastery, and styling himself bishop of Glastonbury. Pope Honorius the Third, by his bull issued in the year 1208, confirmed the terms of separation which had previously been adjusted between the two houses.^m

Prior Robert was elected hence to the abbey of Glastonbury in 1223, as has been already noticed in the former volume of the Monasticon:ⁿ but, being in constant dispute with his monks, he resigned his honours, and again returned to Bath.^o

THOMAS occurs prior of Bath in 1228.^p He occurs again in 1258; when an agreement was made between him and the monks on one part, and Elias Cotel, lord of the manor of Camerton, on the other, by which Elias quit-claims a pasture on the western side of Southwode, in the manor of Preston, and a reasonable way to the same, whenever the grantees chose to drive their oxen in or out of the pasture, provided the beasts did not feed by the way.^q Prior Thomas died on the eve of St. John Baptist, 1261.^r

WALTER DE AONA, cellerar of the monastery, was elected prior on the 5th of the kalends of July following.^s Mr. Warner has recorded an acquisition of territory during the time of this prior, in an exchange with dame Matilda, lady of Bath-Easton, of an ox-lease on Combedown, for certain lands in La Holte.^t

THOMAS, called also THOMAS DE WYNTON, was made prior in 1291.^u He resigned on the 4th of the ides of April, 1301.^x

After the Dissolution, the estate was granted to the Colethurst family, and the house, called the Barton-House, was the residence of William Sherston, Esq. the first mayor of Bath, during the time of his mayoralty. ROBERT DE CLOPPCOTE occurs prior in 1303.^a In 1304, a considerable addition accrued to the revenues of the monastery by a grant from King Edward the First of liberty to hold two fairs; one on the manor of Lyncomb, and the other on the manor of Barton.^b The same king, in the 32d year of his reign, gave permission to John Basset to grant to the prior and monks of Bath eleven acres of land and one acre of meadow, together with a fourth part of a messuage, and a moiety of one acre of wood, with the appurtenances, in Walcot:^c which was followed, in the second year of the succeeding reign, by a similar licence to the prior and monks to appropriate to the monastery the advowson of the church of Hampton.^d

During the administration of this prior, the fabric, as well as the affairs of the church, appear to have been much neglected. The contents of the letter which the bishop wrote to the prior on this occasion, as preserved in the Harleian manuscript 6954, will be found below.^e

Robert de Cloppcote also appears to have involved his society in some trouble by appropriating the church of Corston to his monastery in 1329, contrary to the statute of Mortmain: for which he was obliged to secure his pardon by a pecuniary mulct.^f He died in 1331.^g

ROBERT DE SUTTON was elected prior in the month of March, 1331: but the pope disliking the election, nominated and appointed Thomas Christy, or Christy, to be prior: whereupon Sutton made his resignation Sept. 24th, 1332, and had the priory of Dunster, with several pensions, assigned to him.^h

THOMAS CHRISTY, or CHRISTY, was admitted prior on the 8th of the kalends of October, 1332:ⁱ but presided not long, as

ROBERT, the fourth of his name, occurs prior in 1333.^k Wharton, in the Anglia Sacra, considers him as a different person from Robert de Sutton.^l Bishop Kennett says, "Constat vero Tho. Cristy præbuisse usque ad ann. 1340."^m

The lands lying in Waterford and Cork, which were attached to the priory by John before he acquired the sceptre, had long, Mr. Warner observes, been found extremely inconvenient to the grantees; perpetual difficulties and delays arising in the receipt of the rents and

Warner says, "It is to be recorded to the honour of the monks of Bath, that they form just at this period a notable exception to that general character of indolence and inutility which so deservedly attaches to most of their brethren of the cowl. The shuttle and loom employed their attention, and under their active auspices the weaving of woollen cloth (which made its first appearance in England about the year 1330, and received the sanction of an Act of Parliament in 1337) was introduced, established, and brought to such perfection at Bath, as rendered this city one of the most considerable in the west of England for this manufacture. A shuttle, the emblem of the art, was incorporated into the Arms of the monastery, and existed till within this half century on the front of the abbey house, as an index of the laudable activity of the Bath monks." Hist. of Bath, p. 67. Neither of the coats, however, engraved as the arms of Bath monastery in Bishop Tanner's Notitia Monastica, has the shuttle.

profits issuing from them. This induced the monastery to make an exchange of them for lands in England; and a licence for that purpose was obtained in the year 1334. The two cells, however, still continued under the government of Bath.^a

By a similar permission from the king, in the fifteenth year of his reign, Walter de Farlegh, chaplain, was authorized to assign to the prior and convent twenty-eight acres of land, one acre of meadow, ten acres of pasture, twenty-four acres of wood, three shillings of rent, and one pair of spurs annually, in Forde, near Bath.^b

JOHN DE IFORD, or YFORD, was the next prior: the exact time of whose admission is not recorded. He appears to have been cited before the bishop of his diocese for the irregularity of his life,^c and either resigned, or was deposed from his priorate in 1347.^d Between the time of the vacancy and the mention of another prior we have on record that in 1352, the 25th of Edward the Third, one Robert Ghene, for the support and sustenance of three chaplains to say mass for the souls of a variety of people in the church of Bath, received permission to grant to its society four messuages, and forty shillings of annual rent in Bristol.^e Another

JOHN is the next prior who occurs, A.D. 1363: probably the same person who occurs prior in 1370, 43 Edw. III. by the name of JOHN DE BEREWIKE.^f John, prior of Bath, is again mentioned in 1385.^g It was probably in his time that permission was granted by the king in the tenth year of Richard the Second to John Dodmerton, William Plonte, John Cheot, and William Ricardes, to convey to the prior and convent of Bath five messuages, two tofts, one virgate and a half, and eighty-seven acres of wood and a half, and three shillings and eight pence rent, with their appurtenances in Olneston; of the yearly value, together, of twenty-three shillings and nine pence.^h

JOHN DUNSTER occurs prior A.D. 1406.ⁱ He died on the 6th of February, 1412.^k

JOHN TELESFORD, or DE TELESFORD, was elected prior on the 10th of March following, and on the 23d of the same month received the bishop's confirmation.^l For thirty years previous he had been a monk in the cell of Dunster.^m He was cited to a convocation in St. Paul's in 1415. He died in 1425.ⁿ

WILLIAM SOUTHBROKE became prior April 20th, 1426.^o In 1438 he appears to have been cited to a Council at Ferrara. He died June 7th, 1447.^p

THOMAS LACOCK, a monk of the convent, was elected prior Sept. 16th, 1447. Wharton notices him as continuing in office in 1451.

RICHARD, prior of Bath, is stated to have been present at the baptism of Richard, son to George duke of Clarence, at Tewkesbury, Oct. 7th, 1476.^q

JOHN CANTLOWE was made prior in 1489: during whose priorate Archbishop Morton visited the monastery, in 1494. He died in the month of August, 1499. He rebuilt the chapel of St. Mary Magdalen, at Holloway, near Bath, together with a small hospital for lunatics adjoining.^r

WILLIAM BIRDE was elected prior Aug. 31st, 1499, but was at first rejected by the bishop. On the mediation of the convent, however, he was admitted.^s

Bishop King, who was translated from Exeter to Bath in 1495, in consequence of a dream^t resolved to rebuild the church of Bath. His injunctions to the prior and convent curtailing the expenditure of the monastery, A.D. 1500, and allotting a portion of its income to the rebuilding of the church, will be found in the Appendix of Instruments.^u Prior Birde seconded his diocesan with much activity; who, however, lived only to see the south and west parts of his building raised to a moderate height: the continuation of the work being left to the care of the prior, whose rebus, a W. and a bird, are still to be seen, cut in stone, in different parts. Prior Birde died, poor and blind, May 22d, 1525. Ashmole informs us that he had much addicted himself to researches after the philosopher's stone.^x His chapel and tomb are still remaining in the abbey church.

WILLIAM HOLWAY, or HOLLEWEYE, alias GIBBES, was elected prior July 5th, 1525, and was confirmed by the bishop July 18th following. Upon his appointment, he vigorously applied himself to the completion of the abbey church. It was scarcely, however, finished, before he, with John Pitt, sub-prior, Thomas Bathe, canon, and fourteen others, subscribed to the king's supremacy, Sept. 22d, 1534; and on the 27th of January,

And that each priest, monk, or secular, saying mass weekly, should toll a bell in that monastery, thrice, and it to be called Botreaux-Bell; and at the Introite of the mass, say, with a loud voice, 'Ye shall pray for the good estate of our sovereign lord the king, Henry the Sixth; and of our sovereign lady the queen; and of Prince Edward; and of William Lord Botreaux, and Margaret his wife, while they live; and for their souls, after they be departed out of this world; and for the soul of Elizabeth, late the wife of the said William Lord Botreaux; and for his fader's soul, and his grandam's; and for all the souls which the said lord will assign hem to pray for in writing; and for all his ancestors' souls, and all Christen souls, Pater noster thrice, and Ave Maria, with this psalm, De profundis clamavi, &c. with a low voice. And that the priest saying such mass shall daily receive ii^d. and the covent of that monastery to receive from the prior, for the obit of the said lord, and Elizabeth his late wife, to be performed in albis, before the altar of the Holy Trinity, xl^s. to be equally divided amongst them. Likewise, that there should be distributed to the said convent xxvii^s. for three other obits; viz. on the xxvth. of May, for the obit of William Botreaux, father of the said lord; on the fourth of September, of Elizabeth, mother of the said lord; on the third of January, of Margaret St. Lo, grandmother to the said lord, by his mother: and xx^s. yearly to the sacrist, for providing bread and wine, and all other things necessary, for the said masses and obits."

ⁿ In the time of this prior there was a great dispute between the convent and the mayor of Bath concerning the ringing of bells in the city, which continued several years, and was finally adjusted by a decree, that no one should ring any bells within the precincts of Bath at day-time before the prior had rung his bells, nor in the night-time after the prior had rung his curfew. See Collinson, vol. i. p. 56. Warner, p. 123.

Dugdale, in his Baronage, vol. i. p. 630, gives the following account of a benefaction to the monastery in prior Telesforde's time by Sir William Botreaux, ex autogr. penes Theoph. co. Hunt.

"In 37 Hen. VI. by his deed, bearing date 23 Sept. he gave to the prior and convent of Bathe, in com. Somerset. his manor of Yvelton, in com. Somerset. with certain lands in Camelerton, in that county; to the end they should cause a mass to be celebrated daily, for the good estate of King Henry the Sixth, Queen Margaret his wife, Edward then prince of Wales; as also for the good estate of him the said William, and Margaret, at that time his wife: and after this life, for the health of their souls. Likewise, every Sunday in the year, for a mass de Sancta Trinitate; on Monday, for a mass de Sanctis Angelis; on Tuesday, for the like de Omnibus Sanctis; on Wednesday, the like de S. Maria Magdalena; on Thursday, the like de S. Petro et Paulo apostolis; on Friday, the like de Epiphania Domini; and on Saturday, the like mass de S. Maria. Likewise, that three days before Easter (when mass shall not be said) for the distribution of sixpence to the poor of Bathe in bread, so that each poor man might have the value of a farthing.

1539, prior Holleweye divested himself of the whole monastery by surrendering it to the crown. Four years previous to the surrender, the revenues of the house were investigated by the king's commissioners, who, on this occasion, were Sir Henry Cassell, Knt. Henry Covell late mayor of Bath, and John Browne, by whom the annual value of the rents was returned at 617*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.*^a Speed gives the valuation at 695*l.* 6*s.*^b Two lists of the pensions granted to the monks, immediately upon the surrender,^c will be found in the Appendix of Instruments.^d

After this, the king's commissioners made an offer of St. Peter's church (which appears then to have been called the church of St. Saviour, St. Peter, and St. Paul,) to the City of Bath, for five hundred marks, which they refused: whereupon certain merchants bought all the glass, iron, and lead of the fabric, leaving nothing but the skeleton remaining, which, with the monastery, were sold to Humphrey Colles in 1542; the year after which an act of parliament passed for the Dean and chapter of Wells to make one sole chapter for the bishop.

The site of the monastery was soon afterwards sold by Humphrey Colles to Matthew Colthurst, whose son Edmund made a present of the carcase of the church to the mayor and citizens of Bath, for their parochial church: the rest of the monastic buildings he sold to Fulk Morley in 1569, from whose descendants they came to the duke of Kingston. Of these buildings no remains at present exist.^e

Warner says, the whole of the abbey-house was demolished in 1755, and the foundations removed in order to make excavations for other buildings. On this occasion several stone coffins were dug up; and, what may be considered as a still more curious discovery, the Roman baths, which had been concealed from a very early period, presented themselves to the view.

The abbey church of Bath,^f from the number of its windows, was formerly called The Lantern of England. It is built in the form of a cross, with a magnificent tower in the centre: its chief beauty being in the west front. Its length from east to west is two hundred and ten feet; length of the cross-aisles from north to south, a hundred and twenty-six feet; breadth of the body and aisles, seventy-two feet; height of the tower, a hundred and fifty-two feet; and the height of the roof or vaulting of the church, seventy-eight feet. It is supposed to have been the last building of any magnitude, purely Gothic, which was erected in this country; and almost the only one which remains exactly in the state in which it was originally designed. The dilapidation of the fabric, after the Dissolution, has been noticed above. Mr. Peter Chapman was the first person who began to repair it, about 1572, at the east end, so as to secure it from the inclemency of the weather. Queen Elizabeth enabled the citizens to raise money to restore it; and Thomas earl of Sussex, lord chamberlain to her majesty, set on foot a subscription toward completing the building: he was followed by Walter Calcut, of Williamscoth, in Oxfordshire. Afterwards, the reparation ceased until William Lord Burleigh, lord high treasurer to Queen Elizabeth, and Thomas Bellet, Esq. steward to her household, revived it. They completed the choir for divine service; previous to which the church was re-consecrated, and dedicated to the names of St. Peter and St. Paul. Afterwards, the side aisles of the choir, and the transepts, were repaired by various persons. The west part of the nave was uncovered in 1609, when Dr. James Montague, bishop of Bath and Wells (afterwards bishop of Winchester), set the example of repairing this part, and was followed by divers noblemen and gentlemen: Sir Henry Montague, Knt. lord chief justice of the King's Bench, brother to the munificent bishop, beautified the great west door; Sir Nicholas Salterns, Knt. of London, built the vestry. Thus, by the assistance of these benefactors, the church was restored to what we now behold it.^g

A REGISTER of the priory of Bath, formerly Sir Matthew Hale's, is preserved in the library belonging to the society of Lincoln's Inn. Bishop Kennett's extracts from it have been already used in the preceding Account.

Another Register is noticed by Bishop Tanner, in his Notitia Monastica, as in the library of Lord Weymouth, now the Marquis of Bath's, at Longleat. It had before belonged to Dr. Guidot, of Bath.

The Harleian MS. 3970 is a Register-Book of William Holleweye, prior of Bath, and John Clarke, bishop of Bath and Wells, chiefly of the 28th and 29th years of King Henry the Eighth: containing indentures, obligations, leases, &c. The instruments relating to the Priory, fol. 1 to fol. 37, concern the advowsons of the churches of Longeassheton, Coston, Walcott, Stanton Prior, Kylverton, Carye, Sowthestoke, Ufcum, Batheston, Eingliscombe, Stalles, and Weston: with the manors of Southstoke, Ford, Combe, and Lyncombe.

The most important manuscript, however, is that preserved in the library of Corpus Christi, or Benet, college, Cambridge: to which it was bequeathed, with the rest of his collection, by Archbishop Parker.

Its contents, as far as they concern the monastery, are given below from Mr. Nasmith's Catalogue, p. 119. The instruments with an asterisk prefixed will be found in the Appendix to the present Account.^h the Dissolution it was repaired, and again made habitable; some parts, however, of the old house were left in their pristine state, and were never occupied after their being taken from the monks. On pulling down part of these buildings, in the beginning of the eighteenth century, one of the apartments which had been walled up, and never explored, discovered a very curious and interesting sight: round the walls, upon pegs, were hung copes, albs, chesibles, and other garments of the religious, which, on the admission of the air, became so rotten as to crumble into powder. There was also found the handle of a crozier: and on the floor lay two large chests, without any contents, as it was alleged by the workmen; one of whom, however, grew rich upon the occasion, and retired from business." Ibid. See also Collinson, Hist. Somerset, vol. i. p. 58. Warner, p. 135. Warner says, the body of the monastery was surrounded by a wall, having two gates in it; one built after the manner of a triumphal arch, and called the Abbey gate; and the other, called St. Peter's gate, a single aperture, five feet wide by eight feet high.

ⁱ The dimensions of the old abbey church, before the erection of the present structure, are given by William of Worcestre in his Itinerary, p. 116. "Longitudo ecclesie Bathoniensis, 180 steppys." That is, three hundred feet.

MONASTERIUM Batoniense rex Offa construxit, quod post rex Edgarus, sicut alia monasteria, re-paravit.

Bathe.

[Lelandi Collectan. vol. i. p. 80.]

OSRICUS rex, primus fundator, instituit moniales.
Offa rex, ut quidam volunt, induxit canonicos seculares.
Deinde inducti monachi.

[Lelandi Itinerar. vol. ii. fol. 38.]

It apperith in the booke of the Antiquities of the late Monasterie of Bath that King Osric, in the yere of our Lord DCLXXVI. Theodore then being archbishop of Cantwarbyri, did erect a monasterie of nunnes at Bath, and Bertane was the first abbatisse thereof.

It apperith by a Charte that one Ethelmod, a great man, gave, by the leave of King Ædelrede, in Theodore the archbishop of Cantwarbyris tyme, lands to one Berneguid abbatisse of Bath, and to one Fuleburc. The booke of the Antiquity of th' Abby of Bath makith no great mention of any notable doying of Offa king of the Merches at Bathe.

The prior of Bath told me, that after the nunnes time there were secular chanons in S. Peters chirch at Bath. Peradventure Offa king of Merches set them there, for I have read that Offa did a notable act at S. Peters in Bath: or else the chanons cam yn after that the Danes had racid the nunry there.

Eadgar was a great doer and benefactor to S. Peters at Bath, in whos tyme, monks were yn Bathe, and syns, except Alfarus erl of March, that was a scourge of monks, expellid them for a tyme.

John, a phisitian borne at Tours in France, and made bishop of Wells, did obtaine of Henry the First to sette his se at Bathe, and soe he had the abbay lands gyven unto hym, and then he made a monke prior there, deviding the old possessions of the monasterie with him. This John pullid down the old chirch of S. Peter at Bath and erectid a new much fairer and was buried in the middle of the presbyteri thereof, whos image I saw lying ther a nine yers sins, at the whiche tyme al the chirch that he made lay to wast, and was onroffed, and weds grew about this John of Tours sepulcre. This John of Tours erectid a palace at Bath in the south-west side of the monasterie of S. Peters at Bath, one great squar tour of it with other ruines yet appere. I saw at the same tyme a fair great marble tumbre ther of a bishops of Bath, out of the wich they sayid that oyle did distille, and likely, for his body was embaumid plentifully. Ther were other divers bishops buried ther.

Oliver King, bishop of Bath, began of late dayes a right goodly new chirch at the west part of the old chirch of S. Peter, and finished a great part of it. The residue of it was syns made by the prior of Bath, and especially by Gibbes the last prior ther that spent a grete summe of mony on that fabrike. Oliver King let almost al the old chirch of S. Peters in Bath to go to ruine; the walls yet stand.

ensis constat Osricum regem, anno Domini dclxxvj. Theodoro tunc archiepisc. Cantuariensi, monasterium sanctimonialium apud Bathoniam erexisse, et Bertanam primam ejusdem fuisse abbatissam.

Constat etiam ex charta quadam Ethelmodum, virum potentem, de consensu Ædelredi regis, tempore Theodori archiepiscopi Cantuariensis, cuidam Berneguidæ abbatissæ Bathoniensi, et alteri Fuleburcæ, terras dedisse. Rerum antiquarum Bathoniensis cœnobii codex vix aliquid commemorat notatu dignum ab Offa, Merciorum rege, Bathoniæ gestum.

A priore Bathoniensi accepi, quod post sanctimonialium tempora, seculares erant canonici in ecclesia sancti Petri Bathon. Fortassis Offa, Merciorum rex, eos ibi collocavit: legi enim Offam aliquid egisse notabile apud sanctum Petrum Bathoniæ. Alioqui, canonici, postquam Dani monialium ædes funditus everterant, ingressi fuerint.

Ædium sancti Petri Bathon. restaurator fautorque præcipuus erat Edgarus; cujus ævo, citraque, monachi erant Bathoniæ: nisi quod Alfarus, Merciorum comes, monachorum ipse flagellum, eos ad tempus expulit.

Johannes, medicus quidam, natione Turonensis in Gallia, episcopus factus Wellensis, ab Henrico primo impetravit ut sedem suam Bathoniæ collocaret; hinc ipsi cœnobii terræ dabantur, qui tunc monachum quendam constituit loci priorem, veteris monasterii possessiones cum eo dividens. Iste Johannes veterem sancti Petri Bathon. ecclesiam demolitus est, et novam longè pulchriorem extruxit, in cujus presbyterii medio sepultus fuit; cujus effigiem ibi jacentem vidi ante annos novem jam elapsos, quando tota quam ipse construxerat ecclesia desertam et tecto orbatam reperi, zizaniis et loliis istius Johannis sepulchrum circumcirca ambientibus.

Iste Johannes Turonensis apud Bathoniam ad austro-occidentale monasterii sancti Petri Bathon. latus palatium construxit, cujus magna quædam turris quadrata, inter alias ruinas, adhuc apparet. Eodem tempore pulchram ibidem amplamque tumbam vidi marmoream cujusdam episcopi Bathoniensis; unde, uti narrabant, oleum distillabat: et verisimiliter; corpus enim ejus erat copiosè conditum. Plures alii ibi sepelebantur episcopi.

Oliverus Kyng, episcopus Bathoniensis, valde pulchram nuper incepit ecclesiam, ex occidentali veteris sancti Petri ecclesiæ parte, et magnam ipsius partem consummavit. Reliquum postea addiderunt priores Bathonienses, præcipuè postremus loci prior, Gibbs nomine, qui magnam pecuniæ summam in fabricam illam expendebat. Oliverus Kyng totam ferè veterem sancti Petri Bathon. ecclesiam perire passus est. Muri adhuc stant.

Carta Henrici Regis I.

✠ In nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Amen. Dominus et Redemptor noster Jesus Christus, eo sanctam dilexit ecclesiam, ut eam suo sanguine redimeret, et suo spiritu insigniret, dilexit eam et sibi copulavit, et omnium virtutum vestibis adornavit, ditavit eam muneribus, et coronavit diademate regni, unde Propheta, 'Astitit regina a dextris tuis in vestitu deaurato, circumdata varietate. Omnis gloria filiae regis ab intus in fimbriis aureis circumamicta varietate.' Quod considerantes terræ reges et principes ad hujus reginæ obsequia convenerunt, et summi imperatoris exemplo, qui eam interius illustrabat, exterius adornaverunt. Inde in jus ecclesiasticum terrena sunt collata bona, fiscus, et prædia, et quæcumque religiosæ mentes in sanctæ ecclesiæ officiis commemoraverunt utilia. Quod ego Henricus rex, Willielmi regis filius, considerans, ipse quoque huic reginæ servire studui; eamque rebus quas ab antecessoribus meis, jure hæreditario acceperam honoravi, Renovavi igitur donum quod fecerat frater meus Willhelmus rex de civitate Bathoniæ, et eandem civitatem donavi Deo et beato Petro apostolo, et Johanni episcopo, cum omnibus consuetudinibus et appendiciis quæ ad ipsam pertinent civitatem constitui et concessi, ut ibi deinceps sit caput et mater ecclesia totius episcopatus de Somersete. Hoc autem feci consilio primatum meorum et intercessionem Johannis episcopi qui eo tempore episcopatum tenebat et regebat. Feci hoc pro anima mea, et patris mei, et matris meæ, et fratrum meorum, et antecessorum et successorum meorum, qui usque ad finem sæculi futuri sunt. Facta autem est hæc donatio anno ab incarnatione Domini millesimo centesimo primo. Indictione nulla. Epacta nulla. Concurrente i. Presente Matthilda regina, et viris illustribus et principibus totius Angliæ, ecclesiasticis et sæcularibus, et ut hæc rata et in æternum perseverent, præsentem signo sanctæ crucis confirmo, et meæ reginæ potestatis sigillo corroboro. ✠. Confirmatio hæc facta est anno regni mei secundo. Ego regina Mathildis confirmavi. ✠. Ego Anselmus archiepiscopus Cantuariensis laudavi. ✠. Ego Girardus archiepiscopus Ebor. aptavi. ✠. Ego Mauricius London. episcopus corroboravi. ✠. Ego Willhelmus Winton. episcopus aptavi. Ego Osbernus Exon. episcopus confirmavi. Ego Robertus Lincoln. episcopus astruxi. NUM. XIV.

Carta Johannis Episcopi Bathon.

[Ex vetusto Exemplari in Bibl. Deuves. ut supr. fol. 39 b.]

IN nomine Patris et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Ego Johannes gratia Dei Bathoniensis episcopus, futuris post me episcopis et omnibus ecclesiæ sanctæ filiis salutem. Notum vobis facio, quod, ad honorem Dei et sancti Petri, elaboravi, et ad effectum perduxì, cum decenti autoritate, ut caput et mater ecclesia totius episcopatus de Sumerseta sit in urbe Bathonia, in ecclesia S. Petri. Cui beato apostolo, et servitoribus ejus monachis reddidi terras eorum, quas aliquandiu injustè tenueram in manu mea, ita integrè et liberè sicut Alsus abbas ante me tenuit; et si quid melioravi vel acquisivi, et quicquid boni super ipsas habetur, totum reddidi potestati eorum. Donavi etiam eis ad supplementum victus et vestitus eorum, et ut augeatur conventus fratrum ibidem Deo servientium, et ad restaurandum thesaurum quem accepi de ecclesia, eas terras quas labore meo acquisivi, et pretio emi, scilicet v. hidas in Westona quas emi à Patricio de Caurcia,^a et terram Hugonis cum barba, scilicet Clafortonam, Doene, Meresfeldam, et Estonam, et Herleiam, et Arnemudam super mare, et quicquid ad eas pertinet, et unam domum in Batha, et alteram in Wintonia. De urbe vero Bathonia, quàm primùm rex Willielmus, et postea frater ejus rex Henricus donaverunt sancto Petro pro elemosina sua: et propter meam deprecationem, hoc constitui, ut omnes redditus ponantur ad perficiendum novum opus quod incepi. Præterea quæcunque acquisivi in ornamentis ecclesiasticis, in cappis, in pallis, in cortinis, in dorsalibus, in tapetis, in crucibus, in textibus, in calicibus, in filacteriis, et quicquid de proprio addidi in capella episcopali, et plenarium armarium meum, pannos etiam meos, scifos, et coclearia argentea, et omnem omnino supellectilem domus meæ, perpetuo et hæreditario jure donavi sancto Petro et monachis ejus, pro remissione peccatorum meorum. Quicumque ergo hanc donationem meam infregerit, Dei et sanctorum apostolorum et omnium sancto-rum, et meâ quamvis peccatoris autoritate anathema sit. Acta sunt hæc anno ab incarnatione Domini millesimo centesimo sexto, regnante Henrico filio magni Willielmi, Northmannorum ducis et Anglorum regis, Anselmo archiepiscopo, anno ordinationis nostræ nonodecimo, indictione xiiij. Et ut rata et inconcussa permaneat hæc nostra constitutio, signo sanctæ crucis eam manu mea confirmavi ✠ et idoneos testes adhibui, quorum nomina sunt, Herevius episcopus, Herlewinus abbas Glaston. Walkerius archidiaconus, Robertus archidiaconus, Girbertus archidiaconus, Agelbertus capellanus, Vitalis clericus, Walterius Hosatus, Hildebertus dapifer, Tuoldus, Willielmus, Athelardus filius Fastredi, et omnes alii milites et ministri mei qui affuerunt.

De Terra Grantæ in Stochia North.

[Madox, Hist. Excheq. edit. 1769, vol. i. p. 110, e Cod. MS. C.C.C.C.]

MENSE Junio in crastino festivitatis apostolorum Petri et Pauli, residente in curia sua Bathæ Johanne episcopo, cum amicis et baronibus, qui simul ad diem festum aderant, delatæ sunt ei litteræ cum sigillo regio, quarum forma hæc: Willielmus filius regis, Johanni episcopo de Batha salutem. Præcipio ut saisias Modbertum juste de terra quam tenuit Grenta de Stoca, sicut hæreditavit eum in vita sua. Teste episcopo Salesberien. Lectis litteris, Episcopus dixit: 'Sicuti per has mihi litteras a filio Domini mei mandatum est fieri, si tamen justum est acquiesco. Vos autem, vos amici mei et domini, qui propter apostolicum diem sollemniter huic adestis curiæ, quid in hoc justius sit discutere precor dignemini.' Ad hæc dominus Prior, habito cum fratribus consilio, data diligenter ab omnibus audientia, sic locutus est: 'Quoniam quidem non nisi juste aliquid hic fieri neque rex neque regis filius præcipit, et vobis tanquam viris bonis et juris peritis utrum justum sit quod præcipitur discutere committitur, quomodo se rei veritas habeat manifestius videbitis, si me breviter locuturum patienter audire velitis. Constat quidem quod terra hæc de qua nobis hic sermo oritur, a diebus antiquis hujus sanctæ domus domini fratribus in usus proprios et possessionem liberam data, nullius unquam mutatione regis, episcopi, vel abbatis, in jus militare transiit. Quod ipse Grenta de cujus hæreditate nunc agitur moriens etiam non tacuit. Nam cum, nobis præsentibus, domui suæ disponderet, et rei peculiaris partes nominatim disponderet, et rei peculiaris partes nominatim divideret, secreto monitus a domesticis ut testamentum faciens publice sibi hæredem substitueret. Ait hæc est hæreditas servorum Domini; quam vice stipendii non hæreditatis lege quoad viverem tenere permissus, ipsum me cum terra, fratribus quibus id juris est, nunc moriens relinquo. Hoc est quod fecit testamentum: et hæc verba illius novissima. Post quæ vexatus per dies aliquot, monachus diem obiit. Præsentes hic etiam quosdam video, quos omnibus his interfuisse simul et audisse gratissimum habeo.' Surgentes illico testes quidam legitimi, stantes in medio, constanter assecebant, se modis omnibus probaturos, eum ne uno quidem verbo veritatis præterisse vestigia. Carta nichilominus donationis antiquæ mox lecta est; quam Kenulfus rex Saxonum scribi præcepit et manu proprio signavit, consentientibus et annuentibus archiepiscopis, episcopis, abbatibus, et omnium dignitatum primatibus ac ministris. Et ut ibi legebatur, eandem cartam signo crucis notantes imprecati sunt in illum iram furoris Domini, quicumque tam liberale Christianissimi regis donativum quocunque deteriorationis genere pervertere præsumpsisset in æternum. Lectis igitur et expositis quæ carta continere videbatur, ratiocinationis jam dictæ veritas solidata est; aliis bona laudantibus, aliis ex adverso tumultuantibus; illo præcipue oclamante, qui se non minus procaciter quam mendaciter hæredem contendebat esse; justissime; quippe cui filiam defuncti conjugem habuerit; adoptatus ab ejusdem patre dum viveret in filium; patrem vero non stipendiarie, ut oppositum est, sed libere potius et hæreditarie terram de qua quæstio erat tenuisse. Cumque diutius variis ab alterutrum contradictionibus causa protenderetur, dixit episcopus: 'Quia dies præterit, et ad nos alia spectant negotia, placet ut vos quos nec advocatos nec partium fautores esse cognovimus causam diligenter perpendentes quo termino sopiri debeat judicetis.' Secedentes igitur a turba qui majores natu qui juris peritiores esse videbantur, singula juxta quod audierant subtiliter et discrete pensantes causam dijudicaverunt. Quibus iterum introgressis, sic unius ore pro omnibus relatum est. 'Considerantes,' inquit, 'totam hujusce causæ circumstantiam hoc diffinientes statuimus, ut hæredem jure qui se nominat id quod in assertionem suæ causæ paulo ante declamavit, testibus ad minus duobus de ecclesiæ familia liberis et legitimis hodie nominatis et octavo productis, vel cyrographo credibiliter signato, irrefragabiliter probet. At in utroque si defecerit, ne quidem audiatur in reliquum.' Respondentibus ad hæc omnibus dignum et justum esse, calumpniator obticuit. A curia discessum est. Acta sunt hæc anno Domini m.c.xxi.; præsentibus et quod justum est approbantibus episcopis duobus, Johanne Bathensi et Mauritio Hiberniensi; cum archidiaconis tribus, Johele Salesberiensis, et Girberto Bathensi, et Araldo, cum clericis pluribus et capellanis, Atselino Hosato, Girberto Rufo, Radulfo Lunduni, Henrico de Lidiard, Rodberto de Betuna; horum testes sunt Patricius de Caurz, Hubertus de Sancta Susanna, Winebaldus de Baalun, Alexander de Alnoth, Reinaldus de Dunstanvilla, Giffardus de Salforda, Helias de Deingt, Thomas de Bacuuil, Rodbertus, Rogerus de la Mare, Willielmus Dapifer, item Willielmus.

Concordia inter Conventum Bathoniæ et Willielmum Hosatum, A.D. 1123.

[MS. in Bibl. Coll. Corp. Christi Cantab. Num. cxi. p. 112. Vid. Madox. Formul. Anglic. p. 73.]

HÆC est conventio et concordia quam totus conventus Bathæ cum Willielmo Hosato firmaverunt et consenserunt, in die quâ reconciliatus est eis de omnibus causis quæ inter eos erant. Monachi concesserunt Willielmo, ut libere et honorifice teneat et habeat totam terram quam pater suus die qua mortuus est de eis tenebat. Insuper ii. acras ei dederunt; unam quæ dicitur Acra Præpositi, et alteram de Stabergâ; et tantum de sarto quantum pater ejus fecerat; eo pacto ne amplius aliquid sibi augeat. Willielmus vero susceptâ per textum evangelii fraternitate, juravit monachis per eadem evangelia, quod verus amicus et fidelis eis esset in omnibus locis sicut dominis suis, et quod plenariam decimam eis daret de omnibus suis quæ ad decimam pertinent in villâ Esctonæ; et quod pro illâ dimidiâ hidâ ulterius gildaret, cujus gildum antè injustè retinuerat. Reddidit etiam eis omnes purpresturas, de quibus inter eos discordia et calumpnia erat. Conventioni quoque addidit, quod seriret eis nominatim in omnibus placitis, ad quæ convenientè submonitus erit; et ad defensionem totius villæ Esctonæ aderit in hundredis et seyris, in quibus erit quantum poterit. Facta est autem hæc concordia, anno incarnationis Dominicæ m.c.xxiii. die Martis, x. kal. Febr. in capitulo Bathæ, sub testimonio totius capituli et subscriptorum, Reinbaldi Huscal, Ricardi nepotis ejus, Helie de Dedingtoniâ, Henrici Hosati, Rodberti fratris ejus, Atselini Hosati et fratrum ejus, Rogeri filii Viviani, Radulfi clerici de Esctonâ, Radulfi Francisci, Adeulfi fabri, Rodberti fratris Drogonis, et Salidæ, et aliorum.

Bulla Honorii III. Papæ de Dissolutione Unionis Bathon. et Glaston. Ecclesiarum.

[Wilk. Concil. tom. i. p. 569, ex Reg. Well.]

HONORIUS, servus servorum Dei, venerabili fratri episcopo Bathon. ejusque successoribus, &c. Cum inter te, et Priorem et Conventum Glaston. super unione Bath.

et Glaston. ecclesiarum, quam ipsi dissolvi petebant, fuisset quaestio diutius agitata Nos . . . vener. fratri nostro R. Saresbur. episcopo, et P. Norwicen. electo, camerario nostro, sedis apostolicæ legato, nostris dedimus literis in mandatis, ut tam te, quam Priorem et Convent. prædictos ad concordiam prudenter moverent. Sed quia legatus interesse non potuit, commisit vices suas abbati de Radinges, coram quibus cum tu personaliter, et illi per procuratores comparuissetis, tandem in compositionem amicabilem convenistis quam auctoritate apostolica confirmamus, unionemque prædictam penitus dissolventes, statuimus, ut monasterium Glaston. de cætero sub proprii abbatis regimine a conventu libere eligendi, juxta regulares observantias gubernetur . . . salvo jure patronatus quod rex Johannes tibi contulit in monasterio supradicto. Dat. Romæ 16 cal. Junii, Indict. vii. m.cc.xviii. Pontif. III.

Compositio inter eos fuit talis. Quod de portione, quæ cesserat in partem episcopi per ordinationem Innocentii papæ III. remanebunt ipsi episcopo et successoribus suis inperpetuum, maneria de Wynescumbe, Pukeleschirch, Blakeford, et Cranemer; de portione etiam, quæ per ordinationem prædictam monachis cesserat, remiserunt dicti monachi eidem episcopo et successoribus suis sectam, quam prædictum manerium de Crane-mer faciebat hundredo eorum. Revertentur autem ad monachos prædictos de portione ipsius episcopi maneria subscripta, Mere, Bokelande, Kynton, Cristemeleford, Badebyr, et Aissebyr, cum libertatibus, per episcopum eisdem acquisitis, quantum in eo est, et omnibus aliis pertinentiis suis, exceptis advocacionibus ecclesiarum. De militibus ita quoque convenit, quod episcopus habeat et successores sui inperpetuum illam partem militum, qui pertinere noscuntur ad feuda, et terras ipsi episcopo remanentes, et præterea feudum et servitium unius militis in Kamelarton cum omnibus pertinentiis suis. Monachi vero habebunt omnes alios milites de portione episcopi ad eos reversura, et tam de illis quam aliis, quos prius habuerant per ordinationem memoratam, excepto feudo de Kamelarton, quod respondebit episcopis immediate, facient servitium regale prædicto episcopo et succ. suis inperpetuum. Et episcopus et succ. sui per manus suas illud facient domino regi, et inde eos erga dominum regem acquietabunt. De spiritualibus autem et spiritualibus annexis partes eadem ordinationi dicti episcopi Salesbir. et abbatis sese pure et absolute commiserunt; qui ordinarunt, quod dictus episcopus et successores sui habeant patronatum monasterii Glaston. advocaciones etiam ecclesiarum de Aissebyr, Cristemeleford, Kynton, et Bokelande, quæ prius per ordinationem episcopo remanserant, et advocacionem ecclesiæ de Kamelarton. Habebunt etiam dicti episcopus et successores sui inperpetuum plenam jurisdictionem in monasterio Glaston. ad diocesanum jure ordinariæ potestatis pertinentem. Idem autem episcopus concessit monachis liberaliter, quod ad eos revertatur advocatio ecclesiæ de Mere, quæ prius in portionem episcopi devenerat, et quod habeant antiquas et debitas pensiones, scil. de ecclesia de Pukeleschirch, Wynescumbe, et Kamelarton, quarum advocaciones episcopis remanebant. Hæc Concordia confirmatur per dominum Papam.

Injunctiones factæ Priori et Conv. Bathon. 9 Oct. A. D. 1500.

[Harl. MS. 6966, e Registro Oliveri Kyng Episc. Bath. Well. fol. 62.]

OLIVERUS permissione divina B. W. episcopus dilectis nobis in Christo confratri nostro priori et conv. Bathon. salutem, gratiam, et benedictionem. Tandem dolenter inter cætera invenimus dictam nostram ecclesiam cath. Bathon. per incuriam multorum priorum non reparatam aut reffectam, imo funditus dirutam, ipsisque in voluptatibus evanuisse, Prioremque modernum, cui prædecessorum suorum culpam non ascribimus, remissum non benevolum ad dictæ ecclesiæ refectionem seu edificationem, paterna compassione deploramus. Nos igitur præmissis consideratis de consilio multorum nobilium, prælatorum, et abbatum, ac aliorum jurisperitorum, de Dei misericordia et apostolorum ejus Petri et Pauli patrocinio confisi, necnon aliorum Christi fidelium, et amicorum nostrorum elemosyna freti, eo libentius quo celerem dicti operis expeditionem et perfectionem conspiciamus manus nostras adjutrices duximus apponend. non laboribus aut expensis nostris parcentes. Speramus itaque dictum opus perfectum volentes infra paucos annos facere quod nunquam impensis dictorum prioris et conventus, aut vix infra centum annos nostra et amicorum nostrorum omissa vel sprete diligenter posse fieri existimamus. Quamobrem præfatos defectus monachorum, voluptates, otia, ecclesiæ ruinam, ex superfluitate pensionum, indumentorum, cibariorum, et potuum orta, temperare volentes. Ut etiam aliis Christi fidelibus in elemosynarum suarum largitione pios animos non auferamus si dictos priorem et conventum non reformatos, aut competentes expensas ad dictum opus juxta vires non conferre dimittemus, præsentis Injunctiones ab eisdem fidelibus observandas decrevimus.

Et quia per visum Compoti vestri luculenter nobis apparet quod redditus assisæ beneficiorum, firmarum, et pensionum, cum exitibus lanæ extendit ad summam iiij^c. iiij^{xx}. libr. xvj^s. vj^d. ob. Vobis domine prior ad sustentationem vestram iiij^{xx}. marc. injungendo assignamus. Item conventui vestro, qui xvi. numero existunt, et ut arbitrio abundantius exhibeantur quam stricte regulæ vestræ intellectu ad nudam literam cavetur iiij^{xx}. lib. Item cætera onera rationi consona, prout in eodem visu continentur, de summa etiam prædicta deducenda censemus omnia præter xx. li. de firma feudi de Berton et clx. li. ad exhibitionem monachorum, cum credamus et sufficienter experimur quod iiij^{xx}. li. summa ad sustentationem eorum sufficiat. xl^s. de feudo celerarii. xxvj^s. viij^d. de feudo sacristæ. xx^s. de decima fœni sacristæ antedicto assignat. xxx^s. pro decima agnellorum etiam sacristæ assignat. cum monachis solus victus et vestitus, non pensio aut proprium concedatur, præter etiam l. libr. pro reparationibus vestris in maneriis faciendis cum judicio nostro xl. li. sufficiant; nec non xx. libr. pro stipendio servientum, cum etiam ipsis x. lib. sufficiant: residuam vero omnium proventuum, deductis necessariis loco tempore per nos vobis citra festum natalis Domini assignand. in constructionem dictæ ecclesiæ nostræ cath. exponend. et realiter expendend. mandamus et injungimus sub pœna juris. Volentes quod omnium casualium anni instantis, et aliorum annorum futurorum, viz. terrarum, ecclesiarum in manibus vestris tentarum, finium, heriotorum, mortuorum, releviorum, custodiarum juvenum, et eorum maritagiorum, wevarum, streyarum, amerciamentorum, reddituum capitalium, venditionum agnorum, ovium matricum, sub-bosci, et cæterorum omnium quorumcumque, quocunque nomine censeantur fidelem nobis compotum infra mensem post compotum vestrum generalem apud vos ut moris est tenend. et celebrand. una cum compoto omnium beneficiorum, pensionum, et portionum vestris officiariis deputat. archi. exhibeatis.
